JOTTINGS.

PALO ALTO STOCK FARM is beyond question the greatest of all the breeding farms established for the production of the American trotter, but like everything else it will some day be but a memory. Senator Stanford had the advantage of a combination of forces that are not possessed by the average breeder, viz: brains and money. He had both and used them well, and on Palo Alto Stock Farm has been founded many of the present and more of the future greatest trotting families. Every year, on the Pacific Coast and through the Eastern circuits many horses trot or pace themselves into prominence that were either bred on this great farm, sired by its stallions or produced by its mares. There has never been an auction sale of Palo Alto stock but performers or producers have been developed from the animals sold. It is such undisputable facts as these that lead me to make an attempt to impress upon the minds of farmers and horse breeders that the opportunity to get some of this Palo Alto blood will not always be offered. In the course of time the many thousands of acres which belong to the Stanford Estate, and which have been given to the great University founded by the late Senator and his estimable wife, will be devoted to other things than horse breeding, and the annual sales of trotting bred stock will be but a thing of the past as are already its sales of thoroughbreds. The wise horse breeders and farmers of this country will therefore embrace the few remaining opportunities that are offered to secure possession of Palo Alto bred stock. On Thursday, the 30th of January, this year, about forty head of broodmares from the Palo Alto Farm will be sold by William G. Layng at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city. There are many grandly bred and fine individuals among them. My advice to farmers and others who have a place to keep a few of these mares, is to attend the sale and purchase them. It is the small breeder who has the advantage in rearing colts, and a very large proportion of the champion race horses were bred on other than the large stock farms. Auction sales, like the one to be held this month, give the small breeder an opportunity of securing at his own and a low price, blood and individuality that has probably cost the big breeder many thousands of dollars to produce. And the small breeder should never allow these opportunities to escape him. I would not advise any one to attend any sale and purchase everything offered, but I believe that the purchase by a farmer or small breeder of one or two of these mares will be a paying investment in eight cases out of ten if the animal and its produce are properly handled. Forty broodmares will not supply the demand that exists in California to-day, and the buyer who gets one that is fairly bred and a good individual will be fortunate. The catalogues have not yet been issued and I do not know what forty of the several hundred at Palo Alto are to be sold, but I know there will be several future producers of extreme speed among them, as the record of every past sale is proof conclusive of this prediction.

In the Holiday edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN it was stated that Mr. C. J. Hamlin of New York and Mr. A. B. Spreckels of California were the only men who had bred two trotting mares that had obtained records better than 2:10. This statement is true as regards men, but when breeding farms are considered Palo Alto will have to be added to the list, as from its paddocks have come Sunol 2:08½ and Eleata 2:08½. The latter was bred at Palo Alto, but after the death of Senator Stanford.

There is a rumor to the effect that some time during the next three weeks several of the district agricultural associations of California will announce dates for their fairs and race meetings of 1902. I hope the rumor is true, and that the long-looked-for "move" on the part of these associations will materialize. There are four or five districts that I know will be in line. Secretary Bell of Napa tells me that his district will hold a fair, no matter whether any other district does or not, and that good-sized purses will be given. The Napa Board is only waiting for the Governor to fill a few vacancies in its body, and as soon as the appointments are made they will meet and arrange a program and announce it. The date they want is August 11th to 16th and their purses will be from $500 to $700. Woodland will give a fair to a certainty; Concord, Contra Costa county, will be in line, and Oakland, Stockton, Hanford, Salinas, Hollister and Los Angeles will all give meetings, while the State Fair will make an effort this year to beat all former records. An effort is to be made to arrange a main circuit of five or six different districts that will be able to give purses of not less than $500 and some as high as $1000. It is not every district that can do this, but Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Napa, Oakland, Woodland, Stockton, San Jose and Fresno can well afford to arrange for high class fairs and good racing. If the proposed revival amounts to anything it will begin to take form this month. If not, the horsemen may as well make up their minds to go up north or enter at Denver and on through the East if they desire to race.

Since the racing of two year olds has become rather unpopular, why should the season for breeding in California close June 1st? Of course the man who breeds with the idea of entering the foal in two and three year old stakes wants the foal to come early that he may have all the advantages of growth and training possible, but there are hundreds who send mares to stallions every year who never expect to race the produce, and there is no reason why colts foaled in the summer or fall should not be as strong and vigorous as spring colts if the mares are properly fed. The alfalfa fields of the California valleys, and the late green feed in the mountain districts enable mares pastured on them to give as good a flow of milk as those pastured on natural grasses during the spring. The most rugged, stoutest and best campaigner that has been seen in California for years is Sir Albert S. 2:08½, and the date of his foaling was June 24th, 1896, so that his dam did not have much chance at spring grass when suckling him. There are many cattle breeders who claim that fall calves make a better growth than spring calves in California as they are weaned in the spring when green feed is abundant, while the early spring calf is taken from its mother in the fall when dry feed and cool weather during the winter cause it to lose flesh instead of gaining it. A longer season for stallions would enable them to serve a greater number of mares. It might be a good idea to charge more money for a spring service fee than for a fall fee, and I believe this has been done with success in some instances.

Directors of district associations who look with distrust upon the offering of large purses this year, as has been suggested by many of the leading horsemen of California, should not get the idea that the request is for large purses clear through the program. No association should offer a cent more than it can afford to give, and a $300 purse that is paid is better than one of $1000 that is unpaid. But every association can afford to give at least a couple of good sized stakes, one for trotters and the other for pacers, and if a half dozen of the principal districts will open two early closing stakes of $1000 each, there is no doubt but they will fill, aid greatly in filling all the other races on the program and do much to make the circuit of 1902 an assured success. These stakes should be announced not any later than February 1st, and should close by March 1st with three or four small payments, leaving the bulk of the entrance money to be paid at the start. In all probability stakes for 2:30 trotters and 2:25 pacers will fill with the largest number of entries, but there are faster classes than these that will fill so well that they will cost the association giving them but very little money.

The mare Elloree 2:08½ by Axtell 2:12 is dead. She was sold at the Marcus Daly sale in New York recently for $2600 and purchased by Mr. Malcolm Forbes, who intended breeding her to Bingen 2:06½. Her dam was by Robert McGregor. Mr. C. W. Williams, of Independence, Iowa, bred Elloree and campaigned her two or three years, giving her a record of 2:11½. She was then sold and campaigned by Geo Saunders and reduced her record to 2:08½ in 1899. She was one of the gamest and best race mares in the country and one of the handsomest in conformation. Her record was made in the fourth heat of a race where she defeated Tommy Britten, Cresceus, Pilatus, Belle J., Battleton, Caracalla, Gayton, Monterey and Oakland Baron. She won the fourth, fifth and sixth heats of this race, Tommy Britten having captured the first and second and Cresceus the third. The fourth heat was the fastest of the race. She had two or three foals by Atherton, one of them, Jeffrey, having a record of 2:27½. Her weanling by Prodigal brought $1200 at the Daly dispersal sale last month.

S. J. Dunlop, who for many years was a Southern Pacific conductor is now located at Hanford, Tulare county, in the livery business and has his stallion Strathway, sire of Toggles 2:08½, and others there. Mr. Dunlop writes that Strathway is limited to sixty mares this year and fifty-three have already been booked, so that he will be turning mares away before the season really opens. Strathway, with the proper opportunities, will be one of the greatest producing stallions in the country. His get nearly all go fast as soon as placed in training.

Matinee Racing at Los Angeles.

There was perfect weather at Los Angeles on Christmas Day and over three thousand people turned out to enjoy the racing furnished by members of the Driving Club of that city at Agricultural Park. Six races were on the card. In the second race in which there were four starters great interest was manifested as the horses were all fast and were to be driven by their owners. Mr. Geo. W. Ford won in straight heats with his stallion, Neernut, both heats being in 2:17 flat. The McKinney mare, Sweet Marie, was piloted by her new owner, Wm. Garland, who paid $3150 a few days before at the Potter sale, but third was the best she could do.

In the double team race Mr. Byron Erkenbrecher won handily with Floretta Belle and Hanford Medium, and it is thought these pacers will be able to pole in 2:20 with more training.

Mr. E. T. Earl won the second heat of the fifth race with his new purchase, Sweetheart, and although unable to win the race drove the fastest quarter shown during the afternoon—31½ seconds. Mr. Mosher won the race with his mare, Scappoose, reducing her record from 2:16½ to 2:15½ in the first heat.

During the afternoon the Driving Club presented Mrs. Florence E. Chandler, the secretary of the club, with a handsome silver-mounted pocketbook in token of their appreciation of her work for the club during the past year.

SUMMARY.

First race, mile dash, 2:35 trot:
Medico, b g. (J. H. Reynolds) 1
Billy Green, blk g. (A. W. Bruner) 2
Mowitza, b m. (R. B. Moorhead) 3
Time—2:28.

Second race, mile heats, 2 in 3, free for all trot:
Neernut, b h. (G. W. Ford) 1 1
Vendome, b g. (W. H. Stimson) 2 2
Sweet Marie, b m. (Wm. Garland) 3 3
Maggie McKinney, blk m. (W. M. Budinger) 4 4
Time—2:17, 2:17.

Third race, mile dash for teams:
Floretta Belle and Hanford Medium (Byron Erkenbrecher) 1
General Miles and Bastina (G. B. Talbot) 2
Montecito Boy and Johnny Brown (L. J. Felton) 3
Time—2:30½.

Fourth race, mile heats, 2 in 3, 2:30 pace:
Burley F. (H. G. Bundrem) 1 1
Jingle, blk g. (H. G. Otis) 3 2
Lady May, b m. (F. D. Lewis) 2 3
Maxneer, b g. (J. L. Elgholt) 5 4
Johnny Brown, b g. (F. A. Coffman) 4 5
Time—2:27½, 2:26½.

Fifth race, mile heats, 2 in 3, 2:30 pace:
Scappoose, b m. (M. B. Mosher) 1 2 1
Sweet Heart, b m. (E. T. Earl) 2 1 3
Russwood b m. (J. W. Spooner) 3 3 2
Time—2:15½, 2:19½, 2:19.

Sixth race, mile dash, 2:40 trot:
George, b g. (R. E. Muncey) 1
Redskin, ch g. (M. B. Mosher) 2
My Girl, b m. (Dr. John Ferbert) 3
Happy Boy, ch g. (Arthur Gore) 4
Time—2:39½.

Lawson Boosts the Trotter.

In describing his new farm, Dreamwold, and in telling what he intends doing there, T. W. Lawson pays the following tribute to the trotter:

"We all know what the American trotter can do for speed, but if any one has any doubt what he can do for beauty and style let me remind him that I have in my stables at the present time at least twenty American bred trotting stock, short tail horses, any one of which can beat anybody's horse in the world in the show ring, and I believe I can with any one of forty out-style any other horse in the show ring unless he is trotting bred, and at the same time I will not have a show horse in the stable that is not intelligent enough to be driven upon the city streets any day in the year in ordinary gear and without a check rein of any kind, by any of the grown members of my family. Really, is this not a tremendous statement to make, and does it not show the possibilities of the American trotter? Think of any one of my ten or twelve stallions that bound into the show ring with all the fire and dash of high bred, young—for most of them are four to seven years old—stallion life, and then think that they are driven each day upon the city streets by amateur family drivers; and one word more and I will cease blowing the horn of the grandest of all the grand animal kingdom, the American horse:

"I sent Glorious Red Cloud into probably the greatest horse show the world has ever seen—at least a show with the largest number of nearly perfect carriage horses the world has ever seen—two years after he had won the championship, and beat everything hands down. Think what there must be in a breed that can go into retirement for two years and then beat the best of them, and look at Lord Brilliant year after year beating all comers. I tell you the American trotting horse is the horse for any spot or place, and he is what I am going to try and 'raise' in all his many moods and varieties at Dreamwold."

A Strong Condemnation of Heat Betting.

There have been many articles written and published showing the evils of heat betting as conducted by bookmakers, but none that have gone to the point or hit harder than the following from the pen of the well known bookmaker and poolseller, E. R. Lowry, who is known all over the United States, having sold pools on races from Maine to California. Mr. Lowry's article was written for the New York Trotter and Pacer and appeared in the last issue of that excellent journal. It is as follows:

"I have no desire to break into the ranks of the turf critics, but the 'hoss' papers are just now devoting considerable space to a subject that is very near to my heart, inasmuch as it has won for me a heap of abuse from the other side, and until the present moment I have never noticed that my ten years' denunciation of heat bookmaking was having any other effect than to get me very much disliked by the Knights of the Chalk and exponents of Old Shylock's percentage card and grand lesson in usury, and while I have been temporarily retired from active participation in the game, I am tickled to see influential, broad-minded men, who are interested from the breeders' standpoint, come out and condemn the pernicious system which has carried more depreciation of values to the stock farms of America than it ever donated to the cappers of racing associations; moreover, if you will but take the trouble to interview the first half dozen square men who are to-day campaigning horses you will find that the 'Harness Game' is suffering worse from what is popularly known as 'the 200 per cent. cinch,' 'Capper' and 'Copper off' system than ever before, and present indications point to an inclination to make it general by lease or ownership.

"I want to go on record as saying now that the question has become a burning one. There are 30 heats laid up for coin of the realm to one for the improvement of chances of winning; and always will be as long as the opportunity is offered to make more money dropping a heat or two than the whole season's salary amounts to or than first money (which is never sure). Let it be distinctly understood that I speak by the card, as I booked for five years continuously myself after my services were no longer acceptable to the opulent race managers, who didn't like my system.

"I still claim, and always will, that the auction and mutual mode of betting, where public money makes the price—when fairly and honestly conducted—is the only system of handling the public's money on harness races, and the only plan that protects the public against underhanded methods by allowing them to see just where and when the money is being played. Look at it squarely and let the objectors have their say.

"If you, in selling the auction pools, sell the horses out singly, as long as the owner or the public want to play them singly you provide a popular game. But when you deprive the owner or the public of such opportunity by forcing them to take an entire field in a race to play their choice or entry you deny them their rights, consequently your game is unpopular. There should be a rule substituted for the old one which reads, 'Evidence by affidavit will be held sacred,' to read: The acceptance by a pool seller of a commission to place money on the field against any horses, whether successfully executed or not, shall be considered conclusive evidence of wrong doing, and the penalty shall be expulsion. If such a rule had been in force the past twenty years, say from Loretta F.'s case and down the line, what a lot of value depreciation the breeders would have escaped!

"Then, again, instead of the line of students of 'Shylock's percentage card,' if heat betting is to be permitted, give us the only system devised where public money makes the price and where, by giving the public a chance to see just how the money is placed, you afford them the best protection you can offer. Not the old split-and-rob system, with simply the word of the man who destroys the evidence and gives you what he likes, but an open, square, up-to-date system on an unquestionable basis and where the public can see if the prominent horses are getting the proper support and where you are not refused if you want to make a bet and where there is no incentive to use your money to have the horse you have bet on lay up the heat. Figure the pool on a large blackboard above the heads of the people where all can see and conduct the business in a manner to win and maintain the confidence of the most suspicious, and that means 100 per cent. of the patrons of the average trotting meetings, where the 'bookies' are permitted to operate as they please now in these days, when we have a round dozen millionaires campaigning the representative stables, who will step into the betting ring and wager more money on their entries than all the bandy-legged, sure-thing men of bygone days put together. Really, I am ashamed to guess how much could be handled, but I can conscientiously say—and I believe every sensible, honest man who reads this article will agree with me—that the atmosphere would be so free from the ever present suspicion that he wouldn't recognize the game, and those gentlemen who the past season quit when the campaign was half over and shipped their great strings home through sheer disgust at the prevailing methods would return and contribute that support the harness game can ill afford to lose. Put the 'heat book' in the pile with the old red and black wheel and the other handicaps the harness game has had saddled on to it and give intelligent men a chance to play their horses in an intelligent and fair manner just once and you will see the sport step forward in response to the impetus which progressive men are string to give it until it will amaze you. But, as Friend McKinney says, it will be necessary for a few more associations to have personal representatives at the Turf Congress. A curtailing of the proxy evil or, like the annual prayer the Board of Stewards of the Grand Circuit sends up, for active representation on the parent boards of review, you will find when the bell rings and the blue birds whistle the same old rules, the same old faces and the same old heat buying aggregation will be to the fore. The same old collar for the harness games' neck at the same old stand. You hear those yells. Yours on races and not on heats, for fair sport and open betting."

The Old Rocking Horse.

Battered and bruised and worn and old,
Bereft of its mane and tail,
A veteran charger, staunch and bold,
He has weathered life's fierce gales.

The hero of many a gallant raid,
In many a bloodless war,
A soldier of fortune, undismayed,
By battle and wound and scar!

'Neath the guiding touch of a little hand
He has traveled many a mile
Through the wonderful realms of "Playlike Land,"
Where the spirits of Fancy smile.

But, strange to say, in his boldest flight,
Though he halted or rested not Through all his travels by day and night—
He has stood in the self-same spot.

He was ridden far, he was ridden hard,
He has borne fierce brunts and blows,
And oft has felt, as a sweet reward,
A kiss on his worn-out nose.

And though he is rather the worse for wear,
And crippled and scarred and old,
In the eyes of his master he still is fair
And worth his weight in gold.

Advice to Breeders.

The first great thing in the horse business to remember is that good stock always brings the top price, and when you find a breeder that has made a success he will tell you that it has been accomplished by the better breeding. Many of the chronic grumblers, and there are many in the horse business, predict that "horses will soon go down again, after a short time, or just as soon as people go to breeding again." Don't you give this a minute's thought for horses will be well up in price for the next decade. What is needed is to breed quality, breed them still better; breed them larger; breed them of a higher class; breed the market horse and breed every horse strictly to his class. In order to breed horses for export they must be strictly first class in every respect. There is a difference between the export classes and the general American demand, and the former demands a trifle higher quality—an animal that is free from blemishes. According to a noted western dealer there are five separate and distinct classes of export and market animals, and he thus describes them:

Class No. 1. Road, carriage and coach horses must be of good color, well bred, fifteen and a half to sixteen hands; plenty of style and action, with fine heads and necks; plenty of bone and substance, short backs, smooth hips, round in the barrel, with a well sprung rib. Must have a good gait and be a good traveler. The more action and speed the better, and, above all, must be a straight line mover, without swinging the feet in or out, but the action and movement should be graceful. This class has advanced very much in price, and was never so high in American markets as they are to-day. There is no limit to the price if they are of good, high quality, and will range all the way from $150 to $1000 per head. In case of a lack of trotting bred stallions to produce this class, the French coach horse can be crossed with the trotting bred mares with extremely favorable results. It is the opinion of the best breeders and horsemen that this will prove a very good cross, and have the tendency to increase the size of our American horses. It is believed, too, that this class will not only increase the size, but will add largely to fixing the type of the carriage and coach horse: that shall possess size, quality, action and style, and still retain the road qualities required, as every harness horse should be well bred in order to stand the wear and tear of hard work upon city pavements.

Class No. 2. Cab horse, rather blocky, weigh about 1050 pounds, stands fifteen and a fourth hands high; smooth made, with bone and substance, fair traveler. This class of horses is very salable for many purposes, but there are always plenty in the market, and too plenty to be a profitable class to raise. But they always sell readily at what they are worth.

Class No. 3. An omnibus horse is a blocky, smooth made horse, very rugged, with lots of substance and plenty of bone; must shape himself well in harness, good action, with a straight line movement, stand fifteen and a fourth to fifteen and three-fourths high, weigh from 1200 to 1400 pounds. This class of horse includes the quality, not only of the omnibus horse, but an express and general use horse. The English use the more blocky, lower set ones for 'busses, while the larger ones are used for express and general use. This is a class of horses in the strongest demand in all American and foreign markets, and sell from $125 to $150. They can be produced best by a cross between the draft horse and smaller mare that is a grade or roadster bred. This horse must be active and rugged with easy movements.

Class No. 4. The draft horse should weigh from 1500 to 2200 pounds; blocky made, heavy bone, with smooth finish, good quality and action, and a first class draft horse in every respect. The present price is from $150 to $350, and the best specimens sell even as high as $400. This class is one of the most salable, and finds ready sale in domestic and foreign markets. They should be produced from the best heavy draft mare, of good quality, crossed with the best heavy draft horse of high quality, regardless of what particular breed of the draft horse he may be, as long as he possesses all the qualifications of the draft horse. This class of horse is very scarce in all the markets and they are steadily increasing in prices, and great inducements are offered to produce them.

Class No. 5. The American trotter in all cases must be a high bred trotting horse, with good bone and substance, high finish, good style, action and disposition and the more speed he has the higher price he will bring, ranging in price from $200 to $10,000, according to his quality, size and what he can do. All horses for export and domestic markets should be sound and without blemish, as far as possible.

Onward.

Not only does Onward, with his nine 2:10 performers to his credit lead all sons of George Wilkes as a 2:10 sire, but he leads all sires to date, and the Onward family includes more 2:10 performers than does any other branch of the George Wilkes family, says Western Horseman. This showing by Onward gives some idea of how far wrong even many well meaning and well posted horsemen may go in selecting a young stallion as a future great sire. It is no secret among horsemen that Onward, when a young horse, was held in contempt by many Kentucky breeders, and that it was nothing unusual to hear him referred to as "Bob Pepper's bull." He was growthy, rather coarse and phlegmatic, and, until he made a decided reputation as a sire, had but one real advocate and admirer, and that was his owner, the late Col. R. P. Pepper. Col. Pepper believed in Onward from the very date of his birth and bought him at the first opportunity. His faith in Onward very nearly made a pauper of Col. Pepper at one time, but, a few years later, it made him a rich man. While talking on this subject, Col. Pepper once said to the writer: "In the spring of 1887 it looked like I was hopelessly busted financially, but my faith in Onward never wavered, and I continued to borrow a few dollars from this one and that one, and finally got 'out to the races' with a few Onward youngsters. Onward put seven in the list that season, and in October I sold $58,000 worth of his get." Thus, in a single season, Onward made rich his owner, whom he had previously led up to the very brink of bankruptcy. The great three year old filly, Houri made her debut that year, and secured a record of 2:19½. Acolyte (later sold for $40,000), also a three year old, took a record of 2:30 and Linnette and Motor, two other three years olds, also took records of 2:29½ and 2:29½, respectively, the other standard performers for Onward that season being Onslaught (4) 2:28½, Counsellor 2:24 and Emulation 2:29½. Like a meteor Onward appeared in the constellation of great speed sires, and, with the constancy of the orb of day, he continues to shine with regularly increasing brilliancy. He leads the world as a sire of 2:30 performers, of 2:20 performers and of 2:10 performers, and his descendants make up the aristocratic "400" of the equine race as record holders.

J. M. Alviso's fast pacer, Rey del Diablo 2:23½, that took his record as a two year old, will be one of the money winners this year if raced. He was gelded last year and turned out and has filled out wonderfully. He should be one of the fastest five year olds of 1902, as he has a tremendous burst of speed and is as game as a pebble. Alviso has begun jogging him at Pleasanton.

History Makers of San Bernardino County.

The children and colts of this county are to be its history makers. Wise public instructors and philanthropists are bending every energy to place our schools and scholarship on an equality with the best in America; they are a close second at present and in another decade will have gained the coveted position.

Those interested in horses are pursuing the same intelligent course regarding the rearing of colts intended to make horse history; they are receiving the care and kind attention of men who have planned their lives and destiny for them; the environments of these youngsters are well calculated to develop them into the greatest expectations of their owners. Our townsman Wm. Rourke, the breeder of Hazel Kinney 2:09½ and her dam Baby's Gift, has two great prospects so far as high form is concerned, and in breeding they are the equal of any. The first is by Stam B. 2:11½, dam Hazel Kinney 2:09½; the writer does not know of a colt (trotting bred) in the State having such a speed inheritance. The second one owned by Mr. Rourke is a yearling by Zombro 2:11 out of the dam of Hazel Kinney 2:03½. She is a perfect filly in gait, color, size and disposition. Mr. Rourke does not intend to stop with these, as he has already sent the dam of Hazel Kinney 2:09½ to the harem of McKinney 2:11½. Mr. James Campbell, the blacksmith who puts 2:10 shoes on all the trotters entering his shop, has two very promising colts by Zombro out of a Clay mare of great beauty and endurance. Mr. Johnson, our County Recorder, has a fine colt by Zombro out of an Almont mare. Mr. James Murry has two very fine colts by Hillsdale 2:15 out of a mare nearly thoroughbred. Mr. Breckman has a yearling by Zombro 2:11 and one by Zolock 2:10½ out of mares by Raymond 2:27 by Simmons. Mr. H. B. Smith, of Colton, has a grand filly by Zombro 2:11 out of Alta Rena 2:27 as a three year old, with trial of 2:12 as a five year old. Our druggist, Dr. White, has a filly by Zolock out of a mare very highly bred in thoroughbred that is a duplicate of its sire except as to color. Dr. W. T. Orme, veterinary surgeon, is the owner of two very fine fillies by Zolock; one out of a mare by Will Crocker, bred by M. M. Potter, of Los Angeles; the other out of Belinda, the dam of Roan Wilkes, 2:12½ at three years of age. Mr. Hopkins has a very rangy colt by Zombro out of a mare by Maximilian, he by Echo; second dam thoroughbred. Mr. Hoyt has a very promising young animal by Neerut, dam a thoroughbred mare which is very nicely gaited, showing quarters and halves at a 2:30 gait and better. S. B. Wright, of Colton, the owner of Harry Madison 2:27, is the possessor of a fine filly by Zolock; this filly took the first prize as a yearling at the Twenty-eighth Agricultural District Fair last season. There is a colt of good promise here sired by Lottery, he by Electioneer, Lottery's dam the great race mare Texana thoroughbred. The first dam of this colt is Chalmoogre by Keno R. 2:18, he by Magic, he by Elmo; second dam by Berlin, third dam not traced. This colt, although out of pasture only seven weeks, shows quarters trotting in 39½ seconds. His trainer, Mr. John Donohue (or as he is often called, Whispering Johnny), has a large string of youngsters in charge—his record as a trainer is constantly growing better, as he never breaks down or has a lame colt or horse. The race track at this place will soon be remodelled entirely as to buildings, track, water privileges, etc., and we hope by next season to follow Los Angeles in a race meeting that will equal any ever held in Southern California. The list of owners of well bred colts might be extended to at least three times the number given and I would say those mentioned are no better than the unmentioned ones hereabouts. Later I will tell you something of the speed prospects of our Zombro and Zolock colts.

ALCANTELLUM.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., June 19, 1901.

Dr. S. A. Tuttle—Dear Sir: I have used your Elixir for some time—that is, the veterinary—and have bought dozens of it, and use it for leg and body wash on my horses and for household purposes also. I have been troubled with intestine indigestion myself, and can't seem to find anything that helps me; have been doctoring with the best doctors here, and the other day I was working my horses at the Empire City Track and had it so bad that I could hardly sit on the sulky, and when I got home I took half a teaspoonful of the Elixir in a glass of hot water, and another in about an hour, and it fixed me up all O. K. I thought that perhaps the Veterinary Elixir was not made to take, but thought if it would not kill a horse it wouldn't kill me. So I took it and it fixed me up all right. I use it for everything. Last spring my wife had some fine Barred Plymouth Rock chickens, and they had the roup. I thought they would die anyway, so I gave them a spoonful of the Elixir and wet their heads with it, and expected that would fix them, and to our astonishment we never lost one of them, so you see I think it is a good thing. The only thing it has failed to do for me is: I have a stallion by Electricity 2:17½, and I used it on him for a bad curb, and it didn't seem to do the job on that. If I could fix that up on him, I could slip him in 2:10 sure. Perhaps I haven't used it right. If you have anything in the way of special directions I wish you would give them to me. There is no one here that sells the Elixir. You can send me a half dozen bottles of the Family Elixir and one dozen of the Veterinary. If you will give me the wholesale price on it, I will order a number of dozen of it, and sell it here. You can send it by express C. O. D. if you like, or send me a bill, and I will send check for same. Yours truly,

B. FRANK RELYEA, 135 Overlook St.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonade and be refreshed.

An Uncrowned King.

Lo! and behold!
An uncrowned king in embryo;
A lean, lank, leggy two-year-old,
Sans shape, sans flesh, sans everything—
But pedigree;
A blooded son of blooded sire,
Begot from dam who spurned the earth
With scornful feet;
Each one a mint for golden coin
As yard by yard in frenzied speed
She left the post behind.
The surge of victories won
By sire and dam
Is in my blood.
A constant spur which laughs away
The sodden miles
Of track and turf
Which bid me welcome in the days to come.
The future "It" am I,
The coming king,
A monarch, potentate,
Ruler by the right Divine;
A "clinch," a "sure thing"
And a golden calf
For shrieking throngs who hail me winner.
This am I—
A coming favorite,
At the post;
With countless wires stretched ahead—
Each one a jewel for my coming crown.
My world a homestretch,
E'en a golden path
With emerald fields
And grandstands
Rife with maddened hordes,
Who greet my coming
And who urge me past
To victory won
And triumphs held in store,
In long, unbroken sequence.
This I am—
A two year old.
A thing of blood and breeding,
The joy of owners,
Trainers, stable boys and touts,
A name to conjure with,
To deck a program,
Or to grace in ink the restless pens
Of daily scribes
Who build me monuments of praise
For eager eyes to gaze
On memories
Rich with stored tradition
Of former kings dethroned.
The cry, the shout, the joyous scream
Is mine
From raving crowds
Who voice in gladdened tones
The fulsome praise
Which rends the air
And sends it forth in echoing waves,
Which tells my name
A near and far
And spurs the lightning e'en
To quicker throbs
Of pent up effort in its mad desire
To name me winner
Over all the land.
All this am I,
A child of destiny
And a two year old.

Influence of Horse Shows.

Within recent years the development of horse shows, East, West, North and South, has become remarkable. Having their greatest encouragement in the East they gradually spread to the larger Western cities, and they have now become so prevalent as to be annual events in the cities of all sections. It is generally thought that these are merely fashionable events, intended for the display and recreation of those having little to do with the active business of life, but a deeper study of the subject will show that these exhibitions have a marked influence on the development of our horse breeding interests.

When the racing calendar was established some hundreds of years ago, running horses were given an impetus which, in turn, reacted on the thoroughbred horse to such a degree as to make it, without exception, the leading breed of horses, and thus unfold good was accomplished for the thoroughbred interests. Later, with the establishment of trotting races earlier in the century, and the publication of the Year Book giving the records made, the trotting horse was brought to the front, and as a result occupies at this time a more prominent place among the breeds of our light horses.

The horse shows seem to offer the same stimulus to the harness race that has been given to the others. The horse show as it is conducted becomes an object lesson to the people of cities who use horses as to the proper appointments and the right type of a horse that should go with them.

Two or three successful horse shows in a city are usually sufficient to start the improvement. It leads some one who has a preference for horses of this kind to invest in an unusually attractive pair, which in turn, stimulates the emulation of other lovers of horses, and in the course of a year or so the character of the equipages of the city become markedly changed for the better. This has been noticed in a great many cases, and invariably follows properly conducted shows.

While these results, at first consideration, do not seem to have direct application to the horse industry of our farmers, yet they materially stimulate the production of a high class harness horse throughout the country. These horses which have come to the city as a result of the horse show have been secured by the dealers, who have spent some time in training and manning them for city use. The dealers, in turn, have bought them from the farmers, and it seems reasonable to suppose that, with the increasing demand for this type of horse, there must follow a better price.

To raise the harness horse up to the point where he is ready to go into the dealer's hands will require the best knowledge of a horseman, and consequently it will never be produced too numerous. Owing to the obstacles in the way of producing such a horse, and the unusual difficulties in preparing it for the market, this production will never be the work of the general farmer; but there are a great many who are fond of horses and have the facilities to produce them of this type at a large profit.

If one situated in this way will observe some care in the selection of mares, seeing that they have the high and knee-folding action of the coach horse, together with the fulness of type which is desirable, and breed such a mare to a horse possessing the same characteristics, there is very little uncertainty about the colt developing into a horse suitable for harness work.

When ready for market such a horse may be sold quicker, and often with more profit, than one of any other type. With the general run of farmers draught horses are without question the most profitable, but where mares of the kind mentioned have been secured and bred to stallions possessing the characteristics described, there certainly is a very large field for profitable production by those having inclinations in this direction.—The Homestead.

Training of War Horses.

The main difficulty in training a war horse is to accustom the animal to the thunder of firearms. A horse that can be quickly trained to the roar of cannon and musketry is an acquisition which instructors know how to appreciate. You hear people talk glibly enough nowadays of supplying our troops in the East with plenty of remounts, and it's quite evident from the remarks they make that they imagine they need only to lasso a few thousand wild horses in Texas, ship them off to Manila and—voilà! our soldiers are remounted. Although most horses can be quickly trained to face the most withering fire, many are very difficult to convince that a tremendous noise is not necessarily a signal of danger, while some never can be taught to ignore the rattle of musketry.

Your correspondent has had the pleasure of visiting the farm of a trainer of war horses, situated in the wilds of Texas. In a field adjoining the stables I found, ranged in a circle ready for instruction, some three dozen fine horses, including a few splendid chestnuts. The instructor stood in the center of the circle, with the horses facing him, gave the signal to the attendants to be in readiness, and fired three chambers of a revolver in rapid succession.

Instantly there was a great commotion. Most of the horses reared and plunged, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that some of them were prevented from breaking away and racing madly about the field. A few, on the other hand, did nothing more than prick up their ears and toss their heads, and these were promptly taken away for test. The more restive ones, of course, were subjected to the revolver shots until they could face them unflinchingly.

The second test is much more severe. The horses are galloped up to a supposed company of infantry, who fire simultaneously as soon as the animals have got properly into swing. The first volley usually plays havoc with the formation of the advancing cavalry, and some of the horses rear so wildly that their riders have considerable difficulty in keeping their saddles. In a few moments, however, the charge is continued, another volley fired—this time, of course, at close range—and the formation is once more deranged.

The maneuver is continued until, familiarity having bred contempt, the horses advance as readily in the face of musketry (both volleys and "straggling" fire) as when faced by nothing at all. They are then taught in precisely the same way to disregard the boom of cannon. Once properly trained, a horse faces the deadly fire of an enemy on the field of battle with an absolute fearlessness, of which man, be he brave as a lion, is incapable. This, however, is only natural. The horse has been taught to believe the din of battle to be quite meaningless and without result. When in actual warfare he sees horses and men around him shattered and lifeless; there is nothing to suggest to him that that same din of battle and death are in any way connected, and the report of firearms, consequently, for him has no terrors whatever.

The whistling of bullets and the screaming of shells—unknown, of course, at the maneuvers at home—while insignificant details to the horse, are sadly full of meaning to the man, and often enough do our soldiers envy the ignorance of the horse—the "ignorance which is bliss."—Philadelphia Times.

Among the pacers Alice Mapes was the fastest two year old of 1900. She took a record of 2:14½, and showed a trial in public of 2:09½. No two year old beat 2:20 in the late campaign; in fact, no three year old earned a record as fast as the champion two year old of 1900. In the older division, Bonnie Direct 2:05½, held the four year old and the green pacer records of 1900; while this season Audubon Boy 2:06 is the fastest four year old, and Shadow Chimes 2:06½ the fastest of the new pacers.

Notes and News.

Worth Ober, the veteran trainer, is now located at the Pleasanton track.

P. W. Hodges has over a dozen horses in training at the Los Angeles track.

Truman's Brother by Electioneer reduced his record from 2:18½ to 2:16½ last year.

Stallion fees are high in Europe. Greenbrino stands for $500, Athanio for $450, Axmere for $450.

The balance in the treasury of the National Trotting Association on November 1st was $20,044.26.

There are eight stallions that have sired one hundred or more 2:30 performers. Nutwood leads them all, with 172 to his credit.

While there were many big purses and stakes on the eastern Grand Circuit last year there will be more of them and larger ones this year.

New England horsemen are discussing the question, "Who will drive Anaconda 2:01½ in 1902?" since it is known that Jack Trout will not.

William Cecil is breaking a lot of yearlings by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ at the Nutwood Stock Farm and there is natural speed shown every time he gets one started.

Faustino 2:12½ by Sidney is being used on the road by L. N. Kelly, of Lancaster, N. Y., who says he will drive him into Buffalo some day and let the fast ones of this city tackle him.

The photo engraving of the stallion, John A. McKerron 2:06½, which appears in the Christmas Horseman, is from one of the most beautiful pictures ever taken of a horse in harness.

Every good mare should be bred this year. The cheap mares without pedigree or extra good qualities should never be sent to anything but a jack, and first class mules need not be expected even then.

Cresceus trotted an exhibition mile in 2:07 at Dallas, Texas, on New Year's Day. This is the fastest mile ever trotted in January, and shows what a wonderful horse Cresceus is to keep in form as he does.

When John Mackay of Rancho del Paso was in England a few months ago he purchased nine big draft stallions for the Haggin ranch. They are said to be a fine lot of horses by those who have seen them.

The Wilkes-Electioneer-Nutwood combination of blood lines is now the most popular one in a trotting pedigree that can be named, and it will be more popular a few years hence than at present.—Am. Horse Breeder.

Henry Hellman will have three good horses in the stud at Portland, Ore., this year. They are Boodle 2:12½ by Stranger, Oro Guy, a four year old by Oro Wilkes, and Alton B., a son of Altamont. They represent three great strains of trotting blood.

Every district association can afford to give one or two large purses or stakes for the slow class trotters and pacers each year. Nothing will do more to encourage horse breeding, and induce trainers to visit the district meetings with their entire strings.

Geo. Warlow's stallion Athadon, record 2:27 as a yearling, and sire of Sue 2:12½, Listerine 2:13½ and others, should get a large patronage this year. He is a grandson of Onward, the greatest living sire, and his dam has produced four in the list including Athanio 2:10.

Electrite 2:28½, is now credited with fifty-three performers, which is a large muster roll for a stallion only thirteen years old. The great majority of his get made records within the standard limit before five years of age, showing they race and get the money early.

On Thursday January 30th, the Palo Alto Stock Farm will sell about forty head of standard bred trotting broodmares stunted to Mendocino 2:19½, Altvo 2:18½, Azmoor 2:20½. The sale will take place at Wm. G. Layng's Occidental Horse Exchange in this city. Further particulars next week.

Silver Bow 2:16 has gone to Ohio to be a companion in the stud to the champion Cresceus 2:20½, but there is a son of his at San Jose that can represent the McGregor family with credit. This is Silver Arrow, owned by J. W. Gordon. Silver Arrow's dam is Nutwood Weeks, dam of Ethel Downs 2:10 and Henry Nutwood 2:29, and his granddam was a daughter of Williamson's Belmont. He is a great individual and a fast trotter.

In response to an inquiry as to the age of the great Diablo pacer, Sir Albert S. 2:08½, we will state that his breeder and owner, Mr. William G. Layng of this city, says that the horse was foaled June 24th, 1896, consequently he was a five year old when making his campaign of six winning races and eighteen unbeaten heats in 1901. He is now one of the best six year old geldings in America.

Pat Foley has a grandly bred son of McKinney 2:11½ that he will stand for public service at Rockridge Stock Farm, near Oakland, this year. He is out of the registered mare Igo by Antevolo, second dam Daisy May by Nutwood, third dam by Abdallah 15. This is a great combination of blood and Mondesol is a fine individual.

There not being a quorum present at the meeting of the Pacific District Board of Appeals called for the 27th inst., the meeting was postponed to Thursday afternoon, January 21st, at 2 o'clock. The date being fixed for that time to permit the hearing of protests that were presented at the meeting and allow notices to be sent to parties interested fifteen days prior to hearing of the cases.

Millard Sanders is at Pleasanton with quite a string of horses from the Santa Rosa Stock Farm. He has Dolly Dillon 2:07 and Bonsilene 2:14½, besides a number of two and three year olds. Bonsilene has raised a foal during her retirement and if no accident happens her should get a record this year close to that of Dolly Dillon. Some of the young colts and fillies are very promising and in Mr. Sander's able hands can be expected to develop great speed.

Since Horace W. Wilson has been connected with the Kentucky Breeders Association as secretary and manager a debt of $40,000 has been liquidated, something like $15,000 expended in improvements, and the association last fall held the most successful meeting ever held in the Blue Grass region. The directors of the association have just voted to renew the Kentucky Futurity of $21,000, and early in the spring several new stables will be erected on the grounds of the association to provide more accommodations for horses in training.

Mr. J. C. Bray, of Butte, Montana, has purchased from R. E. deB. Lopez, of the Merriwa Stock Farm, Pleasanton, a pair of bay mares by James Madison 2:17½ that make one of the best matched teams ever sold in this State. One has worked a mile in 2:28, the other in 2:35, and they can pole together in 2:40. They are both bays, very handsome and stand 16.1 or a little over. They require no boots and are perfectly gaited. Mr. Bray made the purchase for Mr. James Talbot, a banker of Butte.

The pacing mare, Edith W. 2:06½, of the Whitley stable, of Indiana, is another pacer of whom great things are predicted for next season. "It is more than likely," says an expert, "that she will be able to lower the record for pacing mares of 2:04½, at present held jointly by Lady of the Manor and Mazette." A peculiarity of Edith W. is that she dislikes to go back the wrong way of the track. When she is turned at the wire and started back up the stretch considerable patience and urging are required by driver Turner to persuade her to go back.

Dialect is the name of a very handsome son of Diablo 2:09½ that is owned by that well known horse breeder and champion mule dealer, S. H. Crane, of Turlock. Dialect is six years old, a square trotter and just about as perfect an individual as one would wish to see. His dam, the mare Electress by Richard's Elector, is a producer of standard speed and is out of old Sugarplum, a thoroughbred mare by Lodi, that won running races in 1:45 and trotting races in 2:50 years ago. Dialect was bred to a few mares as a three year old, and the foals are magnificent individuals.

Mr. A. F. Rooker, the leading dealer in mules in this State, has about four hundred head of unbroken mules for sale or trade at the Parker Ranch, Lockford, San Joaquin county. These mules are an extra good lot and are from three to eight years old, weighing from 900 to 1300 pounds. During the year just passed, Mr. Rooker has shipped 2400 mules out of this State, the majority of which have gone to the British army in South Africa. Mr. Rooker recently purchased a lot of yearlings and two year old mules in Shasta county that are about as good a lot as were ever raised in the State.

Denver is to have one of the greatest meetings ever held in June and July, 1902. The meeting will open June 21st and close July 5th at Overland Park. Mr. Edwin Gaylord states that this change in the date to a later period than has heretofore been the rule has been made in deference to the wishes of horsemen, who have generally considered the former Denver dates a little early. It is Mr. Gaylord's desire to make the Denver meeting one of the best held in America, and when the program is announced the many new attractions to be offered will no doubt meet the enthusiastic endorsement of horsemen all over the country.

While in San Francisco on New Year's Day General Superintendent F. W. Covey of Palo Alto, stated to a reporter that all of the stock of this noted breeding establishment will soon pass under the hammer. In this city on January 30th a number of broodmares will be sold. At Cleveland, on May 30th, the three year olds, two year olds and yearlings are to go to the highest bidders. During the Sacramento State Fair horses of all grades will be sold, and during the month of November the stallions and broodmares with colts are to be led into the ring at New York. Among the stallions are Monbells, Mendocino, Nazote and Azmoor.

W. H. Bradford and Wes Walters of La Grande, Or., arrived at Irvington track last week with a carload of horses, which they will put into training. They have Lady Le Grande, two year old filly by Chelalis, out of Codicil, dam of Lady Mack 2:23, Leona 2:28; Nancy Codi 2:25½ by Administrator; three year old gelding by Chelalis, out of Nancy K. by Lemont; three year old filly by Baymont, dam by Deadshot; Col. Ott, five year old gelding by Del Norte. The above are owned by J. W. Scriber. Yearling colt Brad H. by Meteor 2:17½, out of the dam of Estella 2:17½; Duke of Walstein 2:23½ by Walstein; two year old runner and a yearling runner.—Portland Rural Spirit.

The Gilroy Gazette says: Work is progressing rapidly at the race track in preparation for the reception of the Spreckels horses, which will be here in the next two weeks. Twenty-two head of royally bred youngsters from the Aptos stock farm will be taken in hand and given such work as will transform them into trotters for the Grand Circuit, for they will be sold at the Blue Ribbon sale at Cleveland, in May.

It is reported from Cleveland that several handsome offers have recently been made for John A. McKerron. Early last fall two Clevelanders offered to write checks for $25,000 apiece in purchase of the stallion, and when it was refused each offered to increase his offer $2000, making $54000 that was offered. While McKerron will be trained for the Boston cup race, it has been practically decided that after that race he will be started in a few stako races for trotters eligible to the 2:10 class.—Chicago Horseman.

W. J. East of Fortuna, Humboldt county, has recently purchased the handsome and well bred stallion, Cassiar by Soudan, son of Sultan. The dam of Cassiar is Carrie Malone by Steinway out of Katie G. by Electioneer, therefore full sister to Klatawah 2:05½, Chas. Derby 2:20, H. C. Covey 2:25 and Steincer 2:29½, and other noted horses. Cassiar is a comparatively young stallion having been foaled in 1892, and should prove a very successful horse when bred to the Poscora Hayward, Waldstein and Ira mares in Humboldt county.

The Spirit of the West, published at Des Moines, Iowa, has the following in regard to a sale recently made by Tom James who will arrive at San Jose soon with his stallion Barondale 2:11½: "Tom James of this city, recently sold to P. C. Kenyon of the Kenyon Printing Co., the two year old stallion colt, Baron Cadmus, by Barondale 2:11½, out of Belle P. (dam of Alpha Panic 2:20), by Robert Bonner 2:70. Baron Cadmus is a great show colt. He has speed, style and action and will mature into a horse 16½ hands and weighs over 1200 pounds as a two year old, and he shows great quality and when hitched to a cart shows that he will learn to trot fast. He is well bred and with his size, style and finish, should produce high class colts that will command top prices as speedy drivers and good actors. Mr. Kenyon expects to place Baron Cadmus in the stud in the spring in some locality where there are a number of good mares."

The death of Trinket 2:14 removes the last of the great trotters of the 80's, unless exception be made for the famous Jay-Eye-Soo. At the time of her death she was owned by A. G. Gusbee, of the Dorchester Driving Club, of Boston, and she was buried on his farm. Foaled in 1875, Trinket became noted in 1879, when she placed the four year old record at 2:19½. In 1881 she took a mark of 2:14, which gave her the right to share the queen's crown with Goldsmith Maid. In her palmy days she was in General Turner's stable and did much to make him what he is to-day, one of the wealthiest professional trainers. Two years ago the General saw the old mare at Readville and patting her on the neck, said: "Old girl, you were good to the Turner family." What a really great trotter she was is well known by the mile she trotted when 24 years old at Readville. It was in 2:20½, and was a remarkable performance. Trinket was once owned by the late W. Hobart, who bred her to Stamboul.

It is well known that the theory of developed sires has received its hardest knocks from Mr. Hamlin, says a writer in the Buffalo Horse World. Mambrino King never was raced and yet his progeny was the gamest of the game. Dictator, the full brother of Dexter, is another example of the undeveloped sire. Of course, George Wilkes, the greatest of all trotting sires, was raced. But George Wilkes was never a colt wonder. Hiram Woodruff had another theory that a colt should not be given oats until three years old, and some of those who knew the great horseman say that he claimed that if a horse was never fed oats until six years old he would be much better off. Woodruff predicted that the day would come when there would be colt wonders and declared that staying power would be lost when this took place. It can be seen that modern trotting horsemen are simply correcting evils which old time trainers declared would be the result of early development. In the old days the distance was longer and the tracks slower. But the horses lasted for years and seldom went lame. Fewer and harder races were given.

As a matter of curiosity, here is the itinerary of Cresceus for the season: July 18, Detroit, Mich., won free for all, time 2:06½; 2:05; July 26, Cleveland, Ohio, exhibition, time 2:02½; August 2, Columbus, Ohio, exhibition, time 2:02½; August 15, Brighton Beach, Coney Island, won match with The Abbot, time 2:03½; August 16, and trotted exhibition third heat in 2:05; August 22, Readville (Boston), Mass., won free for all, time 2:07½; 2:06; August 30, Providence, R. I., exhibition, time 2:05; September 21, Readville, Mass., won match with The Abbot, time 2:10½; 2:09½; 2:07½; September 26, Philadelphia, exhibition, time 2:04½; October 3, Baltimore, Md., exhibition, time 2:05½; October 11, Toledo, Ohio, exhibition, time 2:09½ to sulky; 2:12 to wagon; October 17, Columbus, Ohio, exhibition, time 2:05½; October 27, Kansas City, Mo., exhibition, time 2:09½; October 31, Minneapolis, Minn., exhibition, time 2:05½; November 6, Des Moines, Iowa, exhibition, no time on account of rain; November 9, St. Louis, Mo., exhibition, time 2:07; November 15, Denver, Col., exhibition, time 2:08; November 21, Pueblo, Col., exhibition, time 2:10½; November 28, Sacramento, Cal., rain prevented his appearance, though he was on the ground; December 14, Los Angeles, Cal., exhibition, time 2:07½; December 19, Tucson, Ariz., exhibition, time not reported; Christmas and New Year's dates at Albuquerque, N. M., and Dallas, Texas. At Dallas he trotted in 2:07.

San Francisco, Saturday, January 4, 1902.

A NEW YEAR RESOLUTION that should be made by every organization in California that proposes giving a harness race meeting in 1902 is one that would prohibit bookmaking on the results of trotting or pacing contests. The wonderful success of the driving clubs throughout the United States during the past few years has demonstrated beyond all possible doubt that the American people are admirers of the American trotter, and are lovers of the sport of racing without the heretofore considered necessary adjunct of gambling. Thousands of people in Boston, New York, Cleveland, Chicago and Los Angeles regularly attend the matinee contests where no purses are offered and no opportunity for gambling in any form exists, while a very large number of men with means have shown their willingness to pay more for a horse for matinee purposes than any other person would pay for one to gamble with. It is true that gambling has run rife in this country for several years past, and that the desire to get something for nothing has a strong hold upon a very large proportion of its citizens. It is also true, however, that the bone and sinew of the nation, the men and women who have built up the homes and are rearing the future citizens of the republic, are not inoculated with the gambling virus, but are believers in the good old doctrine of paying a fair price for the luxuries as well as the necessities of life. They believe that the prizes won by effort are worth more to the winner and have a better effect upon the future than the prizes won by chance. During the past few years, ever since the introduction in California of syndicate bookmaking at our State and District fairs, there has been a falling off in the attendance at these annual functions, of the farmers, the business men, the manufacturer, the mechanics and the laborers and their families. The attendance of sports, gamblers, touts and such like has increased, until at some of the fairs and race meetings held there has been but the very slightest interest taken by those who in former years made the fairs successful by their attendance, their endorsement and their exhibits. The evil has been wrought by the gamblers, and to get the fairs back to the former high standard it will be necessary to get rid of the faking crowd that has pushed itself into such a conspicuous place during late years. The first thing to do is to abolish the syndicate book and all other books at the State and District Fairs. And the second step is to cater to the farmers, the stock breeders, the manufacturers and the artisans of California than to the class that live by the turn of the wheel or the fall of the die. If every district board of agriculture in California could meet early in this new year, announce dates and programs for fairs and publish the statement that no bookmaking would be permitted on its grounds, there would be such a revival of exhibits of stock and entries to the speed contests as would astonish those who believe that the district fair has seen its best days. It would bring prosperity to associations that have been in obscurity for years, and would inaugurate a new era in California District fairs.

TEN STAKES offered by the new Memphis Jockey Club will close Tuesday next, January 7th. Eight are for the spring meeting of 1902, and the other two are the Tennessee Derby and Tennessee Oaks for 1903. The stakes to be run at the spring meeting this year are the Gaston Hotel, for colts and geldings, foals of 1900, four furlongs, which has $1000 added; the Ardelle, for filly foals of 1900, four furlongs, $1000 added; the Memphis, for two year olds, five furlongs, $1000 added; the Hotel Gayoso, for three year olds, one mile, $1000 added; the Montgomery Handicap, for three year olds and upward, one mile and a sixteenth, $2000 added; the Peabody Hotel Handicap, for three year olds and upward, one mile and an eighth, $1000 added; the Tennessee Brewing Stakes, selling, for three year olds and upward, seven furlongs, $1000 added, and the Cotton Steeplechase Stakes, a handicap for three year olds and upward, distance about two miles, to which $1000 is added. The Tennessee Derby has $3000 added and the Oaks $1500. Montgomery Park, Memphis, where these races will be run is one of the best appointed tracks in the South and the meetings of the New Memphis Jockey Club are very popular with horsemen. The program of overnight events for the spring meeting will contain many attractive races, and all those who contemplate racing over East this year should enter in these stakes at Memphis by Tuesday next. Entry blanks can be had at this office.

PRINCE ANSEL, two year old record of 2:20½, son of Dexter Prince and Woodflower by Ansel, has been leased from his owner, Alex Brown of Walnut Grove Stock Farm, by the well known horseman, C. C. Crippen, and will be taken to Menlo Park for the season of 1902. Prince Ansel will stand at $40 the season and should be liberally patronized as besides being a fine individual and very fast his bloodlines are those that have made Palo Alto farm famous. His sire has fifty-three in 2:30, headed by the great mare Eleata 2:08½, the greatest money winner on the Eastern Grand Circuit this year. His dam Woodflower held the world's two year old record of 2:21 in 1881, and is also the dam of Seylex 2:15½, and is by Ansel, son of Electioneer and the thoroughbred mare Annette. Ansel has produced eight trotters and one pacer with standard records, has two producing sons and four or five producing daughters. The second dam of Prince Ansel, that old time race mare Mayflower 2:30½ by St. Clair, is also a great broodmare, being the dam of Manzanita 2:16 that held the champion four year old record in 1886. Mayflower is the grandam of nine standard performers.

WASHINGTON PARK CLUB at Chicago gives annually one of the greatest meetings held in the world. It conducts its racing in a manner that calls forth praise from horsemen and from the public, and its Derby Day is undoubtedly the greatest racing event in America, and more people witness that race than any other. On Wednesday, January 15th, seventeen rich stakes ranging from $2000 added money to the $20,000 added money for the American Derby, will close. There are four stakes for three year olds, six for horses three years old and upward, and seven for two year olds. The meeting will begin Saturday, June 21st, and close Saturday, July 20th. Thousands of people visit Chicago on Derby Day each year from all parts of the world for the sole purpose of seeing this great race, which is America's one great racing classic. That the meeting this year shall outclass all previous ones is the aim of the management and there is no doubt but that it will be accomplished. Every horseman who owns a good three year old should have an entry in the American Derby.

MR. EDWARD LANNIGAN has issued a very handsome stallion announcement for the thoroughbred stallion Rubicon. The statistical matter was compiled by Ralph H. Tozer. Typographically, it is a work of art and in it he shows that Rubicon during his turf record from 1893 to 1899 won $39,890 and that he is one of the best bred stallions standing for public service on this Coast. He will make the season of 1902 at the Brentwood Stock Farm.

TANFORAN TRACK with "all the appurtenances thereunto belonging" is now the sole property of the New California Jockey Club, the sum of $82,000 in cash having been paid the South San Francisco Improvement Company for its interest in the grounds. Under the agreement entered into by the San Francisco Jockey Club, racing was required at Tanforan at least thirty days in each year, and the new club, not being willing to be bound by such terms, has purchased the property outright and can race there or close the track as it may see fit.

HOOF BEATS.

J. A. Edmunds of Los Angeles, claims the name of Bobs for a bay two year old colt by Bob Mason out of Lydia Payne.

Walter Maben is training a two year old by Monterey 2:09½ out of Juliet D. 2:13½ by McKinney that is said to be one of the fastest youngsters in Southern California.

The Empire track at New York, which was built by the late Corporation Counsel Clark for a trotting track, was sold by auction on the 26th of last month to Frank Farrell, of that city, for $218,000, which is about half its cost. The mortgage on the track at the time of the sale was $195,000. Whether trotting meetings will be given there or whether the track will be turned over to the runners is problematical.

Among the mares from Palo Alto Stock Farm sold at one of the farm's sales at Los Angeles a few years ago was one by Electricity that was afterwards bred to McKinney and the colt, which has been named Electric Mac, is a trotter if there is one in that part of California.

Many reports are out in regard to glanders being among the horses belonging to the German Government that are left in this State. Every veterinary who is employed by a county Board of Supervisors to examine horses for glanders should be empowered to kill every horse found to be so affected, and burn its carcass.

Mr. W. Griswold, manager of the Los Gatos Light and Fuel Company, has a two year old gelding by Diablo out of Nellie F. by Blue Bull Jr., second dam Kit Freeman by Tom Hal 3000, that is one of the handsomest youngsters in Santa Clara county. He stands fifteen hands and three inches high, and his measurements in inches are as follows: Girth 72, arm 20, knee 12, stifle 37, hock 14, point of hip to point of hock 40½.

Suit has been brought in Alameda county by Jessie O. Van Ness against Jerome B. Walden, Jr., administrator of the estate of J. B. Chase, deceased, to recover possession of the stallion, imported Trentola, alleging that the horse was leased from Frank Van Ness by Chase in 1896. As Thos. G. Jones, former superintendent of the Chase farm claims the horse, administrator Walden refuses to give up possession until the court passes upon the ownership of the horse.

W. G. Durfee, who is getting together a string of good horses at Los Angeles for the campaign of 1902, writes that there has never been a time when so much interest was taken in harness horse affairs in that county as now, and that the business was never in a healthier condition. There is no doubt but the Los Angeles Driving Club has done a great deal to bring about this state of affairs down south, and it would be a good thing if there were a few more like it in the State.

George Ramage, who for the last nine years has been training colts and making speed with the colts and fillies of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, has resigned his position and has entered the hardware business at Haywards, Alameda county, where he has associated himself with the Ramage Hardware Company. Mr. Ramage, during the years of his connection with the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, gave the first lessons to many of that farm's fastest trotters, and drove quite a number to their records.

Speedsires are nowadays largely measured by their 2:10 performers, says an exchange. Brood mare sires are just as amenable to this measurement. It is not so often that George Wilkes is referred to as a great brood mare sire, yet he is the sire of the dams of eight 2:10 performers, leading all brood mare sires in this respect, and stands second only to Nutwood as a sire of dams of standard performers. Nutwood ties Mambrino Patchen as a sire of 2:10 dams, each of them having seven, and leads him sharply as a sire of dams of standard performers. Blue Bull, Mambrino King and Strathmare each stand within one point of equaling Mambrino Patchen as a sire of the dams of 2:10 performers, while Alcantara and Wilton are each but two points behind.

Stipulator.

A pacer that has attracted much attention from horsemen in the southern part of the State is Stipulator, whose likeness appears above. He is a black stallion by Titus, a full brother to Direct 2:05½. The dam of Stipulator is the dam of Coney 2:02. Stipulator has worked a mile in 2:11, and an offer of $2000 has been refused for him by his owner, Mr. Wilson.

Broodmare Sires.

"Columbus," the always entertaining editor of the "Western Department" in the Western Horseman publishes the following interesting table in the issue of December 27th and adds a few notes that will cause some breeders to scratch their heads and do a little thinking:

"Much is being written of late of advantage to be derived from breeding a mare belonging to one of the 'broodmare families' to a stallion which is a member of that family best noted for prepotency through its sons. Formerly it was considered the proper thing to breed a daughter of Mambrino Chief or a daughter of American Star to Hambletonian 10. Later came the Wilkes-Mambrino Patchen cross, the Hambletonian-Pilot, Jr., cross, etc. From the beginning of the light harness horse industry it has been customary to speak of certain families as being essentially 'broodmare families,' but the day for such comment is certainly past, especially in view of what the sons, grandsons, great-grandsons and great-great-grandsons of Hambletonian 10 are accomplishing as both sires of speed and sires of the dams of speed. American Star mares were all the rage when the writer first began the study of the breeding question, but you will not find American Star nor a single one of his sons represented in the following table of stallions whose daughters have produced ten or more 2:10 performers:

Belmont 64 by Abdallah 15.....	10
Dr. Herr 450 by Mambrino Patchen 58.....	10
Electioneer 125 by Hambletonian 10.....	10
Robert McGregor 647 by Major Edsall 211.....	10
Aleantara 729 by George Wilkes 519.....	11
Kentucky Prince 2470 by Clark Chief 89.....	11
Harold 413 by Hambletonian 10.....	12
Dictator 113 by Hambletonian 10.....	13
Jay Gould 197 by Hambletonian 10.....	13
Mambrino Abdallah 2201 by Mambrino Patchen 58.....	13
Mambrino King 1279 by Mambrino Patchen 58.....	13
Almont 33 by Abdallah 15.....	14
Happy Medium 400 by Hambletonian 10.....	14
Onward 1411 by George Wilkes 519.....	15
Strathmore 508 by Hambletonian 10.....	16
Mambrino Patchen 58 by Mambrino Chief 11.....	10
Blue Bull 75 by Blue Bull (Pruden's).....	25
George Wilkes 519 by Hambletonian 10.....	23
Red Wilkes 1749 by George Wilkes 519.....	26
Nutwood 600 by Belmont 64.....	36

"In this table you will not find a single stallion belonging to the Bashaw, Clay, Morgan, Pilot Jr., Tom Hal, Legal Tender, Red Buck, Copperbottom, thoroughbred or other families. Aside from Blue Bull, the stallions in this list all trace to Hambletonian 10 or Mambrino Chief 11. Neither will you find American Star or one of his sons represented in the table, and it looks as though the Hambletonian family was about the 'whole works' in this year of our Lord 1901.

An Oregon Suggestion.

The North Pacific Rural Spirit, published at Portland, Ore., in commenting on this paper's advice to district association managers to get together early in the season, arrange circuit dates and announce early closing stakes, says: "One good reason held out by the BREEDER for their early action was the fact that both Oregon and Washington had representatives in that State working in the interest of our Northern circuit next year. They said that the successful meetings held up here this year would induce many California horsemen to race on this circuit next season, unless California took the matter in hand early and headed them off by offering some inducement for staying on the home circuit."

"Now this is good advice and we don't blame the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for trying to enthrone the Californians into early action, but the running game, coupled with syndicate book making has about ruined harness racing in the Golden State, and it will take the combined early action and earnest effort on the part of all the associations there to bring the sport back to that of former years. However, we have trouble of our own and we should not be too slow in getting our own circuit before the horsemen. Dates should be arranged early in the season for the entire circuit. A few early closing stakes offered at each place on the circuit, not all for the same class, but adopt a kind of a step-ladder system throughout the circuit. To illustrate we will say that Everett, Whatcom, Portland, Salem, Seattle, North Yakima and Spokane are on the circuit in the order named, each place to give two stakes, one for trotters and one for pacers."

"Everett could start with a stake for 2:40 trotters and one for 2:30 pacers; Whatcom 2:30 trotters, 2:25 pacers; Portland 2:27 trotters, 2:23 pacers; Salem 2:25 trotters, 2:20 pacers; Seattle 2:20 trotters, 2:18 pacers; North Yakima 2:17 trotters, 2:15 pacers; Spokane 2:15 trotters, 2:11 pacers. This system would prevent any hippodrome racing that might occur should the stakes be offered throughout the circuit for the same class of horses. No association should offer any larger stakes than they can afford to pay, and by all means pay what they offer."

Dates Allotted by the Jockey Club.

At a meeting of the stewards of The Jockey Club held in New York last week, the following dates for the season of 1902 were allotted to the seven associations under the jurisdiction of the governing body.

According to the schedule, the Metropolitan Jockey Club, which is building a new and elaborate institution at Jamaica, has not been recognized.

Already upwards of $100,000 has been expended on the Jamaica plant and the association was relying upon getting a license for the coming year, in fact, it estimated on being ready to give a spring meeting.

The track is finished and foundations have been laid for the stands, club houses and other buildings. The contracts for the stables amounted to over $100,000 alone.

From what can be learned from some of these interested, the building will be continued in the hope of getting favorable results in 1903; in fact, the work of construction will be pushed faster than ever so it is said, so that in applying for a license in the spring the association will be in a position to present a fully equipped track before the Jockey Club.

The issuance of the dates is unusually early, for some reason. Heretofore they have not been decided before January. The allotment is much the same as last year with the exception that Saratoga is slightly favored. There will be racing at this track from August 4th to August 29th.

The following is the schedule:

SPRING MEETINGS.

Washington Jockey Club—Thursday, March 29th to Saturday, April 12th.

Queen's County Jockey Club—Tuesday, April 15th to Thursday, May 1st.

West Chester Racing Association—Saturday, May 3d to Thursday, May 22d.

Brooklyn Jockey Club—Saturday, May 24th to Friday, June 13th.

Coney Island Jockey Club—Saturday, June 14th to Friday, July 4th.

Brighton Beach Racing Association—Saturday, July 5th to Saturday, August 2d.

Saratoga Association—Monday, August 4th to Friday, August 29th.

FALL MEETINGS.

Coney Island Jockey Club—Saturday, August 30th to Saturday, September 13th.

Brooklyn Jockey Club—Monday, September 15th to Saturday, October 4th.

West Chester Racing Association—Monday, October 6th to Saturday, October 25th.

Queen's County Jockey Club—Monday, October 27th to Saturday, November 8th.

Washington Jockey Club—Monday, November 10th to Saturday, November 29th.

Grand Circuit Plans For 1902.

Plans for the Grand Circuit for 1902 are already being discussed by the track managers, and it now looks as though the circuit stewards, at their meeting to be held in January, will have a difficult task to arrange the itinerary to the satisfaction of all the associations. A. J. Welch has already announced that he will ask to have the circuit open at Cincinnati instead of at Detroit, and it is pretty well understood that the Detroit people will make a strong effort to keep the position they have so long occupied as the opening meeting of the big series of races. After the question of opening is settled little trouble will be encountered until the allotment of dates for Glens Falls is taken up. Last year Brighton Beach gave an independent meeting during the week of Glens Falls and Circuit meeting, after offering the Falls people a good round sum to change their dates. It is said that Brighton Beach will ask for a place in the Grand Circuit line this year, and unless it can be arranged to comply with the request another independent meeting will be held there. Letting Brighton Beach in will cause a change of dates for Glens Falls and possibly for Boston, Hartford and Providence, a fact that will make the settlement of the question one of no little difficulty. It is said that Baltimore will also ask for dates in the Grand Circuit, but, as that city is off the regular route the horses will take to get back west, it is doubtful about favorable dates. Whether or not Syracuse will be in the Grand Circuit again this year rests entirely with the New York State Fair Commission. If that body holds to the week beginning August 25th for holding the State Fair, Syracuse will not see the Grand Circuit performers. If a later date is selected, then the Salt City will get a place. Cincinnati will give a second meeting late in September, preceding the Terre Haute meeting, but it is not certain that the latter city will be in the Grand Circuit this year, as it is said that it may join the proposed Southern Circuit, which will have for other members Lexington, Memphis, Nashville and possibly New Orleans. Even if Terre Haute joins the new circuit, dates will probably be arranged so that Terre Haute will follow Cincinnati in order to catch all the big stables that will be returning west just at that time.—Philadelphia Item.

Zombro 2:11 Goes to Los Angeles.

The great McKinney stallion, Zombro 2:11, will make the season of 1902 at Los Angeles. A letter from his owner, Geo. T. Beckers, dated at Sacramento December 31st, gives this information. Mr. Beckers could not resist the strongly expressed desire on the part of many breeders in Los Angeles county who own high class and producing mares to breed them to Zombro, and has decided to take him there. That Zombro will receive a large patronage in Southern California is certain. The breeders there are progressive men as a rule, and recognize in Zombro one of the highest types of the American trotter ever bred. Besides the young Zombros are attracting the attention of all horsemen on account of their great speed and uniform good looks. The first one to start in a race won the Occident Stake at the California State Fair of 1901, and there are very good chances of this stake being won again this year by one of Zombro's get.

W. W. Estill, of Lexington, sent two yearlings and six weanlings by Adbell to the Old Glory sale. The former sold for an average of $725, while the weanlings brought a total of $3348, an average of $558 per head.

A certificate of stock of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association was sold recently at forced sale for $85, which was considered a good price.

Nelly A. 2:13, yearling record 2:29½, is in foal to Adbell, yearling record 2:23, and this is said to be the only conjunction of the kind.

James Butler, the New York millionaire grocer, owner of the East View Stock Farm, is coming to California this winter.

Good breeding and good feeding are so closely related that they must go together. One is useless without the other.

A. T. Welch will make an effort to have the Grand Circuit of 1902 begin and end at Cincinnati.

SADDLE NOTES.

During the season just closed six running tracks in New York paid a total of $128,581.50 in taxes to the state treasury.

Peter B. Bradley, the Boston horseman who purchased some of the best Arabian stallions brought to the World's Fair of Chicago in 1893, has just sold twenty-five horses to be used as polo ponies. They are the produce of the Arabs and Western mares.

Canker of the Ear.

BY C. F.

This disease is generally considered to be due to the ear becoming wet, or in popular language, "to catching cold in the ear." In reality it is a local eczema, and its character differs in no wise from the other forms of skin lesions so common in plethoric animals, excepting that when it has once advanced to the stage of ulceration it rarely heals without treatment, as eczema of the skin proper often does when the conditions of living are entirely changed.

Eczema in the dog is very frequently retrocedent; that is to say, it will apparently be completely cured only to break out shortly in some other part of the body, such as within or on the ear, or between the toes, or it may even assume an entirely different form, such as rheumatism.

The majority of eczemas are due to disorders of digestion or nutrition. This does not necessarily mean over or improper feeding. Sometimes these disorders can be traced to deficient innervation brought about by a wrecking of the nervous system during an attack of distemper. A very rare parasitic variety is known, but this we will leave out of consideration. There are other forms where the origin of the disorder is obscure, but the greater number of cases can be traced to the old, old story—overfeeding and lack of exercise.

Canker of the ear has been described as an internal and external, the former applying to the disease when existent within the hollow of the ear, the latter when the flap becomes affected. This distinction is entirely superfluous, as they are both of the same nature, the difference being only a matter of location.

One is impelled to seek to account for the marked tendency to eruptions on the surface of the body witnessed in the dog. A possible explanation lies in the absence of sweat glands. As is well known, the sudoriferous glands in animals possessed of them act as important excretory organs and supplement the action of the kidney and bowels. If one of the latter from any cause should be checked in its activity, the glands of the skin can in large measure come to its assistance, temporarily at least. The dog is said by some to "sweat at the mouth," which really means that he salivates freely. Undoubtedly the system is relieved of a great deal of fluid matter in this manner, but it can hardly be considered a true excretion as is perspiration. If then the blood of a dog becomes surcharged with effete material, so much so that the kidneys and bowels are overtaxed and unable to remove it, there is apparently an attempt on the part of the organism to fall back on an outlet by way of the surface of the body (possibly dogs once possessed true sweat glands in bygone ages). The glands there not being developed, an inflammation results, which may or may not advance through various stages till ulceration and necrosis of the parts take place.

Ulceration is what usually happens when the ear becomes the seat of the inflammation, for the reason that the discharges do not find a free exit, but tend to run down into the hollow of the ear and there continue to act as local irritants and increase the trouble. We are all familiar with the instinctive attempt on the part of the dog so affected to establish free drainage by shaking the diseased ear downward.

Inflammations in or on the ear may, and generally do, run through the same course that other inflammations do. At first there is a redness, which, if discovered at this point can be controlled before it reaches the next stage, that of breaking down of the tissues of the part affected and the formation of matter (suppuration).

If it is still neglected it goes on to the intractable and painful condition of ulceration. The latter is the state the ear is in in old-standing chronic cases. By ulceration is meant a continuation of the disease process past the point when it can heal by granulation, or a sort of continual dying of the parts.

Each of these stages calls for different treatment.

The first stage can generally be headed off by purging the animal, and for this purpose epsom salts is the best remedy. In fact, in any case of eczema in the inflammatory stage, epsom salts is the right drug to use.

It acts quite briskly in the dog, but must be in a well preserved condition—that is to say, must not have been exposed to the atmosphere. It acts by extracting water from the tissues, but can only abstract a certain amount. Hence, if it has had an opportunity to absorb moisture from the atmosphere before being used, it can readily be understood that its action will be nil. From one to four teaspoonfuls, according to the size of the dog, should be dissolved in an equal quantity each of warm water and syrup of ginger. The latter prevents griping and overcomes to some extent the bitter taste of the dose. This should be given as soon after the preparation as possible and repeated every morning till the redness subsides.

For local application use the following several times daily (poisonous by the mouth): Equal parts of Goulard's extract of lead, laudanum and alcohol in 10 parts of water.

At the suppurative stage local treatment should be twice daily. First pour into the ear a teaspoonful of peroxide of hydrogen. This makes all the matter and pus effervesce and flow over out of the hollow of the ear. In two or three minutes' time ram into the hollow with the little finger as far as it will go some of this powder: Powdered zinc oxide, boric acid and iodol or iodoform, equal parts, mixed.

We now have to consider the ulcerative stage, which is the stage at which difficulty is usually experienced owing to ignorance of what constitutes an ulcer and the proper way to treat it. The second stage, that of granulation and suppuration, needs soothing and antiseptic material to assist its course. It can keep on the right road to recovery if a little gentle help is afforded. As already explained, ulceration is a process that has gone too far to be guided back to the right path by soothing methods. It must be regarded as a vicious condition and requires stimulating and wakening to healthy action. It is, therefore, necessary to use some caustic drug that will destroy the irritant portion that refuses to heal. For this purpose nitrate of silver may be used in the proportion of 1 to 100 parts of water. This should be poured into the ear after it has been cleaned by the use of the peroxide of hydrogen, as in the foregoing stage. Allow it to remain there for a few minutes and then let the animal shake it out himself. Subsequently the same powder should be used.

One word as to diet. Meat must on no account be allowed in any form whatever.

I am satisfied that no case of canker will fail to yield to the above simple treatment, at least such has always been my own experience.

BARKS.

It is just as important to the dog that his teeth be kept free from accumulations of tartar as it is to human beings. If tartar is allowed to collect, it soon extends into the sockets of the teeth, causes decay of the same and separates them from the teeth to the extent that the latter loosen and eventually fall out, not to speak of the offensive odor that it causes to emanate from the mouth. Hence the teeth should be examined at least once in six months, and if found in such condition, the animal should be carried to some dentist or veterinarian for relief. Dogs are ticklish about having the mouth or jaws operated upon, so that, according to some of the dilettanti, it is usually necessary to administer a hypodermic injection of morphine in order to place the patient in a happy frame of mind.

This is quite an anxious time for persons who own puppies from five to seven or eight months old. From now on until the open season comes again, the puppies must be schooled daily, if they are wanted to make any showing at the opening of the season. "Yard-breaking" a dog is the first thing to look after, the puppies being taught that when their masters want them to do a thing they have got to do it. More can be taught a dog by gentle and kind treatment than by rough schooling, and once a dog has learned to obey readily, promptly and with a certain eagerness to do what he is told, then the lesson of breaking is more than half over. Once out in the fields, or in the woods, instinct soon teaches a dog what to do when he comes across the scent that is so pleasant to his nostrils. If your puppy is well under control and if he has any "bird sense" at all your task of turning him into "the best dog you ever owned" is assured. But have patience with his faults, for dogs are like children.

At the present day half of the British aristocracy and an army of wealthy American fanciers are giving their attention to dog breeding. Some specimens of the canine tribe bear astounding selling prices. Mr. Megson, of Manchester, bought a Collie several years ago for £1500. He has another dog for which he gave £1300. These are some of the highest priced dogs in the world.

In the Bill Sykes days dogs were notoriously "faked." In the wicked old days these fakes were practiced to enhance the value of a dog, and terrible cruelties were inflicted. With Bulldogs, for instance, it used to be the custom to make them wear an instrument of torture for the purpose of shortening their muzzle, an instrument which broke the cartilage of the nose under pressure.

In many of the wire-haired Terriers, the practice was to treat their coats with a certain solution, which caused the animals intense suffering, in order to make their coats hard. Dogs underwent the torture of having hairs plucked from their bodies so as to give them the desired appearance for winning prizes.

The Prince of Wales, who has practically identified himself with the economy of the dog world, instituted the, as yet, unwritten law forbidding the clipping of ears and the cutting of tails, even in the case of common Terriers.

Those owners who expect litters of puppies during March and April should remember that the air is liable to be chilly and that cold windy weather often prevails at this time of year. They should provide a suitable place for the dam so that no wind can possibly penetrate where she is to bring forth her family, and if possible the litter should be whelped and kept for at least 24 hours where there is artificial heat, even if it be beside the range in the kitchen. After that they can be removed to a place outside like a box stall in a stable, that has had a kennel or a small dry goods box placed in it, with opening large enough for the dam to go out and in.

Remember, the dam needs extra care now, as it is a great drain on her. She must eat enough to support herself and her whole family. If she will take it give her plenty of sweet milk to drink, but if she refuses to take milk, prepare her soups or any soft foods that she relishes.

Remember, that it is only for a short time, say four to six weeks, that this extra care need be taken of her, and the saving of one good pup or the general condition of her whole litter will bring enough extra money to pay for your trouble.

Remember, that if you are too shiftless to give the dam and her litter proper care, you have no right to complain if you lose half the litter, or if they do live, if they are poor, stunted specimens that nobody wants to buy. If they are the latter sort, don't call it "your luck," but your ignorance or shiftlessness.

Whilst in the human subject thorough mastication of food is essential to sound digestion, such is not the case in the dog.

In man, the cutting and grinding action of the teeth reduces bulky portions taken into the mouth to a state of fine division and at the same time brings about an admixture of the saliva, which is a highly active digestive fluid, in so far as it is capable of converting starchy matters into sugar. In addition to its digestive action, the saliva functions also in a mechanical way by lubricating the passages to the stomach. In the dog, little, if any, mastication is performed, and well-meaning persons are sometimes alarmed at the apparent disregard by their pets of nature's requirements, which have been drummed into themselves since childhood.

But physiologists have found that the dog's saliva is almost inert, and that it cannot, therefore, have any value as a digestive factor. Hence his saliva need only be regarded as a lubricant and at times an active agent for the dissemination of rabies.

It is a simple matter to ascertain the digestive capacity of any given saliva by adding a little of the same to a solution of starch, and shortly after making a chemical test for sugar, when if the saliva be active, sugar will be found to be present.

To reduce his food to a size just possible to swallow, the dog tears it into fragments and crunches it once or twice with his teeth, but compared to the particles we find it most convenient to take into the stomach his are of rather large dimensions, which, however, is quite proper, his gullet being far more distensible than ours.

Those who are interested in thoroughbred dogs and can look back twenty years and see the class of dogs that was then owned throughout the country, and at the same time remember the class of men who were known as dog breeders, cannot but notice the great improvement, both in the dogs and the men.

"Twenty years ago in Northern, Eastern and Central New York the only dog or breed of dogs that approached being pure bred was the Fox Hound," wrote a contributor to one of our Eastern contemporaries. There were a few "apologies" for breeds or varieties. None of any sort with a pedigree.

The people would look sorrowfully at the man who would keep or shelter more than one dog in those days, more particularly out in country districts. In a suit brought for damages done a flock of sheep by dogs, we remember hearing one of the lawyers say: "A man moderately poor always kept one dog; a really poor man two dogs, and a d—d poor man three to six."

Men of brains, men who understand human nature, men who loved dogs, and, in a way, understood them, began to write favorably of our faithful friend. They made him the hero or the companion of the hero of their stories, in papers, poems and books, and our ignorant country cousins became interested and enlightened. New friends began to spring up all around for the dog. Old friends who had kept their love for him smothered, for fear of wagging tongues, began to fan the flame, and as an excuse for keeping and breeding dogs, ordered a pair of thoroughbreds from abroad.

In this way and many other ways, the breeding and keeping of thoroughbred dogs has progressed. These solid men, men of repute, soon convinced the people in general that the thoroughbred dog was of use, that there was a breed, bred expressly for any purpose for which they needed a dog. That there was honor in the ranks of dog breeders, and by combining and forming laws that not only protect themselves, but buyers also, they have to-day made the business a recognized business. Now there are many kinds of thoroughbred dogs, owned by men who are proud to be known as dog breeders.

The place of honor is always occupied in many dog shows by the stately Bloodhound, whose dignified demeanor seems to strike terror into the hearts of people uneducated in dog lore. Here are some true facts about him: He is the "sleuth-hound" of newspaper phraseology, although many writers who use the term may not know that sleuth is Saxon for "track of a deer." He has a peculiar scent which enables him to follow the trail for many miles of anybody bearing, or who has come into contact with, fresh-shed blood. But he does not track by intuitive instinct; he must be trained. It is a mistake to suppose that he can naturally track any evil-doer or human blood-shedder by taking him to the original spot where blood has been spilled. In himself he is a most gentle and docile creature, and is specially recommended for children.

The Mastiff is the oldest known breed in England. The ancient English breed was brindled yellow and black; he is now generally buff. Not more than a dozen kennels in Great Britain are now, it is claimed, interested in Mastiffs. "Peter Piper" at one time the most famous Mastiff in the world belonged to Mr. Royle, who refused 1000 guineas for him.

The Irish Wolfhound, the old historic dog of Ireland, which has been found an honorable place in the literature of that country and has been called the inseparable companion and guard of the harp of Brian Boru, and of Erin, has been saved from total extinction. The Irish Wolfhound Club was formed to resuscitate that line of dog whose original ancestor is believed to have romped about with the first man in Eden. Unquestionably, the true Irish Wolfdog is the representative of the most ancient of the dog creation. It is true that the Mastiff and the Greyhound are represented in the Assyrian sculptures in the British Museum, thus proving their antiquity, but the Irish Wolfdog has evolved from an earlier species still.

Otters are not looked upon in this State as animals that furnish any degree of sport. The trapper looks after them for the sake of their fur, but that is all there is to it. In England the sport of otter hunting is looked upon as something solid; and otters are preserved in the same way that foxes are—for the sake of the sport they afford in front of a pack of hounds. It takes but little to break a pack of hounds into hunting otters; some packs hunt foxes all winter, and otters during the summer. A start is made early in the day, sometimes 6 o'clock, in order that the "drag" or scent left by the otter on its midnight rambles may be fresh enough for the hounds to follow. The hounds are taken to the side of the stream, or shallow, swift-running river, and urged on by the huntsman, spread out along the banks of the river, hunting up stream or down, as decided upon by the master of hounds. The "field," that is, the people on foot who accompany the hounds, for no horsemen are allowed, walk along briskly, watching the hounds at work.

Perhaps an hour or two may be passed in this manner, four or five miles of the river being covered without a trace of an otter. On the other hand, sometimes a warm "drag" is struck at once, and then all is life. Where the otter has kept to the shore, or where it has cut off a corner by crossing an open field or wood, the pace is brisk enough to keep "the field" running. Then comes a check where the otter has taken to the water. Right here is where old otter hounds show their sagacity. Plunging into the stream, they swim out to isolated rocks that show their heads above the water, sniffing at each one, occasionally lifting their voices when they find a trace of where the otter has pulled himself from the water and rested for a moment or two. It is a beautiful sight to see the whole pack, perhaps twenty or twenty-five hounds, plunge into the water and "hark" to the cry of some old hound whom they know never lies.

Finally, the otter is traced to his den or "holt." A small fox-terrier is put in, and if the otter is at home, that fact is quickly made known by the terrier's baying when he has the otter cornered. Sometimes old otters, especially females with young put up a stiff fight and the terrier gets a good mauling; but generally there's more than one outlet to the den, and the otter slips quietly into the water. A view "halloa" proclaims he's gone away. Up the stream he swims, or may be down stream, the hounds true to his line as the bubbles that rise to the surface from his breath, like the "chain" from a muskrat, give off the scent of the otter. Sometimes the chase goes on for over an hour; sometimes for three or four hours, as the otter gets into other dens, is traced there, and bolted again. An otter hunt is most exciting sport, and when the coup de grace is given, the otter having been "tailed" as he crossed some shallow place, men and hounds have generally had enough excitement for one hot day.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The Christmas number of Man's Best Friend is a good one—full of interesting matter and illustrated with handsome half tones. Its typographical style and appearance is a model to be followed.

An amusing story is told concerning the win of W. Feige's English Setter Buckwa over the Eastern dog Oakley Hill at the last May bench show in this city. Oakley Hill was listed in the catalogue at $10,000. Buckwa, in an adjoining bench stall was listed at $75. When the latter won over the $10,000 crack, his young owner immediately placed a "For Sale" in Buckwa's kennei, announcing that he was for sale at the price of $10,001.

Will Ryder says one of the best things that can be purchased in Oakland is a ticket for 'Frisco. Next to this good thing is the pair of Cocker Spaniels owned respectively by Ryder and Elvin G. Wixom; Ace of Spades and Duke W. Duke is a great swimmer and diver and can stay under water for 30 seconds. Ace, an eight months old puppy has been taught among other tricks, to jump up on a piano stool and pat the instrument with his fore feet. The dog seems to enjoy very much the variety of sounds he can knock out of the piano.

Calendars.

From Mr. Clarence A. Haight, the Coast agent of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co., of Wilmington, Delaware, the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has received a copy of their centennial calendar. The coming year will be the one hundredth anniversary of this great powder making firm's business. Enclosed around each calendar is an historical insert in which each quarter of a century is commemorated in an appropriate manner.

The mills began the issuing of powder on the Brandywine, near Wilmington, Del., January 1, 1802. In this historical insert is given a brief mention of the work accomplished with Dupont powder during the century that it has been issued. The first illustration on this insert refers to Perry's Victory on Lake Erie, which was so much of a historical event that the story was told on canvas that hangs in the capitol at Washington and in the Columbus (O.) State House, from which engravings have been made that appear on the $100.00 National bank note.

The next illustration has reference to the period of civilization. The struggle with the Indians in the Middle, Western and Southern States. This formed a large part of the history of our country during the past century.

The next illustration is a primitive coal mine suggesting the great development of the coal and mineral interests of the country, which were promoted largely by the use of DuPont powder.

The smokeless powder feature is then taken up, and the growth in this since DuPont Smokeless was patented in 1893, is so far beyond expectations that during the past year, notwithstanding a heavy increase in the facilities for manufacture, the company was not able to fill their orders; however, the capacity has been greatly increased and in the future they expect to care for all the additional volume of trade that will come.

The unfortunate civil strife of '61 to '65 is not mentioned, the Company preferring to make no mention of this great national misfortune. They do, however, find the climax of their story for the century in the fact that at the battle of Santiago, when the Spanish fleet was destroyed, DuPont powder was exclusively burned in the guns, and furnished transportation to the shells which did such great work; perhaps this should be qualified slightly. Although the Company had equipped the Oregon before she left the Pacific Coast with her full quota of DuPont powder sent by trains from Wilmington, it is barely possible that she had aboard of her a remnant of powder made by the California Powder Company, which would not bear the name "DuPont" on the cases, and it is probable that none of this was used. Every other ship at Santiago carried DuPont powder exclusively. Not a pound of any other make was used.

This calendar and historical insert is sent to all sportsmen and dealers who desire a copy so long as the edition lasts, provided the parties enclose the amount of postage—three cents. The Company will have no extra copies for art and calendar collectors.

The Union Metallic Cartridge Company, we are informed by Mr. E. E. Drake, their Pacific Coast manager, will not issue a calendar for 1902. Already many inquiries and mail requests have been received, the company's many friends assuming that the customary issuance of the annual series of elegant calendars would not be discontinued this year.

County Game Laws in Force.

The present State Game and Fish Laws are in force and unchanged in the following counties:

Alameda.	Monterey.	Solano.
Colusa.	Santa Cruz.	San Joaquin.
Contra Costa.	San Benito.	Sonoma.
Merced.

The following counties have adopted ordinances in regard to fish and game, and which are now in force as follows:

Fresno—Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1.

Marin—Male deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. Quail, Oct. 15 to Jan. 15. Shooting on county roads or in cemeteries prohibited. The use of "pump" gun, repeating shotgun or any kind of magazine shotgun for hunting in the county is prohibited.

Monterey—Sea gulls and blue cranes, killing of prohibited. Use of guns of larger caliber than 10-gauge prohibited.

Santa Clara—Quail, Oct. 8 to Feb. 1.

San Mateo—Quail, Nov. 1 to Dec. 1. Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. Shooting from boats at high tide prohibited.

A Dubuque, Ia., grocer was arrested for having more game birds in his possession than the law allows. The fine is $10 for each bird in excess of the legal number, each bird over twenty-five constituting a separate count. The informer gets $5 and the prosecuting officer $5 on each count, so that if the law is enforced he will have a nice little bill to settle. Not a great while ago a man in the interior of the State paid a fine of $700 for violation of the game law.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

It has been estimated that during the two and one-half months open season for deer in New York State over seven thousand deer were killed.

The holiday number of Shooting and Fishing is a handsomely gotten up publication. The front cover, illuminated design—a winter scene, the returning hunter with an immense bronze breasted wild turkey on his shoulder trudging back to camp o'er the snow-covered landscape—is a sportsman's ideal, indeed. The reading matter and illustrations are interesting and appropriate.

Representative Curtis, of Kansas, has introduced a bill in Congress which is destined, if passed, to provide for the preservation and propagation of the bison or American buffalo. This bill contemplates the establishment of a reservation of 100,000 acres of land to be leased for a period of twenty years. The location of the preserve will be in either Lincoln or Eddy counties, New Mexico. The bill empowers the Secretary of State to lease the preserve to some competent person, who shall take control of the range and superintend the breeding and raising of a herd of buffalo.

From late and authentic reports on the game of Alaska, it would appear that there is comparatively little animal life in the frozen north outside of the portions that abut on the seacoast. Game is reported as very scarce, while the hardships attending its pursuit often render the game not worth the candle. A few bears, a few wolves, scattering grouse and such like, are about all that are met with, unless a regular hunt is taken into the haunts of the caribou and moose. As a game country, Alaska seems to have been over-rated, and thousands of rifles that have gone into Alaska, particularly those that went with men bound for the region of the Klondike, will never have a chance of being tried at game. The gigantic Alaskan grizzly is an object worth hunting, but he is not found on every hillside.

Foxes as pets are not uncommon, but as a rule foxes never quite get over their constitutional fear of human beings, but are usually shy and treacherous. Still, it appears they can become accustomed to a domestic life, even to rearing a litter of cubs close to a human dwelling, as evidenced in the following anecdote: "A litter of four cubs (foxes) about six weeks old are in my garden. I can see them from my windows playing around the hole of their den early and late; sometimes in the daytime. My little boys are delighted with them, and are always on the watch to see their funny antics, tumbling and rolling over the old vixen. I must now tell you the origin of the litter. The vixen is quite tame, having been brought up by me since she was a cub. She is now three years old and quite a pet. It is most amusing to see her play with a young retriever dog, even now that she has a family—the first she has had. A year since she was flirting with a dog fox, and perhaps it was the same that found her out in the season time, as I often saw pad marks around my house." This interesting little anecdote is told in an English sporting paper, and shows that even foxes can become more semi-domesticated.

Can foxes climb trees? This is a question that has often been asked, and as often replied to in the affirmative. In Florida the foxes when pursued by hounds will tree nine times out of ten, scaling a young pine tree with the agility and ease with which a common house cat can do the trick, writes an Eastern correspondent. The reason is not far to seek. Water is quite near the surface over the whole of the peninsula, and consequently there is no sort of refuge in a deep underground den in such sandy soil. "Gophers," that is, land tortoises, do make shallow burrows in the soil, and occasionally a fox takes refuge temporarily in one of these gopher holes; the refuge is merely temporary, for he is easily dislodged. All the foxes in Florida are of the gray variety, and have long claws like a cat; these long claws are supposed to be due to the soft and sandy nature of the soil which prevents their being kept down to a proper length. The claws on dogs' feet, too, grow to an unconscionable length in Florida. Thus the foxes being armed with these long, almost prehensile claws, they find no difficulty in climbing any pine tree they can almost grasp around, even if there is no branch within thirty or forty feet of the ground. The "Crackers," who do a good deal of fox hunting, generally dislodge them from their perches with a well aimed pine knot, a good supply of which are to be found within easy reach all through the Florida pine woods.

The Southern fox-hunter looks down with a sort of pitying disdain on his Northern brother who shoots foxes on runways. To a Southerner, as to an Englishman, it seems like murder to shoot a fox. In Kentucky, Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida there is no better sport than riding behind a fast pack. The country is negotiable on horseback, and the riding is good. But take it up in Maine or in Connecticut, what chance is there of riding to hounds? Dens in the rocks are always handy, and fast hounds soon "hole" their fox. But let a fox be roused from his bed by a slow trailing hound, the fox will not go to ground unless he is absolutely obliged to do so. He will, on the contrary, keep playing along a little ahead of the hound. The only way to get his pelt is to lie in wait for him and to let him have the contents of your shotgun or rifle. To be a successful foxhunter in the North you must have just as good but not as fast hounds as they have in the South, and you must know just as much about foxes and their ways and runways as the best man in the South. If more Southerners, recounts the same writer, would attend the annual trials of the Worcester Fur Club or the Brunswick Fur Club there would not be so much talk about the unsportsmanlike methods of Northerners in shooting foxes.

'Taint th' Same.

Guess my tackle is th' best—
Rod o' steel an' fancy flies;
Lines that stand th' toughest test—
Reels enough for every size;
Yet when I a-fishin' go
An' recall th' early fame
Of a boy I used to know,
'Taint th' same.

Useter own a hickory rod—
Hook, cork, sinker—nothin' more,
Useter to turn th' garden sod
After worms 'longside th' door.
Useter angle in th' brook—
Speckle trout aroun' me came,
Seemed to hanker for my hook—
'Taint th' same.

There I'd sit an' fish an' fish,
Starin' at th' quiet pool;
Sit an' watch, an' wait, an' wish—
Quite forgettin' home an' school,
Often caught a 'lickin', my!
Dad was quick to place th' blame!
Fishin' cost this youngster high—
'Taint th' same

Fishin', an' inventin' tales—
Kind o' skatin' round the truth,
Is a sport that never stales
In th' golden days of youth.
Got th' tackle that's th' best.
Yet th' sport seems gettin' tame:
What's th' tackle 'bout th' zest?
'Taint th' same.

When You Begin Trout Fishing.

Trout fishing is like the eating of olives in that a taste for it generally has to be acquired. The whys and wherefores of this fact were pretty well brought out the other evening when a club man, whom his friends address as the Judge, was informed that one of his fellows intended to go to the Truckee next season for his first experience in trout fishing while a guest of his brother, who is an expert of long standing. The Judge is an iconoclast, who takes a sledge hammer and goes at your most cherished idols with a vim that leaves them headless and armless. Generally you are offended at the time, but forgive later on, when you find out that the Judge was entirely right. His friends were not surprised, therefore, when he began:

"That brother's lying awake nights thinking just what he'll do to you. And he'll do every bit of it, too. You'll go to Verdi with a headful of nonsense you've learned out of books. You'll carry a revolver for possible bears, and you'll buy two new rods and every fly from the Benn's Martha to the brown hackle.

"Some morning that brother will waken you at 3:30. He'll feed you a small sandwich and march you across two miles of rocky trail for an early start. Then the glorious sport will begin.

"The bank is so badly fringed with brush that you will have to wade the stream. You'll find the water a little cold at first. That brother of yours will tell you that it will be warmer soon. Then you will find there are more than a million mosquitoes to every cubic yard of space. You can't see through their mass, and when it comes to holding your rod steady that's out of the question, with the little devils blackening your hands and face and neck. You try to hold your rod and slap mosquitoes at the same time, making a dismal failure of both undertakings, until your brother produces a bottle which he tells you contains "skeeterizer." You'll put some of this on your face and hands, and the insects will stay away for a little while. You'll wish you could stay, too. You'd be willing to undergo a transmigration and come to earth as a mosquito, just to get away from yourself and the odor of that liquid.

"Now, you and your brother start to wade down stream, fishing side by side. You begin to notice that the flies don't work so well here as they did in the back yard, where you were practicing. In the first place the line is wet now and sticks in the guides. Then there is brush, and when you give your rod the backward swing that ought to straighten your line out behind you and prepare it for the forward shoot, you find it caught fast on a limb just a little higher than you are able to reach. You get it free in time and catch up with your brother, who has fished ahead and rounded the bend to a place where there is no brush.

"Here you let out your line for a long cast, feeling sure there will be no overhanging limbs in the way this time. You make a frightful throw, and find the line wrapped about the end of your rod in a tangle that would tempt a saint to profanity. You start to unravel it. The 'skeeterizer' has evaporated and you swear you will not put on any more. But the insects are thick, and every move you make toward untangling the line ends in a slap.

"Now is the time you begin to suspect that if you ever get home again you will eschew trout fishing forever. At last, in sheer desperation, you cut off the end of the line and let the tangled part go down stream by itself.

"The sun is up now, and you can feel that the warmer water your brother told about is nearly due. Instead, it feels colder every minute. It has ceased being merely 'too cold,' and has a piercing sharpness which suggests that some one is cutting the muscles of your legs with a very, very sharp knife. Your teeth chatter till you lose all control over them.

"You haven't caught a fish, of course. You've been too busy entangling your line for that. Your brother is pulling in a nice one every now and then, and you feel that you could stand the cold water and, maybe, the mosquitoes if you could get a few of the beautiful spotted fellows. Now you reach a nice, deep hole under an overhanging tree. You feel sure there are fish there. You let your flies drift under the tree top, and, sure enough, a beauty rises at the blue rail on the end of your leader. Then you, poor fool, strike so hard that your line comes clear out of the water and catches hard and fast in the tree. Your brother tells you that fisherman's etiquette demands that a man with a line so fastened shall stand still while his companion fishes out the hole. So you stand and fight mosquitoes while he takes the big fellow that rose to your fly and a couple of others.

"You don't want to lose those flies, so you wade in to get them out. The water comes up above your waist, and the pain as of sharp knives ascends to high water mark. Some way you are not perfectly happy. Trout fishing does not seem to be such a charming sport after all.

"When noon comes you are famished, but when you reach for the sandwich in your pocket you find it soaked into a liquid state. You want to go home, but you don't dare tell your brother. Cold, hungry, mosquito tortured, and, worst of all, disappointed, you vow you will never go to a stream again. When evening comes you would give anything for a horse and carriage to take you home but your brother has provided against that, and you have to tramp home over the stumps, logs, brush and rocks. Then you'll swear that the fellows who go after trout are a lot of faddists who pretend to like the sport to be in style.

The Judge stopped talking, and, not knowing anything better to say, I asked:

"Did you get such treatment when you began to fish?"

"Exactly," he answered; "except the bunco steerer who took me out capped the climax by slipping a bottle of white varnish in the pocket where my 'skeeterizer' was supposed to be. That varnish did not come off my face for three weeks. I'm sorry I didn't kill the villain that did it. Vowed I'd never fish again. But I did, just as you will, and I got to be a crank on the subject."

Stocking Lakes With Fish.

BY J. MAYNE BALTIMORE.

Scattered through the northern part of Stevens county, Washington, are a number of small, picturesque lakes. Some of these bodies are so small as to scarcely merit the appellation of "lake." Really, they are only ponds, or mere reservoirs.

Nevertheless, they are not lacking in the elements of beauty. Without an exception these little sheets are romantic and attractive features of the country. In many respects the tarns are peculiar, if not remarkable.

Generally, they are located in the heart of mountains. All the environments are wild, rugged and titanic. Strange to say, some of the lakes are situated along the very crest of lofty mountain ranges, and enjoy an elevation of from 1000 to 2000 feet above the intervening valleys. Often the mountains on whose heads the lakes are located are isolated, and there are no higher points within a radius of miles. Here is presented a paradox. "Water will not rise higher than the head." This is an ancient and very true saying; but the puzzling question is, from whence comes the waters which supply these bodies?

There is one lake which lies on the very crest of a mountain overlooking the Kettle river. This beautiful little sheet is not less than 1800 feet above the valley. There are no other mountains within a radius of leagues which are as high. This lake is fed by hidden springs. The outlet is also concealed. Its waters are pure, fresh and cold. Other lakes are similarly located.

However, in many instances, small streams flow into and out from these bodies. The huge mountains are largely composed of rock, and, almost invariably, the lakes are hemmed about with solid and high banks of stone. For this reason some of the lakes cannot be reached without difficulty and some danger. The lakes are located in the north half of the Colville Indian reservation, and the country is sparsely settled by the whites.

There is another peculiarity about these lakes. A few of them contain small trout, but most of them are fishless. Indians affirm that those which contain no fish have always been so. Still, for this, there may be a good reason. All these mountains are full of minerals, copper, iron and lime predominating. The water of many of the streams and springs emptying into the lakes is strongly impregnated with these minerals. This, of course, is unwholesome for fish.

Opposite the town of Bossburg and a few miles north of the Columbia river are located three pretty little lakes. They are probably 1500 feet above the river, and command a magnificent sweep of landscape. Into and out from these lovely bodies flow small brooks. The waters are clear and cold and free from any mineral impregnation.

Though the lakes are situated very near one another, there are no visible connections. Of course there may be subterranean connections.

So far as known the lakes have never contained any fish. Very recently an application was made to the proper department at Washington to have these three lakes stocked with trout. With this request the Government promptly complied. A few weeks ago about 8000 fish arrived at Bossburg and were soon set at liberty in these pure lakes. The number of fish were divided as nearly equal as possible.

The trout came directly from some Government hatchery in Colorado, and arrived in excellent condition. They were about an inch in length and very frisky little chaps. In a few years they will be large enough to grace a platter. However, the fish will be jealously guarded and protected by the game warden.

Efforts are being made to have the Government similarly stock a number of other lakes on the reservation.

Some ten or twelve years ago the Government stocked a number of large lakes through middle-eastern Washington with trout, black bass, carp and perch. These lakes now contain almost countless numbers of the several species.

This State is not exempt from the "game hog," and the wardens have seen to it that the close season has been strictly observed. During open seasons there have been no "records broken." The same vigilance will be observed by the officials regarding the lakes in the Colville reservation.

From recent reports it is evident that a good run of steelhead is on now in Russian river and that angling for these game coast stream fish will remain excellent until the rain will cause the river to rise and allow the fish to get over the riffles and proceed up stream. There has not been a really good fall fishing season for the angler on the river for about four years. A number of local anglers are at Duncan's Mills and vicinity at present, this contingent will be augmented by the arrival of others next week.

In past seasons the knowing anglers generally awaited the advent at the river banks of Al Wilson, Manuel Cross and W. R. McFarland—these three experts are thoroughly familiar with the stream and the ways of the steelhead. Wilson was fishing there this week and landed a number of large fish. The Wilson spoons, Nos. 2, 3 and 4, the red fly and a piece of shrimp and the double hook baited with salmon roe are the lures used.

Striped bass fishing has been somewhat dormant for several weeks past, but few fishermen have been forth troling for the game and well flavored salt water fish. Bass are still to be caught however—last Sunday Al Cumming troling in Petaluma creek landed three well sized fish and a party of anglers in another boat hooked five bass.

Local sportsmen have, with but few exceptions, for the past two weeks enjoyed excellent duck shooting. Reports from particularly the club preserves indicate that the favorable weather conditions have enabled shooters to get many limit bags. Two weeks ago spoonbills were plentiful on the Suisun marshes. This week the hunters have dropped more teal than any other variety. At several shooting resorts on the Suisun, notably the Pringle and Stewart ponds, canvasback ducks are very plentiful. On the new ponds and water sprig are found in fairly large numbers. The best bay shore shooting has prevailed on the eastern shores and arms of San Pablo bay, where the hunters have bagged hundreds of canvasback and bluebills.

These two varieties of the duck family can be seen daily on the surface of San Pablo bay and Richardson's bay in swarms of countless thousands. It is not an exaggeration to state that flocks a mile or over in length are to be seen at any time on these waters. Along the Alameda marshes, inland, spoonbills, teal and a few widgeon are the birds most frequently found. Along the east bay shore these birds are supplemented by "cans" and bluebills. The ruddy duck, wiretail or spatty as they are called, are exceedingly plentiful, very easy to shoot, and strange to say looked upon by most hunters as just about one peg better than a mud-hen. Years hence our shooters will be wiser.

English snipe are found in many patches and have lately afforded much sport.

Quail are still plentiful in many localities. Point Reyes and several other localities in Marin county, as well as the knolls and valleys in the vicinity of Niles canyon are still worth visiting for a day's quail shooting.

New York has a new law that California would do well to copy. It provides a penalty for the possession, for commercial purposes, of the skins or plumage of wild and song birds. The law would be still more commendable if it imposed a penalty for wearing bird plumage. As an evidence of the way American birds are being slaughtered for the adornment of hats, a writer in the Scientific American has this to say of the California vulture, a first cousin to the condor of the Andes:

That the bird is destined to extinction is evident from the fact that every collector or curiosity dealer has a standing offer for all the birds and eggs they can get. Thirty or forty years ago these birds were so common that it was not unusual for the Mexicans to catch them with a lariat, roping them after the vultures had gorged themselves with food.

Southern California today is undoubtedly the principal retreat for the great birds, which will be hunted in the winter from peak to valley, and from one live oak grove to another until they, too, have joined the majority.

The disappearance of this bird can be traced to different causes: First, the pot hunter, who goes forth to kill everything; second, the collectors, who sell their "game," from bluebirds to vultures, to curiosity dealers; third, poisoned meat set for coyotes and bears; and fourth, Mexican miners in Lower California, who, it is said, destroy the bird solely for the quills of their plumes in the hollow part of which they deposit gold dust.

The Boston Terrier bitch recently received by Woodlawn Kennels, whelped three puppies Thursday night, two dogs and a bitch. The little "beansters" are strong and robust and beautifully marked. The dam was sent here by Geo. Bell, of Toronto, and is a good one.

THE FARM.

Final Results of the Pan-American Tests.

The final figures for the six months' test of dairy breeds at the Pan-American Exposition show that the profits above feed costs made by the herds of the different breeds were as follows:

Guernsey.....	$230.10
Jersey.....	225.44
Ayrshire.....	217.68
Holstein.....	210.56
Red Polled.....	197.80
Brown Swiss.....	183.08
French Canadian.....	176.34
Shorthorn.....	172.84
Polled Jersey.....	169.44
Dutch Belted.....	116.94

There were five cows entered of each breed. The Polled Jerseys and Dutch Belted herds suffered under special disadvantages, so that the final results do these breeds some injustice.

Considered from the standpoint of the butter-producer the important point is the food cost per pound of the butter produced by each herd. This works out as follows:

Breed	Cents
Guernsey.....	9.3
Jersey.....	9.4
French Canadian.....	9.7
Ayrshire.....	9.8
Polled Jersey.....	9.8
Red Polled.....	10.0
Holstein.....	10.9
Brown Swiss.....	11.0
Dutch Belted.....	13.2

There were great differences in the performance of the cows in some of the breeds. The best Guernsey ate $29.16 worth of food and produced 354.26 pounds of butter. The poorest Guernsey ate $24.30 worth of food and produced 214.87 pounds of butter. The Holstein cow that made the least butter of any cow of that breed ate more food than the best Holstein. The same thing was true in the Brown Swiss and Shorthorn herds. The Holstein cows ate the most and the Shorthorns came next, while the Polled Jerseys ate the least. The Holsteins made the most butter of any breed, and if the value of the whole milk is figured instead of the value of the butter they made the largest aggregate profit.

When the total value of butter, milk solids and grain in weight are all taken into account the amount of profit made by each herd is as follows:

Holstein.....	$273.87
Ayrshires.....	242.52
Brown Swiss.....	213.63
Shorthorns.....	229.73
Guernseys.....	208.60
Red Polled.....	212.08
Jersey.....	207.19
French Canadian.....	191.40
Polled Jersey.....	153.63
Dutch Belted.....	154.94

As in the case of the butter, the real merit of each herd is determined, not by the aggregate profit made, but the relation the profit bears to the food consumed. Taking into account the value of all the milk solids, including butter, and the gain in weight, the percentage of profits made by each herd upon the cost of the food consumed runs as follows:

Ayrshire.....	173
French Canadian.....	168
Holstein.....	166
Red Polled.....	153
Guernseys.....	152
Jerseys.....	150
Brown Swiss.....	144
Shorthorn.....	141
Polled Jerseys.....	140

It will thus be seen that considered from the butter standpoint alone the Guernseys made the best showing; while taking everything into consideration, the Ayrshires came out ahead. From the standpoint of the dairyman who patronizes a creamery or cheese factory, the butter test is the one of principal importance. The test has been a notable demonstration of the superior value of the dairy breeds for dairy purposes. As economical butter-producers the Guernseys, Jerseys and Ayrshires have held the position in the front rank long assigned them. Of the dairy breeds of less prominence the French Canadians and Red Polls have demonstrated their rights to a high rank. For the production of milk, without regard to butter, the Holsteins took first place, a position which has long been accorded them.

A Satisfactory Silo.

I see a number of inquiries about cheap silo construction, of which the foundation seems to be a stumbling block. I have a silo which has been in use for eight years, and has always kept corn silage in good shape. The foundation was certainly no bother to me. It was made as follows: I started on a clay bottom having first scooped out the top soil, leaving the inside basin shaped then I put in ten good-sized white oak posts, putting them in the ground over three feet and let the top stick out three feet. On this foundation I put an eight-inch sill, spiking it firmly to posts. Then I took my 2x8 twenty-foot white oak studding and mortised them in the sill. The frame was 9x12½ feet on the inside, with square corners. I nailed rough boards on inside of studding, and on these put heavy tar roofing paper. (It cost $1.25 per square.) Then finished the inside with hard pine flooring, and weatherboarded the outside, as silo was built outside of barn.

A few days ago I examined the posts and studding and found them as sound as the day they were put in, but owing to a tenant leaving some rotten silage in silo all summer, I had to put in a new lining for three feet up from the floor. The silage rotted on account of rats getting in and working on the bottom some, which I will remedy now by putting cement in bottom. The balance of lining is sound, and it has never had a coat of paint or anything else. Silage has kept well every year from top to bottom, corners included, except the instance I mentioned in regard to rats. The pressure on sides pushed them out of plumb about four or five inches owing to the long studding, and I was afraid several times it would burst, as I learned later that the studding should be put up in seven and eight-foot sections; but outside of this defect and absence of cement on bottom, would build another exactly the same way, for it is cheap, easy to erect and keeps silage in good shape — E. W. Wilson in N. P. Farmer.

Plant Eucalyptus Trees.

Says the Williams Farmer: G. B. Harlan is preparing the ground to plant 300 eucalyptus trees on his place north of Williams. The eucalyptus is a very thrifty tree and will grow on any soil in the valley. They make an excellent wind break after a few years' growth, and when fully grown make the best of fuel wood. It is surprising that more of our farmers do not plant these trees, as they would greatly beautify the valley and enhance the value of every farm. In six years from now the question of wood will be a much more difficult and expensive problem than at the present time, and one or two acres planted to eucalyptus trees this winter would solve the question by providing an abundance of wood at the very door of the farmer.

Farmers, fruit growers, dairymen, and in fact all those interested in like pursuits, should receive the bulletins issued from time to time by the agricultural department of the State University. Write to the department at Berkeley, asking that your name be placed on the list, and the bulletins will be forwarded to you as fast as issued. There is much valuable information in these reports and as it is for the benefit of the farmers they should take advantage of this opportunity to keep informed.

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent
Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

The Horse. By Wm Youatt.

Together with a General History of the Horse and a Dissertation on the American Trotting Horse and an essay on the Ass and the Mule, by J. S. Skinner. With an engraving on steel and 58 illustrations on wood. Bound in full cloth. Size, 5¼ x 8½ inches.$1.15

THE HORSE IN THE STABLE AND IN THE FIELD

His management in health and disease. By J. H. Walsh, F. R. C. S. (Stonehenge). Illustrated with over 80 engravings from photographs. Handsomely bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.$1.15

DISEASES OF THE HORSE AND HOW TO TREAT THEM

By Robert Chawner.

New Edition and Concise Manual of Special Pathology for use of Horsemen, Farmers, Stock Raisers and Students of the Agricultural Colleges. Fully illustrated. Bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Cloth.$1.25

"It is an unpretending treatise free from technicalities, and well adapted for the use of farmers and stock raisers. The object of Dr. Chawner was to make a popular and reliable handbook in that department of veterinary science which treats of the horse and his diseases and in this object he has succeeded and supplied a practical want. There is no extraneous matter. Information is imparted with commendable brevity and in language plain and simple enough to be understood by all. The fallacies of the old school are rejected, and the treatment prescribed is that of modern practitioners."—Turf, Field and Farm.

THE AMERICAN GENTLEMAN'S STABLE GUIDE

The American Gentleman's Stable Guide, containing a description of the American Stable and Method of Feeding, Grooming and the general management of horses, together with the directions for the care of carriages, harness, etc. Fully illustrated. Pocket Edition. Size, 5 x 7 inches. Bound in cloth.$1.15

"The book contains a familiar description of the American stable, the most approved method of feeding, grooming and general management of horses, together with directions for the care of carriages, harness, etc. The whole is founded on the careful study and experience of many years of the author's life, and forms a valuable manual for any one who has charge of the noblest of man's irrational servants. Its low price and great value should give it general circulation among horsemen."—Indiana Farmer.

HOSRE BREEDING RECOLLECTIONS

By Count Lehendorff

The Manager of the Government Stud of Germany, who has made a special study of the intricacies of horse breeding, and in the volume before us embodies the result of years of careful study. While all may not agree with his conclusions, none will dispute the value of his observations. Size, 5¼ x 8½ inches. Bound in full cloth.$1.15

"The recital of his experiences and the suggestions which he furnishes will undoubtedly prove of value to all who are interested in equine matters. Everyone so interested ought to own a copy of this valuable vade mecum."

THE TROTTER HORSE OF AMERICA

How to Train and Drive Him, with Reminiscences of the Trotting Turf.

By Hiram Woodruff.

Edited by Charles J. Foster. Including an Introductory Notice by George Wilkes and a Biographical Sketch by the Editor. With a steel portrait of the author and six engravings on wood of celebrated trotters. 12mo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Cloth, extra.$1.25

"The author was one of the most noted horsemen of this country, and in the work before us has given to the public the best thoughts, and training of colts with a view to securing their best performances. Besides treating of driving horses, it gives a condensed history of the best horses in this country, with a mention of their best performances. It is invaluable in its suggestions to horse trainers, and its rules laid down and suggestions given are as good as the day they were written."

BOOK OF THE FARM Or the Handy Book of Husbandry

Containing Practical Information in regard to Buying or Leasing a Farm; Fences and Farm Buildings, Farming Implements, Drainage, Plowing, Subsoiling, Manuring, Rotation of Crops, Care and Medical Treatment of the Cattle, Horses, Sheep, Swine and Poultry; Management of the Dairy; Useful Tables, etc. By George E. Waring Jr. of Ogden Farm, author of "Draining For Profit and For Health," etc.

New edition, thoroughly revised by the author. With 100 illustrations. 12mo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. 542 pages. Cloth, extra.$1.25

"The farmer who wants to succeed in these days of busy competition must do his farming in the most intelligent manner, and realize that the cultivation of the earth is a science as well as an industry. No farmer ought to be without this book, for it contains much that every farmer and his family need to know. It tells about buying a farm and gives ample directions about buildings, improvements and everything pertaining to the crops, the farm animals and the management of the business."—Sunday Magazine.

Holiday Racing at Redding.

The following delayed account of racing held at Redding, Shasta county, in this State, on the 23d, 24th and 25th of December, reached us this week:

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The meeting held here during Christmas week was a decided success, both financially and otherwise. The racing was good, the betting lively and some of the races were hotly contested.

The first day, Monday, December 24th, the quarter-mile dash was won by Tom Lafoon's Frenchy Stone in 0:23½ and 0:24, and the same owner's mare Haidee won the half-mile dash in 0:49½. The trotting and pacing race for the 2:40 class was between Kinney Mac, owned by Douglas Cone, of Red Bluff, and E. C. Wilkes, owned and driven by James Cummings, of Redding. Kinney Mac won in straight heats in 2:40 and 2:41.

The second day there was a 2:30 trotting and pacing event between Kinney Mac and Billy Anderson, the latter entered and driven by William Brown, of Red Bluff. The race was won by Kinney Mac in 2:48 and 2:48½ without effort. As Billy Anderson was no match for Kinney Mac and all desired to see the latter horse extended, the racing committee asked the veteran driver L. E. Rowley to give them an exhibition mile. The colt is but four years old, and the track at Redding is very heavy and slow, but Mr. Rowley brought him out and Kinney Mac was sent off with a saddle horse to accompany him as a prompter. The saddle horse proved to be rather too slow to be of any benefit, but the colt stepped the mile in 2:21 very handily and at no time did he seem to be fully extended. He has no record faster than 2:40, which he made on the first day of this meeting, and the horse-men here all predict that if he is taken through the circuit this year he will prove himself a worthy son of the great McKinney. He is a beautiful brown, stands 15.2, weighs 1050 pounds and is the image of that great horse Zombro 2:11 by the same sire.

Christmas Day being a general holiday and the last day of the races, the stores were all closed and Redding turned out en masse. The feature of the day was the free for all pacing and trotting race. There were three entries—Deacon, entered by William Brown, Ruby J., entered by F. N. Frany, and Kinney Mac, entered by L. E. Rowley, all of Red Bluff. Kinney Mac was drawn and the contest was between the other two. Deacon had been through the California circuit of 1901, and gained a record of 2:23. Ruby J. is an old livery mare eleven years old and was taken out of the livery stable only eight days before the race, so it was thought she stood no chance of winning, but the little mare showed she had speed and gameness still, as she won as she pleased in straight heats, the time being 2:27 and 2:22½. The first running race of the day was a five-eighths dash, between John L., Geraldine, Buckhorn and Haidee. Geraldine won in 1:03. The last race was a three-quarter mile dash in which but two horses started, Reason, owned by Smith of Red Bluff, and Sky Blue, owned by Harry Winsley of Redding. Reason won easily in 1:16. The racing was well conducted throughout and those who attended were greatly pleased. SUBSCRIBER.

Matinee Driving American Sport.

In a recent number of the Cleveland Plaindealer, H. K. Devereux writes the following:

"Brilliant as has been the success of our local driving the past seven years, the promise for 1902 is even for greater things. People have become educated to matinee racing and they like it. A Saturday afternoon in the spacious and cool grand stand at Glenville track with good music to listen to, good friends to talk to and exciting and interesting contests to watch, make up a summer afternoon's entertainment and pleasure that thousands of our good citizens have learned to anticipate. This free and delightful entertainment is made possible on account of the interest in the sport and love of the horse shown by so many of our prominent men of means, and their good sportsmanship and generosity. Cleveland, too, is peculiarly adapted to the success of such an enterprise as this driving club. We have always been what might be termed a horsey city and our particular pet has always been the very best American product in this line—the American trotter. This has resulted somewhat from the fact that Ohio has always stood in front as one of the States that has given much attention to breeding and raising good horses, and then, too, we are very near the blue grass country of Kentucky—the very center of the horse breeding industry. The fashion and love for driving a fast horse was made many years ago by the most prominent men of this then small city and we have followed in their footsteps. Driving a fast horse is a sport purely American, and no spot in the United States is more truly American in the habits and tastes of its residents than the Western Reserve. Our track has always been among the foremost in the country; conceived and handled as it was and has been by the most prominent men of affairs in the city, it has always been well managed and patronized by the best element and Cleveland has always stood as a synonym among horsemen as a place for honest racing and sensational time.

"Our driving club built on such foundation is naturally successful. We started seven years ago to make world's records and we are still maintaining our position, though following our lead, competition by clubs in other cities is getting very keen. In this seven years there have sprung into existence perhaps 150 driving or matinee clubs that control probably nearly 5000 fast trotters and pacers. This means the interest of many thousand men as owners and thousands more men and women as interested spectators, and this is only the beginning. What this influence may grow to be is hardly conceivable. The 'horseless age' is a myth, the 'horsey age' a reality. Our local club, strong in numbers and quality of men, well supplied with fast horses, will make the coming season one of more interest than any past. One man I know of has commissions from seven or eight different men to buy them something good at prices ranging anywhere from $2000 up to an unlimited amount. One of our members offered $25,000 for a mare last season. A horse sold in New York recently for $10,500 and the purchaser remarked that if he could bring the horse to Cleveland next fall and win the championship challenge trophy he would be satisfied if the horse then died. Another man on refusing an offer of $10,000 for his horse remarked that his horse was for sale at no price, for he was to be prepared and pointed for an effort to win this challenge trophy and that he would consider it cheap if it cost him $2000.

"It has been said that a man offered over $50,000 for the great Cresceus last summer in order that he might win this cup. Already many men of Boston, New York, Chicago, Pittsburg and other cities are planning to come to Cleveland next September for that cup. They may take it away from Cleveland, but if fates are kind to us they will have to come with the best kind of tools, for they will get a horse race, and it looks as if the world's wagon record might take a tumble."

Sacramento Driving Club.

[Record Union, Jan. 2]

The matinees of the Sacramento Driving Club, the first of which for the season of 1902 will probably be given in April, will prove attractive for all lovers of speedy roadsters. The club, which was organized last fall, is in a healthy condition financially, and the best of feeling exists among the members, each of whom hopes to astonish the others with the speed of his favorite at the first meet. The Driving Club just now is resting. Many of the fast horses are out on grass, and no dues will be collected during the first three months of the new year.

The club will use its best efforts to induce the Supervisors, and especially Mr. Brooke, to oil the road from the County Hospital north to the Lake House, which would give a beautiful stretch of five miles. The road, the members of the club say, will be easily graded, and after the oil shall have been applied there will be plenty of space for an excellent speedway. With a compact, oiled track, heavy wagons will not take the speedway, and the buggies will keep to the sides. It is understood that a committee will wait on the Supervisors at the proper time and request that the improvement be made.

"Albert Elkus will likely come out in the spring with a new fast one," said a member of the club to a Record-Union reporter yesterday, "and Harry Bell may also be in line with a speedy one that nobody knows anything about. Hugh Casey, if reports are correct, has two good ones hidden away, and he may be able to catch some of the boys. In fact, every member of the club has his eyes about him with the hope of buying a good one that will show the bunch his heels.

"Vet Tryon, during his last trip East, bought a new bay pacer for George Clark. The colt has a record of 2:20, and the Mayor will have a place in the front rank.

"Frank Wright's Pearl Sinclair and Baby Button are turned out, and they ought to come up good in the spring. Wright is now driving J. E. Terry's mare Margaretta. The mare's record is 2:12½.

"Homer Buckman is now driving the sorrel stallion Fashion, owned by another member of the club, and C. W. Paine drives Peo, who is showing well and footing fast.

"Joe Bowers drives Silver Bee, and declines to take the dust of the best of them. Silver Bee, it is understood, is showing good form and may be expected to set a fast clip when the season matinees open.

"S. L. Upson's mare Regina F. is resting, and Billy Irwin's big sorrel horse is at Lodi in charge of Tom Holmes.

"Frank Wright has a promising colt out of Upson's mare Regina F. by Knight, sire of Anaconda. He will bring the youngster out in the spring.

"John Batchelor's horse Captain Hackett is going very fast, and will make some of the good ones step out to head him.

"William Trust's Candy Joe is out on grass, and Dr. Weldon's Elevator is turned out at Galt. Frank Ruhstaller's Monroe B. and Hanrahan's Gray Ghost are both out for the winter."

Facts About a Great Stallion.

Early speed is natural speed, and natural speed is inherited speed. The highest test of early race horse speed is ability to win the Kentucky Futurities. The best bred mares in the country are annually entered for these great yearly events, and the colt that wins must be of the highest class. The special cross that recurs with more frequency in the Kentucky Futurity winners than any other is that of Baron Wilkes.

His son, Oakland Baron 2:09½, won the three year Futurity in 1895.

China Silk 2:16½, out of his daughter, won the two year Futurity of 1896.

Fereno 2:10½, by a son, won the two year Futurity of 1899.

Extasy, his daughter won second money in the three year Futurity at the same meeting.

Fereno 2:10½, by a son, won the three year Futurity of 1900.

Peter Stirling 2:11½, by a son, won the three year Futurity of 1901.

Oxford Boy (2) 2:20, winner of the two year Futurity of 1901, has daughters of Baron Wilkes for both grandams.

At seven meetings the blood of Baron Wilkes is first six times, and second once when pitted against the greatest young trotters in the world. In the first, second and third generations, it is first to the wire against all comers. Can there be better evidence of its value in producing and reproducing early winning speed of the right kind than this?

Baron Wilkes has been recognized for years as the leading money-winning sire, and this fact is reflected in his 2:15 list. He and Onward lead with the same number of trotters and pacers that have records of 2:15 or faster. But no family has reproduced Futurity winners with the unerring certainty which distinguishes that of Baron Wilkes.

His fastest trotter and largest money winner is Oakland Baron 2:09½. This horse stands out prominently as his best racing son, for he was a winner in his two, three and five year old form. At two years he trotted to a record of 2:14½, extreme natural speed, and after this supreme effort stayed sound and good enough to win $25,000 in races. What other stallion has done as well?

Oakland Baron is a brown horse, sixteen hands high, of the greatest stamina and of powerful muscular development. Its family is noted for its good bone, but he has the one grand requisite in a stock horse many of the family lack, and that is size. This probably comes to him through his dam, Lady Mackay, daughter of Fleetwing (dam of Stamboul 2:07½, Ruby 2:19½, etc.), a daughter of Hambletonian 10. Fleetwing's descendants run large, as a rule, and a cross to The Moor, through Lady Mackay and Silver Threads, has a tendency to maintain the size and speed both. Lady Mackay is bred much the same as Stamboul 2:07½, the great sire, race horse and show winner. Both are from the same dam, and by sons of The Moor. The pedigree of Oakland Baron is a fine example of what may be termed alternate line-breeding. Starting with his fourth dam by Abdallah, there is an outcross to George M. Patchen, brought in to Hambletonian, out again to Silver Threads and The Moor, then back to the original line through Baron Wilkes, three times to the Abdallah, and twice out to the Clay lines. It is a happy combination, keeping alive the size, speed and constitutional vigor of the families, and resulting in the highest type of harness race horse, as instanced by Oakland Baron. His stud career has started auspiciously, for from his early foals have already come Dreamer (3) 2:14½, Lucie May 2:22½ and Oakland Pilot 2:29.

Oakland Baron heads the Penn Valley dispersal sale at the midwinter January auction in Madison Square Garden, and it will be well for breeders who wish to raise stake winners and the best type of good sized, fast and fine looking, light harness horses to weigh well the claims of this stallion, and consider the facts that are here presented. No stallion lives or ever has lived of more prospective value.

American Stallions in Russia.

In a letter to a friend in this country Frank Starr, who is training horses at St. Petersburg, says there are twenty-five American stallions in the stud in Russia. Among them are such well known trotters as Baron Rogers 2:09½, formerly owned by J. Malcolm Forbes; Bayreuth 2:20½ formerly driven on the road in New York by Thomas Lynch, Jr.; Nominee 2:17½, from the Empire City Stud of William Simpson; Edgar 2:16½; Alvin 2:11; Orlund L. 2:16½; Winterset 2:24½; Good Gift 2:28; Wilkesdale 2:29; Quarter Cousin 2:23½, and Harlo 2:23½.

A well bred stallion, full brother to Listerine 2:13½, is offered for sale by Geo. Warlow, of Fresno. This horse has two crosses to Onward, the most successful sire of 1902 as regards race winners. He is by Athadon, that held the yearling champion record of 2:27 in 1891, and is out of an Onward mare that has produced two fast performers. He is a three year old and very promising. See advertisement in this issue for full pedigree.

A New Zealand Starting Machine.

Handicapping trotters and pacers is successfully done in Europe and Australia but has never yet been satisfactorily accomplished in this country, the home of the trotting horse and the cradle of harness racing. The reason is that the foreigners are willing to accept a start from a standstill, while American owners and trainers insist on their horses being in motion and "on their stride." A majority of the trotting races in New Zealand, where trotting is receiving much attention in recent years, are handicaps and the horses start on a time handicap. The horse considered the slowest is sent away first, the next horse a certain number of seconds later and so on. Horses handicapped in the same notch get the word together. The usual custom in that country has been to have the starter hold a watch and sound a gong for the horses to start by, positions having been drawn and the horses lined up with the horse to be first started at the pole. As the bell rings for each one he starts from a standstill, and the training of a trotter in New Zealand therefore includes teaching him to stand quietly and get away quickly and on a trot when called upon, which accounts for the large number of well-mannered horses seen on the tracks there. The New Zealanders are thoroughly up to date in racing affairs, and many devices that tend to make racing popular with the public have originated in that country.

On our first page to-day, a new machine for starting trotting and pacing races is shown. This is the invention of Mr. A. Commetti, of Petone, and was used for the first time at the Wellington meeting last November. As will be seen from the engraving the machine has something the appearance of the jockey boards in use on American tracks and contains in their proper order the numbers worn by the horses to start. It works by a clock device and can be set to start any number of horses that may be handicapped. When the horses are lined up, the machine is set going and the gong sounds for the first horse to get away. When the required number of seconds have elapsed another sound of the gong gives the signal for the second horse and after the proper interval the third horse is dispatched in a like manner and so on, the gong sounding automatically at absolutely correct intervals. It is said that the trial of the machine at Wellington was very successful.

Agents Are Too Greedy.

The fact that the agents of the British Government are now making the rounds of the various running tracks buying up broken-down thoroughbreds gives some idea of the difficulty which these agents are having in securing the necessary horses for the prosecution of the war in South Africa.—Exchange.

The British agents and their sub-agents are not having as great difficulty in securing suitable horses as most people imagine. In the system of "graft" which prevails whenever supplies of any sort are to be purchased for the use of armies, a fair price for a fair horse is seldom paid to the breeder or horse owner. There are so many "cuts" to be taken out of the prices paid by the government before the money reaches the original owner that he is loth to part with his stock for the very small prices offered him. For horses which the British Government pays $125, the original owners get about $50 or perhaps not more than $40, so that it is no wonder there is great difficulty experienced by the agents in securing a supply. Broken-down thoroughbreds (geldings, especially) can be purchased from $10 to $25 per head, and the foisting of these animals onto an army is ridiculous, as they are totally unsuited to the requirements of war, while their ailments are nearly always in the legs and feet, making them unfit to travel great distances or carry weight. The British Government could get all the horses necessary in the United States if its agents would pay a fair market price for good horses, but so long as they insist on making from one hundred to two hundred per cent. profit on every horse sold, the shortage will exist and the South African army will be mounted on broken-down horses or any old thing.

Breed Draft Horses.

Draft horse breeding has a hold upon the farmers never before equaled. It has come to be the substantial business side of horse breeding, best adapted to the farm with the market demand greater than the supply and consequent advance in prices. There has never been such an opportunity for horse breeding. The whole world wants good draft horses. Exporters are unable to secure one half as many as they want, and despite automobiles and electric cars our great commercial prosperity is eager for more big draft horses with vim, beauty and action for which a big premium is paid above ordinary prices. This should encourage farmers to breed vigorously for the top. Secure the very best high grade and pure bred draft mares and breed to the very best sires then bend every energy to develop these colts by vigilant care and abundant feed.

Occident and Stanford Stakes.

Secretary Geo. W. Jackson of the California State Agricultural Society sends us the following list of payments made on January 2d for the Occident and Stanford Stakes.

There are 29 third payments of $10 in the Stanford Stake of 1902 against 23 third payments made in this stake of 1901.

The Occident Stake of 1902 has 32 payments of $25 each against 25 in the stake of 1901.

The Occident Stake of 1903 has 66 second payments against 59 made in the stake of 1902.

These payments show a healthy increase in trotting horse interests in California. The payments made are as follows:

England's Lack of Horses.

An English paper, speaking of the lack of horses for army purposes in that country, says:

Not until the eleventh hour has our army in South Africa been horsed in a way to enable it to execute its work in an efficient manner. After the occupation of Bloemfontein, Lord Roberts paused perforce for nearly two months while his army was being rehorsed. Again, after he had driven the Boers before him to Pretoria, he had to wait from June 5th until the last week in July before he was in a position to advance on Middelburg, and in the interval the Boers, gaining confidence, inflicted on us the disaster of Nitrals Nek, not to speak of their successive and too often successful swoops on our line of communications. But it is unnecessary to go through the whole list of "unfortunate incidents." The difficulties experienced in bringing about the end of the war are present in all our minds, and the same cause, the want of horses, is at the root of them all. The truth is, our establishment has always been starved. In peace, the "effective" of horses amounts to something short of 19,000, against the 45,000 of Italy, the 78,000 of Austria, the 125,000 of Germany, the 140,000 of Russia and the 143,000 of France. In times of war our South African experiences have demonstrated it to be an unknown quantity. Other European nations, on the other hand, have special means of ascertaining, and have made special provisions for similar emergencies. But the facts and figures may be left to speak for themselves.

In peace time our home army requires between 18,000 and 19,000 horses. We purchase about 1600 horses a year, and there are two remount departments at Woolwich and Dublin. By the National Defence Act of 1888, Government was empowered to purchase or hire animals required whenever an order for the embodiment of the militia should be in force. A system of registration which was introduced provides for the registration of between 14,000 and 15,000 reserve horses, at a fee of 10s. a horse. Some 10,000 of these are draught horses; the rest are fitted for riding. And this is practically the only provision England makes for putting her mounted forces or her transport on a war footing. How we should bear the strain of a war in which we could not buy and import horses from other countries perhaps nobody would like to say.

Working Up a Circuit.

There is no more enthusiastic admirer of the trotting horse as a pleasure animal than Mr. E. C. Peart, one of the leading merchants of Colusa in this State. Mr. Peart always takes an active interest in the local fairs and speed contests and owns quite a number of broodmares and promising colts. As one of the directors of the local district fair association, he is very anxious that a circuit should be formed by the associations north of Sacramento and a series of fairs and race meetings given this year. On the first of the year Mr. Peart addressed the following circular to the Secretaries and Directors of the different agricultural districts in that portion of the State:

COLUSA (Cal.), Jan. 2, 1902.

Dear Sir:—Does your association contemplate holding a district fair at ——— during this summer? I believe your county has quite a State appropriation. Would it not be a good idea for each of the northern counties to call a meeting at some central point to discuss this subject and arrange dates, etc.?

If we expect to hold fairs the earlier we move in the matter the better and by co-operating we can have the same class races, same size purses, etc., at each place. This will be an inducement for horse owners to enter all along the line.

I would be pleased to hear from you at an early date.
Yours truly,
E. C. PEART.

There would be no trouble in arranging three or four good circuits in California this year if there was one director in each district who had as much interest in the matter and half as much energy as Mr. Peart possesses. We hope he will get many responses to his suggestion and that the Northern California circuit will be organized and announcements made within a few weeks. The districts comprising it are among the richest farming and stock breeding portions of California.

Electioneer and Wilkes.

There were eleven new additions to the 2:10 trotting list during the past season, and strangely enough five trace to George Wilkes and five to Electioneer, as follows:

WILKES.	ELECTIONEER.
Chain Shot.....2:06½	Dolly Dillon.....2:07
Onward Silver.....2:08	Janice.....2:08½
Dolly Bidwell.....2:09	Eleata (4).....2:08½
Cornelia Belle.....2:10	Cornelia Belle.....2:10
Dr. Book.....2:19	Captor.....2:09¼

The two that have neither Electioneer nor Wilkes are May Allen 2:09½ and All Right 2:09½.

The speed average of the Wilkes and Electioneer divisions are each under 2:09, with a fractional advantage to the former. The Electioneer is, however, the younger class, and neither Eleata nor Captor had any record prior to 1901.

All these trotters raced through the Grand Circuit. The total earnings of the Wilkes quintette were $22,865, an average of $4873, and of the Electioneers $28,975, an average of $5795 each. May Allen's earnings in the Grand Circuit were $3750 and All Right's $2120. Eleata, the youngest trotter in the lot, was the largest money winner of the year, having earned $17,925 in seven races. She combines Kentucky Prince, Dexter and Electioneer blood.

The value of this table consists in showing the preponderance of extreme speed and money earning capacity to be in the two great lines of Electioneer and Wilkes, as against all the other strains of trotting blood.—Exchange.

Get ready for the meetings of 1902

The Los Angeles Driving Club will hold matinee racing on Saturday, January 25th.

Memphis will have a spring meeting that will equal in importance any of the big Western meets.

The last quarter of a mile which Cresceus trotted in 2:07½ at Dallas, Texas, on New Year's Day, was made in 29½ seconds.

John Sawyer is working ten head of trotters and pacers at the Seattle track which he pronounces one of the best in the country.

Will Hogoboom has about a dozen horses in his string at Walla Walla. His stallion Lynmont will make a good season there this year.

A Lexington horseman is in receipt of information that leads him to believe Peter Stirling 2:11½ will again be in J. B. Chandler's stable in 1902.

Boralma divides honors for the record for four year old trotting geldings, 2:08, with John Nolan, and for five year olds, 2:07, with Lord Derby.

Charles Marvin, the veteran trainer and driver, has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., where he will spend several weeks under treatment for rheumatism.

Captor is in a class by himself in one respect. He is the only 2:10 trotter that ever won a race in straight heats, with each trotted in precisely the same notch—2:09½.

Daniel Lambert was the most successful broodmare sire that ever stood in New England. His daughters have produced close to 100 that have taken records of 2:30 or better.

Dr. Sphinx, by Sphinx, out of Miss Dickey by Pilot Medium, is the sire of the colt Tullnerprinz that recently won a stake of 10,000 francs for two year old trotters in Italy.

The inbred Cresceus yearling, owned by R. H. Plant and now at Walnut Hall (Stock Farm), has been nicely broken to harness, and the caretakers say he trots most attractively.

Charley Doble is wintering a string of horses at Binghamton, New York. In the string are the California bred horses, Thompson 2:14½ by Boodle and Connie 2:15½ by Ketchum.

The stallion Erosmont by Eros is in training at Lodi and will be given a record this year. He has taken to pacing and the third time he had the hobbles on paced a mile in 2:31½, last half in 1:14.

It is probable that Thornway will be trained and raced by the veteran Orrin A. Hickok this year. This colt is one of the fastest pacers in America to-day and with luck ought to be in the 2:04 list before fall.

Neva Simmons 2:11½ has been consigned to Woodard & Shanklin's February auction. She was a useful mare on the turf last season, and under the skillful handling of T. W. Price was among the best money winners of 1901.

Andy Welch is planning a $10,000 race for trotters at the Grand Circuit meeting at Cincinnati this year. Mr. Welch has not as yet determined upon the class of the race, but will make it so as to bring to the post as large a number of high class trotters as possible.

Several of our Eastern exchanges are referring to the mare Sweet Marie, by McKinney, as a pacer. She is as square a trotter as ever wore harness and when she trotted two heats in a matinee race in 2:14, and in another walked over in 2:13½, she never lifted her head.

See the list of Palo Alto broodmares in our advertising columns that are to be sold at auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange January 30th. They are all grandly bred and in foal to some of the best stallions in California. This is a great opportunity for buyers.

The twelve year old mare Bell Bird 2:22, a daughter of Electioneer and the great Beautiful Bells is among the mares to be sold at the Palo Alto auction sale in this city on the 30th inst. She is in foal to Iran Alto 2:12½. What a great mare she should be to breed to a good Wilkes stallion. How much will she bring?

Santa Rosa Stock Farm reports the arrival last Tuesday of a bay filly by Iran Alto 2:12½ out of Yedra by Nutwood, therefore a full sister to Thos. R. 2:15, the champion four year old trotting gelding of 1901, and the largest money winner of the trotters that were campaigned in California last year. She is also a half sister to Lynda Oak 2:18½, the greatest producing daughter of Guy Wilkes. Yedra cost Messrs. Pierce Bros. but $200 at the Vendome sale last month and it will take a good deal more than that to purchase this filly, as they are very proud of her.

John Phippen called on us last week prior to leaving for Dallas, Texas, where he is engaged in training the young Electrites on the farm of Major Exall. Mr. Phippen has just finished his annual visit to his family and relatives in California and expects to return next year to remain here.

It is announced that Geo. Spear will race Lord Derby next year for his new owner, E. E. Smathers, of New York. Spear has now in hand for next season: Sphinx S. 2:08½, Iva Dee 2:12½, Coxey 2:13, Alice Barnes 2:11½, Queen Wilkes, trial, 2:15, and several other good green ones.

Harry Wilkes 2:13½, the fastest son of the great George Wilkes, is still living at the advanced age of twenty-five years, and is often driven by his owner, Senator W. J. Keyes, of New Jersey. The old hero is full of vim, looks as fine as silk, and is said to be able to display quite a bit of his old time speed.

Sandy Smith left town last Tuesday for the Aptos Stock Farm, where he will pull his coat for the first time since he got back from the Grand Circuit last fall and go to work on the horses to be sent to the Cleveland sale in May. Sandy was smiling when he left as if the idea of working was very pleasing to him.

C. W. Williams will again send his five great stallions to Lexington, Ky., in 1902. Allerton 2:09½ at fifteen years old has ninety-one standard performers to his credit, a showing never before equalled by a stallion of the same age. He has this year added eight performers to the 2:20 list, and is the sire of six with records of 2:10½ and better.

The Kentucky Stock Farm is in receipt of reliable information to the effect that Beauseant, brother to Boreal 2:15½, Terrace Queen 2:09½, Velvet Rose, Elegance and Nysa, owned by J. C. McKinney, Titusville, Pa., will be trained at Memphis, at which place they are expected to arrive about the first of February. Beauseant only started once the past season, but failed to get a mark. Lee Shaffer will train these horses.

Within the last two years a half dozen or more of New York's wealthy men have purchased farms near that city and stocked them with trotting bred horses. More attention is being paid to the American trotter now than ever, and although several big breeding farms have been discontinued owing to the death of owners or other causes, more breeding will be done this year than ever before and a much better class of horses will be bred.

The government has issued a proclamation directing the exclusion of horses and cattle from the Philippine islands. Agents of the bureau of animal industry have found after careful investigation that the horses of those islands are afflicted with surra, a disease contracted by our army horses sent to China from those of the Indian regiment serving in that campaign in the British army. The cattle have the rinderpest, which is considered the worst of all diseases among ruminants.

Perhaps 2:08, known to Californians as the ringer Walter K., is showing all his old time speed over the New York speedway. He is forever barred from appearing in races again, and is now owned by a gentleman who only cares to use him as a pleasure horse. It is said he can show quarters in 30 seconds to wagon and that he holds his own when just right with the best of the many high priced trotters and pacers that are driven over New York's famous drive.

W. D. Althouse of Phoenixville, Pa., who owns William Penn 2:07½, and who has quite an extensive breeding establishment, has bought to cross his fillies by William Penn the royally bred colt, Pearl Finder by Directum 2:05½, dam Rose Croix 2:11½ by Jay Bird. Both the sire and dam of Pearl Finder were crack three year olds, Directum being the champion racing colt of that age and Rose Croix won the Kentucky Futurity in 1896. If breeding counts, the Pennsylvania breeder has got a great young horse.

Scott Hudson will campaign a great string of trotters and pacers in 1902. Audubon Boy 2:06, Don Riley 2:16½ and Hawthorne (3) 2:13 will of course be included. Kanawha Star 2:14½, a pacing son of Earl Medium, will be with this stable next season. Baron Bell 2:18½ by Baron Wilkes has also been added to the string. Other members of the stable are The Grazer 2:10; Grace Arlington, trial 2:13½; Cash Jr. 2:20, trial 2:14; Tertimin (3), trial 2:08; Orin B., trial 2:08½; Bonnie Baron, trial 2:27½, by Baron Rogers, and several others.

The price actually offered by W. L. Snow, the Hornellsville, New York, trainer, for Zolock 2:10½ while in this State, was $10,000, and it was made after Mr. Davies, owner of Zolock, had refused a previous offer of $7500. Mr. Snow was acting for Mr. A. H. Miller, a capitalist of Buffalo, New York, who is a relative of C. A. Winship of Los Angeles. Mr. Miller owns Gazelle 2:11½, the dam of Zolock. It is Mr. Davies' intention to campaign his stallion through the Grand Circuit this year and he states to all parties who ask for a price on the horse that he is not for sale.

Notice has been given by the proper authorities that there will be no suppressing of time this year at Overland Park, Denver. Heretofore horsemen have on a few occasions requested the time-keepers at Denver to add on a few seconds if very fast time was made in order to keep the horse in slower classes than the speed shown justified, and the requests have often been granted. Denver is not the only place this is done, as those who follow the races know. This year, the management of the Denver association propose that every horse shall get the record he actually makes and if he trots or paces in 2:10 flat no fractions will be put on to keep him in the next slower class. There will be a fair field but no favors.

If the Orloff trotters improve as much in speed in the next five years as they have in the past five, the American trotter is likely to have a competitor in Europe. An American trainer in Russia says that the Orloffs are breaking the record at every Russian meeting, and that the championship mark is now down to 2:14½.—Chicago Horseman.

There are three year olds and three year olds, but there have never been many Ferenos. Her fastest heat in the Futurity was won in 2:10½, and the handy manner in which she accomplished the task stamped her as a very great filly. Her equal was not out in 1901, Peter Stirling being the nearest approach to one of her quality. Before going into winter quarters this year Ferenos trotted a trial mile better than 2:10, and is to-day as sound as she was before she had ever raced. Nobody need be surprised if she trots to Fantasy's record before retiring permanently from the turf. She and Walnut Hall will be in Benyon's string next season along with a bunch of good ones believed to possess stake qualities.—Ky. Stock Farm.

Lilly Mack 2:24½, a mare bred by P. M. Rush, of Novato, in this State, and sold to A. N. Burrill, of Bangor, Maine, about ten years ago, is the dam of a pacer in the 2:20 list. Lilly Mack was by Auctioneer Johnny out of a mare called Old Sue, whose pedigree was never traced. After she was taken to Maine she trotted to her present record in 1893, when she was nine years old, but was very erratic and for that reason was put into the breeding ranks. She was bred to Donum 2:16½, a son of the Maine champion Nelson 2:09 and produced a bay colt that was named Salinas that took a record last year of 2:22 and has reduced it this year to 2:17½. It is said that Salinas is very fast, but rather uncertain like his dam, being one of the over anxious sort. He has never worn hobbles, and it is predicted he can get a mark of 2:10 if the Indiana pajamas are put on him.

At the recent Chicago Horse Show, in a class for road pairs, there were shown two trotters, hooked together, that excited no particular interest among the spectators yet did arouse a lot of comment among the horsemen present who know about the affairs of the harness turf. The horses were Captor 2:09½ and Dr. Book 2:10, both creditable performers on the Grand Circuit the season just past. They were placed third, just about where those who knew them expected they would land. The reason was plain. Neither has ever had any schooling for the show ring. While both acted like perfect gentlemen and while they were well driven they failed to show the vim and buoyancy that is demanded. They could step at what is a mere jog for them and fairly run over the winners, even when the latter were hustled along, and they showed budding ability at team work. But inexperience and low flesh were against them. One of these days, if all goes well, they will be apt to make all other trotting teams "go way back and sit down." They are the fastest trotters, by the records, ever shown as a pair in any show ring.—Coach and Saddle.

The recent death, by the burning of a stable, of the mare Ella T. 2:08½, daughter of the old stallion Altamont, solves the mystery of the gray ghost that went round the New England half-mile tracks last year and the year before winning an occasional race and appearing under a new name as occasion required. Ella T. and her owner, J. B. Hall, were expelled for ringing two seasons ago. A year ago turfmen attending the New England half-mile circuit races remember a gray pacing mare at first entered in the 2:24 pacing races and later in the 2:19 and 2:20 classes. She was entered under the name of Maggie B., by Brockton, and was said to be a mare that J. J. Quinn of Worcester bought at a sale there a year before and afterward sold and lost track of. The mare went the round of the half mile tracks, occasionally taking the money. She was looked upon with suspicion during the time that she was raced, and was protested, with a request that her identification be made. When Mr. Quinn made affidavit that he had purchased the animal at a sale the matter was cleared up for a time. After her ringing career, a year ago, Maggie B. was taken into Vermont and bred to Alcander, and a few weeks ago was shipped to Clinton, where she was caught in the fire.

Joe Smith has taken up a half dozen or so young trotters and pacers and is jogging them into shape at the Vallejo track, which is one of the best winter tracks in the State. He has two three year olds by Geo. Washington 2:16½ that are large, fine looking colts of much promise. Both are entered in the Occident Stake this year. He also has a two year old Washington entered in the Occident for 1903 that is already showing well. It was a great pity that the sire of these colts died so young, as the progeny left by him are in every instance big, strong, well boned and muscular, with extra good looks and speed. Mr. Smith has a two year old by McKinney 2:11½ that is a full brother to the fast colt Tom Smith, and is as promising a young trotter. He was sold a few weeks ago to James A. Smith of Vallejo for $600 and will be trained. Another of Joe Smith's string is a two year old by Mambrino Chief Jr. The mare Trilby 2:23½ by Mambrino Chief Jr. that he campaigned last year is in foal to Baywood 2:10½, but will be trained again this year in all probability. She got her record when quite heavy with foal and after but eight weeks' work, and is one of the most promising trotters in California. Another prospective trotter that will be worked this year is a six year old gelding by Geo. Washington out of Economy by Echo. He was bred by the late By Holly and purchased from his estate recently by Mr. Thos. Smith, who believes he will be a fast horse. Vallejo will give a fair this year and will very likely select a date either just before or just after the Napa meeting.

San Francisco, Saturday, January 11, 1902.

DIRECTORS OF THE BREEDERS ASSOCIATION will meet at the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN during the week of January 20th, and at that meeting a date for the Summer meeting of the association will be selected and some big early closing purses announced for the slow classes. This will be good news for harness horse owners and trainers, and will start the harness racing season of 1902 in California off in good shape. Many district associations are getting ready to announce dates and purses also by February 1st. Horsemen can make calculations on plenty of harness races for good purses this year.

IT IS OF THE UTMOST IMPORTANCE that the District Boards of Agriculture intending to give a race meeting this year should make a public announcement to that effect at the earliest possible date. The reason that there were so few horses on the circuit last year was because the Associations in California waited too long before declaring their intentions of giving meetings, and many owners, being in doubt as to whether or not they would have racing enough to warrant the expense, did not train their horses. Others, who would have preferred to have raced here, having no positive assurance of a circuit in California, were compelled, if they wanted to race, to make entries in the eastern stakes, the entries to the important ones closing while the prospect here looked very dubious. The result was that the best horses and many of the best known trainers, whose presence would have added greatly to the interest and success of our district meetings, were most conspicuous by their absence. The management of some of the meetings on the circuit, while intending to have a fair and race meeting, did not announce it and declare their dates for fear they would not get as large a bonus subscribed by their local business men as they could by whipping them into line through telling them that if they did not pay up liberally they would get no fair. A very mistaken policy, as by getting out early and taking a date and enthusiastically booming their meeting the receipts from other sources would have made up many fold what little difference they could scare out of a few grasping townspeople, who would be benefited by a meeting, into giving more than could be wheedled out of them through threats of "no money, no races." Other things conspired to make last year a bad one for the circuit. One was that a number of Districts left their appropriation from the State for that year so as to draw it for two years and give a larger fair in 1902. All that is needed to make this the most successful year for the fairs and race meetings that we have had on this Coast since the heyday of the good old times is the immediate and concerted action of our District Boards in the formation of circuits, harmonious selection of dates, amounts to be given in purses and premiums and the return to a betting system where the public makes the odds and the stake holder is not interested in the result. The latter is considered by every one to be of vital importance and by many to be the leading cause of the loss of attendance and interest in our trotting meetings. It is true that the bookmaker has been able to pay big prices for betting privileges and that a stated sum of large magnitude and cash in advance has been most seductive to Boards of Directors with a prospect of having to go down into their individual pockets to make up a deficit. But to those who have studied the situation it looks like the proposition of the penny on the end of the nose obscuring the dollar within arm's reach. A return to the auction and mutual pools will be a return of confidence and large attendance, big money from the gate, larger receipts for entrance to races and for other privileges. It has been most conclusively demonstrated that the kind of bookmaking we have had at our District meetings is bad for the fairs and sometimes bad for the books. The bettors do not like the odds and look with suspicion on the books; consequently many do not attend the meeting and the bookmakers are forced in some instances to pay such large amounts for the privilege that they are compelled to make cinch books to play even. There is a general demand for the return of the old system of auctions and mutuels particularly on harness races. The horsemen want it, claiming that the books refuse to take their money if they stand a show to win and the man who wants to make a bet larger than $2 or $5 frequently finds it difficult to place his money under the present system of syndicate bookmaking at any reasonable odds.

ALL THE HORSES, mares, colts and fillies of the Sonoma Stock Farm, the property of the late J. B. Chase, Esq., are to be sold at auction in this city on Tuesday, February 4th. This is an absolute dispersal sale as every hoof on the place is to be sold. Many famous thoroughbreds have been bred on this well known farm. From the Chase paddocks have come Hidalgo, who won many memorable races both at the East and in California; Gilead, winner of the Thornton and other stakes and conqueror of Rey El Santa Anita, Hawthorne, etc.; DeBrace, who beat the best three year olds in the Middle West and California and ran a mile in 1:40; Monterey, one of the crack two year olds of 1894, sired by Hidalgo; Marigold, who ran a mile in 1:41, two miles in 3:30½ and four miles in 7:20½, the world's race record for mares; Centella, winner of twelve races and $9265; Kildare, winner of more than twenty races; Morven, a heavy winner on the flat and over the sticks; Del Norte, who broke the Coast record at a mile and a sixteenth; Top Gallant, winner of fourteen races and "in the money" on fifty-three occasions; Horatio, a good two and three year old; Phoebe Ann, a winner East and West; Mischief, a stake winner and producer; Glen Ellen, a winner and phenomenal producer; Mystery, who won three Derbys and took the measure of Geraldine and Acclaim; Manzanillo, who won two races at Sacramento in 1898 and defeated the famous Libertine; Rebecca, a winner and one of the most wonderful producers alive; Marian, her sister, a good winner and the mother of Sir John, Sykeston, Lady Marian, etc., and Modwena, a stake winner and many others. The sale will be held at the old Killup & Co. salesyard, 1732 Market street in this city. Mr. W. H. Hord will conduct the sale.

THE BROODMARES that will be sent to the auction ring in this city on the 30th instant by Palo Alto Stock Farm are a grand lot. There are but twenty five mares and three stallions catalogued and it should not take an auctioneer more than half an hour to sell them at good prices, if the horse breeders of this State are wise, as there will be a bargain in every mare sold. The list is not long, but what it lacks in quantity it makes up in quality and that is the principal thing necessary in horse breeding. Among the producing mares to be sold are Anselma 2:29½ by Ansel, Elsie (dam of five in the list by General Benton), Lady Agnes by Electioneer, Ladywell 2:16½ by Electioneer, Morning Glory by Electioneer, Nellie Benton by General Benton and Wildmay by Electioneer. There are several young mares that are elegantly bred and splendid individuals. The three stallions to be sold are Azmoor 2:20½, Altower and Menzie. Azmoor is a son of Electioneer and the thoroughbred mare Mamie C. that produced two standard trotters. He is the sire of Betonica 2:10½, one of the handsomest stallions in America, of Azmon 2:13½, Rowena 2:17, Bonniel 2:17½ and several others with fast records. Altower is a four year old by Altivo 2:18½, brother to Palo Alto, and Menzie is a three year old by Mendocino 2:19½ out of Lizzie by Wildidle, second dam Lizzie Miller by St. Clair 656, third dam by St. Clair 16,675. The dam of Menzie has produced three in the list. This sale will take place at the Occidental Horse Exchange on Thursday, January 30th, beginning at 11 A. M.

IT MAY INTEREST CALIFORNIANS who are interested in the future of our district fairs and harness racing to know that there is a movement among the thoroughbred horse breeders of New York and vicinity to have laws passed by the Legislature of that State which will prohibit bookmaking and confine the betting on running races there to Paris mutuels. One of the prominent racing dailies has taken the matter up, though none of the later advocates of the plan have presented the arguments and points that have been advanced by that excellent journal, the Rider and Driver, which has advocated the change for some time. Every person who studies the racing situation from the standpoint of those who are interested in breeding and racing for true sport is aware of the fact that bookmaking is injuring this great sport and bringing it into disrepute.

THE YEAR BOOK of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Cleveland has been issued and our thanks are due the club for a copy. This is volume 5 of the series and is not only a very beautifully printed volume but is handsomely and profusely illustrated. The book is compiled by George A. Schneider, who has done his work very carefully and creditably. There are descriptions and complete summaries of all the matinees of 1901, and alphabetical lists of all the members of the club and the horses owned by them with their records. The club's trotting record is now 2:06½, this remarkable performance having been accomplished by the peerless wagon trotter, John A. McKerron, the California bred son of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½. This is also the world's best record of a trotter to a wagon driven by an amateur. This horse has also earned for the club the honor of winning the Boston Challenge Trophy two years in succession, defeating the crack wagon trotters of the country. The Gentlemen's Driving Club of Cleveland has done and is doing a great work in making matinee racing the greatest of American sports as they absolutely divorce it from all gambling features.

READ THE LIST of high class horses to be sold at the Fasig-Tipton Midwinter Horse Auction which is to be held at Madison Square Garden, New York from January 27th to February 1st. California breeders who desire to get new and fashionable blood for their farms should send for catalogues and pick out some of the good things to be offered, as it is easy to send on a commission to purchase, and it costs comparatively little to bring horses to California. The great young stallion Oakland Baron 2:09½ by Baron Wilkes is in the consignment; Delmarch 2:11½ by Hambrino out of a mare by Geo. Wilkes is also to be sold; Castleton 2:10½ by Wilton, Advertiser 2:15½, Axtello 2:15 and other grandly bred stallions and trotters are catalogued. There are roadsters and race horses and many of the best bred mares in America in the list. Now is the time to buy the best that is offered at the sales. Values are on the rise and the demand cannot be supplied for years to come. California needs new eastern blood. We are getting some but we need more. The Fasig-Tipton sales offer the opportunity to get it.

AN IMPROVEMENT has been made in the appearance of that excellent journal, the Rural Spirit of Portland, Oregon. In beginning a new volume on the first of the year it donned a new heading, which is not only neat and artistic, but a great improvement over the old one which has become so familiar to the readers of the paper. Under the editorship of Mr. M. D. Wisdom the Rural Spirit has become one of the best papers devoted to live stock and horse news published in this country.

THE AMERICAN DERBY, $20,000 ADDED, with many other rich stakes offered by the Washington Park Club of Chicago will close on Wednesday next, January 15th. Don't let the date go by without making entries in these stakes. They are among the most valuable in America. A complete list, with conditions, etc., will be found in our advertising columns.

W. M. G. LAYNG, the well known horseman, has selected and will ship to Japan on the City of Pekin to-day the following thoroughbred stallions: Imp. Mistral II., imp. Prospector and Alkoran by imp. Duncombe. These stallions are royally bred and absolutely sound, and a finer trio were never shipped to the Orient.

Correction in Futurity Stakes Payments.

In the lists of payments in the Pacific Breeders Futurity Stakes, printed on the 5th page of this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, there is an error.

In the stake for mares bred in 1901, W. W. Smith's second payment should have been credited to the mare Maggie by Altamont, bred to Vinmont instead of Lady Clara bred to the same horse. Mr. Smith had both mares entered, and made second payment on Maggie. In making up the list this payment was wrongfully credited to Lady Clara.

Spirit of the West, an excellent journal devoted to horse interests will issue a Blue Ribbon Holiday Edition January 15th. It will be sent to any address for 15 cents, or the holiday edition and a copy of the paper will be sent for one year for one dollar. See advertisement.

Two fine Percheron stallions are offered for sale by H. B. Goecken, the well known hay and grain merchant of this city whose place of business is at 585 Fourth street. See advertisement in this issue.

Jockey Taral on the Weight Question.

The subject of raising the weights in all races has been dilated upon to some extent, showing the benefits that would surely arise if secretaries would only make it a rule to live closer to the regulation scale than they have done in the past.

In a conversation held by Ed Cole with Fred Taral on the matter, the jockey claims, and justly too, that many races are not truly run through interferences caused by bits of pin headed boys who know enough only to sit on horses and nothing about the art of race riding. He is very decided in his opinion that if the example set by Austria and California were followed here, where the jockeys are thorough horsemen, with few exceptions, there would be less accidents and that horses would run truer and more satisfactory to the public eye and pleasing to the officials.

In illustrating his argument, Taral says: "Take any race at a mile or a mile and a sixteenth on a circular track and watch the jumble and mixing up that takes place at the first turn. There is so much crowding and jostling that I have seen horses literally carried off their feet and held in the air for thirty or forty yards."

"The little bits of boys know nothing but racing to the front and in doing so let go of the heads of their mounts and they naturally work toward the rail. The result is crowding that is not only dangerous to horses and riders, but causes horses to be frozen out of position which cannot be recovered, hence inconsistency in running horses which is looked upon with suspicion by the officials and public."

"No good rider will make a bid for a position on the first turn in a big field unless he gets away in the first three, especially if he has a rail position at the post, for he is sure to be shut off by some inexperienced rider, and it is much better to wait for clear railing than be compelled to pull up a horse or have him cut down."

"The same state of affairs also exists in other parts of a race. I have seen a pin-head boy race his horse around his field on the backstretch and hit a half dozen horses as he brushes by them. On the far turn, too, these little boys frequently cut too short, which will throw the inside horses back. Older and experienced jockeys never do this unless it is intentional, as they know the danger of such a proceeding."

"There is nothing more disappointing for the public to see horses in which they are interested shut off, and to this the defeat of many horses that should win can be attributed. In Austria there is no crowding. Should a horse accidentally swerve toward another his rider will immediately apologize and pull away as soon as possible. Accidents are of very rare occurrence and when every care is taken of a horse by a rider the chances of having his mount cut down is reduced to a minimum. All this is due to the strict rules in regard to crowding and the gentlemanly conduct of the jockeys."

"Then in this country all the older riders have respect for each other. Whenever I rode with Garrison, Turner, Daggett, Littlefield and those in the older division we would always avoid crowding as much as possible."

"With the weights raised there would be many more proficient horsemen riding and better racing would result. The lightweight custom in this country is not beneficial to the sport. It throws the entire proceedings into an atmosphere of luck. As I said before, I think the sport would be more satisfactory from a public standpoint if jockies were given more opportunities to ride after they had become thoroughly accomplished horsemen."

In looking over the past records of riders, some of whom might be riding to-day had they been offered inducements to keep within a limit of 120 pounds, there appears such competent men as Garrison, J. McLaughlin, "Monk" Overton, H. Lewis, Clayton, H. Griffin, F. Littlefield, L. Reiff, W. Simms, R. Williams, C. Weber, in fact, many others who have dropped out of sight because they were not given sufficient opportunity so follow the calling with profit.

Next season there will be just about a half dozen boys who might be called good riders, Turner, Burns, O'Connor, Cochrane, Wonderly, Shaw, Woods and Spencer. Of these Turner and Shaw only can be considered as really proficient horsemen to be depended upon. No matter what horses they ride it influences the quotations of bettors, which is the greatest proof to offer of their standing in the jockey world.

Riders that will soon be forgotten are Odom, Mounce, Cochrane, Bullman, Turner, H. Lewis and Williams, among others who have to injure their constitutions to keep down anywhere near riding weight. All these are good horsemen and could be retained in the field if given a chance to earn sufficient to keep body and soul together. It is the scarcity of such riders that causes the fabulous prices to be paid for the services of a good jockey.

The idea of an eighty-pound boy being paid $18,000 for a retaining fee, and the sum J. R. Keene is to pay Shaw is simply fabulous when it is considered that $25,000 was offered for his services by another party.

Supposing some of the old timers were riding now. America could boast of a collection of riding talent unequalled in the world, including Garrison, McLaughlin, Griffin, Overton, Taral, Clayton, L. Reiff, R. Williams, Lewis, Turner, Burns, O'Connor, Shaw, Wonderly, Odom, Bullman, Spencer, Woods, Mounce, Cochrane, Daggett and others.

Just think this over, gentlemen of the Jockey Club.

Monterey Colt Stakes.

The horse breeders of Monterey county do not seem to have bred many pacers during the last few years, as of the four stakes for trotting and pacing colts offered by the district association, only those for the trotters filled. The two year old trotting stake has eight entries and the three year old stake six entries. The two year old pace had but two colts entered while there was one lone entry for the three year old pacing stake. Following are the entries for the stakes filled:

TWO YEAR OLD TROTTING STAKE.

J. D. Carr's s c Red Rogue by Dictatus, dam Eunique by Mambrino (Carr's) 1789.

J. D. Carr's s f Kitty S. by Nutwood Wilkes, dam Flossie by Mambrino 1789.

J. D. Carr's s f Queen Mab by Nutwood Wilkes, dam Nina B. by Electioneer.

J. D. Carr's b c Gold Coin by Boodle Jr., dam Isabella by ———.

J. B. Iverson's b f Amy J. by Diablo, dam Amy Fay by Anteeo.

Wm. Vanderhurst's b c Dover by Dictatus, dam Lilly V. by Junio.

Wm. Vanderhurst's b c Sidney V. by Dictatus, dam Eugenia V. by Eugeneer.

George E. Shaw's blk c Cheechaka by Alta Rio, dam Nellie Nutwood by Brown Jug.

THREE YEAR OLD TROTTING STAKE.

J. D. Carr's ch g Larkin W. by Boodle Jr., dam Isabella by ———.

J. B. Iverson's b f Ruble by Altamont, dam Ruby by Irvington Chief.

C. Z. Hebert's b c by Alta Rio, dam Dolly by Ajax.

C. Z. Hebert's b c by Alto Rio, dam Altoonita by Altoona.

Worthington Parsons's f May Queen by Eugeneer, dam Gypsy by Erwin Davis.

R. P. Lathrop's b c Airlie Wilkes by Prince Airlie, dam Susie Hunter.

To Revise Harness Rules.

A joint committee, consisting of Major P. P. Johnston, President of the National Trotting Association, and W. P. Ijams, President of the American, will meet in New York this month to discuss amendments to the rules, so that so far as it is possible the codes of the two associations shall be alike. The presidents will in all probability be accompanied by their respective secretaries, W. H. Gocher and J. H. Steiner.

The American Association was formed in 1887 by a convention consisting of 70 representatives of associations which had been affiliated with the National, but had become dissatisfied with the executive management at that time; that they had no fault to find with the National's code of law was proved when the convention adopted them bodily. Later on, however, the congress of each association made changes which became confusing to the ordinary horseman who raced his stable under both set of rules, and it was finally decided that the presidents of the two associations, prior to a meeting of a congress, should meet and exchange views, so that if not the letter, the spirit of any new legislation by the two associations should be in harmony. It is well understood that the settlement of the status of the amateur records will be the principal subject of discussion.—American Sportsman.

Good Horses For Sale.

Rose Dale Stock Farm, at Santa Rosa, has fifteen or twenty young horses, broken single and double, for sale. They are by the farm's stallions Daly 2:15 and St. Whips, son of Whips, the sire of Azote 2:04½. These horses are all good individuals, natural trotters, and there are some excellent speed prospects among them, as well as extra good roadsters. A few well bred broodmares by Daly are also for sale. Daly, it must be remembered, is by Gen. Benton, the best broodmare sire ever at Palo Alto, and is out of Dolly, the dam of Dolly Dillon 2:07, by Electioneer.

A Doctor's Endorsement.

Dr. Wm. H. Fuller of Brooklyn, N. Y., writes as follows: "My trainer has been using Quinn's Ointment, and I must say it has given entire satisfaction. It is truly a wonderful remedy. This is one more clincher for Quinn's Ointment, which is being used by the leading breeders and horsemen from Maine to California. For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all bunches take no substitute. If you cannot obtain from your druggist, it will be sent by mail or express, prepaid, for one dollar. Address W. B. EDDY & Co., Whitehall, N. Y."

Nutwood as a Broodmare Sire.

While the information relating to the blood lines of the dams of the new 2:30 trotters and pacers is as yet very incomplete—in fact, remains so up to the date of publication of the official year book—yet enough information is now at hand to give an intelligent idea of the blood lines that have shown up to the best advantage through the female line, writes Palmer W. Clark. The following list gives the horses that have sired the dams of five or more new 2:30 performers during the season of 1901:

Nutwood 2:18½ by Belmont.....	23
Onward 2:25¼ by George Wilkes 2:22.....	16
Red Wilkes 2:40 by George Wilkes 2:22.....	12
Dictator by Hambletonian.....	9
Strathmore by Hambletonian.....	9
Kentucky Prince by Clark Chief.....	8
Robert McGregor 2:17½ by Major Edsall 2:29.....	8
Belmont by Abdallah 15.....	7
Blue Bull by Pruden's Blue Bull.....	7
Egbert by Hambletonian.....	7
Happy Medium 2:23 by Hambletonian.....	7
Gambetta Wilkes 2:29¼ by George Wilkes 2:22.....	6
Electioneer by Hambletonian.....	6
Piedmont 2:17¼ by Belmont.....	5
Chimes 2:30¼ by Electioneer.....	5
Director 2:17 by Dictator.....	5
Harold by Hambletonian.....	5
Pilot Medium by Happy Medium.....	5

It will be seen that Nutwood, as he did last year, heads the list of sires of producing dams. This now gives him a total of 177 standard performers that have been produced by his daughters and places him so far ahead of his nearest competitor as to be in a class by himself. In days gone by it used to be considered that the Hambletonian blood was all right in the male line, but the female line should be either Mambrino, Pilot Jr., Clay, American Star, or other lines that "nicked" successfully with the blood of Hambletonian. An examination of this list, however, shows the Hambletonian blood almost exclusively. Of the eighteen sires enumerated six of them, or one-third, are sons of Hambletonian; eight more were sired by his sons; two were his grandsons, leaving just two to represent outside families—a remarkable showing indeed.

Superintendent Geo. W. Berry reports the first thoroughbred foal of the year—at Mr. A. B. Spreckels' Napa Stock Farm. It is a filly by Libertine (holder of the world's record of 1:38½ on a circular track from 1894 to 1900) out of Grace S., a daughter of imp. Cyrus out of imp. Getaway. The new arrival is a handsome looking and well proportioned little miss. Libertine has filled out and is one of the handsomest horses in America to-day. When his get are put on the market they should bring good prices, as there are no better bred stallions than he.

St. Aronicus, a four year old stallion by the unbeaten St. Simon, which was purchased by Chas. L. Fair recently in England, will arrive in a few days and be sent to Mr. Fair's ranch in Lake county. The colt cost a large sum, as St. Simon is the highest priced stallion and, at present, the most fashionable in the world.

Gents' driving mare, by Nushagak, fast trotter and thoroughly broken, is offered for sale. See advertisement.

A Waldstein mare, six years old and very gentle, is offered for sale by an advertiser in this issue.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

EFFECTUAL

The most effectual remedy in use for the cure of ailments of horses and cattle is

GOMBAULT'S CAUSTIC BALSAM

Used as a Blister or Lotion.

This preferred remedy is prepared exclusively by J. E. Gombault, ex-Veterinary Surgeon to the French Government Stud.

As a HUMAN REMEDY for Rheumatism, Sprains, Sore Throat, etc., it is invaluable. Every bottle of Caustic Balsam sold is warranted to give satisfaction. Price $1.50 per bottle. Sold by druggists, or sent by express, charges paid, with full directions for its use. Send for descriptive circulars, testimonials, etc. Address: THE LAWRENCE-WILLIAMS COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio.

Diseases in Dogs Which Are Transmissible to Man.

[BY DR. CECIL FRENCH.]

The question is often asked: "What diseases can human beings catch from dogs?" This is a question which it does not take long to answer, for they are very few and can practically be counted on the fingers of one hand.

First and most important and most to be dreaded is rabies. I am aware that a few persons are skeptical of the existence in and transmission of this disease from the lower animal to man. In the wilds of Africa there are also many persons skeptical of the existence of the machine known as the steam engine. It is safe to say that neither body of beings has witnessed the condition or object in the existence of which they have no faith. They simply don't and won't believe, and this in spite of the teachings of scientific men who are familiar with either or both.

There comes a day when the African is shown the steam engine, whereupon he usually makes himself scarce. If the skeptics could only be placed in the near presence of a rabid dog, it is safe to say there would soon be a scarcity of skepticism.

Rabies is unfortunately a common disease amongst Southern canines. It is spread largely by roving and tramp ownerless mongrels, not that a mongrel is any more susceptible than his brother of higher breeding, but because the latter can usually look to an owner whose constant watchfulness and control over his friend and pet reduces the risk of contagion considerably. The disease in such an animal is nipped in the bud by destruction of the sufferer before he has an opportunity to infect others. It is a mistake to suppose that rabies is only prevalent during the summer months. The records of the District of Columbia health office show that the cooler months of the year and even winter have their share.

Some persons purchase their pets from the municipal pounds, or they may even harbor stray dogs. This is a practice which cannot be too strongly condemned, unless the animals in question are kept closely quarantined for a few weeks. The disease may be in latency, undergoing its period of incubation, only to burst forth unexpectedly some days hence.

Next in importance is the so-called Hydatid disease of man. This malady does not exist as such in the dog, but it occurs in the latter animal as the Hydatid Tapeworm (Taenia Echinococcus). This parasite, and consequently the resultant disease in man, is apparently quite rare in the United States, though isolated cases of hydatid disease are known to occur, some of which, however, have been found among immigrating foreigners. Out of 100 cases of the disease in man reported by the Bureau of Animal Industry, in the year 1895-96, occurring throughout the United States, 4 came from the District of Columbia, 2 from Virginia, 10 from Pennsylvania, 33 from New York, none from Maryland, and in smaller numbers from other contiguous States.

The worm in the dog is very small, about one-eighth of an inch in length, and attaches itself to the wall of the bowel. The eggs of this worm are passed, and since they are microscopic in size, can find their way into the human stomach by adhering to the foodstuffs, such as lettuce and other articles which are not subjected to cooking. These eggs then undergo partial development and may find their way into almost any part of the body, lodging most frequently in the liver or lungs, and becoming the larval or intermediate cystic form of the adult tapeworm of this variety. Fifty per cent. of cases in the human subject are fatal.

This parasite also infests other animals in the same manner, and dogs acquire the mature worm by devouring the organs of such animals containing the larval form. Hence dogs should not be allowed access to slaughtering places, nor should they be fed on uncooked meat which has not been subjected to close scrutiny.

Intimated above that Hydatid Disease of man is comparatively rare in this country, but in other countries where canine flesh is used for food it is a good deal more prevalent. In Belgium it has been found necessary to provide a regulation prohibiting the offering for sale of the stomach and intestines of the dog.

Probably the next most important disease in relation to its contagiousness to human beings is tuberculosis or consumption. It used to be generally thought, and still is by some, that this disease could not be acquired by the dog, but the truth is that it is by no means uncommon among these animals. [In this respect we note the case of Byron Erkenbrecher's Fox Terrier, Warren Clerk, which died in Los Angeles last year. The autopsy showed tuberculosis in an advanced stage, although this disease was not the actual cause of the dog's death. The dog's prior owner, who muchly petted him, was the late H. G. Hummelright, who succumbed last year to consumption.—ED.]

They no doubt contract it through their association with mankind by breathing germ-laden atmosphere, as well as by eating and drinking diseased meat and milk. Some two years ago I had a case of probable contagion from a human being in a little Black and Tan Terrier. Its mistress had been sent to Washington from Boston, her physician hoping the more southern climate would be beneficial to her, she suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis. She had not been careful about expectorating, and there is no doubt in my mind that her dog acquired the disease from her, probably by ingestion of food, which, through his habit of carrying the latter from the plate to the floor, had become contaminated with germs lying there. Anyhow, the little dog died in a few months of tuberculosis of the liver. There are many other recorded instances of dogs acquiring the disease from their masters, and while at the present moment instances of reversed conditions do not occur to my mind, there is no doubt whatever that a dog suffering from tuberculosis becomes a menace to human health.

One other disease to be regarded as at all important is Ringworm. Dogs acquire this from children and vice versa, consequently any symptoms suggestive of this parasitic disease should call for prompt isolation of the sufferer.

Anthrax, or, as it is termed when attacking human beings, "Malignant Carbuncle," can be contracted by man from dogs, which, in turn, have acquired it by eating the flesh of animals dead of that disease, but it is so extremely rare that it need hardly be considered.

It is often asked if real parasitic mange of the dog is catching to human beings. In a measure it is, but in the animal kingdom it is found that each species of animals has its own particular parasites, which seldom are able to thrive on the bodies of other species, and this is true of the mange parasite of the dog. When placed on the human skin, it will cause some slight degree of irritation, but speedily ceases to thrive and soon dies before propagating its kind.

Fleas, if one may regard infestation by them as a disease, need no remarks. Everyone is supposed to be familiar with that little parasite.

This comprises about the whole of the diseases which we are liable to contract from our friend, certainly not a very formidable list.

A DANGEROUS INTESTINAL WORM.

Dog owners are all more or less experienced with the symptoms produced by the intestinal worms which infest their charges, and the wiser amongst them generally submit their puppies to a course of treatment for the eradication of these parasites before either is far advanced in development.

The varieties of worms commonly known are the round and the tape forms. The so-called mawworm is not a separate species, but merely an expelled segment or chain of segments from a tapeworm. It is capable of self-movement, and for this reason has been thought by some to be a distinct and separate form.

It is not generally known, however, that in Maryland, Ohio and Virginia (in naming these three States it is because I have found it present there, but it is to be presumed that it occurs also farther South) there exists another, and by far the most dangerous, form of intestinal worm. No account of this one is to be found in any but the technical works on zoology, which is a matter of some surprise, since it occurs not at all infrequently, is almost ineradicable when it has once infested a dog, and produces such profound effects on the whole organism that the name of "Pernicious Anaemia of Dogs" has been given to this disease.

Here, then, is to some a probably unknown source of danger to the inmates of their kennels, a danger that is insidious in its advent. A well known stud Skye, Barnaby Rudge, the property of Mrs. E. M. Williams, three years ago succumbed to its effects, and numerous other instances have come to my notice in the past few years.

The parasite in question is known technically as the Uncinaria, or Doehmius. It is about one-quarter of an inch in length and about as thick as a fine needle. Attached to its head are several curved teeth surrounding a sucker-like mouth. By means of this arrangement it sucks and bores its head deep into the inner lining of the wall of the bowel, where it thrives on the blood of the animal. From this it will be easily understood that in addition to its leech-like drain on the blood of its host it also sets up an intense local inflammation which involves the absorptive and digestive glands. It is by means of these glands lining the wall of the bowel that the nutriment is in part digested and taken into the system. If, then, the glands become inflamed and tumefied, as occurs, they will fail to perform their natural function and the animal must literary starve.

And so we find that when an animal becomes infested with this parasite, and though the appetite may not become markedly changed, yet there is a continual wasting and general anæmic condition produced.

Sometimes severe bleeding from the nose takes place.

From the chronic inflammation produced by the burrowing and biting of the worm we naturally look for an abnormal condition of the fecal excretions. Diarrhoea, often foul-smelling and accompanied with more or less hemorrhage, is a constant symptom. In the latter stages ulcers and gangrenous sores appear on any part of the body. The disease may last from three or four months to a year. As to treatment, that is a difficult matter. The reason is that the head and mouth of the worm being buried deep into the wall of the bowel no drugs we can give are likely to reach the vital parts of the parasite, and are consequently ineffectual.

The mode of propagation of the worm is as follows: Slight development from the egg stage takes place in the oviduct of the female worm, whilst it is in the intestine of the dog. As soon as the embryo passes out of the bowel with the excrement and reaches water (gutters, pools, etc.) a larval form develops, provided the right temperature exists. The larval form is then imbibed by the dog along with the water he drinks if he should satisfy his thirst at such places.

And the moral of all this is, never to allow a dog to drink any but the purest water.

Fractures of the Legs.

If your dog breaks his leg, there need be no great rush to have it attended to, provided he has not sustained what is known as a compound fracture, i. e., where the ends of the broken bones are protruding through a wound. In the latter case there is no need to chloroform the sufferer, but competent advice from a medical expert should at once be sought, as such a wound needs careful and regular dressing and special setting.

If it be a simple fracture, it will, shortly afterwards, begin to swell at the seat of the break, and this swelling should be allowed to subside before any attempt at placing the leg in a splint is made. If this is done sooner, the pressure of the swelling on the surrounding hard, unyielding splint is liable to stop the flow of blood and may cause the leg to die from want of nutrition and to slough off. Therefore, when your dog breaks his leg, wait (maybe 48 hours) until the swelling subsides, and then have your veterinarian or doctor put the limb in a plaster cast. It will be less painful to the dog then, and there is no danger of cutting-off the circulation.

It is remarkable that though it is always best to assist nature by applying a bandage that will hold the fractured ends in position to insure a perfect reunion, nature endeavors to do precisely the same thing in the tissues concerned. When a bone breaks, the ends do not unite first, but a temporary bandage of bone-salts is thrown out all around to enclose the two or more broken ends. After this is solid enough to hold the parts together, the knitting together of the end commences, and when this is finally accomplished, nature thereupon removes by absorption the temporary bandage of bone that was first thrown out round the break.

Some Popular and Effective Remedies For Dog Ailments.

The name of "Glover" is a familiar one, not only in the United States and British Columbia, but also in Mexico, Central and South America, the West Indies, New Zealand, Australia and the Orient. The "Imperial" dog remedies manufactured by Dr. Glover have in truth a world wide reputation. On the Pacific Coast wherever a general store is carried on will be found Dr. Glover's remedies. The Doctor is well known to many of our sportsmen here, having some years ago been a resident among us. Some of the progeny of the Gordon Setters bred by him are thought highly of to-day by their owners.

The sign manual of sterling merit of the "Imperial" remedies has been shown in a systematic and constantly increasing volume of business. With the enlargement of business naturally came the need of an assistant. The right man has been found in the selection of Dr. French, who has for years past been Dr. Glover's right bowler.

Dr. French's views on various matters pertaining to the dog in health and disease have been given time and again in the kennel pages of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN; the personal assurances of many of our readers have been an endorsement of the Doctor's professional skill and wisdom which we are here pleased to publish.

The Coast agency of the Imperial Dog Remedies is conducted by the well known firm of Clabrough, Golder & Co., 538 Market street.

If any of our readers have not yet procured a copy of Dr. Glover's book on "Dog Diseases and How to Feed," a request for the same mailed to the above named firm or to Dr. Glover, 1278 Broadway, N. Y., will receive prompt response, free by return mail.

Dr. Glover's dog medicines and remedies we can personally endorse through our own experience and observation in very many cases where they have been used with excellent results.

The Christmas edition of the English Stock-Keeper is before us this week. To describe its many excellencies would be indeed a task. An interesting feature of the illustrated supplement is the collection of portraits of the Kennel Club Council of Representatives. The whole edition is full of interesting reading matter and embellished with a large number of excellent half tones of high class dogs of many breeds.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The New Jersey Kennel Association will hold its first dog show in Newark, N. J., February 26th, 27th and 28th and March 1st.

Peter Wetteran of Grass Valley has two promising Pointer bitch puppies which are just ready for their first field work. They are by Young Rip Rap out of Jingo's Lass.

Wallace Moore has a bitch Fox Terrier puppy he received this week from E. deB. Lopez, owner of the Merriwa Kennels. The young one is two months old and a likely looking puppy. She is by Ch. Aldon Swag fer out of Snip (Oriole Bluffer—Creole).

Woodcote Chinosol, the champion Bulldog of England, died recently. He was by Bapton Monarch out of Doctor Janet and was a grand and all over sound dog. Mr. W. J. Pegg had received numerous offers for him from American fanciers, one offer going as high as $5000, but he always refused, believing that the dog was good enough to keep.

Bull Terrier Kennels Sold.

Champion Woodcote Wonder is now owned by L. A. Klein. Mr. O. O. Heydenfeldt, the owner of the Gainsborough Kennels, has disposed of all of his dogs and will probably abandon all active participation in affairs of the fancy. Along with Wonder went the bitch American Belle (formerly Bayview Sabatia) and Dot and four Bull Terrier puppies. Woodcote Wonder will be in stud at Mr. Klein's kennels, 2570 Geary street, which is to-day announced in our kennel advertisements.

Mr. Klein purchased all of Gainsborough Kennels Bull Terriers. The puppies are good ones, by Bayview Brigadier out of American Belle.

FISH LINES.

Striped bass fishing these cold days is somewhat dormant. What the fish do and where they go is an unsolved problem for the present. Many of the experts claim that in warm, pleasant weather the fish can still be caught in Raccoon straits and vicinity just as plentifully as was the case two months ago.

Salt water angling in and around San Francisco bay is good at present, but only indulged in to any extent during pleasant weather, which has not been apparent to a great degree for several weeks past. The prevailing cold north wind has kept most of the fishermen away from the fishing resorts.

Piscatorial affairs in southern waters are laid in more congenial lines, as will be noted in the following taken from the Los Angeles Express:

"Late last week a report reached town that the yellow fins had been biting well at Ocean Park, but owing to the lateness of the season the piscatorial fraternity in general doubted the truth of the story. It appears, however, that it was under the truth rather than an exaggeration.

Simon Spier and Will Stearns fished at Ocean Park yesterday and caught upward of fifty fish between them, all being surf, croakers and yellowfins in the order named. During the day the bottom seemed to be covered with fish of these varieties, and they began biting fiercely about noon.

Most of the fishing contingent at Ocean Park were rigged for mackerel and smelt, but those who were out for surf got them, and they were good ones.

The run at this time of year is unprecedented, and Capt. J. Addison Smith, who probably is better posted on fishing matters than any other man in Santa Monica, says that he is at a loss to account for the present run. Captain Smith further says that the deep water fish are biting quite as fiercely as the surf, and his party, out Saturday in the launch Donahue, could have caught a ton of fish instead of a few hundred pounds had they desired. Whitefish, bass, rock cod and all the other marine varieties were abundant on the banks, and during the day immense schools of mackerel were seen. Captain Smith tells a graphic story of the discovery of the mackerel. Says he:

"We were standing in the boat attending to our fishing when I heard a sound like the rushing of wind over the sea, and looked back thinking we might be encountering a squall, but it was not the wind that caused the noise. An immense school of mackerel rushed past the boat and continued in sight for some time. When they had passed, the cause of their hurry was to be seen. A school of bonita was pursuing the mackerel. The terrified fish ran against our boat constantly and many of them must have been killed by the shock."

There will be a big delegation of fishermen New Year's Day, if the weather be fair. Whether the present run will continue that long is somewhat problematical, but many will take the chance."

Steelhead Fishing in Russian River.

What promised to be one of the best winter angling seasons in years for steelhead in the tide waters of Russian river for the past two weeks has resulted but differently for the many anglers who have recently visited the stream hoping to take advantage of apparently favorable fishing conditions. The desires of the enthusiastic anglers have not materialized as was anticipated and with a number the pleasant angling prospect has been disrupted. The causes for this, to be regretted, state of affairs are twofold. Firstly, the few fish that have been landed, although fresh run and seemingly in splendid condition, have come to gaff with the pugnacity of a dish rag—one fish weighing seventeen and one-half pounds, caught by C. B. Hollywood on Sunday and the largest steelhead trout taken out of the river this season, the angler said: "Had no more life in it than a beefsteak on the spoon." This is to be deplored no doubt, but the worst feature of affairs found on the river and which spoiled and shortened the fishing trip of a number of anglers was the illegal practice of using set nets and drawing seines in the waters of Sonoma county. In one pool on Saturday over eighty fine fish were netted. This exasperating custom of some of the residents in the vicinity of Duncan's Mills and below has, it is claimed, been in vogue since the present run of fish from the ocean. A number of fish hooked recently have shown the marks of the gill net. The money spent in that section by the sportsmen is many hundred times more than the amounts received by the poachers for marketing their fish. We remember one season when the net scavengers got but four cents a pound for their catches.

The depletion of the river by the net men should be looked after by both the county authorities and the Board of Fish Commissioners.

Among the anglers on the river Sunday and last week were Alex T. Vogelsang, T. W. Brotherton, John Gallagher, M. J. Geary, J. A. Pariser, Capt. Green Watson, C. B. Gould, John Butler, Al Wilson, John P. Babcock, C. B. Hollywood, W. A. Cooper, George Matson and others.

The fish for some reason or other were very indifferent to the trolling spoons, double hooks baited with salmon roe or the red fly and shrimp lure. The angler would see many signs of fish about him in the water, but try as he would the fish did not to any great extent notice the tackle trolling for their particular benefit. These conditions, however, were patiently observed by many of the expert fishermen, who, knowing the ways of the fish, were prepared to meet a change at any time when the big trout would go for the shrimp, trolling spoons or the mushy spawn dangling on the keen barbed hooks and change the placid order of events by showing the appetite and fighting spirit that causes the nerves of the true angler to tingle with the excitement of keen enjoyment and health giving recreation.

The river is not too low, the water, in fact, is fairly up and fish have been seen as far up stream as Hopfield. The stream has been as clear as crystal—these conditions will prevail until the rains come and raise the river to a boiling, roily current that will put the quietus for the time being on exploits with rod and reel.

The fish that have been caught were apparently not playing favorites with any particular lure, as they were hooked with each kind of trolling tackle used. Among those who were successful were Matson with a catch of three or four a day; Butler, two on Saturday and a fourteen pounder on Monday. Gallagher, one large fellow; Babcock, eight on Friday and Saturday; Wilson, eight on Friday; a sixteen and eight pound fish were on exhibition Monday in Skinner & Company's show windows. Cooper and Geary also hooked two fish each. Pariser had quite a lively experience. Whilst ashore he had stuck his rod in the sand and Mr. Hollywood in going out on the river again in the boat, took his line out and dropped it into the water. In a very short while it was evident that there was a fish on the line. Other anglers who were within observing distance vouch that the quick time made by Pariser in getting to his rod was a picturesque sight never equalled in the history of many amusing incidents which are recounted as having transpired at Russian river. In handling the fish Pariser demonstrated some fundamental principles in steelhead fishing that were comparatively new but effective.

A nice catch of striped bass was taken one day last week by Fred H. Bushnell and Al M. Cumming. The two anglers trolled San Antonio slough, this trip being Bushnell's initial one after striped bass. Cumming landed five fish weighing in the aggregate nearly twenty-five pounds. Bushnell hooked three fish, the largest scaled six and one half pounds. Bushnell was fast to a very large fish for some time before the bass broke away. The two fishermen were apparently just at the beginning of making a big catch when they were compelled to desist in order to take the train back to the city. The fish were caught at just about low water.

Experiments conducted for ascertaining the height a salmon will leap in clearing a waterfall have shown that the fish will go to a distance of twenty feet in the air in the effort to pass over the obstruction to its passage up stream. It was further observed that when a fish failed to clear the fall at one jump, it remained in the falling water and then with a rapid twist of the body would make another spring which was generally successful. These experiments were recently undertaken by one of the directors of the Norwegian fisheries.

Two striped bass, weighing sixteen and eight pounds respectively, were taken out of Flaherty's hole on Russian river, near Duncan's, one day last week.

An Oregon Rabbit Battue.

In this State cottontails and jack rabbits are so plentiful that many sportsmen care but little to shoot them. Being infested at certain times of the year with both intestinal and tissue parasites the "jacks" are particularly objectionable on this account. The cottontails which frequent rocky places are generally, however, in better edible condition than the brush rabbits. In the vicinity of this city, near San Pedro, San Mateo county, for instance, a day's shooting can be had on cottontails very often. The hills and valleys back of Berkeley, across the bay, have long been good rabbit hunting ground. The best jack rabbit district for local sportsmen can be found in Sonoma county, particularly on the reclaimed marsh lands. Here every Sunday many leashmen resort to give their hounds a run on jacks. The longears are also hunted by many shooters, men and boys, hailing principally from the Latin quarter. In other portions of the State, notably the San Joaquin plains jack rabbits are at times so numerous as to become a pest. At such times on an appointed day there will be a meeting of the people from a particular district and a "rabbit drive" will take place for the purpose of thinning out the rodents. In other Pacific Coast States the same conditions often prevail and rabbit drives are then in order.

The methods of conducting a "drive" are practically the same, excepting of course some features, which are local only, and more or less intense according to the experience of those participating. The description of a recent drive near Pendleton, Oregon, seems to indicate that the damage done to the farmers and ranchers by the rabbits was so great that the drive was a huge shambles resulting from a bloodthirsty saturnalia and the people participating for the time being forgot to a great extent that they were human beings as will appear from the following:

"Three thousand five hundred jack rabbits were killed in an immense slaughter pen in the Butter creek county, thirty-three miles west of Pendleton, Or., on Sunday, December 29th. It was the greatest drive in the history of this section. Eight hundred men and boys participated in the massacre, cheered on by many women.

An immense corral of wire netting had been built on the sagebrush prairie, with arms extending a quarter of a mile on each side. In the center was a circular pen 100 feet in diameter and ten feet high. Two special trains brought clubbers from Pendleton and Heppner, while from smaller towns the drivers came on foot and in wagons. The drivers were lined up and in a line two miles long, brandishing clubs, they started toward the corral, the rabbits being driven from cover at every step until the corral was full to overflowing.

Then began the slaughter. Excited by the scene men grew reckless and struck right and left until maimed and dead were piled up on all sides, the wounded moaning in misery until some more humane person returned to finish the work. Six hundred were taken alive and the balance were piled in five great heaps."

In many sections where rabbit hunting is a distinct and highly enjoyed sport in the winter the above will no doubt excite much adverse comment. Conditions are various in different places; a custom in vogue in one place may not be countenanced in another locality.

Another rabbit story is at hand that, to many, will seem almost incredible. We cannot vouch for its truth, but will give it as told in a recent press dispatch from Tacoma:

"The sudden multiplication of rabbits along the Klondike creeks has caused those small animals to become a nuisance. Thousands of them are being killed off, and still they seem to increase. Stewed rabbits and rabbit pot pie have become as familiar on the Klondike bills of fare as corned beef hash and baked beans are in other mining regions.

If the Klondike was as short of provisions this year as it was four years ago there would be no cause for alarm, for the number of rabbits available is sufficient to supply the demand for fresh meat. The rabbits find their chief delight in burrowing into and devouring the caches of provisions belonging to miners. To abate this evil Klondike dogs have been taught to catch all the rabbits they can eat. Many of them are fed on nothing else and still are sleek and healthy."

Spare the Swans.

The Colusa Herald recounts the story of two city hunters who went out shooting recently with C. C. Epperson, a Sutter City sportsman, familiarly known as "Uncle Bud." The young men were somewhat boastful and volunteered to show the veteran how to shoot. They were somewhat surprised that they were not getting any the best of him, but were still confident, when along came two beautiful swans. The city sportsmen became rattled and allowed "Uncle Bud" to bag both birds. They were magnificent specimens, measuring over seven feet from tip to tip.

It is pleasing to know that the veteran sportsman still is with the gun. It is to be regretted, however, that the two swans had to be sacrificed to show his shooting skill. These graceful, harmless birds are not any too plentiful, and as a table bird have a reputation for toughness second to none. Swans should be spared, there is plenty of other game for the hunter.

Sacramento sportsmen fared good, bad and indifferent last Sunday. The luck of the hunters ranged from limit bags to nil. At the Canvasback Club poor shooting conditions ensued, the members getting small bags of ducks only. At the Del Paso and other clubs the results were passably good. On the Yolo side many birds were killed, principally mallards.

An Enterprising Journal.

We will here remind the publisher of a weekly advertising paper which is known to fame and also a limited number of subscribers, under the title of Pastime that the article entitled "English Snipe" and signed "O. E.," which was printed in its columns last week had been prepared by the editor of this department for The Bulletin and was published in the sporting news columns of that evening journal several weeks ago.

As the weekly above referred to is heralded as the champion of the apostles of game protection (and all that implies, so far as anything can be made out of it) and has also been offered for purchase to a syndicate of wealthy gentlemen, who are identified with field trials and other sports, at a bed rock price of $5000 cash and a conditional provision that $5000 more be put up as a sinking fund (permanent investment rather) to carry on the good work, we would suggest that the custom of appropriating reading matter absolutely, or of publishing articles and gingerly giving credit for them in a manner that would lead a reader to believe the matter was originally contributed, as has been the practice, is in as much bad taste, to put it mildly, as the practice of running the same borrowed cuts and half tones over and over again at regular intervals.

Sportsmen who are willing to invest $5000 for the good of the cause, would be hard to convince that an equivalent for that amount of money could be found in a weekly paper devoted to a rebash of current events (thoroughly thrashed out during the week by the daily papers) and seasoned with complimentary trade notices.

Hunting Notes.

Local sportsman, have, for the last week, enjoyed one of the best duck shooting periods noted for many years past. The absence of rain and the prevailing north winds have dried up many interior feeding grounds, the ducks in consequence have taken to the feeding grounds of the tule districts in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and also the many baited and fresh water ponds to be found in the bay shore marshes.

Last Sunday, for instance, teal ducks were to be seen by the thousands on the Suisun marshes and as a consequence many hunters procured limit bags. Two of the prettiest strings of birds we have seen this season were brought down Sunday night by James Maynard, Jr., and Dr. E. N. Ayers from the Canvasback Gun Club preserve. Of the 100 teal ducks on the straps 75 of them were drakes. The whole bunch were fat and in splendid condition. The morning was rather pleasant with but little wind blowing and the birds pitched into the ponds in a continuous line of whirring ducks. They were so plentiful that the two hunters took their time and deliberately picked out their birds singly and without recourse to "lap" or flock shots.

Hunters at Sears Point and near McGills had a splendid day's duck shooting also. At the Point oilskins were taken out to the blinds in the morning, the weather looking as if rain would drop. Bayshore shooting was out of the question by reason of a heavy sea on the shallow shores.

The combined bag for eleven shooters at the Field and Tule Club amounted to 259 birds. F. H. Bushnell and A. M. Cumming bagged a number of sprig and teal at the club ponds on Wednesday.

Similar conditions prevailed at the Stewart ponds near Denver, where Otto Feudner, with Ben L. Owen and G. R. Field were shooting. The shores of the ponds were literally packed with the birds. In adjacent ponds and shallow water they were so thick that the feeding horses and cattle would almost walk over them before they would get out of the way. Chicken hawks hovering about on the edge of the high grasses and tules were paid strict attention to by the teal, which frequently during the morning would take refuge from the prowling birds of the air in the depths of the dense vegetation surrounding the water. At this spot the morning was cold and frosty, the kind of a morning when birds bunch together, a time at which the market hunter delights to bring his 4 bore into play. The combined bag of the party was made up mostly of teal, with a sprinkling of spoonbills, mallards and canvasback. Feudner shot the limit on English snipe in the forenoon, the day being almost an ideal one for snipe shooting.

Bay shore shooting from blinds near Sobrante, San Pablo, Steiger and along the west side has been excellent. Canvasback and blue bill ducks are in that portion of San Pablo bay in immense numbers.

On the Alameda marshes from San Leandro down to Alviso most hunters had fair shooting. Near Mount Eden most of the birds shot were spoonbills.

Duck shooting in the marsh near Point Reyes has been of sufficient importance to attract a number of hunters for several Sundays past.

Quail shooting conditions have been different in various locations. Last Sunday in some sections the birds would work splendidly, in others again, the birds when flushed would whirr quickly to heavy cover and then do some running that would be creditable in a quarter horse but is exasperating to the sportsman and is a source of irritation to his dog.

The Sncad and Millar dairy tuledistrict about twelve miles southeast of Dixon is at present fairly infested with countless numbers of mallard. The Dixon Gun Club members who shoot on the Blithe tract in the Yolo basin have had choice shooting ever since the season opened.

Fly-Casters' Banquet to John P. Babcock.

The San Francisco Fly-Casting Club members and guests on Thursday evening convened around the banquet table, the occasion being a complimentary dinner tendered to John P. Babcock, a genial sportsman and esteemed member of the club who has been on a brief visit to this city and who is now located at Victoria, British Columbia, and holds the responsible position of Commissioner of Fisheries for British Columbia. Mr. Babcock, three months ago, tendered his resignation as Chief Deputy Fish Commissioner of the State Board of Fish Commissioners to accept an offer from the British Columbia authorities which has opened to him a field of labor and research that will eventually lead to the achievement of his laudable ambition to be known as the salmon authority of the Pacific Coast.

President Walter D. Mansfield presided as toastmaster and the company was entertained by speeches from John P. Babcock, who briefly outlined the immense importance of the salmon fisheries of the northern province and sketched a plan for the establishment of a fish hatchery at a desirable location on the headwaters of the Fraser river. Aside from the practical views outlined by the speaker he voiced a fraternal and sportsmanlike sentiment in picturing, in a felicitous manner, the congenial happiness and satisfaction the appearance of his fellow anglers and friends, from time to time at his hospitable board, located at the outlet to Lake Seton and within the shadows of stupendous picturesque cliffs, would afford him.

Ex-Commissioner Alex. T. Vogelsang, John A. Hosmer, Joseph Kirk, Judge John Hunt, Jr., P. J. Tormey, and others addressed the assembly. Mr. Tormey, a new member, suggested a plan whereby the formation of a national league of fly-casters might be brought about.

A letter of inquiry from a Chicago fly-caster was the subject of a discussion that culminated in the adoption of a resolution to hold a tournament at Stow lake in August. This competition will be open to the world and will possibly have representative rod wielders here from Chicago, Grand Rapids, New York, Milwaukee and other points. The President announced that by the time mentioned a fund of $1000 would be available to make the tournament a successful one.

The absence of Secretary Horace Smyth, by reason of illness, was touchingly commented on by Mr. Vogelsang, and a resolution was passed viva voce, tendering condolence and regret to the afflicted secretary and evincing the sincere wishes of his friends for his early recovery.

Songs and recitations were rendered by Lloyd Spencer, W. W. Brackett and Elton Lambert.

Among those present were: Dr. W. D. Mansfield, John P. Babcock, W. E. Brooks, H. Battu, T. W. Brotherton, W. F. Bogart, John Benn, A. S. Carman, A. L. Coombs, Joseph Blewett, F. E. Daverkosen, A. B. Finch, Judge John Hunt, R. Isenbruck, J. C. Kierulff, George H. T. Jackson, W. J. Kierulff, John A. Hosmer, Charles F. Kewell, Joseph Kirk, H. F. Muller, F. P. McLennan, A. Muller, J. Peltier, W. W. Richards, F. H. Reed, S. Rosenheim, John F. Siebe, F. G. Sanborn, S. B. Folger, C. F. Stone, Alfred Sutro, H. E. Skinner, J. S. Turner, P. J. Tormey, Alexander T. Vogelsang, C. M. Walker, Charles S. Wheeler, C. G. Young, W. H. McNaughton, R. A. Smyth, J. X. De Witt, Lloyd Spencer, Elton Lambert and W. W. Brackett.

Deer Hunting in the East.

Hunters of big game will soon turn their attention to Newfoundland. Eastern sportsman who make shooting trips to Canada find caribou and other large game becoming scarcer every year. In Newfoundland caribou, in particular, are very plentiful. A report last year from St. Johns stated that the local markets were then blocked with venison, the meat being quoted as low as three cents a pound. There it is prohibited to kill deer between February 1st and July 15th or from October 9th until October 20th in each year. Hunting parties are organized by the fishermen and poorer class of settlers, who secure not only enough venison for their own consumption, but also send large quantities to St. Johns for sale. Notwithstanding the immense numbers slaughtered each year there has not yet been apparent any perceptible diminution of the herds. Of course, such wholesale slaughter must soon have the effect of exterminating the species. Sportsmen are allowed to kill and take three stags and two does, and as this latter class only hunt during the late summer and autumn months, and hunt then for "heads," they do not affect the herds very much. These deer are all killed near the water line, so that the immense deer parks in the interior of the island fortunately remains untrodden. Last year the steamer Virginia Lake went up to White Bay after venison, and 600 carcasses were brought on board. Never before have so many caribou been seen or heard of in that direction; by day they can be described browsing like cattle on the hills, while one can go a mile in from the sea, and cross herds of hundreds. The winter had been very severe in the interior, and these are driven to the coast in quest of food. From Connaigre Bay to Fortune Bay herds of thousands have been seen, and only about eight or ten miles inside Burgeo whatever number are required can be killed with ease. In the bottom of the bays they have come to the very winter tilt doors, and one man is reported to have shot a large stag while it was looking in his door. Under such circumstances the people are not short of fresh meat and the 600 carcasses brought in made venison a cheap article for the next fortnight."

Pacific Coast Field Trials.

A big delegation of sportsmen left today for Santa Maria to attend the trials commencing on Monday. Judge Balmer arrived yesterday from Seattle and was taken in charge by T. J. A. Tiedeman and Albert Betz. The attendance at the trials promises to be a large one—many sportsmen from Los Angeles and other southern points will be present. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will be represented at the trials by Mr. Albert Betz.

Ducks Tarred and Tethered.

The slush and crude oil refuse washed overboard in cleansing an oil vessel at one of the docks in the Oakland estuary was the means of bringing death and destruction to thousands of wild ducks a few days since. The tarry and oily stuff floated on the surface of the water with the tide and when distributed about the bay, off the shores of Bay Farm island particularly, was the cause of the death and capture of an immense number of ducks by hunters and others who soon discovered the plight of the poor birds. The ducks by coming in contact with the floating material were soon as helpless as though swimming into bird lime.

Many pot hunters and boys who usually get but a small number of ducks returned to the city with big bunches of tarry ducks, so soiled and sticky that the variety could hardly be determined. Disabled ducks were in evidence for several days in the vicinity of San Lorenzo and San Leandro. A number of live ducks were captured and brought to town.

Ducks smeared with the sticky substance were shot on Sunday on the Suisun ponds and at various other duck shooting resorts.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Geese are plentiful now on the Solano plains. Hunting in the vicinity of Maine Prairie is reported to be first class.

Recent reports from Los Angeles chronicle fair duck shooting for the southern sportsmen. The best sport is found, however, on the preserves of the Centinella, Alamitos, Alla and Cerritos clubs. Mallard, sprigtail, teal and a few cans are the principal birds secured. Blue bills are now due down south and beginning to come in.

English snipe shooting conditions are given by a Los Angeles correspondent in the following style: Snipe shooting below Artesia in some of the flat, muddy ground, is said to be good at present. Usually snipe will be found in that vicinity by those who care to go that far after them, they are not molested much by local shooters who usually are able to get the limit on their club preserve when they care to take the tramp.

Quail are still somewhat of an inducement for a journey after them, limit bags however, are becoming infrequent. If the coming season is a dry one, as now looks likely, the birds may not breed this spring and summer.

A singular feature about the personal appearance of nine out of every ten crack shots is one that is very seldom noticed, and seems never to have been put into print. It is a fact, however, that nine out of every ten of the best shots in the country are either blue-eyed or have eyes of a grayish tint. Light-colored eyes seem to be a sine qua non if a man hopes to be a good shot, for men with brown or dark-colored eyes are seldom good shots, and still more seldom regular and consistent performers at the traps. Perhaps some specialist in the study of eyes may be able to give some explanation of this peculiarity, for peculiarity it seems to be. Why should a blue-eyed man be a better shot than a man with brown eyes? Or perhaps, to put the question a little better: Why should there be so many good shots with light-colored eyes, and so few with dark-colored eyes? In talking over this point one day last year at a tournament, an examination was made of the eyes of all the best shots on the ground; the result was 19 to 1 in favor of light eyes, the majority of the light-colored eyes being strongly tinged with bright blue.

AT THE TRAPS.

The Anaconda Gun Club held a trap shoot on December 30th. The scores made were as follows: R. Emmons 21, 22, 19; Cairns 12, 4, 18, 12; L. G. Smith 14, 17, 16; B. D. Mahan 16, 15; Nell 19, 17, 15, 17; R. de B. Smith 8, 7, 8; Quane 16; McGivern 12; Strachan 12, 17; Turner 17; Twoby 16, 14; McKenzie 15, 17.

Santa Ana shooters are planning a trap shoot to take place the latter part of this month or early in February at the Orange County Fair. J. E. Vaughan and several other sportsmen have the matter in charge and will endeavor to offer inducements that will bring together at Santa Ana crack trap shots from all over the State.

At the blue rock shoot for turkeys held on the Lincoln Gun Club grounds four events were on the card, the first at 10 targets was won by T. Sheard of Tacoma, with 10 straight breaks, the other scores were, Nauman 9, Price 9, Parker 9, "Slade" 8, Forster 8, Hoyt 5, Mrs. Sheard 5. Mr. Sheard on straight score at 15 birds in the second race won another turkey. In the third event W. Price captured the turkey in a 25 target handicap race. The other scores were: Nauman (scratch) 22, Sheard (scratch) 21, Forster (scratch) 18; Dr. Derby 18 out of 28, Mrs. Sheard 17 out of 30. The last race, a distance handicap at 15 targets was won by Sheard who shot from the 18-yard mark and broke 14, the other scores made were the following: Forster 18 yards, 13 breaks, Nauman 18-12, Hoyt 16-12, Dr. Derby 16-9, Price 16-9, Mrs. Sheard 14-9.

THE FARM.

Marketing Wool.

F. P. Bennett of Boston, was one of the speakers at the fifth annual convention of the National Live Stock Association, at Chicago recently. His subject was "The Proper Methods of Marketing Wool." A portion of his remarks was as follows:

"In a word the wool grower should sell their own wool through an agency established by themselves. Almost as I was writing these words a large Oregon grower told me his experience in marketing 360,000 pounds of wool in Boston. He had been offered 9½ cents per pound for his wool at The Dalles, but decided to have it graded out and baled on his own account at a cost of 25 cents per bale. The freight on baled wool from The Dalles is but 1¼ cents, while from Pendleton it is 2.21 cents. The Oregon sheepman brought his family to Boston on a visit, and had the wool shipped there at the same time. He arranged for storage in a public warehouse in Boston at the low rate of 3 cents per bale for the first month, and showed samples of the wool to manufacturers, who promptly bought it of him for 13 cents per pound, while most of the holders of similar wool in Boston were holding for 14 cents. The total cost of freight, baling, storing and insurance on this wool was $1.83 per 1000 pounds. Consequently the owners netted over 11 cents at home for the wool for which they had been offered 9½ cents, and the manufacturers in Boston bought for 13 cents what would otherwise have cost them 14 cents. Both parties made money, because the entire cost of moving the wool from the grower to the manufacturer was less than 2 cents per pound instead of 6 cents per pound under the speculative method of 1899 above explained. What was accomplished by this Oregon shipper can be achieved in some measure by growers throughout the United States, if they will organize and establish their own selling agencies in Boston and elsewhere.

Good Dairy Cows Are Valuable.

Never in our life have we met a farmer who was the owner of a good cow but that the owner was loud in praise of the animal and proud that he was her owner, says Dairy Age. The farmer who owns a good cow knows that the cow is a money maker and knows that a herd of cows as good would be a profitable undertaking on any farm. But farmers are slow to catch on to the fact that a good herd can be reared in a few years if the work is set about in a proper manner. What a most delighted set of farmers the West would have if each one would some morning wake up and find in his lot a herd of cows as good milkers as the best one he now owns! A herd of good milkers is worthy of any man's admiration. The farmer who has perseverance and intelligence enough to get together a good dairy herd has reason to be proud of his achievements.

A Modern Poultry Farm.

Our remarks concerning the growth of the chicken business, a few weeks ago, called attention to the success attained in this line by Mr. R. E. Bryant and which success can be duplicated by any one who will devote the same energy and attention to the business. Mr. Bryant is located upon a five acre tract southwest of town. One acre of this is planted to alfalfa which is cut and fed to the poultry. A flock of eleven hundred hens is maintained, divided into six different pens. The houses are large and roomy, the sides hung on hinges. Each morning these sides are raised full height so that the sun and wind can thoroughly ventilate, fumigate and dry the houses. At night the sides are closed down, furnishing warm h to the feathered inhabitants. By this method of ventilation the floors are always dry, and the roosts free from vermin. City water is piped to each pen, Mr. Bryant having found that pure water is one of the prime requisites of success in the poultry business. The hens are supplied with an abundance of gravel and shells. The labor of caring for the poultry, shipping eggs, etc. takes about one-half of the owner's time. In conjunction with a nei hbor, Mr. Bryant has patented an egg-food that has proven highly successful. All the buildings on the place are white-washed thoroughly several times a year. Illustrating the profits of the business, we have before us the returns for the month of December, 1901. From the first to the 27th, the cash receipts were exactly $208 95, after paying freight and commission. The expenses were water $2.50, feed $50, leaving the owner $156.35 for his labor for the month. The average expense for feed the year around is slightly under $50 per month. What other small business in the county can beat this.—San Benito Advance.

G. A. Anderson this year raised from 122 acres of land near the Spreckels' factory 2482 tons of sugar beets, an average of a fraction over 20 tons to the acre. Deducting one-fourth, which went to the Spreckels Company for rent of the land, Mr. Anderson had 1861½ tons of beets left for himself, which, at $4 50 per ton, brought him $8374. After paying all expenses Mr. Anderson easily cleared $6001 for his season's work.—Salinas Index.

Andy Brooks broke the plowing record of this county at Fairview last week. With two new Deal gang plows, on each of which were hitched seven horses, he turned over eighty acres of land, an average of ten acres a day to the plow. Each of the gangs had four ten-inch plow shares.—Hollister Free Lance.

132,000 Deaths from this alone.

One special danger menaces those who live well, who can use champagne and fine liquors, and that is Bright's Disease. Posted clubmen understand this so well that many have tests made every few months. Others drink nothing but dry wines. But still the deaths reported from Bright's Disease and Diabetes are increasing at a fearful rate. The last census reports show that since 1890 the increase has been nearly fifty per cent and that the deaths in the United States alone from above causes and diseases growing out of them last year reached the enormous number of 132,000.

Hence the importance of every clubman knowing this one fact, viz.: That Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable in about 87% of all cases. The Fulton Compounds are now saving the lives of hundreds, and will, when better known, save the lives of thousands who are now with little hope.

Percheron Stallions

FOR SALE.

Native Son, foaled April 28, 1897. He is a handsome black with brown points and was sired by Raglan, 1st dam by Adolph, 2d dam by imp. Weinstadt, 3d dam by imp. French Spy. Native Son is one of the most promising young draft stallions in California, and is a sure foal getter. He was bred to 23 mares last year and 31 of them are in foal. His six year old brother weighs 2060 pounds, and Native Son will be as large at the same age.

Chief of Kneiphusen. This beautiful Percheron stallion bred by Joseph Blondin of Livermore, Alameda Co., was sired by Raglan. First dam by Starlight, 2d dam by Adolph, 3d dam by French Spy. Raglan No 14,739 was imported from France by Theo. Skillman. Raglan was bred by Joseph Davignon of Grauerie Department of Orue. Three of Raglan's colts were shown in Livermore on the 24th of February, 1900 and their average weight was 1835 pounds. Chief Kneiphusen was foaled March 5, 1897, and took the first prize in the San Francisco and San Mateo Horse Show in Tausoran Park. He has been bred to 52 mares and got 48 in foal. His colts can be seen at Livermore and at Redwood City. When he is full grown he will weigh over 2100 pounds.

Great Egg Yield From Cow Peas.

During the past week, says Southern Planter, a subscriber called on us and in the course of conversation said: "I had a wonderful egg yield from my hens last winter, and I want to tell the farmers how I secured it. I had an acre or two of cow peas sowed near the building. In consequence of scarceness of labor, I was unable to get all the peas gathered—in fact, a large part of them remained. I decided to let vines and peas die down on the land and lie there all winter. The hens soon found the peas and they literally lived on the patch until spring, and gave us eggs in quantity all the time." This report as to the value of cow peas as a winter feed is confirmed by a report from a gentleman in Maryland who followed the same plan. His hens harvested the peas from a plot of land last winter, with the result that he had eggs when none of his neighbors had any. We have before advised the feeding of cow peas to hens, as their richness in protein indicates that they should make eggs. If you have no cow peas, and even if you have the peas, we would advise the feeding with them of wheat, oats, buckwheat and corn mixed for one feed per day, with a hot mash in the morning during the cold weather. The cow peas may largely take the place of cut bone if you have them. Cut bone and meat scraps should, however, be fed twice a week. With such a feeding, good, dry, warm houses and young, healthy flocks, eggs should be plentiful all the winter—that is, assuming that you are keeping a good laying variety, such as Leghorns, Plymouth Rocks or Wyandottes. We have found that crosses bred hens—the product, for instance, of a pure bred Leghorn rooster on Plymouth Rock hens—are better layers than the pure breed

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings 'Instant Relief and Permanent
Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

BALLISTITE

The extreme high velocity and great penetration with unexcelled regularity of this powder erroneously cause the statement that it gives excessive breech and barrel pressure. The truth is, after exhaustive comparative tests, the

of this powder are found to be, load for load and velocity for velocity, the lowest of any sporting powder now used, giving the lightest recoil as well as Harness Horse News From Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 11, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Mr. Geo. A. Davis of Rancho Del Valle has added some stars to the light harness horses at our track. His stallion Rey Direct with four of his colts arrived here last Friday in charge of Ed Parker.

Rey Direct is in the pink of condition and it will keep a horse expert busy to find fault with him, either in a point of conformation, soundness or speed and as a producer of foals that have size, color, conformation, good bones, sound legs and the best of feet. For equine babies they can show as much speed as any ever foaled, age for age. Mr. Davis should be able to make a profitable season with his horse in Los Angeles.

We have Neernut 2:12½, the great son of Albert W., here and his performance speaks for itself. His colts that are being worked by Mr. Jonas are certainly good lookers and have plenty of speed.

Walter Maben is training a large stable of colts and aged ones. The star of Mr. Maben's colts is a beautiful sorrel by P. J. Williams' first class race horse Monterey 2:09½, and this colt does not belie his speedy trotting sire in either good looks or speed. Mr. Maben's great filly Italia is looking fit to race for a kingdom.

Mr. Hodges is training some good prospects; the two colts by the king of racing stallions Directum 2:05½ are certainly trotters. The black one shows the most speed and the best gait, but Hodges states that the bay will out trot him. Hodges is also training a full brother to the fast Dictatus gelding Funston that Sandy Smith took East last season. This one has not been asked to step any yet. Hodges is very sweet on him and looks for a fast pacer. It looks as though Dictatus will become a valuable sire.

Mr. Kent, who trained for M. M. Potter, looks lonesome with one Sweetheart to train and it is to be hoped that he will soon have a lot of fast ones as he certainly gave the Potter Stables a good administration.

Mr. Will Durfee of Dr. Book and Charley Mack fame is the busy man. His stable is gaining both in quality and quantity and Mr. Durfee will certainly keep his fellow knights of the sulky guessing the coming season. He is an up to date, energetic man at his business and should have success. He has several of the get of the great McKinney that look and act like real race horses.

Mr. Ward is training McKenna, one of the best bred and best looking McKinneys ever foaled, and his racing of last year stamped him as a reliable race horse. Mr. Ward has several good green ones in his stable and the star is a bay gelding by Neernut that can show speed enough to satisfy the most exacting horse man.

Mr. Williams, formerly with Mr. Wilson, of Cynthiana, Ky., is here and training several good ones. Cœur de Leon is his star and a pretty fast pacer. Mr. Williams is preparing a few good ones for Dr. Le Moyne Wills.

Robt. Hackney has several green ones that are worth watching. Mr. Hackney is a very energetic trainer and expects to turn out some Grand Circuit performers this spring.

Sam Washington is training a green pacing gelding by Advertiser. Sam has had him ninety days. He stepped him two miles in 2:18 each a few days ago and it looked easy. He is a big chestnut and wears nothing but his harness. He was bred at Palo Alto and was bought at a sale here. The star of Sam's stable is Stipulator by Titus, that Millard Sanders tried to buy. Sam is a painstaking trainer and has the reputation of being a first class speed maker.

I. C. Mosier, the veteran from Oregon, is here with his stallion Cœur d'Alene, the horse that held the North Pacific record for trotting two year olds. The writer saw him trot and shut out the cream of Oregon and Washington. Mr. Mosier has put several of his get in the list at early age, which stamps Cœur d'Alene as a sire of early and extreme speed. Mr. Mosier has three two year olds by his horse here and they all show speed enough to satisfy most any critic. He also has Scappoose 2:14½, pacing mare by Roy Wilkes 2:06½. This mare through her sire inherits extreme speed and gameness. She is not only a good looker, but is ready right now to step a quarter in 30 seconds. Mr. Mosier is a newcomer. He is a reliable man and deserves success.

Our driving club contemplates giving a first class matinee on Washington's Birthday.

James Thompson, the trainer whose eloquence of tongue far outshines that of William Jennings Bryan, must intend locating in Los Angeles; he has shipped his outfit here in the writer's care. It is to be hoped that Mr. Thompson will get a good stable; in any case he can always make a success as a lecturer before the Board of Review at any place or on any occasion. He has hosts of friends here and they will all welcome his coming.

Our track is now in fine condition and every horse man coming here can be sure of good stalls, good track and good treatment and the finest climate on earth.

John Donnelly is training Billy Green, a green trotter, by McKinney out of an Echo mare. This big gelding is a very fast one, having already shown his ability to trot a mile in 2:22. Mr. Donnelly expects to make an M. & M. candidate of him and barring accidents his wish will be fulfilled. He is owned by Mr. Bruener, who also owns Stanton Wilkes, one of the fastest unsexed sons of that crack sire Nutwood Wilkes. Stanton Wilkes will be in the stud here this season; he should be kept busy.

Horsemen here will be pleased to learn that the California track managers intend to give good liberal purses the coming season. Good racing material is plentiful and it is to be hoped that our best ones can get a chance to earn good money without going East in 1902.

Yours respectfully,

C. A. HARRISON.

Neernut 2:12 1-4 at Los Angeles.

During the month of February, owners of trotting bred mares in and around Los Angeles are to have the opportunity of breeding to that grand individual, fast race horse and royally bred stallion Neernut 2:12½, owned by Mr. Geo. W. Ford of Santa Ana. It is in response to numerous earnest requests that Mr. Ford has consented to leave the horse at Los Angeles during the rest of January and the entire month of February, and after that time Neernut's time will be divided between Los Angeles and his Santa Ana home.

When at the matinee of the Los Angeles Driving Club last Christmas day Mr. Ford mounted the sulky for the first time in three years and drove Neernut to victory in straight heats, defeating easily three of the crack free for all trotters of Southern California, so many owners of well bred mares requested Mr. Ford to leave Neernut there until March 1st that he could not decline. Mr. P. D. Jones has charge of the horse and also five of his colts, taken out of pasture since Christmas—the whole lot good racing prospects and for sale so that work can be commenced on the now coming three year olds which have not yet been broken to harness.

Neernut never served any outside mares until four years ago this coming season so that there are none of his get over three years old except the few bred by Mr. Ford. Not one of Neernut's coming three year olds owned by outside parties can be bought for less than $500 and up to $1000, so that there is certainly a profit in breeding to him.

Mr. Ford started in with five mares of short breeding and got five colts the same year—Neeretta 2:09½ (sold to European parties and one of the biggest winners across the pond this year), Dido, public mile at a matinee in 2:17, half in 1:05; Neerbell, public mile in 2:16. The other two sold for road purposes and never saw a track. The next crop was four foals, Neeretta's dam having missed. Of the four Neerana worked in public at Joliet, Illinois, on the 31st of last July last three heats in 2:14, 2:14 and 2:13. Mr. Crump, her owner, writes that he is holding her for next summer's racing, and when she starts there will be another 2:10 performer for Neernut. Toughnut worked at Los Angeles last winter in 2:18 pacing and 2:23 trotting. Neerdell, a full sister to Neerbell, paced a mile in 2:25, and Jimmy, a road horse sold to a Riverside party, has trotted a mile in 2:26. Toughnut and Neerdell are in Mr. Jones' charge now at the Los Angeles track and with the three young ones he has are going fast. It is a fact well known in Southern California that there has never been one of Neernut's get put on the track but showed lots of speed, and all prove fine road horses.

The breeding of Neernut is hard to beat in any country. His sire is Albert W. 2:20, son of Electioneer, out of Sister by John Nelson. The dam of Neernut is Clytie II. by Nutwood and second dam by Whipple's Hambletonian. Electioneer has more descendants in the 2:10 list than any other horse, and Nutwood is the greatest producer of 2:30 performers and the greatest sire of dams of 2:30 performers. Whipple's Hambletonian was a great sire for his opportunities and sired the dam of the great Azote 2:04½. The Electioneer-Nutwood cross produced Arion 2:07½, whose two year old record of 2:10½ to high wheels has not been approached since the speed accelerating bike has come into use. Arion is the only 2:10 trotter that has produced a 2:10 trotter, so that the combination of Electioneer and Nutwood blood is proving to be remarkable in many directions. The Los Angelenos are indeed fortunate to have a stallion like Neernut within reach and that they will appreciate the opportunity is certain.

Purchase one of the broodmares at the Sonoma Stock Farm's (estate of J. B. Chase) dispersal sale February 4th, breed her to a good stallion each year, give the foal plenty of feed and care and raise a stake winner. There are some great producers to be sold. Read the advertisement in this issue and send for a catalogue.

A Famous Broodmare.

Jessie Pepper, daughter of Mambrino Chief, has founded a family of her own that is second to none on the score of prepotency and extreme speed. She produced

Iona 2:17½ and Alpha 2:23½, both dams of 2:20 trotters. Wenonah, dam of two standard performers and one producing son and grandam of Pistol 28,884, Lady Geraldine 2:11½ (M. & M. winner), Wilask 2:11½, Alkalone 2:14½, Aristocrat 2:25½, Governor B. 2:26½, Leonore 2:28½, Ortolan 2:28½ and Stanmore 2:29½.

Gossip, dam of Don Wilkes 2:24½ (a 2:12½ sire), grandam of Baron Rogers 2:09½ and third dam of Battlesign 2:13½.

Metella, dam of Metallas 2:11.

Startling 2:33½, dam of Greystone (a 2:08½ sire) and grandam of Early Reaper 2:09½.

Le Grande, a 2:18 sire.

Iola, a great broodmare.

Almont Archy, 2:30 sire.

Omega, a 2:30 sire.

Astrione, grandam of Clesitay 2:17½.

Annabel, dam of Dolly Withers 2:29½ and Almont Wilkes, a 2:15 sire, and grandam of eight standard performers, including Heir at Law, trotting record 2:12, pacing record 2:05½, without hobbles at either gait. Almont Wilkes is grandsire of Pat L. 2:09½.

This is a great array of fast ones and producers to descend from one mare in three generations. Jessie Pepper is the great grandam of Mr. B. S. Krehe's young stallion Pistol, that is to make the season of 1902 at San Jose. Her blood in any pedigree is priceless. Pistol is bred very much like Heir at Law on his dam's side, as the dams of both horses are by Alcantara out of daughters of Jessie Pepper.

Eureka 2:15 1-4 as a Pole Horse.

The laurels gained by Frank Bower's celebrated trotting team, King Harry and John P. Stewart, during the past two seasons, has caused a split of rivalry among Philadelphia and nearby horsemen. Several well known drivers are out for Bower's scalp, so to speak, and among the latest to enter the difficult competition of mating a pair that can step with the pony crackerjacks is Dr. H. W. Lobb, of Belmont Driving Club. Some time ago, on the advice of John Splan, Lobb purchased the chestnut gelding Eureka 2:15½ by Ira, a son of Piedmont. Ira's dam was Irene, the dam of Stanford 2:26½ by Mohawk Chief. Eureka's dam was a celebrated road mare by Nutwood. Eureka was brought from California by the late Tom Keating and considered a world beater and is one of the hand-somest geldings in Philadelphia—15 hands 3 inches high, a deep chestnut in color, with the coronet white. After considerable search for a mate to Eureka, Lobb through John E. Madden, has secured a perfect match in a seven year old mare, recently named Belladonna by Charles H. Page, secretary of the Turf Club. Belladonna is by Don Wilkes, son of Red Wilkes, dam by Pickett, a son of Aberdeen. Don Wilkes is by Red Wilkes, dam Princess by Mambrino Pet, a son of Mambrino Patchen. Belladonna has no record, but has shown a trial over the State Fair track at Trenton-N. J., in 2:20. The team is perfectly matched, go together well on the walk or trot and can speed a 2:20 clip. They will be conditioned for next season's matinees, and, with the good luck that should go with their names, the Doctor thinks he can beat any team in Philadelphia.—Trotter and Pacer.

Chicago's Great Stock Yards.

The stupendous magnitude of the business done at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, is shown by last year's official reports, which gives for the twelve months a total of 16,200,000 head of live stock at cash sales amounting to $200,000,000. The horse market was established in 1866, and that year a total of 1553 horses were received. An idea can be formed of how this branch of the business has grown, by the fact that on May 25th last, more horses were received on that one day than were received the entire first year. The total for 1901 for 109,390 horses and mules, the sales amounting to $13,128,000. The largest number for one day was 1697, and the largest number for one month 13,288—the month of March. The outlook for the coming year is brighter and will no doubt break all previous records.

Cresceus Earns More Than $70,000.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 10.—George H. Ketcham, the owner and driver of Cresceus, announced today that during the year he received more than $70,000 in purses and as money for exhibitions given in various parts of the country by Cresceus. The horse was today taken to the Ketcham farm, where he will remain during the winter.

The Abbot, Lord Derby and Boralma.

Two match races were made in New York last Wednesday that will result in great races during the coming season. The matches were the outgrowth of the following banter made by Thos. W. Lawson of Boston and published in the American Horse Breeder of that city January 7th:

"If there is any one who has an idea at the present time he owns a horse the equal of Boralma, and thinks so strongly enough to make a match now for anything from $5000 to $20,000, best three in five, twenty-five per cent forfeit to be deposited now, twenty-five per cent June 1, and the balance the night before the race, Lord Derby, The Abbot or Cresceus preferred, let him speak up, and if his voice sounds pleasant, I think we can come to an interesting agreement; or better still, if the owners of Cresceus, Lord Derby and The Abbot will get together, I will race one at Hartford for $5000 a side, one at Readville for the same amount, and the third one at Lexington for the same amount, and if the three combined can win a majority of the three races I to pay them $10,000; if not, they to pay me $10,000, one half of the gate receipts of each of the three races to go to local charities to be named by the winner or the track association."

When this deft of Mr. Lawson's was published, Mr. Scannell, owner of The Abbot 2:03½, and Mr. Smathers, owner of Lord Derby 2:06½, went to the office of the New York Journal and deposited $5000 each, and on Tuesday night of this week Mr. Lawson telegraphed two checks of $5000 each to bind the matches. As Mr. Ketcham has repeatedly announced that Cresceus is to be retired permanently to the stud at the end of his exhibition tour, and has already booked many mares to him, it is not likely that he will pay any Shorter Races and Shorter Distance.

When the Biennial Congress of the National and American Trotting Associations meets next month at New York, an effort will be made to have the distance shortened in all races. President Ijams, of the American Association, would like to see the distances shortened to 40 yards, but if it is made less than the present 80 yards there will probably be a compromise on 70 in races where less than eight horses start and 90 where eight or more are lined up. At the preliminary meeting of representatives of the two associations held in New York last week there was considerable discussion as to this and other proposed reforms, and reported as follows in the New York Sun:

Beyond a doubt associations will not hail with delight the shortening of the distance ground, and it was argued in the corridors that just as they did with the hoppers associations in announcing their race conditions, they could reserve the right to go by the old rule. However, if the measure be adopted, it is hard to see just how meetings can be conducted with such violation in any one clause. With the hoppers it was far different, the parent associations leaving it optional on the part of members as to whether hoppers were or were not to be tolerated. It was significant, this general desire to see races shortened and the methods of the running turf somewhat adopted, and not a few who chatted on the subject expressed the opinion that from now on the races must end with the fifth heat.

Few drivers took interest in this conference and so could not be interviewed. As a rule they favor the on a board where they can see it plain as can be.

"Another thing. The shorter the races the better is the betting always you will find. You just get the horses together in a dash race, two in three or that Brighton Beach plan and I'll give 50 per cent more everywhere for their betting privileges. They can't get the races too short to suit the bettors. I know for I've watched it closely."

Mary by Flaxtail.

In volume 3 of the American Trotting Register, on page 428, among the mares there registered is the following:

Mary, b m foaled 1866, got by Flaxtail (pacer); dam by a horse called Bright Eyes. Bred by Geo. Lieurance, Mahaska county, Iowa; owned by M. W. Hicks, Keokuk, Iowa.

Old Mary and her owner, Dr. Hicks, have both passed away, but the old mare's produce is breeding on and by their performances fulfilling all and more than all the predictions made for them by her owner.

Of Mary's foals, but one, Apex 2:26, has a standard record, but in the second, third and fourth generations the blood of old Mary is marching on. Mary herself had a record of 2:42 and a public trial of 2:25.

Bred to Prompter, she produced Apex that took a trotting record of 2:26 at Santa Rosa in 1886, when high wheel sulkies were in vogue.

Bred to Egmont she produced Sterling 6223, that sired Acrobat 2:18½, Charivari 2:20½, Argent 2:24½, Rattle Bones 2:28 and the stallion Brilliant that produced Brilliantine 2:17½, a mare that has paced a half attention to the Lawson challenge.

There will be a world of talk and speculation as to the result of the two races. Each horse has its friends and reasons will be offered in profusion why it should beat the other. Boralma has the hardest task to perform, as he will be expected to beat both horses. On form The Abbot should be the favorite. He has a record more than three seconds faster than Lord Derby and 3½ faster than Boralma. That he can trot a mile in 2:05 anytime when in perfect condition is pretty certain, while neither of the other two has demonstrated that he is that fast. Lord Derby trotted the last half of the mile in 1:02½ when making his record and is thought by some to be the coming champion. He defeated Boralma handily last year.

The breeding of these three geldings is noteworthy:

The Abbot 2:03½ is by Chimes, son of Electioneer and Beautiful Bells, out of Nettie King 2:20½ by Mambrino King; second dam Nettie Murphy by Hamlin's Patchen.

Lord Derby 2:06½ is by Mambrino King, son of Mambrino Patchen and Belle Thornton by Edwin Forrest, out of Claribel by Almont Jr.; second dam Coraline by Almonarch.

Boralma 2:07 is by Boreal, son of Bow Bells (brother to Chimes); his dam is Earalma by Earl, second dam Amal by Clay.

Mr. J. B. Haggin now owns five thousand acres of blue grass land in Kentucky and is ready to buy more from adjoining owners whenever the price is right. He has sixteen stallions and three hundred mares at Elmendorf.

Brighton Beach plan, but do not believe in too vigorous measures to prevent laying up of heats. Nor do they favor a shorter distance flag. Mr. Ijams argues that it is a part of the trainer's vocation to so balance and educate his horses as to prevent these standstill breaks and consequent distancing.

"I breed horses, have had a trainer for years, race my own horses at times, have acted many times as starting judge, and I tell you we must advance, not stand still and do things thus and so just because our predecessors were so inclined," he said. "Racing today is a great public amusement, and all should lend a hand to the end that our racegoing assemblages see actual contests—every heat scheduled for decision."

Andy Welch said: "I think I hit the right idea by giving every heat winner in the Charter Oak $10,000 stake $1,000 regardless of where he finished in the other heats. Make it an object to win extra money and the drivers are alert to get there by the shortest route. Records today count but little. It's no longer 'wait till I get him just to an edge, then a killing,' for by the time they are ready to move what is the consequence? Why they start favorite always."

"You can't cheat nowadays with a horse as you could a few years ago. No chance on earth to work and race horses 'under cover' like the old fellows did years ago. No, sir. I believe in big stake races, dashes above a mile and practically three moneys; then let the public make the odds on any proposed system following the plan of the old mutual system—each horse at $5 and the number of tickets sold posted in less than one minute.

Sent to the court of Wayland Forrest Mary produced Lettie, that is the dam of the pacer Welcome 2:10½ and the trotters Wayland W. 2:12½ and Maud Singleton 2:28½. Of these Welcome is the sire of Iloilo 2:29½, his first colt to start; Wayland W. is the sire of Arthur W. 2:11½ and John A. 2:12½, while Maud Singleton is the dam of Silver Ring 2:14½.

Mary was bred to Buccaneer and produced Grace, that is the dam of Daedalion 2:11, Eagle 2:19½ and Creole 2:15, and Grace has a four and a five year old by Silver Bow that will take low records at the trot just as certain as they are raced. Creole is the sire of Javelin 2:08½.

To the cover of Prompter Grace produced Ripple, that bred to Durfee produced Effie Logan, dam of the great race horse Sir Albert S. 2:08½.

Another foal of Mary's by Buccaneer was Gazelle, that was the dam of Algenie and Algenie is the dam of Kelly Briggs 2:10½.

Let us recapitulate:

Mary by Flaxtail, dam of Apex 2:26.

Sons produced 4 from 2:18½ to 2:28.

Grandson produced 1 in 2:17½.

Daughters produced 6 from 2:10½ to 2:19½.

Sons of daughters produced 3 from 2:08½ to 2:12½.

Granddaughters produced 3 from 2:08½ to 2:14½.

Great granddaughter produced 1 in 2:08½.

This is quite a record for one mare.

Strike!—if they don't give you Jackson's Nana Soda

Notes and News.

Begin right now.

Breeding will begin next month.

The Rochester, N. Y., amateur driving club has five hundred members.

Two pacing sons of Onward have each sired a trotter that took a record better than 2:10.

Board of Directors of Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will meet next week.

James Thompson has gone to Los Angeles with a string of horses to train over the track there.

William Mac 2:05½ established eleven track records and four State records during the season just closed.

Secretary Sidney W. Giles claims the week beginning July 28th, for the Grand Circuit meeting at Cleveland.

W. O. Bowers of Sacramento, claims the name Betsy Bee for a chestnut filly by Silver Bee 2:27½ out of Sadie Benton.

Neva Simmons 2:11½, it is said, was fed and raised with a bottle, her dam going dry when the filly was but a month old.

No books on harness races at the State Fair will meet the endorsement of all the harness horse owners in California without exception.

Your weanling is now a yearling, your yearling a two year old and your two year old is three. This is all because a new year has arrived.

Geo. W. Ford, the well known nurseryman of Santa Ana, has sold the Santa Ana race track which he purchased last year at a foreclosure sale.

Rose Leyburn 2:15½ by Onward is fifteen years old. She has six living foals and five of them have records of 2:30 or better. The sixth is a yearling.

C. W. Williams' five stallions covered 330 mares in 1901, an average of about seventy for each. The stallions will be taken to Kentucky again in 1902.

At the next meeting of the Los Angeles Driving Club it is proposed to have half mile pacing and trotting races to saddle if it is possible to secure sufficient entries.

The fastest pair of horses driven by any person as a team is owned by C. T. Chapin of Rochester, New York. They are the pacers Connor 2:03½ and Dariel 2:05½.

W. P. Ijams of Terre Haute has secured the services of Joe Bruce as trainer, and he now has at the famous four-cornered track sixteen head of two and three year olds by Axtell.

The National Educator says that the best drivers talk to their animals, and the journal might truthfully have added that many of the poorest drivers talk to the owners and do lots of it.

One of the early foals of the year made its appearance at Geo. W. Ford's farm at Santa Ana on January 4th. It is a handsome filly by Neernut 2:12½ out of Alcola by Mambrino Wilkes.

Online 2:04 pacing and Directum 2:05½ trotting, are now occupying adjoining stalls on the International Stock Farm in Minnesota. They hold the four year old record at their respective gaits.

The Stallion Stake inaugurated by the California State Agricultural Society should be one of the largest stakes for trotting and pacing three year olds in America. It will be if owners will nominate their stallions.

The census of the eastern and middle states shows a great falling off in the number of young horses. In Maine for instance in 1891 there were 27,370 horses three years old or younger, while in 1901 there were but 8,670.

Thos. M. Lawson says over his own signature that it is true that he offered the Hamlins $25,000 for Dare Devil, which offer was refused, and adds that he stands ready right now to pay $30,000 for the son of Mambrino King and Mercedes by Chimes.

G. W. Baum of Pittsburgh has consigned the trotting mare Neva Simmons 2:11½ by Simmons, dam Neva, to the Woodard & Shanklin sale, at Lexington, Ky., in February. The mare has been one of the biggest money winners on the Grand Circuit.

Peter Duryear, who secured Shadow Chimes 2:06½ at the Madison Square Garden sale with a bid of $5100, says: "I intended to send the horse to Mr. West, of Edinburgh, Scotland, but John J. Scannell, fire commissioner of New York, and owner of The Abbot 2:03½, wanted the great pacer so much that I let him have him. Shadow Chimes will remain in Geer's stable, but the reinsman does not own a cent in him."

Third payment of $10 each has been made on 156 foals named for the First Pacific Breeders Futurity, that has a guaranteed value of $6000. This stake is for foals of 1901.

Second payment was made on 231 of the original 299 mares named in the Second Pacific Breeders Futurity for the foals of mares bred in 1901. This is a great showing and gives promise that the stake may exceed the $6000 guaranteed.

A daughter of Buccaneer will be offered at the sale of horses from the Sonoma Stock Farm at the old Killip & Co. salesyard, corner Market and Van Ness avenue, February 4th. Buccaneer sired Grace, the dam of Daedalion 2:11 and Creole 2:15.

Brown Bess, a mare by Antevolo out of Black Bess by Venture, is among the broodmares to be sold at the closing out of the stock belonging to the estate of J. B. Chase, deceased, which will take place at the salesyard, 1732 Market street, in this city, February 4th.

Freddie C. 2:14½, the little pony by Direct that was only a short neck behind Sir Albert S. in 2:11½ at the Breeders' meeting last August in Sacramento, is being wintered at Seattle. The little fellow is looking better than ever and will make things warm in the 2:15 classes this year whenever and wherever he starts.

The California bred broodmare Lady Mackay by Silverthreads 18653, son of The Moor, adds another performer to her list in the trotter Marchurst Belle 2:23½. Lady Mackay is now the dam of four in the list, including the stallion Oakland Baron 2:09½, two speed-siring sons and one speed-producing daughter.

There is a five year old brown gelding by Secretary, out of Brown Bess by Antevolo 2:19½, second dam by Venture in the Sonoma Stock Farm's dispersal sale that should be snapped up quickly when put up for bids. It is not only a fine individual but has every prospect of being a fast trotter and valuable roadster.

The usual crop of 2:10 trotters and 2:05 pacers is growing fast under the genial warmth of the hot air meetings that are being held wherever two or more horse owners are gathered together, but the honing they get on the Jaw Bone Circuit will put the majority of them out of business before the training season is fairly under way.

There are eight pacers that have paced in 2:02 or better, as follows: Star Pointer 1:59½, John R. Gentry 2:00½, Prince Alert 2:00½, Joe Patchen 2:01½, Little Bcy 2:01½, Robert J. 2:01½, Anaconda 2:01½ and Coney 2:02. How many men now alive expected during the day of the high wheel sulky to see or read of such an array of extremely fast sidewheelers.

Gazelle 2:11½ by Gossiper 2:14½ seems destined to be a great broodmare. At nine years of age she is the dam of Zolock 2:10½, Zephyr, a 2:10 trotting prospect, owned by M. J. C. McKinney, of Titusville, Pa., for which he paid $9000 last spring; also a two year old, trial eighth in 16 seconds, sired by Titus, and another good prospect. Gazelle is now in foal to Council Chimes 2:07½ and will probably never be raced again.

William C. Trimble, a veteran horseman and the patriarch of the American trotting turf, died at Newburg, New York, on the 7th inst., aged seventy-six years. He trained and developed Mountain Boy in 1865 and gave Cobwebs, the speedway champion, his record in 1894. He spent fifty years with trotters and was known among horsemen all over the country. His last appearance as a driver was on the Newburg track last fall.

Mr. Hugh F. R. Vail of Santa Barbara, has arranged to send his mare Veronica 2:29, dam of his stallion Neil W., to be bred to Iran Alto 2:12½ this year. Veronica has been bred to the Santa Rosa Stock Farm's stallion, Almonition, for the past three years and has two fine fillies by that horse. Veronica is an inbred Almont, being by Alcona 730, son of Almont, out of Fontana the dam of Silas Skinner 2:17, and two others, by Almont.

Keepsake, dam of Tommy Britton 2:06½, has but six living foals, and four have records: Katie Britton 2:25, foaled 1891, by Egotist 2:22½; Tommy Britton 2:06½, foaled 1893, by Liberty Bell 2:24; J. R. Slaughter 2:26½, foaled 1895, by Liberty Bell, and Rose Warren 2:23½, foaled 1896, by Alta Vista. Keepsake is now owned by William Simpson, of Empire City Stud, and her other two foals are Keeps (1898) by Prince of India 2:13½ and a filly (1901) by Stately 2:11½, pacing, son of Hummer.

The American and National trotting rules will be amended at the Biennial Congress to be held in New York on the 12th of next month so as to prohibit any heat in a race being called after sunset. This will entirely remove the trouble that has occurred every year under the old rule which prohibits horses being started when it is too dark for the judges to distinguish their gait. Some wonderful cases of owl eyed judges have been developed under this rule, especially on the last day of a meeting.

Santa Rosa Stock Farm came very near losing a valuable filly the other day with lung fever, the same disease that carried off Janice 2:08½. This filly is a four year old by Sidney Dillon out of Lou Milton, dam of Redwood 2:21½ and Ethel Mack 2:25, and was one of the most promising candidates for last year's Occident Stake, but was taken with distemper and did not start. She had shown quarters in 33 seconds and it would probably have taken heats in 2:15 or thereabouts to defeat her. When attacked with lung fever last week, the experience with Janice came in play and the filly was taken in hand immediately and is now all right again.

Ten years and more ago the pen name of Father A. T. Hendrick—"Aurelius"—was one of the most familiar on the list of contributors to the turf press, while his contributions were also among the ablest of that era. Of late he has dropped out of the field—which is a matter of general regret—but his pen is busy in others which pertain to his life work. Father Hendrick is now the rector of St. Bridget's Catholic Church of Rochester, N. Y., and is one of the most active and respected clergymen in the Empire State.

The record for the Russian Orloff trotter is now 2:14½ and with American training methods and American drivers it looks as if the time is not far distant when the Russian breed will compete with the American. It is well to note, however, that Goldsmith Maid made her champion record of 2:14 on September 2, 1874, and it has taken the American breeder twenty-five years to get from 2:14 to 2:02½, and with a start of a quarter of a century the Russian trotter is not liable to catch up in the next generation.—Spirit of the Times.

The Ann Arbor Driving Club, its officers and members stand suspended for failure to pay the $300 free-for-all purse last fall. The suspension is the result of a protest against the club's action filed by the winner, Mr. Goldberg of Detroit, who is the owner of Satin Slippers. The mare won the race in the time surrounding 2:27, although the racer has a mark of 2:09. The driving club considered it a put-up race in the stables and refused to let the ghost walk. It has not yet been determined what will be done with the record on the black list.

It is learned that Thomas W. Lawson, who is establishing a breeding farm at Scituate, Mass., has asked the Hamlins for a price on Dare Devil 2:09 by Mambrino King. However, the Village Farm people have advised Mr. Lawson that no money would buy the black stallion, declining to sell at any price. Dare Devil is nine years old and a fine individual. He has won seven first prizes and three championships at the national horse show, New York, and will some day be at the head of the Village Farm stud. He already has many fine sons and daughters at the farm.

A. E. Perren has been paying a visit to his old friends in Buffalo, and in an interview said in part: "The time is past when a man can say of a trotter or pacer that he has outlived his usefulness on the track and can be retired to the speedway. The speedway of to-day demands the best there is. There are no finer harness horses in the world than those seen on the New York speedway. Yes, an afternoon on the New York speedway nowadays is a treat and an education to the lover of the horse. Splendid animals are out. They must not alone possess speed, but must be fine actors, and possess distinct character."

Mr. A. H. Miller of Buffalo, New York, who has purchased quite a number of California horses during the past few years, among others Gazelle 2:11½, Agitato 2:09 and Mamie Griffin 2:12, will consign nearly all his horses to the Fasig-Tipton New York sale this month. He says: "I am not going out of the business entirely, but only want a couple of high class campaigners—a trotter and a pacer. When the campaign opens again I may decide to purchase a campaigner if I run across the right kind—a sensational performer well staked. I prefer paying several thousand dollars more for a horse all ready for the races in June or July than to run the chances of knocking out a good prospect now in training." Mr. Miller is the gentleman who wanted Zolock 2:10½ and Anzella 2:10½ and offered $10,000 and $3500 for them respectively.

"Andy" McDowell, who drove Alix, Azote, Directly as a two year old to his record of 2:07½, and Georgena to her record, when a cripple, of 2:07½, has several really good horses in preparation for his 1902 campaign. He will again race little Martha Marshall 2:07½, the only pacer that ever took a heat from Dan Patch 2:04½, Aggie Medium 2:12½, Major Greer 2:14, Betsy Tell 2:29½, that has been second in races in 2:14, and a few others belonging to William Kelly, the wealthy Brooklyn contractor who formerly owned Dan Cupid 2:09½, and on pleasant days drives them regularly on the speedway. "Andy" McDowell is probably the best "catch" driver to-day before the public and can get more out of a tired horse than any of our leading trainers. He has the satisfaction of knowing that few ever left him to lower the records he gave them, which shows just how great a reinsman and conditioner he is. Since giving up Monroe Salisbury's horses he has lived East, and as he likes New York he will probably be a member of our local contingent for several seasons to come.—N. Y. Sun.

The Sacramento Record-Union says: "Mayor George H. Clark has a new pacer called Fred Ames, purchased for him in New York by Vet Tryon at the Fasig sale held there a few weeks ago. Fred Ames is a handsome bay gelding, weighing a little less than 1,000 pounds, and is by Bayard Wilkes, a son of George Wilkes. Last summer at Readville, Mass., to a wagon at a driving club matinee he was second by a length to a horse which took the heat in 2:09½. From this it appears that on the Riverside road this summer and at the matinees of the local driving club the steed that passes the Mayor's flyer will have to be speedy. It is the opinion of some of the horsemen that Joe Terry's Margaretta will give the new pacer as hot a brush as any hereabouts." Fred Ames is nine years old, and has a race record of 2:20½ made on a half mile track in 1900. In 1901, he was used by Geo. F. Leonard of Boston, as a matinee horse and pulled a wagon in 2:15½. Best of all, this horse can be driven by anyone, on the road or in races as he is clean gaited and level headed, needs no straps or boots, and can be rated at any part of the mile.

STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

Prospective Change in Betting System-- New Stallion Stake for Trotting and Pacing Colts.

The State Board of Agricultural Directors held a meeting last Saturday afternoon, with the following members present: A. B. Spreckels, J. E. Terry, John Mackey, C. W. Paine, Benjamin Rush, Park Henshaw, Grove L. Johnson and Frank Covey.

The meeting was called for the special purpose of making arrangements to turn over Agricultural Park to the possession of the State of California, in accordance with the provisions of an Act of the last Legislature, which appropriated $45,000 to pay the debt of the Agricultural Society. As it was considered best to obtain a clear legal knowledge of the method of transfer, a committee was appointed consisting of Directors Johnson, Henshaw and Mackey, who were empowered to obtain the legal information and report to the board at its next meeting on February 8th.

The betting question at State Fairs was taken under discussion, and the secretary was instructed to get the opinion of horsemen from all over the State as to the advisability of selling auction pools and Paris mutuels on all harness events, and bookmaking on all running events.

As many of the horse owners of the State had misunderstood the provisions of the Stallion Stake, for the get of stallions entered January 1, 1901, the date of entries was extended to March 1, 1901, in order to give them a chance to enter their colts.

A new departure was made in racing circles by the formulating of a new stallion stake for harness events. Following is the announcement:

For the get of stallions that made private or public service, season of 1901, for their foals of 1902. The race to be contested at the State Fair at Sacramento, 1905.

Entrance fee for stallions to be the price that they made public service during the season of 1901. All other stallions that did not make public service, entrance fee to be $20. Stallions to be named February 1, 1902.

All foals that are the get of any stallion entered in this stake to be eligible to be entered on July 15, 1903. Entrance fee $50 each, of which $5 must accompany the entry, and a further payment of $10 March 1, 1904, and a further payment of $15 each May 1, 1905. All starters to be named on the 1st day of August, 1905, when the final payment of $20 shall be made, and all colts making this final payment shall be eligible to start. The State Agricultural Society to add an amount equal to all moneys paid in by the nominators of the stallions, not to exceed $1000.

Entrance money paid in for stallions and added moneys shall be divided 60 per cent. to the end for trotting colts, and 40 per cent. to the end for pacing colts. No nominator allowed to start more than one colt at either end.

The nominator of any colts shall on May 1, 1904, then declare as to the trotting or pacing end he desires to start his colts. All moneys paid in on colts transferred to the pacing division shall be segregated and placed to the credit of the pacing stake and all other payments shall be placed to the credit of the trotting stake.

All payments not made as they become due declares entry out and releases subscriber from further liability. Hopples barred in both classes. Mile heats, three in five.

Nominator of the sires of the winning colts in each end to receive $250, balance of the stakes and added money to be divided 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent. Right reserved to declare two starters a walkover for stakes paid in only.

When only two start they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided 66 2/3 per cent to the winner and 33 1/3 per cent to the second horse. A horse distancing the field in either class shall be entitled to all moneys paid in, and 25 per cent only of the money added by the society.

Open to all stallions that have made private or public service in any of the following States: California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and Arizona during the season of 1901.

No entry will be accepted except under this condition: That all disputes that may arise in regard to the conditions of this race shall be settled by the Board of Directors of the State Agricultural Society, or those whom they may appoint, and the decision shall be final.—Sacramento Record-Union.

To the usual statement "not afraid of steam, cable or electric cars" which is used in advertising horses for sale for city purposes, must now be added "or automobiles."

Sober up on Jackson's Napa Soda.

Getting Lively at the Horse Centre.

Although the weather has been anything but favorable in this section of California for the past month, frosty mornings and no rain making farmers and horse breeders rather anxious, scarcely a day passes that does not see a few additional stalls at the famous Pleasanton training track filled with newcomers.

The largest string stabled here is from the Santa Rosa Stock Farm and in charge of that able speed instructor, Millard Sanders. With Dolly Dillon 2:07 and Bonsilene 2:14 1/2 to act as demonstrators, and a class of a dozen youngsters of more or less enthusiasm and promise, Mr. Sanders is kept very busy and when the warm weather of spring comes he will be riding some fast quarters and halves.

Geo. A. Kelly is not doing much at present aside from making a number of improvements in the pretty little home he recently purchased here, and keeping Anzella 2:10 1/2 and one or two more in good shape. Mr. Kelly declined $3500 for Anzella twice lately and will race her through the Grand Circuit unless he gets the price he thinks the mare is worth. Every good judge of a trotting horse who has seen Anzella race will tell you that she is worth more money than Mr. Kelly asks for her.

Bert Webster is handling a lot of youngsters for Chas. Griffith in his quiet but effective way. I notice that Bert always has his charges in good shape, that he is careful and painstaking and can teach the speed lessons as well as any of them. Mr. Griffith has taken up his residence here and is driving Bonnie Direct 2:05 1/2 much himself. It makes no difference who drives Bonnie they all "rubber" when the handsome stallion goes by.

J. M. Alviso is taking good care of Rey del Diablo 2:23 and getting ready to begin work on some extra good prospects belonging to Lou Crellin. There is a Searchlight or two to break, I believe, though not old enough to train for the races.

Mr. Geo. A. Davis of Rancho del Valle sent his handsome stallion Rey Direct 2:10 and four of his coming two year olds to Los Angeles last week. Rey Direct will make the season of 1902 down there and the four two year olds were taken along to show what sort Rey Direct produces. Mr. Parker also took the old pacer Col. Benton 2:14 1/2 by Brown Jug with him.

Sam Gamble has three three year olds at the track. The black stud colt by Axtell will be a handsome horse and as he is bred in the purple ought to be a sire of speed. Some one asked Sam the other day if he was training him for the races and he answered, "Not yet; I am training him for a stallion at present." The filly by Kremlin 2:07 1/2 acts like a rare good one.

Ed Lafferty went down to the city last week and came back with a mare that looks like one of those good things that is not picked up every day. She is by Chas. Derby out of an Anteeo mare and was bred up at Oakwood Park. I believe Mr. Umben, the popular real estate dealer of San Francisco, is her owner. Lafferty has four or five others that he is getting in shape—among them two full brothers by Silver Bow 2:16 out of Grace, the dam of Daedalion 2:11 Creole 2:15 and Eagle 2:19 1/2. The five year old is a peacherino and the four year old is very much like him.

Worth Ober has quite a number of horses belonging to the Sharon estate that he is working the long hair off from and teaching not to snort every time they are looked at. Worth is one of the best horse educators in the country, however, and it will not be long until he has them all looking at locomotives as if they were old friends and acting as if those pesky automobiles were something good to eat.

Mr. Juan Gallegos has a string of good looking and well bred young horses here that were bred by him on his beautiful farm at Mission San Jose. They are in charge of his son, who is a polite and attentive young gentleman who takes great interest in all the horses in his care. A Diablo colt is very promising and a handsome horse, while a blocky built filly by Direct is showing lots of speed.

Several trainers have applied for stalls on February 1st, and William Sutherland, who is superintending the track and keeping it in good condition, is willing to bet a good box of cigars against one of Alviso's cigarettes, that if there are two or three weeks of rain in February there will be two or three hundred horses at the track in March. As Jim seldom bets unless he has a pretty good thing, just keep your eye on Pleasanton after the rainy season. IMA RAILBIRD.

There are now eight sires credited with having sired 100 or more standard performers as follows: Nutwood 2:18, with 165; Elctioneer, with 160; Onward 2:25 1/2, with 158; Red Wilkes, with 158; Alcantara 2:23, with 149; Simmons 2:28, with 106; Wilton 2:19 1/2, with 102, and Gambetta Wilkes 2:19 1/2, with 101. The three last named were added to this exclusive list this year. Of those sires, Onward, Red Wilkes, Alcantara, Wilton and Gambetta Wilkes are still living.

Hart Boswell Goes to Pleasanton.

Mr. Geo. A. Davis, of Pleasanton, than whom there is no more intelligent and enthusiastic lover and breeder of trotting horses, has made arrangements by which he has secured from owner K. O'Grady, of San Mateo, the stallion Hart Boswell and will take him to Pleasanton for the season of 1902.

Hart Boswell has been of late years one of the "overlooked" stallions of California. Bred in lines that are of the very richest purple, an individual of rare merit, he has not received the patronage he deserved, and none of his colts have been trained, although they are fine lookers and have plenty of natural speed.

Recognizing the fact that Onward is the greatest living son of George Wilkes, and that his well bred sons will be much sought after this year by intelligent breeders, Mr. Davis has secured Hart Boswell, son of Onward and the great mare Nancy Lee by Dictator, that gave to the world the wonderful Nancy Hanks 2:04, queen of her day, and already the dam of a wonderful colt trotter.

Hart Boswell is now twelve years old, and was bred by Hart Boswell, of Kentucky (for whom he was named), and purchased by Samuel Gamble for the Hobart Stock Farm, which, unfortunately for the breeding interests of California, was disbanded upon the death of its founder. Onward, sire of Hart Boswell, is now the sire of 158 in the standard list, of which 26 have records of 2:15 or better and nine are in the 2:10 list, more of the extreme speed performers than are to the credit of any other sire. Onward is looked upon by a very large number of horsemen as the best son of George Wilkes, and when it is recollected that his dam is the great broodmare Dolly, that also gave to the world the mighty Director 2:17, sire of Directum 2:05 1/2 and Direct 2:05 1/2, and founder of a wonderful family, and that she also produced Thorndale 2:22 1/2, John F. Payne and Pretender, all producing sires, as well as four standard performers and the dams of several fast ones, it is not surprising that the claim is made. Onward leads all living sires in the number of 2:30 performers, in the number of 2:20 performers and all sires, living or dead, in the number of 2:10 performers. On the Eastern Grand Circuit the get of Onward made a wonderful showing this year and led the produce of any other stallion in the amount of money won. When race horses are up for discussion, the kind that have gone out and won money in contests, the names of the trotters Beuzette 2:06 1/2, Onward Silver 2:08, Pilatus 2:09 1/2, Cornelia Belle 2:10, Cut Glass 2:10 1/2, and the pacers Pearl Onward 2:06 1/2, Gazette 2:07 1/2, Colbert 2:07 1/2, Col. Thornton 2:09 1/2, Major Mason 2:09 1/2 come to mind, and they are all sons and daughters of Onward.

The dam of Hart Boswell ranks high among the broodmares as his sire does among the stallions. Nancy Lee was sired by the great Dictator, sire among many others of the champion Jay Eye See 2:06 1/2, whose name was once a household word, and whose daughters have produced Lockheart 2:08 1/2, Gazette 2:07 1/2, Rex Americus 2:11 1/2, Princess Eulalie 2:09 1/2 and more than a dozen in the 2:15 list. Nancy Lee was herself the greatest daughter of Dictator as she produced Nancy Hanks 2:04, and Nancy Stam 2:30, and her son Dictator Wilkes is the sire of Dick Turpin 2:09 1/2 and seven more with standard records. Nancy Lee's dam was Sophy, a daughter of Edwin Forrest 49, and the grandam of Mike Wilkes 2:16 1/2. Sophy's dam was by Parker's Brown Pilot, a son of Copperbottom, her grandam a thoroughbred mare by Bertrand out of a mare by Lance.

Here is the very choicest of breeding—high class producing trotting blood, backed by the very best of thoroughbred, and it is to be found on both sides of Hart Boswell's pedigree.

The most successful and scientific thoroughbred breeders have a rule which says that the best results are obtained by "returning to a stallion the best strains of his dam." This is the Bruce Lowe theory, which is finding so many followers in England, Australia and the United States. Now the best strain in the dam of Hart Boswell is from her sire Dictator, as the latter produced Director, sire of Directum and Direct, the latter the sire of Directly 2:03 1/2, Bonnie Direct 2:05 1/2 and Rey Direct 2:10. In and around Pleasanton there are many daughters of Director, Direct and Directum and some young fillies by Bonnie Direct and Rey Direct. By breeding these mares to Hart Boswell, breeders will be following the thoroughbred rule of "returning to the sire the best strains of his dam," and it should produce great results. We understand Hart Boswell's service fee will be $30.

In speaking of the Dallas, Texas, track, Mr. Ketcham said after driving Cresceus over it in 2:07 1/2: "There are only five trotting tracks in the world that are better, namely, Detroit, Cleveland, Columbus, Providence and Memphis. The last named—the best in the world—is the only one pronouncedly its superior. Dallas is close up in the class with the others."

THE NEW STAKE for the get of harness stallions which has been inaugurated by the California State Agricultural Society, the official announcement of which will be found in the advertising columns of this journal, should meet the approval and receive the support and endorsement of every stallion owner on the Pacific Coast. There are wonderful possibilities in this stake and if the breeders of trotters and pacers give it one-half the patronage it deserves it will be the largest stake ever contested for in America. The stake is for the get of stallions that may be nominated, the nomination fee for these stallions to be the amount of their fee in 1901 where they stood for public service; private stallions to pay $20 each nomination fee. In the columns of the Holiday edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN there were 45 stallions advertised whose service fees ranged from $20 to $100 each, the total being $1650. Should all of these stallions be entered (and they do not comprise one-tenth of the standard bred horses that will be in the stud on the Pacific Coast during 1902) the stake would have $2650 in it before a foal was entered, as the State Agricultural Society will add $1000 in such case. The stake is open to the get of all stallions that were in service in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and Arizona during 1901, and if 100 stallions are named in it there should be nearly a thousand foals on which first payment of $5 is made June 1, 1903, when the foals are one year old, and as the entire entrance fee on the foals is but $50 including a starting fee of $20, it will be the least expensive stake ever devised. The very least amount that can be expected in this stake is $5000 and $50 is but one per cent of the stake. If the stake reaches $10,000 (and it should far exceed that amount) the entire entrance fee would be but one-half of one per cent, something unheard of in the history of trotting and pacing or any other stakes. The stake is to be contested in 1905, when the colts entered are three years old and will be in two divisions, 60 per cent going to trotters and 40 per cent to the pacers, while the owners of stallions that sire the winners are to get $250 each. We do not know of a stake where the payments are so easy. The first, of $5 is not due until the colt is a year old. There is a payment of $10 due March 1st of the following year, and one of $15 May 1st of the year of the race. These are all the payments except a final one of $20 on August 1st, about one month prior to the race. Payments not made as they become due declares the entry out and releases subscriber from further liability. Look over the advertisement carefully and it will be found that the State Agricultural Society has devised a stake that is bound to be one of the most popular ever inaugurated and we believe that eastern associations will be adopting the plan before the year is out. Nearly all futurities require the mare to be nominated before foaling. This stake calls for stallions to be named and not a cent has to be paid on the foal until it is a yearling, so that the breeder has an idea whether he has a colt worth entering or not. All hail to the new stake and thanks are due the Board of Directors of the State association for their interest in the welfare of horse owners and breeders. May there be a majority of the stallions in the States and Territories comprising the district, nominated, and may the foals entered run up into the thousands. The stake is worthy of it.

A GOOD WORK has been started by the Directors of the California State Agricultural Society by which it is proposed to abolish bookmaking on harness racing at the State Fair this year. At the meeting of the Board held last week Director F. W. Covey presented a resolution which directed the Secretary, Geo. W. Jackson, to communicate with all horsemen interested in harness racing and secure their individual views in regard to the matter, so that action may be taken at the next meeting of the Board on February 8th. Mr. Covey made a very earnest and able address on presenting the resolution setting forth the evils of the present bookmaking system on harness events, and it is very probable that the Board will confine all betting on trotting and pacing races to auction pools and mutuels this year, permitting bookmaking only on the running events. Every person interested in harness racing or the breeding of harness horses should endorse this new departure and give the members of the Board hearty support in their action. If the State Agricultural Society will lead, every district association will follow, and the trotting turf of California will be relieved of an evil that has well nigh ruined it. Let no harness horse breeder or owner fail to write Secretary Jackson forthwith on the subject. The State Board of Agriculture desires an expression of opinion, and are entitled to one before acting in the matter.

A BIENNIAL MEETING or congress of members of the National and American Trotting Associations will be held at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York, on Wednesday, February 12th. At this congress many changes will be made in the rules of these two associations, the majority of which will be unimportant. Several very important changes will be effected however, one of which will be the one pertaining to bars and records. The new rule will probably read as follows:

"Records cannot be made or bars incurred in trials of speed where there is no pool-selling, bookmaking or other public betting on the event, no money competed for, no entrance charged or collected from competing horses, no admission fee charged to the gate or grand stand, and no privilege of any kind sold. Such performances shall not be considered public races."

As will be seen by a careful reading of the above, but few clubs in the country can comply with all the requirements necessary to avoid records. While the majority charge no gate receipts and have no public betting, many charge for seats in the grand stand and sell the privileges of cafe and bar for a goodly sum. After the new rule goes into effect it will be easy to tell what clubs are organized for pure sport.

MCKINNEY 2:11½ will begin the season of 1902 at San Jose, February 1st, at $100 the season, limited to fifty mares. McKinney holds the championship of all stallions of his age as a sire of extreme speed. At fourteen years he has four 2:10 performers, headed by Coney 2:02; nineteen 2:15 performers and twenty-eight in the 2:20 list. No other fourteen year old stallion ever approached this record. It is extreme speed that breeders are trying to get. The long list of 2:29½ performers which were considered valuable a few years ago are not in such high regard in this day and generation. Time slower than 2:25 wins few races even out on the "bush" tracks. It should be stated that McKinney's book for 1902 is very nearly filled already and owners who desire to breed their mares to the great son of Alcyone this year had better correspond with Mr. Durfee at San Jose immediately. McKinney's advertisement will be found in this issue.

SIDNEY DILLON, sire of the fastest trotting mare of the Grand Circuit of 1901, Dolly Dillon 2:07½, will be in the stud this year to a few outside mares at the very low fee of $35. He will be kept at Santa Rosa Stock Farm. Sidney Dillon is a son of Sidney and a full brother to Cupid 2:18 and Adonis 2:11½. We believe that every one of the get of Sidney Dillon and Cupid that have started have secured records. Sidney Dillon is a horse of magnificent conformation and gets extreme speed with great uniformity.

TWO THOROUGHbred STALLIONS, one great as a race horse and great as a sire, the other a young horse of most royal lineage, are advertised in our columns this week to make the season of 1902 at the Menlo Stock Farm. They are St. Carlo the wonderful young sire by St. Blaise, and Ossary son of the great Ormonde. St. Carlo has proven his worth on the track and in the stud. Ossary is probably the handsomest young horse in California today, and his blood lines are such that he is almost certain to prove one of the greatest of speed and stamina sires.

THE BOARD OF APPEALS of the National Trotting Association will meet at 36 Geary street on Tuesday next, January 21st.

PALO ALTO BROODMARES and stallions will be eagerly sought after in a few years. The famous breeding farm is to be dispersed and within another year all the horses will have passed under the hammer. The sale of 25 mares and three stallions from this farm, which will take place at the Occidental Horse Exchange on the 30th inst, will give buyers an opportunity that will not again be offered, and when all are sold many persons will regret they did not buy when they had the chance. We ask every reader of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN who wants a broodmare or a stallion to send to William G. Layng, Auctioneer, 721 Howard street, for a catalogue of this sale. Study the blood lines in the mares and stallions offered and be at the salesyard when the auction begins. Electioneer blood is the need of most California stock farms. Wilkes blood is very plentiful here and it is the very best cross to make with Electioneer stock. There is an old saying that opportunity knocks at every person's door once. It is knocking at yours now. Don't go to sleep and permit it to pass on.

WILKES DIRECT 2:22½, son of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ and full brother to the great wagon trotter John A. McKerron 2:06½, will again make a season at San Jose, at a fee of $40. Wilkes Direct is a grand individual, having size, style and substance in the superlative degree. He is a producer of speed, all his get showing this quality as soon as they are put on the training track, and a few of them will be old enough this year to be raced and will take records. A green three year old by Wilkes Direct showed a sixteenth at San Jose last fall in seven seconds, at the pace, which is a running horse clip.

F. B. LINFIELD, Professor of Animal Industry at the Agricultural College of Logan, Utah, is in California with a view of purchasing a few Shorthorns and Holsteins for the college's experiment station. While coming through Nevada Prof. Linfield visited the celebrated Los Alamos Stock Farm and selected several good representatives of its herd of Herefords for the college.

Important Seizure of Illegal Nets.

Deputy Fish Commissioners Manuel Cross and W. H. Welch last week succeeded in capturing and confiscating six seines that were found illegally in use in the Russian river. The nets were principally the property of "shackers" living on Penny island, near the mouth of the river. As the nets averaged from $75 to $150 in value, the set back to the Manila men and their confederate poachers was a serious one—the value of the nets exceeded by far the prices received by these law violating foreigners and their abettors, some renegade white men of that section, in the sale of fish peddled through Guerneville and to the ranchers in the adjoining districts. This seizure, is, in fact, one of the largest ever made by the Fish Commissioners in the history of their surveillance of the river.

Cross and Welch quietly and unseen slipped off the train at Duncan's on Thursday and remained secreted until dark, then setting out in a boat they proceeded down the river. Before going far, Cross, who knows every foot of the river came upon a net set across the river. This was taken up and hidden on the bank, proceeding in their quest again they searched several likely places without success until several turns were taken through the "Swiss pool."

This second net was stowed away on the bank and again the two deputies kept on down the river until Penny island was reached; here a net was found after some piking about here and there. Hiding this one behind a log on shore, shortly afterwards another net was located near a fence. Proceeding around to a rocky part of the island still another net was caught by the grappling iron. By this time it was getting along to daylight Friday, the two officers turned back up the river, picking up the captured seines as they went along, the heavy load of two men and the nets caused the small boat to sink so that her gunwales were within about two inches of the water's surface. The last net was found more by accident than design. It was discovered exactly opposite the spot where the first net was pulled up. The river here had been obstructed by two nets end to end, thus effectually blocking the passage of fish up stream. When the first net was taken up, the other one was naturally overlooked, as the two merely lapped but were not fastened together.

On several of the nets the mid-stream anchors were so bulky that the officers used their knives, it being found more expedient to do so than to take the time for the arduous work of pulling up the anchors.

Prior to the advent of the two deputies, threats were made by the netmen to the effect that they would indulge in some shooting in the protection of their illegally used property. The deputies were ready to take a hand in the promised scrimmage last week, but they did not happen to be discovered and the seizure went on peacefully and happily, if it was hard work on an exceedingly dark night.

Since last week, other parties, notably seven or eight Indians, have been using nets in the stream. These fellows are as full of threats as the Penny island gang was. These latter gentry are all mad as hornets and promise summary vengeance on the patrol at their next visit. Cross and Welch are both tried men, Cross particularly, in looking after illegal fishermen. It is an odds on bet that the deputies' repeating rifles will be the first to open the argument should the river men be inclined to lock horns with them. Both of them are good shots and we opine the battle will be short and one sided.

RECORDS BROKEN LAST YEAR.

1901 Not So Prolific in New Records as the Year Previous.

Americans are a people of extremes. Records have been magnified in importance until, on the running turf, they have become slightly ridiculous except in specific cases, writes Will D. Pond. On the trotting turf they are still paramount for the simple reason that there the time is the handicap base. To-day an expert trainer or owner looks at a broken record with varying eyes and sentiments. If it is a three year old or upward stallion or mare, especially the former, he recognizes its value as a stud factor, especially when condition and surroundings are normal and not especially favorable. Even here, however, he makes mental reservations, for how many of our individual flyers have transmitted their famous speed to their progeny, except in the sprint division. What mark has Salvatore's famous mile in 1:35½ made on the private slate of his progeny? Thus the horseman only values a record made by a mature horse over a distance. He does not care about sprint records at all, and as for two year old performances, well, look through the three year olds of last year and see how many of the good performers broke records in 1900, and how these contrast with the stars of the division of 1901.

It is the public and the newspaper headline writer who welcome new records, and the public only takes an evanescent interest in them, almost legislating them out of calculation when next the dope is referred to for the purpose of calculations on a future race.

Looked at in the abstract, records are more due to surroundings than anything else. Many would have been made but for slight interference, forced wide around a turn or crossed in the stretch, and these are never noticed. One of the fastest miles last season was run in 1:38; this means that to beat 1:38½ the horse covered twenty-six feet more in a given time. That is a matter of twenty-five yards, or, on a two turn track, the difference between on the rail at the turns or making them in third position on the outside, half a length apart. All things equal the winner makes 1:38, the other horse, carried wide, runs twenty-six feet further and is beaten that distance. Yet number one makes "a record."

In the old days tracks were uninclosed lots, with stumps sticking up in all directions, the footing was precarious, the horses knew it and naturally did not dare go to their greatest speed. Herein lies much of the wonderful improvement of speed claimed since those days. Today the tracks are safe, horses are confident, and speed records are shown which thirty years ago were impossible for horses of the same class. Thirty years ago 70 horses stabled at the track made a phenomenal meeting. Today 700 is nothing extraordinary. Then horses ran a dozen or so races a year. Today horses run fifty races or more, the stars running ten to twenty, while the great Boston up to nine years of age did not run more, and few of his day ran so often.

Last year only sixty-nine new track and event records were made in this country, and of these the metropolitan tracks only account for twenty-two, the Western and Southern tracks totaling forty-seven. In 1900 the total list was 112, of which the metropolitan meetings handed in fifty-one. Yet last season the general class of two year and three year olds was acknowledged to be better. Why is this?

The answer shows up another phase of the record worship. The great increase in metropolitan records during the season of 1900 was due to the improved track conditions. Brighton Beach and Empire City set the pace with an almost "skinned track," that is, one with only a bare inch, or even less, of top dressing, more on the style of the western track, and this, with extra banked turns, slaughtered records wholesale, but—were the animals going any faster, was the average horse of a higher calibre? Scarcely! Then where comes in the record kudos! In addition to this Morris Park had a very thin dressing, and the most perfect drainage system down the Eclipse Course of any in the country, as instanced by its dryness when the main track repeatedly is "heavy," and all of this boosted along the accumulation of record marks.

Right through the West track conditions have been improved, and that is where the individual track record has boomed. In 1901 New Orleans made fourteen additions to the old list at three and a half, six and seven furlongs, seven and a half furlongs, a mile, a mile and a quarter, a mile and seventy yards, a mile and three-eighths, a mile and a half (two), a mile and three-eighths, yet who will say that any of these record breakers could live with the cracks at Washington Park or Coney Island? Yet they broke records! And secured headlines! But who will remember them except the owners.

Nine more fell at Tanforan, all from three furlongs to six and a half furlongs, with the exception of the five furlongs, which stands, 1:00 flat. Practically a new course in 1900! Harlem breaks six, four, five, five and a half furlongs, a mile and fifty yards and a mile and a sixteenth, while Washington Park takes four new marks—four and a half and five furlongs, a mile and a quarter and a mile and a half. St Louis also claims four, at four and a half, six and four furlongs and at a mile, at the Fair Grounds. Hawthorne only takes two for the season.

Coming East, Aqueduct Spring meeting only furnished one, at six furlongs, the Lorillard cast off, little Petra II., in 1:13 4-5. At the Morris Park Spring meeting Commando made a mile and three-eighths, over the hill, in 2:21, May 23th, easily beating his field, and, at the same weight, dropping Ildrim's record of 2:21½, made in 1900. At Brooklyn Spring Commando again, simply galloping, June 1st, made a mile in 1:39 2-5.

Coney Island started the Suburban with Alcedo 2:05 3-5; Nasturtium covering five and a half furlongs in 1:04 1-5, Hatasoo getting away with the five furlong notch in 0:58 2-5, and then Voter made the six furlongs in 1:12 2-5, beating the 1895 record of Waltzer. June 21 Glennellie, six and a half furlongs in 1:19 1-5, cut down Irish Reel's notch of 1895; Brigadier ran a mile in 1:37 4-5 June 22, beating Voter's American record of 1900; Star Bright, June 28, ran a mile and a quarter in 2:06 1-5, beating Central Trust's good race in 1897. These were the crack Coney Island record breakers. What may be expected of them in the future? Voter, Brigadier, Glennellie and Star Bright—will they race again?

Saratoga established two new times with Decanter at the mile and a quarter in 2:06, beating Laverock, 1899, and Belle of Lexington six furlongs, beating with 1:12 2-5 the previous time of Voter in 1899.

Brighton Beach had four new notches: Leonora Loring, a good Western filly, five and a half furlongs, 1:06 4-5; Herbert, a mile and a sixteenth in 1:45 1-5, beating Standing's record; Sombrero, another good Westerner, five furlongs in 0:59 2-5, beating Songster in 1900, and Roehampton, a mile and an eighth in 1:51 1-5. Incidentally note the promising 2 year old Sombrero cutting the notch of the crippled 6 year old St. Blaise gelding, who is lucky to stand up to the termination of any race he starts in, and consequently generally wins around 50 to 1. Yet he makes track records.

At the Coney Island Fall meeting not a record went by the board. At Brooklyn Fall came a bundle. Ogden ran a mile and a sixteenth in 1:46, beating the earlier record of All Green in June (who "never did anything since"). King Hanover beat the Endurance by Right record by covering five and a half furlongs in 1:06 4-5 September 28th, and Endurance, with 112 pounds, made six furlongs in 1:08 3-5, beating the record of King Pepper, a three year old, with 125 pounds, 1:09 2-5, the previous June. Then The Rhymer went the mile and seventy yards in 1:44 4-5.

The Morris Park Fall meeting provided only four new times: October 12th, when Roxane ran the Withers Mile in 1:39 4-5; Hernando, a mile and a half in 2:34 4-5; October 25th, Lady Uncas, six and a half furlongs in 1:19½, and October 26th, Gold Heels, two miles and a quarter in 3:56.

These are the new marks; what do they practically amount to? Each record breaker has been beaten, with one exception, on merits by those which lost when the records were made. How much figure does the straight, uninterfered run cut when the average record is made? Some were made down hill, where other horses in the race notoriously cannot run. Some were made down the Futurity Course by the horse lying on the rail as large fields swung round that still rather acute turn. Two certainly were made by a lucky opening on the rail in the last half furlong, which enabled the horse to win by three lengths, in one case, where but for the opening he would not have been third. The time was clipped one-fifth of a second. There is no need to mention the names in specific cases; the horses hold the figure; let them have it. An iconoclast is never welcome, and, while the statement would assuredly pull down, it builds nothing to replace it.

Now glance at the English record time of 1900, One mile, 1:33 1-5; mile and a quarter, 2:04 1-5; mile and a half, 2:31 2-5; mile and three-quarters, 2:59 1-5; mile and three furlongs, 2:19 2-5; six furlongs, 1:12 2-5; five furlongs, 0:57 1-5. These nearly all on straightaway tracks, mostly grass. The mile and a half record was by the American horse, King Courier, 126 pounds Hurst Park, September 22, 1900.

"Indian Jimmy" Morgan, the jockey who has been riding so successfully in Austria during the past two years, has decided not to return to that country, but will ride at the Chicago tracks next season. Morgan headed the list of winning jockeys in Austria in 1900, and last year stood third, Fred Taral being at the top and Bob Adams, an Englishman, second.

At the Salem Track.

Mr. W. O. Trine writes the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN from the fair grounds, near Salem, Oregon, under date of January 12th, as follows:

"We are having a very nice winter for Oregon. The track here is in good shape for winter work. Mr. Shanon is jogging a young horse by Coeur d'Alene that is a good prospect for the green classes, also a young mare by Homdel and one by Gerome. I am jogging Oregon Bull 2:17½ by Roy Wilkes and Broadheart, a six year old by a son of Roy Wilkes that has extra style, size and substance. I expect to make a short season here with him and fit him for the races. I expect some good colt stake prospects to handle soon.

"We expect to have a real 'Grand Circuit' in the Northwest this season with good stakes and purses and dates arranged so that horsemen may ship from point to point without any delay or big expense. I also hope and sincerely believe that our fair managers will prohibit syndicate book making which has caused the downfall of so many fairs and associations."

SADDLE NOTES.

Get a race horse at your own price at the dispersal sale of thoroughbreds belonging to the estate of J. B. Chase, deceased. The sale takes place February 4th. Send for a catalogue.

The two year olds, Tom Mitchell, San Reno and Winifred Weare, all from the Poverty Row Stock Farm, owned by Oscar Duke, are now at the Oakland track, also the six year old mare Nell Holton.

Instead of being run on May 1st, the Kentucky Derby will not come off until Saturday, May 3d. The change was brought about by the postponement of the opening day. The meeting at Louisville will only last nineteen days, instead of the twenty-one which have been allotted to the club.

Buy one of those yearlings or two year olds at the sale of thoroughbreds from the estate of J. B. Chase, feed it well for a year and the chances are you will have a race winner. There have been many bred on the Sonoma Stock Farm. Send to W. H. Hord, 1732 Market street for a catalogue.

Edward F. Fallon, formerly of Hollister, who dropped dead last Saturday through running to catch the Bay City for Oakland, owned and raced several good horses in his day. The best known of the Fallon flyers were Harriet by Flood, Birdcatcher by Spectre, Abbie F. by Judge McKinstry, Lottie L. by Wildidle-Vixen, Hathaway by Birdcatcher and Echo by Judge McKinstry. Mr. Fallon bred horses for years on his farm, which adjoined the Donnelly Dunn ranch, in San Benito county, and was well known among the racing men of ten and twenty years ago. Financial misfortune overtook him in the last few years, and in his old age he was forced to return to his old trade, that of painting.

It is not an easy task to prove beyond doubt the offences of some trainers who for percentage and gain fill the horses with "hop," but the officials of the Latonia Jockey Club have promised that there will be no in and out running at the spring meeting from this cause. In the estimate of expenses for the next meeting at Latonia a liberal allowance has been made for the employment of five shrewd men. "They will not alone pay attention to the men who administer 'dope,' but they will have their eyes on the entire scope of the racing game," said a member of the club recently. "We are going to have clean racing in this vicinity from this time hence, and the men who make racing may as well understand it at the outset."

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

Pacific Coast Field Trials.

The nineteenth annual field trials of the Pacific Coast Field Trial Club was commenced with the Derby last Monday morning on favorable ground in the vicinity of Santa Maria, Santa Barbara. A late start was made, the first brace being cast off at 9:15 a. m. Weather conditions were unfavorable, the day being a warm one with not a breath of air to cool off men and dogs until about two o'clock in the afternoon. The dry condition of the ground selected for the Derby spoiled the scent, the dogs could not smell the quail until they had almost run over them. Had there been a recent fall of rain, the grounds selected would have been almost as perfect a field trial district as can be found in the State. Quail were just numerous enough and the cover was just high and close enough to allow the dogs to work well and enable the judge and attendant sportsmen a good opportunity to observe every move.

The number of starters in the Derby was a great disappointment to all concerned. Out of twenty-one entries on which second forfeit was paid, there was but seven starters in the stake. Death and distemper reduced the ranks of the young dogs sadly and this was responsible for the falling off in the number of starters. W. W. Van Arsdale's Belle Buoy was not taken to the grounds by his trainer, C. Babcock, when he located there before the trials. Clinton E. Worden's Lady Jane and Alberta both died. Judge A. Balmer, of Cle-Elum, Washington, presided in the saddle. His decisions throughout the trials were satisfactory to club members, owners and handlers.

During the trials a representative attendance of sportsmen took keen interest in the work. The performances generally of the dogs and of several individuals in particular showed in the opinion of Judge Balmer most exceptional natural abilities. Mr. Frank Maskey is authority for the statement that the work of the dogs in both the Derby and All-Age events was as high class an exhibition as the most ardent enthusiast could desire.

Contrary to the misleading headlines and reports which appeared in the daily press here, and evidently penned by writers unfamiliar with field trials, there was happily not a large crowd or crush of sportsmen and spectators. This condition prevailing during the running of the dogs is always detrimental to good results and is a positive annoyance and inconvenience to those most interested.

On Tuesday a party composed of Henry J. Crocker, Thomas H. Williams, Jr., John B. Coleman, James Brownell, Clarence Waterhouse and Adam Andrews left this city in a special car destined for the trial ground.

The following is a brief account of the trials and results. A fuller and more complete report by Secretary Albert Betz will appear in next week's issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. Mr. Betz's report was received too late for publication in this number: The first brace put down on Monday morning in the sagebrush flats ten miles west of Santa Maria was watched by about twenty-five sportsmen in carriages and on horseback.

W. B. Coutts' Pointer bitch Kenwood Rose and Clinton E. Worden's English Setter Wade Earl were down until 9:55.

The second brace put down at 10:15, was W. B. Coutts' Pointer, Ned Funston, and H. L. Bettens' English Setter, Rod's Lark. They were ordered up at 11:15. The weather during the heat had become very warm.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer, Cuba Jr., and H. L. Bettens' Setter, Diana's Rodfield, were the third brace put down during the warmest part of the day and were ordered up, thoroughly exhausted at 11:40.

W. W. Van Arsdale's Setter, Oakley's Pride, had drawn the bye and was then given a try-out. This work ended the first series.

After luncheon new grounds were selected. A pleasant, cooling breeze now made conditions more favorable for running the second series.

The first pair were cast off at 1:30 p. m. Kenwood Rose and Rod's Lark. They were taken up at 2:15. This pair was followed by Ned Funston and Cuba Jr., at 2:30 and remained down until 2:55. Diana's Rodfield and Oakley's Pride came together in the third heat. They were down 45 minutes and then taken up.

Judge Balmer, after a short consultation with the members of the club committee, about 4 p. m. announced that the running was concluded for the day, and upon reaching the hotel at Santa Maria it developed that the Derby had been finished. Judge Balmer announced the winners as follows:

First—Stockdale Kennels' liver and white Pointer dog, Cuba Jr., by Cuba of Kenwood—Florida, whelped on March 13, 1900; breeder, Stockdale Kennels.

Second—H. L. Bettens' white, black and tan English Setter bitch, Rod's Lark, by Rodfield—Count's Diana, whelped September 7, 1900; breeder, H. L. Bettens.

Third—W. B. Coutts' liver and white Pointer dog, Ned Funston, by Kriss Kringle—Plain Sister, whelped September, 1900; breeder, W. B. Coutts.

The second day of the meeting, on Tuesday morning, commenced under more favorable weather conditions. It being cooler than on the preceding day the dogs stood the running better; the dry state of the ground, however, made pointing as difficult as on the previous day. Quail were found with every brace put down, yet they were not too plentiful. Fifteen dogs were started in the All-Age, Mt. View Kennels Fan Go drawing the bye.

The first brace were cast off at 9 o'clock A. M. in a large field. The dogs soon got tangled up in a dense thicket and were taken out and put back of the first ground. They were taken up at the end of 45 minutes. The dogs in the first heat were Stockdale Kennels' Setter bitch Peach Mark II. and W. W. Van Arsdale's Setter dog Count's Mark.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer Cuba Jr. and T. J. A. Tiedemann's Setter bitch Northern Huntress were the second pair put down.

W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter bitch Shadow and Stockdale Kennels' Pointer Bow's Son were put down for the third heat at 10:55. These dogs were swung off at first on open ground and then put back on scattered birds.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer Jacuba and W. W. Van Arsdale's Setter Peach Blossom were the first brace cast off after lunch at 12:30 o'clock.

Jos. Terry's Setter bitch Lady and Stockdale Kennels' Pointer Cuba's Zep followed at 1:30 P. M.

A change was then made to ground four miles nearer to town and two Pointers, Stockdale Kennels' Nellie Wilson and Mt. View Kennels' Alec C.—both field trial veterans—came together in a heat which lasted from 2:45 to 3:40 P. M.

The last pair put down for the day and the final heat of the first series of the All-Age started at 3:45 in a large field alongside of a creek bottom. They were W. W. Van Arsdale's Pointer, Dr. Daniels, and Clinton E. Worden's Pearl's Jingle. These two dogs are credited with the most interesting race of the day. This finished the first series. The bye dog, Fan Go, having been tried out during the afternoon by the club committee at the request of Judge Balmer.

J. M. Kilgariff and J. E. Terry arrived at Santa Maria on Wednesday's train.

A noticeable absence among the old guard was the genial features of Charles N. Post of Sacramento, who for the first time in the history of the club trials was unavoidably kept away from the sport by important professional work for the State in one of the northern counties.

The second series of the All-Age was started at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning on new ground where birds were more plentiful. The sportsmen attending had the advantage of taking position upon a range of hilly ground from whence they had an unobstructed view of the dogs, handlers and judge in the valley beneath. The day was an ideal one for field trial work and the dogs showed up in better shape than at any previous time of the trials.

The first brace down was Dr. Daniel with Cuba Jr., followed successively by Count's Mark with Northern Huntress, Pearl's Jingle with Peach Blossom, Fan Go with Lady. After a short intermission the judge ordered Peach Blossom and Northern Huntress cast off for a rather long heat to determine which was the better of the two.

Secretary Betz, after the dogs were taken up, announced the winners as follows:

First—W. W. Van Arsdale's lemon and white Pointer dog Dr. Daniels by Plain Sam—Dolly Dee II.

Second—Clinton E. Worden's liver and white Pointer bitch Pearl's Jingle by Young Jingo—Pearl's Dot II.

Equal third—W. W. Van Arsdale's black, white and tan English Setter bitch Peach Blossom by Count Gladstone IV.—Peach Mark, and T. J. A. Tiedemann's black, white and tan English Setter bitch Northern Huntress by Joe Cummings—Mecca II.

The results of the two events gives a decidedly Pointer coloring to the meeting, as this breed carried away the principal honors.

It was decided not to start the Members' Stake this year. The All-Age finished the meeting earlier than was anticipated, which allowed a number of the sportsmen in attendance to enjoy some delightful quail shooting.

Apologies of the Coast field trials we notice in the Kennel Gazette the announcement of the English Kennel Club field trials to be run on April 9th and following days, over the estate of Captain Prettyman, M. P., at Orwell Park, near Ipswich. The draw will take place at the Great White Horse Hotel, Ipswich, on the evening of April 8th. The following prizes are offered for the twenty-eighth field trial Derby Stakes for Pointer and Setter puppies whelped in 1901: First prize £70, second prize £25, third prize £15, fourth prize £10; fifth and sixth prizes, £5 each, will also be awarded if there are not less than twenty contestants.

Derby Stake entries closed on January 1, 1902. In the All-Aged Stake the prizes are £50 to first, £25 to second, £10 each to third and fourth respectively. Further prizes for the "brace" stakes for Pointers and Setters, dogs and bitches, are also offered.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

A Leading Fox Terrier Kennel.

In the kennel advertisements appears to-day the announcement of the Wandee Kennels.

Vibo, a cracking good Fox Terrier who has a grand Eastern and local bench record, is at the head of the stud list. Vibo's record as a sire has been a consistent one, his latest success is the win of his son Norfolk Blue, who took first limit and winners at the Philadelphia show last month, beating some good ones in Dusky Don II, Selden Stuyve and Norfolk Richmond. The latter dog, it will be remembered, went over everything at the last May show here.

Wandee Jester (Norfolk Billy before he was registered) has a good Eastern record and was a winner at the Oakland show.

Mr. Chas. K. Harley, the owner of the kennels, informed us during a visit to this office that he has several fine brood bitches and some exceptionally good puppies that he will sell—he has more terriers than he cares to accommodate.

Only a Few of Them Left.

The following communication, written on a postal card, from a resident of this city, speaks for itself:

"MESSRS. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir: Kindly let me know if you ever hear of anyone wishing to exchange a Pointer for a ped. Setter."

We have never yet heard of any swap conditions that might fill the above request and trust we never will. As the writer is not explicit in his message we are in the dark as to the reason for this inquiry, although the inference is easy. Just what a ped. Setter is we cannot imagine, and must again rely upon speculation, taking it that the writer means a Setter with a known pedigree. All dogs have pedigrees of course, but many of them cannot be traced back one generation. Another inference is that the writer has a greater idea of the Pointer's value than that of the Setter's. He does not say, however, which dog he is the owner of and here speculation is rife again.

We do not think the dog owned by such an indifferent master would have a pleasant or an easy existence.

We would advise our correspondent to sell his dog or give it away to a friend and purchase another one. In that way he will get just what he wants and solve what to us is a riddle. If this is too much trouble, call upon the Poundmaster.

We will not speculate again, to the effect, that the writer is like some people we have met, and desires to procure a good dog for little or nothing. The ranks of this class is sufficiently full now and we hope our esteemed correspondent has not started off wrong. Another thing, the writer states neither the accomplishments of his own dog nor the standard of canine education required of the dog he evidently desires in exchange. If he would like to try his luck on Pointers we know of one that waited on table and played the piano evenings at a country hotel last year. This dog had a disagreeable habit of dropping his set of false teeth when playing the crescendo part of the Virginia reel. The teeth rolling among the dancers, the music would stop until the grinders were retrieved. Several fastidious young ladies complained to the landlord, the Pointer consequently lost his job and became a setter waiting for something to turn up. If a ped. Setter is the kind of dog wanted we will refer our correspondent to Dustproof Harry for some pointers on Countess Noble stock—for undoubtedly she was a dog that could and did do anything and everything.

The address given on the postal, somewhere on 25th street, leads us to infer, once more, that the backwoods is still located in a portion of the Mission valley.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

At the last meeting of the Executive Committee of the A. K. C., L. A. Klein was allowed thirty days to secure further evidence in the matter of his appeal for the rescinding of the cancellation of his wins at the May show.

English leashmen are hard at work preparing their best dogs for the great Waterloo cup event, which will be run next month. The raising of the quarantine against Irish hounds will cause a large number of Irish cracks to be entered. The great bitch, Fearless Footsteps, twice winner of the classic event, will be entered again, and her chances look bright for final honors. The judge and slipper have as yet not been selected by the Waterloo cup committee, but it is almost a certainty that Messrs. Brice and Wilkinson will officiate.

In a review of last year's coursing in England, the London Field says: "The sport of coursing is decidedly on the 'up line' now in all parts of the country. Of course, in the old days, when farmers were doing well, there was hardly one of them who did not own a Greyhound, perhaps chiefly for private coursing, but directly one dog had shown himself much superior to his rivals he was entered in the nearest public meeting. Then the greatest interest was shown in his progress—if any—by all owners of dogs beaten by him, so that they might know the standing of their own breed. Now the keeping of Greyhounds has fallen into other hands, and, although in many parts of the north we see an owner with one dog only, it is much more often the case that he owns some six to a dozen, and has his own private trainer. If a less number they are most likely sent to a public trainer, of whom there are many in all parts of the country. The breeding of almost every dog running at a public meeting is known at the present time, and in another year or so the pedigree of every Greyhound will be obtainable. The National Coursing Club has done much for the sport all over the three countries, and, with its admirable Stud Book, published annually, makes every effort to keep the sport pure."

Warfare Waged on Wolves.

J. MAYNE BALTIMORE.

Eastern Oregon is famous as a sheep rearing region. From time immemorial, the coyote has had a decided weakness for mutton.

Throughout Eastern Oregon there are a great many tracts characterized by "sand, alkali and sage brush." All such country is the favorite habitat of the coyote. He is indigineous to the region, and his home brings him in close contact to immense flocks of sheep.

For many years the coyote has been a most persistent and dreaded enemy of the sheep raiser. Every arm has been raised against this sly, skulking prowler of field, plain and fell. He has been hunted with dogs, shot on sight, trapped and poisoned. The animal not only holds its own against such odds, but, it is claimed, is actually slowly on the increase.

Little wonder then that the various counties of the great "Inland Empire" (for such Eastern Oregon is called), should offer a bounty of $2 for every scalp produced of a coyote. This price set upon his head, makes the animal still more sought after.

Winter, spring, summer and fall, the merry chase goes on after his tawny scalp. A great many are captured, too. In some of the counties as high as 100 scalps are taken in a month. Some persons do nothing else but hunt the coyote, and they find it quite remunerative work.

Great care is taken by the county authorities to prevent imposition in the matter of scalps. Every scalp must include both ears of the animal. There must be no "manufactured" scalps. There is an inspector in each county who must pass upon the scalps.

Just across the eastern boundary line of Oregon lies Idaho. Now, the latter State offers no bounty for coyote scalps. Idaho is also a favorite abode for the animal. However, a hunter cannot receive a bounty on a scalp captured across the line. Oregon will not pay for the scalp of an Idaho wolf—that is, if the authorities know it.

But the incentive is strong, and, sometimes, the scalp takers do some steep swearing when the question is raised: "Where did you kill this wolf?"

If a hunter can inveigle a coyote across the line and "raise his hair," that is perfectly legitimate.

Everyone knows how cunning and wary a coyote is. But an invisible, impalpable boundary is too much for even the cautious instinct of a wolf. So, it happens that in the course of the seasons a great many coyotes cross to and fro over the line. In a great many instances, it proves a veritable "dead line" to the wolf. Though a native of Idaho, he is slain on "webfoot" (nickname for Oregon) soil, and the lucky hunter gets his scalp.

Boy hunters often do a "land office" business in collecting scalps. Very recently, a lad in one of the sage brush counties made a "big killing."

While out hunting early one morning, he was fortunate enough to shoot two female coyotes. Both were killed near the foot of some rocks. There was a large hole leading under the ledge, and the boy's dog began to scratch and whine at the opening.

A spade and hoe were speedily procured and the lad hunter fell to work with a will. The digging was hard, but he persevered, and in the course of a few hours his labors were abundantly rewarded.

Finally he reached the bottom of the wolf den. There he found two comfortable nests in which were ensconced sixteen little coyotes. These the boy and his dog quickly killed. Thus he captured eighteen scalps in less than half a day and made $36; for the inspector allowed him a full bounty on all the little whelps.

It is asserted that the wolves are not decreasing much, despite the efforts made to exterminate them. Were these efforts not so persistently made, the whole country would be soon overrun and there would be great havoc wrought among the vast flocks throughout the inland empire.

The origin of the Fox Terrier is not certainly known, but they have been bred pure in the royal kennels of England for over 160 years. They are used for bringing all kinds of game out of the ground, and as companions for ladies and gentlemen are the aristocratic dog of the world to-day. Owners soon found them to be not only easily taught, but very imitative, and have developed into great farm dogs, as well as hunters and companions. As guard dogs they have no superior—always on the alert, ready to find the cause of the slightest noise. They are not generally vicious to people, but it is safest for any stranger at first to get permission before he bothers either the person or property of the master. As hunters they naturally take to all animals that burrow in the ground. They need no training for that, but, of course, improve with practice. They are easily taught to tree all animals that climb. They are dead game and will fight to death or victory anything they consider prey. They have any amount of endurance, seldom ever showing signs of being tired. Their scent is good. They are not only pretty dogs, but there are none cleaner. They are excellent companions for children, as they will watch over them and inspire the child with their own determination, obedience, humbleness and affection.

On the Continent it is customary with exhibitors at bench shows to dye or stain their dogs' coats to make them appear of a richer color. This practice, according to a Belgian witness in a matter before the English courts, is countenanced by judges. The protest, it was claimed, should come from the owner of the dog who won second honors.

Bulldogs in England in 1901.

Many of the best Bulldogs England has produced for years past are now or were in the possession of American fanciers. The fancy for the breed has taken on rapid strides in the United States within a few years. The most prominent Bulldog kennels in America are the Vancroft and the Deal kennels. A host of other breeders, but on a smaller scale, tend to show the growth of the Bulldog fancy. The first lot of the Bulldog Kennel Book issued by the English Bulldog Club, was sold out in a week by Field and Fancy in New York. A continued demand was the occasion for a cable message for another supply.

The following article by Mr. H. St. John Cooper of Brighton, England, appeared in a recent number of the Dog Fancier and contains some interesting information concerning the breed in England today:

The year now drawing to its end has not proved a memorable one from the Bulldog enthusiasts' point of view. There have been practically no surprises unless the appearance at Cruft's Show in February, of that marvelous headed bitch, La Roche, be the exception. This bitch, whose body, it must be at once confessed, is not equal in quality to her wonderful head properties, is a north country bred one, and made her first appearance in London, at Cruft's, where Mr. Todd, her breeder, but not her owner of course, gave her her first and well-deserved championship, since when she has gone on gathering in the prizes, for she is a bitch that cannot be denied, though enemies she has among the cognoscenti who would fain put her down and yet for their reputations' sake dare not.

Chinosol—or to give him his full title and name, Champion Woodcote Chinosol, the bright particular star of last year, has amply fulfilled all the promises of his youth and stands today the unquestioned best that England can show. To lovers of the true type, the recent successes of Mrs. Evans' well known old Ivel Doctor have been very gratifying. The all white dog has hitherto not met with the best of fortune, indeed his merits have been far in excess of his luck, for he is all over a Bulldog, sour-faced as Bulldogs should be and a shining example which many English breeders, who are apparently attempting to breed out all true Bulldog expression and characteristics, would do well to profit by.

There is a very regrettable and growing tendency in England to produce soft, puggy-faced Bulldogs, whose skulls are round instead of flat, who boast no distance from ear to eye, and whose eyes are set far too close together. A few years ago, these soft-faced specimens were the exception, now unfortunately, they seem to be growing the rule, and so long as certain judges persist in favoring them, so long will breeders attempt to produce them. If we compare the head of Boomerang, in my opinion the best headed of all modern dogs, with the heads of some of our present day "puggiosities" we can find absolutely nothing in common. The Boomerang type of head—the true type, was brim full of expression, it was at once suggestive of honesty, alertness, fearlessness and yet without there was that sourness of look, that made the dog repulsive and forbidding even, to the uneducated eye, but which to the fancier, was an added charm and fascination. Another fault and a serious one, is the prevalence of heavy ears. True they are of the right shape, but the ear of the Bulldog should be small and thin, whereas nowadays, to see a really good eared dog on the bench is the exception and not the rule. Fortunately, however, certain large breeders are taking the ear question up in earnest and a marked improvement in this direction may be confidently looked for in the near future.

Despite the fact that very many of our best have left these shores for yours, there seems ample promise that next year we shall be as rich in really high class Bulldogs as ever we were. The big exodus of last year has, no doubt, something to do with the rather low quality of this year's exhibit as a whole, but on every side I hear tidings of puppies of exceptional promise, many of them the offspring of some of those dogs who crossed the pond last year.

Among others who have achieved considerable success this year, on the bench, are the Bull bitches, Felton Chance It, Mrs. Marley's light weight, who has now won her right to the prefix champion, Thackeray Soda, another bitch who loses in body while she wins in head. Champion Prince Albert, Katerpult's famous little son, who has garnered up a few more firsts and championships to add to his long list. Mrs. Crocker's bitch, Buddug, and Mrs. Clarke's Mersham Billy, litter brother to Mersham Jock, who was claimed by America early in last year. Among other dogs whose stud services have been in greatest demand are W. J. Pegg's Champion Woodcote Chinosol by Bapton Monarch, who is sire also of Arthur Vowles' Wylie Monarch (a most prolific stock getter), and Carthusian Cerberus; Mr. Pegg's Woodcote Galtie Moro, Mrs. Clarke's Mersham Charmer, Mrs. Evans' Ivel Doctor, and some lesser lights, whose principal attraction is a low stud fee.

Death, fortunately, has not been very busy among the dogs, but I regret to hear that one old dog, who in his time has done good service to the breed, has just passed away at a ripe old age. I allude to Mr. Hartley's Highwayman, who did a bit of winning in his time, but who will be remembered principally as the sire of many winning dogs and bitches. [Chinosol has also gone the final way of all canines.—Ed.]

It is true that America has claimed most of our best dogs during the past few years, but it is also a fact that the "stock" still remains in the old country, and from that stock, English breeders confidently expect to produce as good dogs in the future as they have in the past.

KENNEL HYGIENE.

It is believed that a dog can digest one-fifth of his own body weight at one meal.

It requires some six to twelve hours for the food taken at a single meal to become digested in the stomach. Bones often take many hours to entirely disappear.

Healthy, strong dogs have been known to live for three months without a particle of nourishment save water before death ensued. Such dogs can exist a month under similar conditions and then stand a good chance of recuperating if food be restored to them. A complete circulation of the blood in the dog is established in about seventeen seconds. The blood will, therefore, pass through the entire system nearly four times in one minute.

The pulse of the dog, easily felt on the internal aspect of the thigh close up to the groin, should be about 90 to 100 in a healthy, full-grown animal.

The respiratory movements in health are about fifteen to twenty.

The normal temperature of the dog is from 101 degrees F. to 102 degrees F. This temperature, which is about 3 degrees higher than normal temperature in man, should not be mistaken for fever.

People who own dogs don't, as a rule, take much note of this particular point as long as health is present, but as soon as sickness manifests itself, be the temperature high or not, it is often at once investigated and the conclusion arrived at that fever is present, because the body heat is perceived to be higher than our own.

To cause a copious secretion of rich, nourishing milk in a bitch with a large family a diet should contain considerable amount of shell-fish or meat.

The dog has important sweat glands in the feet.

Too many baths or too much brushing is often the cause of a dog's coat coming off.

Linseed oil (boiled) is a good thing to give in a dog's food to help him cast his coat.

Pine shavings make excellent bedding, particularly for a dog troubled by fleas. A moderate quantity of coal oil sprinkled upon the shavings is a bad thing for fleas.

Crude oil sprayed over the ground or around the kennels is about as good a thing to drive away fleas as one would wish.

Dog biscuits, houndmeal and scraps from the table, with a little raw, lean meat occasionally, is a good menu for Terriers, or any dog for that matter.

County Game Laws in Force.

The present State Game and Fish Laws are in force and unchanged in the following counties:

Alameda,	Monterey,	Solano,
Colusa,	Santa Cruz,	San Joaquin,
Contra Costa,	San Benito,	Sonoma.
Merced.

The following counties have adopted ordinances in regard to fish and game, and which are now in force as follows:

Fresno—Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1.

Marin—Male deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. Quail, Oct. 15 to Jan. 15. Shooting on county roads or in cemeteries prohibited. The use of "pump" gun, repeating shotgun or any kind of magazine shotgun for hunting in the county is prohibited.

Monterey—Sea gulls and blue cranes, killing of prohibited. Use of guns of larger caliber than 10-gauge prohibited.

Santa Clara—Quail, Oct. 8 to Feb. 1.

San Mateo—Quail, Nov. 1 to Dec. 1. Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. Shooting from boats at high tide prohibited.

Near Chico are a number of wooded lakes situated on the Parrott ranch. This section, according to G. A. Barham, is the home of thousands of mallard ducks and the country adjacent to the water is a splendid quail and snipe ground.

Steelhead Fishing.

Reports from Russian river are of much import to the stream anglers. The bar is still open and the river in splendid shape. It will now take some amount of rainfall to stop the fishing in tide water. Mr. Gibson caught seven fine fish last Saturday, eleven and three respectively on the days following. On Sunday, H. Battu caught two, Captain Watson four and Jack Sammi three. Gibson's fish were taken in the big pool below the railroad bridge. Two of his fish weighed over twenty pounds each, one of them was a beautiful roe fish, brilliant in coloring, steelblue back and silver white belly and all the characteristic color and markings of a coast steelhead in prime condition. These fish take the spoon and roe principally, many of those caught put up a good fight.

The fact that a number of large fish caught recently in Russian river were sluggish as dishrags and, contrary to the general traditions of the river gave the fishermen but little battle, has been the source of much comment among the cognoscenti. These conditions were at first deemed local, but this theory is untenable as similar reports come from other localities.

Two weeks ago Samuel A. Heller and Clarence Ashland fished for twelve days at the mouth of the Gualallala. They caught 1200 pounds of steelhead as well as a number of salmon in that time. The trout ranged from ten to seventeen pounds in weight and among the fish taken a large number of them gave no more combat when hooked on a Heller double spoon than so many old boots. This new phase of steelhead angling, we presume, will, for the present at least, fill another chapter in a large volume entitled "What Is Not Known About Fish."

One day Heller landed ten fish making a total weight of 115 pounds. Several times during their sojourn at Gualallala, the fishermen found it necessary to dig a trench through the sandspit at the mouth of the river. The current and waves would soon enlarge the opening so that big fish could come in from the ocean and run up stream.

Striped Bass Angling.

Despite the many theories advanced by some of the salt water wisacres there is yet considerable to be learned concerning the ways and habits of the striped bass. Various theories have been advocated as to why the bass are not caught at present in the bay waters. Notwithstanding the efforts of a number of skilled anglers, many recent trips to former favorite fishing grounds about the bay have resulted fruitlessly.

A party of fishermen composed of Fred H. Bushnell, A. M. Cumming, Harry B. Hosmer, W. F. Bogart, R. W. McFarland, Chas. Briedenstein, James Lynch and a friend fished in the waters of San Antonio and Black John sloughs on Sunday last. Briedenstein and Lynch both caught small fish, not over three or four pounds in weight. The others trolled the Black John unavailingly. Cumming and Bushnell remained on the ground, stopping over night at the Petaluma Gun Club house. On Monday they trolled San Antonio creek and caught eleven fish aggregating sixty pounds in weight. The largest fish scaled ten pounds. On this occasion a pet theory of many bass fishermen was knocked into a cocked hat. When the tide was just right for an hour's fishing before and after low water they did not get a strike. Along about high tide they got into the fish and commenced to take them. They also had a number of strikes but failed to connect. At high water the anglers changed light sinkers for heavier ones, so that the Wilson spoons could get almost on the bottom.

Near the Miramonte Gun Club house, where the offal from ducks is thrown into a shallow slough, a ten pound bass was seen left in a shallow pond at low tide. Petaluma creek and its tributaries are destined apparently to become famous striped bass fishing grounds.

Striped Bass Club.

The annual banquet of the Striped Bass Club will take place on next Tuesday evening, January 21st. After the business meeting of the club a distribution of prizes and medals to various salt water anglers will take place.

The roll of membership of this club of jolly good fellows is full and quite a number of other good fellows are on the waiting list.

In Memoriam.

The Coast depot of the U. M. C. Co., 425 Market street, is tastefully draped in mourning in memory of the president of the company. The following card, which is an eloquent tribute to a gentleman who evidently had the love and confidence of his business confreres and employees, has been issued to the many friends of the corporation and its managers on the Pacific Coast:

"It is with deep regret we announce the death of our honored President,
MR. MARCELLUS HARTLEY, which occurred in New York, January 8th, 1902.
The death of Mr. Hartley closes a career of service of unusual and rare value, during which the business in all its branches felt the influence of his strong and high-minded character.

Hunting Notes.

Duck hunting in almost every district within easy reach of San Francisco has been excellent for the past week. The continuous dry weather has kept thousands of birds in the marshes of the bay counties, where they not only find plenty of natural feed, but have recourse to hundreds of baited ponds.

On the Suisun, Sonoma and Petaluma marshes, teal have been more numerous than any other variety, although there is found a fair sprinkling of canvasback, mallard and sprigtail.

Many of the ducks shot in the sloughs tributary to San Pablo and San Francisco bays are now rather fishy in flavor. An easy way to determine whether a bird, killed adjacent to or on tide waters, is of good flavor, is to simply open its mouth.

If one's nostrils are assailed by the odor of fish or clams, drop the bird—or take it home and give it to some fellow who has no claims upon you but has been persistently importuning for ducks ever since the season opened. If he doesn't know the difference, he feels elated and you'll have him on your staff next season. If he is experienced, he cannot do else than consider the matter as a hint that you are not a purveyor of game to everybody.

In two weeks more the season on feathered game will close on ducks, quail, partridge, grouse, sage hen, rail, curlew, ibis and plover. English snipe, to the lasting shame of the game law tinkers who were responsible for the many juggling features of the present game law, can be shot at any time of the year.

These dainty birds breed in this State in many places. The Suisun marshes are a breeding ground for many of the birds. In the Klamath lake regions, the Big Meadows swamp and the Sierra valley the birds also resort for breeding. The fact that Sacramento sportsmen get most of their snipe shooting in March and April has been claimed by many sportsmen as one of the principal reasons why there was no other protective provision in the present game statute than that of a limit on the day's bag, twenty-five birds.

In this respect we have heard the statement, an abortive one at that, that the representative from the Truckee region in the last Legislature was responsible for the omission of legislation for the better protection of English snipe.

The past cold weather has not been favorable for snipe shooting, although some few bags have been shot. Otto Feudner and James Maynard, among others, have had some excellent snipe shooting on the Suisun marsh. Different members of the Country Club also get good bags on the Marin county snipe patches.

Goose shooting will be in full swing as soon as the close season on other game prevails. Geese are now very plentiful on the Solano plains. Several varieties of these birds are found in that district. Collectively they gather on that feeding ground in countless thousands. In the latter part of March and in April when the birds gather, ready for the annual northern migration they can be seen on the Colusa and Solano plains in millions. If a hunter can get in between two big bunches of geese when they are in flight he can get shooting until he is satiated with it. The first geese to arrive here get in generally late in August. After about April 25th following, the only geese that can be found in the sections frequented by them are the cripples who could not make the northern trip.

Two varieties of the white goose frequent this state, the large ones and the smaller or barnacle goose. They are said to be good table birds; a favorite way of preparing them is to cut off the breasts and skin them, they are served broiled or stewed. In the spring these birds are not very good eating.

The gray or mottled goose is our earliest visitor and the last to leave in the spring. The females of this variety have a breast of dirty gray color, the mottling which distinguishes the ganders is not conspicuous on the females.

The Canada or honker goose is our largest bird of the species. This variety starts off north early in the spring. The meat is somewhat dry and coarse, getting rank and fishy by spring time.

The larger brant are similar in markings to the honker. They are an esteemed table bird.

The smaller brant, or "cling-cling," as this goose is called by hunters, is of good and palatable flavor and is particularly notable by reason of its incessant cackling and ability to keep up a continuous noise and "talk" that once heard is not soon forgotten.

These birds are nearly all easily stooped and work well to a good caller. The large brant, however, are the most difficult for the caller to persuade in coming close enough for a shot. In foggy weather the white geese, in fact, all of them fly very low to the ground and are then easy to work. The white geese are the easiest birds to decoy.

In goose shooting, the hunter will generally dig a pit on a known line of flight of the geese. Staked out on the ground nearby are his decoys; sometimes live birds are used and often dead geese are placed out and propped up so as to look like a flock of feeding birds. For night shooting, the hunter places newspaper, rolled or crumpled up, so that in the dark light the white objects are taken by the flying birds for their congeners.

This season it was noticeable that the white geese arrived here much sooner than usual, arriving very early in September.

Quail shooting has been but fair in many localities. Hunters out last Sunday found that the ground was so dry that it was difficult for the dogs to work. Mayor Johnson, of Monterey, is authority for the statement that this season there has been "quail by the million" in that county. Quail shooting of the very best has been indulged in by sportsmen who went but a short distance away from Monterey town.

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet.

Field Trial Club Election.

At the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club, held at Santa Maria on Thursday night, the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, Joseph E. Terry, of Sacramento; First Vice-President, W. W. Van Arsdale, of San Francisco; Second Vice-President, Henry W. Keller, of Santa Monica; Secretary-Treasurer, Albert Betz, of San Francisco; Executive Committee—J. H. Schumacher, C. N. Post, W. S. Tevis, C. E. Worden, T. J. A. Tiedemann. It was decided to hold the next annual trials during the week beginning the second Monday in January, 1903, on grounds to be selected by the Executive Committee later on. During the meeting the subject of permanent grounds came up for much discussion, and the Executive Committee was especially advised to try and procure such a preserve before the next trials. F. J. Stone, G. H. Anderson and R. L. Jones were elected members of the club. A special vote of thanks was tendered to Judge John A. Balmer for his conscientious efforts and fair decisions in the trials just ended. No members' stake took place on Thursday, as the owners did not care to tax their dogs with a two hours' heat, which would have been necessary in that event. Instead, almost all of the sportsmen went hunting and fine bags of quail were the order of the day, as the country there is teeming with those game birds.

Dangerous Shooting.

The reckless use of rifles by many individuals has become lately a source of much complaint on the part of sportsmen who have been imperiled by the ubiquitous jackass who has no better sense than to shoot, with a high power or long range rifle, at any and all available targets in an open country, or on a marsh where duck hunters are located out of sight in blinds. A case in point happened near Sear's Point last Sunday. One of the Honker Club members was in his blind on a slough and had his decoys placed out before him in the water. Several shots struck near him, from what direction or by whom fired he was not able to ascertain. Upon picking up his decoys he found one of them perforated from end to end. The shooter had taken the decoys for live ducks and came near ending a sportsman's life through his asinine carelessness.

At the Traps.

The regular season will probably be opened again this year by the California Wing Club with a live bird shoot on or about the first Sunday in March.

Ere many weeks have passed the blue rock season will be on again in full swing. Already the different clubs are taking active interest in preparation for the coming season.

Rumor hath it that a shoot will be arranged at the Ingleside grounds for Saturday and Sunday, February 21st and 22d. Weather permitting, the meeting should be a drawing card.

The Ingleside trap shooting and live bird grounds will be open this season as usual and every inducement the Board of Managers can consistently make for the convenience and accommodation of shooters will be conceded.

Jack Fanning kindly remembered us this week. We were agreeably surprised by the receipt, through the mail, of a handsomely illustrated calendar issued by an Eastern powder company with which he has been connected for several years past.

A consolidation of several gun clubs is under serious consideration by many shooters who have come to the conclusion that we have too many local organizations. This is the reason for too many conflicting interests. By coming together it is urged that expenses can be cut down and a more satisfactory program for the season can be carried out.

Meetings of the Olympic, Lincoln, San Francisco and Empire Gun Clubs will be held very soon and action taken in regard to the trap season of 1902.

Indications point to an active and enthusiastic interest in trap shooting this year by the Empire Gun Club. The club has a membership of sixty shooters. Besides the regular monthly shoots on the Alameda grounds last year the club pulled off several big special events that brought out the attendance of a large crowd of shooters.

"I see that Armand De Courtieux was up at the club preserve shooting the other day," said Col. Ole Hossmer to Johnny Coleman one day this week.

"Yes?" answered Coleman, "Did he bag anything?"

"Bagged a pair of duck."

"You don't tell me! Where'd he bag 'em?"

"At the knee," said the Colonel, "They were duck pants."

H. T. Dykman of New York, who now owns Coney 2:02, believes the unsexed son of McKinney will again lower his record this year. During the past two years Coney's hind feet have been in bad shape, but Mr. Dykman has them in good condition now and believes he can keep them so. The trouble, he believes, has been due to the fact that the extremely light shoes worn by Coney failed to give sufficient protection to the foot.

Breed to the Champion of the World

McKINNEY 2:11¹/₄

BY ALCYONE; DAM ROSA SPRAGUE (grandam of Ferenno (3) 2:10¹/₄) by GOV. SPRAGUE

By the percentage of his performances in the 2:15 and 2:30 lists he the Champion Sire of the World at any age.

A Race Horse Himself. He started in 28 races, won 25, was second twice and third once.

He is a Sire of Race Horses. Every one of his get in the 2:30 list secured their records in races and are all race winners.

He is the Champion in the Show Ring, Champion on the Race Track and Champion in the Stud.

His get bring better prices than the get of any other Stallion on this Coast. Nine sold in 1901 for from $1000 to $7500 each, an average of $3460 each, and $10,000 was refused for a young McKinney stallion.

He is a Complete Outcross to all California Mares.

In 1900 his get won first second and fourth money in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, first and second money in the Occident Stake and first, second and third money in the Stanford Stake. The McKinneys are stake winners.

SPECIAL HARNESS STALLION STAKE FOR 1905

For the Get of Stallions that made Private or Public Service, Season of 1901, for their Foals of 1902.

To Close FEB 15, 1902.

The Race to be contested at State Fair at Sacramento in 1905, when Foals are three years old. . . .

Entrance fee for stallions to be the price that they made public service during the season of 1901. All other stallions that did not make public service, entrance fee to be $20. Stallions to be named with the Secretary, February 15, 1902.

All foals that are the get of any stallion entered in this stake to be eligible to be entered on June 1, 1903. Entrance fee $50 each, of which $5 must accompany the entry, with breeding and name, if any, of foal, and a further payment of $10 March 1 1904, and a further payment of $15 each May 1, 1905, and final payment of $30 on the first day of August, 1905, and all colts making this payment shall be eligible to start. Starters to be named in writing through the entry box 4 P. M. day before the race.

The California State Agricultural Society to add an amount equal to all moneys paid in by the nominators of the stallions, not to exceed one thousand dollars.

Entrance moneys paid in for stallions and added moneys shall be divided 60% to the end for trotting colts and 40% to the end for pacing colts. No nominator allowed to start more than one colt in either end.

The nominator of any colts shall on May 1, 1905, then declare as to the trotting or pacing end he desires to start his colts. All moneys paid in on colts transferred to the pacing division shall be segregated and placed to the credit of the pacing stake, and all other payments shall be placed to the credit of the trotting stake.

All payments not made as they become due declares entry out and releases subscriber from further liability.

Hopples barred in both classes. Mile heats, three in five.

Nominator of the sires of the winning colts in each end to receive $250, to be deducted from the money added by the Society and the money paid in as entrance on stallions, balance of the stakes and added money to be divided 50, 25, 15 and 10%.

Right reserved to declare two starters a walk-over, for stakes paid in only.

When only two start they may contest for all entrance money paid in, not heretofore provided for, to be divided 66% per cent to the winner and 33% per cent to the second horse. A horse distancing the field in either class shall be entitled to all moneys paid in and 25% only of the money added by the Society, not heretofore provided for.

Open to all stallions that have made private or public service in any of the following States: California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and Arizona during the season of 1901.

No entry will be accepted except under this condition: That all disputes that may arise in regard to the conditions or contest of this race, shall be settled by the Board of Directors of the California State Agricultural Society, or those whom they may appoint, and their decision shall be final.

Remember the date of Closing for Stallions is FEBRUARY 15, 1902.

If we were a young man just starting in the stock business, either dairying or beef production, we would rather have $100 invested in one thoroughbred cow than three scrubs at $33 each. It would take a little longer to get started, perhaps, but when once started it would be on the right road to success.

Sheep Statistics.

The experts who figure out sheep statistics have evolved the following: The flocks of the United States, exclusive of lambs under one year old, consist of 41,920,900 sheep. The wool clip of 1901 comprises 265,502,328 pounds, exclusive of the pulled wool, as against 259,972,815 pounds in 1900, an increase of 2½ per cent. The average weight of fleeces is this year 6.33 pounds, as compared with 6.46 pounds in 1900 and is the lowest average weight since 1891. There is a reduction in the average shrinkage of fleeces from 61.1 per cent. in 1900 to 60.6 per cent. in 1901. In the States from which complete census returns have been received, the proportion of lambs last year to the ewes was about 66 per cent. This fact taken in connection with the relatively small increase in the total flocks, 1,753,082 or less than 4½ per cent. makes it clear that the amount of pulled wool produced must be large and 37,000,000 pounds is fixed as the probable quantity of pulled wool for a year, a total of about 8,000,000 pounds more than the estimates of last year. The total production of fleece and pulled wools in the grease is estimated at 303,502,328 pounds as against 288,636,621 pounds last year. The scoured product this year is estimated at 126,814,690 pounds, against 118,226,120 pounds last year. The total scoured value of the clip is estimated at $51,164,709.

Some of San Joaquin county's potato growers have made fortunes this year and others have cleared up snug sums of money. Says the Stockton Mail: "O. Y. Woodward and H. Voorman have made between $75,000 and $100,000 each. Among those who have cleared thousands are the Ennis-Brown Company, which farmed part of the Sargent tract; Wood, Curtis & Co. who had in a large acreage on Tyler Island; Frank Draper and Hickson & Long on the Bradford tract; O. E. Anderson, Jake Sargent, Ralph Lane and George Thompson. A number of Chinese and Japanese also made large sums. "Potato Jim," who rents land six or seven miles northwest of Stockton, is thought to have cleared between $30,000 and $40,000. George Shima, a Japanese who has been farming in this county for years, will make about $40,000 after standing a loss of $12,000 caused by potatoes on Staten Island being flooded."

In straining milk use nothing but double cheese cloth fastened over the top of the cans by cloth pins or by a rubber or steel band. The latter would be best because then the lid may be put on the can every time a pail has been emptied into it. Have a sufficient number so as to be able always to have clean ones ready for use, which have been rinsed with cold water immediately after using and then washed with warm water and soap, scalded or rather boiled and sun-dried. Keep strained cloths where they are free from exposure to dust.

An Eastern Poland-China breeder says: "As corn is high this season I have been trying wheat as a hog feed. My first plan was to feed it dry, but they ate it without chewing and it failed to digest. Then I tried it soaked and fed but this did not help matters much. Finally I ground it and made it into a thick slop. From this method of feeding my hogs have done unusually well and I have realized much more than the market price for my wheat."

A notable sale of live stock was made at Red Bluff last month, when twenty one, two and three year old bulls were purchased for a large stock ranch in Shasta valley by F. E. Wadsworth. The bulls brought $3000, or $150 each. An agent of Mr. Wadsworth has purchased 5000 steers paying $50 a head or $250,000 for the lot.

132,000 Deaths from this alone.

One special danger menaces those who live well, who can use champagne and fine liquors, and that is Bright's Disease. Posted clubmen understand this so well that many have tests made every few months. Others drink nothing but dry wines. But still the deaths reported from Bright's Disease and Diabetes are increasing at a fearful rate. The last census reports show that since 1890 the increase has been nearly fifty per cent and that the deaths in the United States alone from above causes and diseases growing out of them last year reached the enormous number of 132,000.

Hence the importance of every clubman knowing this fact, viz.: That Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable in about 87% of all cases. The Fulton Compounds are now saving the lives of hundreds, and will, when better known, save the lives of thousands who are now with little hope.

Percheron Stallions

FOR SALE.

Native Son, foaled April 28, 1897. He is a handsome black with brown points and was sired by Raglan, 1st dam by Adolph, 2d dam by imp. Welton, 3d dam by imp. French Spy. Native Son is one of the most promising young draft stallions in California, and is a sure foal getter. He was bred to 23 mares last year and 21 of them are in foal. His six year old brother weighs 2060 pounds, and Native Son will be as large at the same age.

Chief of Kneiphusen. This beautiful Percheron stallion, bred by Joseph Blondin of Livermore, Alameda Co., was sired by Raglan. First dam by Starlight, 2d dam by Adolph, 3d dam by French Spy. Raglan No 14,739 was imported from France by Theo. Skillman. Raglan was bred by Joseph Davignon of Graucerie, Department of Orue. Three of Raglan's colts were shown in Livermore on the 24th of February, 1900 and their average weight was 1856 pounds. Chief Kneiphusen was foaled March 5, 1897, and took the first prize in the San Francisco and San Mateo Horse Show in Tanager Park. He has been bred to 52 mares and got 48 in foal. His colts can be seen at Livermore and at Redwood City. When he is full grown he will weigh over 2100 pounds.

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent
Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

INTERESTING and VALUABLE HORSE BOOKS

MAKE YOUR SELECTION.

Any of the following Books will be sent Postpaid for the price named:

THE PRACTICAL HORSE KEEPER

By George Fleming, LL. D., F. R. C. V. S.

A guide to those who have to do with horses, containing chapters on Breeding, Purchasing, Stable and Stabling, Feeding and General Management, Riding, Hunting, Breaking and Training, Harness and Driving, Shoeing and Diseases of the Foot, Injuries, Lameness, Diseases of the Horse, the Ass and Mule, etc. Bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.90c.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN TROTTER AND PACING HORSE

By Henry T. Coates.

The book, besides treating of Driving Horses, gives a condensed history of the best horses in this country, with mention of their best performances. It is invaluable in its suggestions to horse trainers, and is the latest book on this subject published. Illustrated with 4 fine pictures. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Bound in cloth.90c.

YOUATT ON THE HORSE

The Horse. By Wm. Youatt.

Together with a General History of the Horse and a Dissertation on the American Trotting Horse and an essay on the Ass and the Mule, by J. S. Skinner. With an engraving on steel and 58 illustrations on wood. Bound in full cloth. Size, 5½ x 8½ inches.$1.15

THE HORSE IN THE STABLE AND IN THE FIELD

His management in health and disease. By J. H. Walsh, F. R. C. S. (Stonehenge). Illustrated with over 80 engravings from photographs. Handsomely bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.$1.15

DISEASES OF THE HORSE AND HOW TO TREAT THEM

By Robert Chawner.

New Edition and Concise Manual of Special Pathology for use of Horsemen, Farmers, Stock Raisers and Students of the Agricultural Colleges. Fully illustrated. Bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Cloth.$1.25

"It is an unpretending treatise free from technicalities, and well adapted for the use of farmers and stock raisers. The object of Dr. Chawner was to make a popular and reliable handbook in that department of veterinary science which treats of the horse and his diseases and in this object he has succeeded and supplied a practical want. There is no extraneous matter. Information is imparted with commendable brevity and in language plain and simple enough to be understood by all. The fallacies of the old school are rejected, and the treatment prescribed is that of modern practitioners."—Turf, Field and Farm.

THE AMERICAN GENTLEMAN'S STABLE GUIDE

The American Gentleman's Stable Guide, containing a description of the American Stable and Method of Feeding, Grooming and the general management of horses, together with the directions for the care of carriages, harness, etc. Fully illustrated. Pocket Edition. Size, 5 x 7 inches. Bound in cloth.$1.15

"The book contains a familiar description of the American stable, the most approved method of feeding, grooming and general management of horses, together with directions for the care of carriages, harness, etc. The whole is founded on the careful study and experience of many years of the author's life, and forms a valuable manual for any one who has charge of the noblest of man's irrational servants. Its low price and great value should give it general circulation among horsemen."—Indiana Farmer.

HOSRE BREEDING RECOLLECTIONS

By Count Lehendorff

The Manager of the Government Stud of Germany, who has made a special study of the intricacies of horse breeding, and in the volume before us embodies the result of years of careful study. While all may not agree with his conclusions, none will dispute the value of his observations. Size, 5½ x 8½ inches. Bound in full cloth.$1.15

"The recital of his experiences and the suggestions which he furnishes will undoubtedly prove of value to all who are interested in equine matters. Everyone so interested ought to own a copy of this valuable vade mecum."

THE TROTTER HORSE OF AMERICA

How to Train and Drive Him, with Reminiscences of the Trotting Turf.

By Hiram Woodruff.

Edited by Charles J. Foster. Including an Introductory Notice by George Wilkes and a Biographical Sketch by the Editor. With a steel portrait of the author and six engravings on wood of celebrated trotters. 12mo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Cloth, extra.$1.25

"The author was one of the most noted horsemen of this country, and in the work before us has given to the public the best thoughts, founded on years of experience in the feeding, handling, breaking and training of colts with a view to securing their best performances. Besides treating of driving horses, it gives a condensed history of the best horses in this country, with a mention of their best performances. It is invaluable in its suggestions to horse trainers, and its rules laid down and suggestions given are as good as the day they were written."

BOOK OF THE FARM

Or the Handy Book of Husbandry

Containing Practical Information in regard to Buying or Leasing a Farm; Fences and Farm Buildings, Farming Implements, Drainage, Plowing, Subsoiling, Manuring, Rotation of Crops, Care and Medical Treatment of the Cattle, Horses, Sheep, Swine and Poultry; Management of the Dairy; Useful Tables, etc. By George E. Waring Jr. of Ogden Farm, author of "Draining For Profit and For Health," etc.

New edition, thoroughly revised by the author. With 100 illustrations. 12mo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. 542 pages. Cloth, extra.$1.25

"The farmer who wants to succeed in these days of busy competition must do his farming in the most intelligent manner, and realize that the cultivation of the earth is a science as well as an industry. No farmer ought to be without this book, for it contains much that every farmer and his family need to know. It tells about buying a farm and gives ample directions about buildings, improvements and everything pertaining to the crops, the farm animals and the management of the business."—Sunday Magazine.

makes the following statement in his recent book,
"Art of Revolver Shooting."

The U. M. C. Co., U. S. A., have supplied me with large quantities of .44 gallery ammunition loaded with both round and semi-round bullets.

These have a small charge of black powder, and I should prefer this ammunition for self-defense as well as for competition up to 20 yards, as I find it the most accurate for exhibition shooting.

I think the U. M. C. gives slightly less recoil and fewer "unaccountables" than the English equivalent.

They also load these cartridges with smokeless powder, which I have used and with which I have made my bests on record in the rapid fire competition.

Send for new U. M. C. illustrated catalogues for further information concerning these modern Short Range or Gallery Cartridges, which are coming into wide use among experts and others. Game Laws and Shooting Records Free.

Occident Stake of 1904.

Secretary Geo. Jackson, of the State Agricultural Society, sends us the following list of the original entries in the Occident Stake of 1904. This stake closed January 2d with 84 entries, thirteen less than the stake of 1903, but this is accounted for by the fact that Palo Alto Stock Farm and others that have heretofore been liberal patrons of the stake are retiring from breeding. The largest list of entries to the stake of 1904 was received from the well known Santa Rosa Stock Farm, which has twelve highly bred youngsters named:

Choice Mares to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16 1-2.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir: Below is a list of mares Palo Alto Stock Farm has booked to that great young sire Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½:

1. Helena 2:11½, dam of Wild Nutling (p) 2:11½.
2. Expressive (3) 2:12½, the greatest three year old ever trotted.
3. Cressida (3) 2:18½ by Palo Alto 2:08½-Clarabel (dam of 3 in 2:30) by Abdallah Star.
4. Palita (2) 2:16, the unbeaten two year old of 1895.
5. Palatine (3) 2:18 by Palo Alto 2:08½-Elaine (dam of Iran Alto 2:12½).
6. Wildmont (3) 2:27½ (dam of Ardetta (3) 2:25) by Piedmont 2:17½-Wildflower (2) 2:21.
7. Liska (3) 2:28½ (dam of Lunda 2:25½) by Electioneer 125-Lizzie (dam of 3 in 2:30).
8. Novelist (2) 2:27 by Norval 2:14½-Elsie (dam of 5 in 2:30).
9. Alula (half-sister to Advertiser 2:15½) by Altivo (4) 2:18½-Lula Wilkes (dam of 3 in 2:30).
10. Adbuta by Advertiser 2:15½-Bell's Beauty by Electricity 2:17½, second dam Beautiful Bells.
11. Susera by McKinney 2:11½-Susette 2:23½ (dam of Lord Stanley 2:28½) by Electioneer 125.

Yours truly, F. W. COVEY.

[Superintendent Covey is one of these progressive breeders who is always aiming to produce the best and is contented with nothing else. This booking of eleven of the choicest matrons on the celebrated farm to Mr. Martin Carter's great young horse, sire of the champion John A. McKerron 2:06½ to wagon, and many others, is a master stroke. All these mares will be sent to the Fasig-Tipton Old Glory sale at New York next winter with all the other horses on the farm at that time to be placed under the hammer. The fact that they will be with foal to Nutwood Wilkes will add greatly to their value and attract many bidders who will want the Wilkes-Electioneer cross through such fashionable producing lines as these. This is a grand lot of mares to be sent to the court of any stallion, and the selection of Nutwood Wilkes by such a progressive breeder as Superintendent Covey is indeed a compliment, though fully deserved by the performances of this son of Guy Wilkes on the track and in the stud.—ED. B. & S.]

A Proposed Racing Ordinance.

The following ordinance has been introduced in the Board of Supervisors by member John A. Lynch. From the best information we can get, there is little chance of this ordinance becoming a law:

Be it ordained by the people of the city and county of San Francisco:

Section 1. Ordinance No. 66, approved May 14, 1900, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person or corporation owning, leasing or controlling any race track, to hold or conduct, or permit or suffer to be held or conducted, any horse race meetings, horse races or contests between horses, within the city and county of San Francisco, for any longer time or number of days than the aggregate period of sixty (60) days in any one calendar year.

Sec. 2. It shall be unlawful for any person or corporation in the city and county of San Francisco to sell or buy pools, or make books, or make any bet or wager in any system of registering bets or wagers wherein money, or other representative of value, or other articles of value are staked or pledged on races or other contests between horses except within the inclosure of a race track, and only upon horse races held within said inclosure and conducted within the limited period of sixty (60) days in any one calendar year, prescribed by section 1 hereof.

Sec. 3. No person, otherwise competent as a witness, is disqualified from testifying as such concerning the offenses in this ordinance defined, on the ground that such testimony may criminate such witness under the provisions of this ordinance, but no prosecution can afterward be had against such witness for any offense defined in this ordinance concerning which he testified.

Sec. 4. Any person violating the provisions of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment not exceeding six months.

Sec. 5. This ordinance shall take effect immediately.

Getting Ready for the Blue Ribbon Sale.

PALO ALTO, Jan. 22, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir: The consignment from Palo Alto to the Blue Ribbon Sale at Cleveland, May, 1902, are now being handled by Mr. James Thompson, trainer, formerly with Hon. L. U. Shippee of Stockton.

The consignment consists of 48 two year olds, the entire crop of 1900 that are fit to go. They are the grandest lot of two year olds ever bred at Palo Alto; many well engaged in Eastern stakes. Full sisters to Eleata (4) 2:08½, Lucrative 2:13½; full brother to Azmon 2:13½; full sister to Carolita. Half brothers to Cecilian (2) 2:22, Expressive (3) 2:12½, Ned Thorn 2:11½; half sister to Freedom (1) 2:29½, Mendocino (3) 2:19½, Bernal 2:17; half brothers to Sweet Rose (1) 2:25½, Rowellan (3) 2:15½, L. 96, 2:16½, Ardetta (3) 2:25; half sister to Adabella (2) 2:25½, and many others of note.

Yours truly, F. W. COVEY.

A Knock the-Knockers Club.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—I have been a resident of this city by the western ocean but a short time, but during my stay here have learned that there are a very large number of that pestiferous class called "knockers" among the horsemen. In trying to dispose of a horse that I came here to sell I have run up against some of these knockers and find that they can be converted to boosters by a liberal application of grease to the palms of their hands. Not being in the oil business I have been unable to supply the necessary grease, hence the knocking continues. Now I suggest the organization of a Knock-the-Knockers Club, and that a meeting of horse owners be called at some convenient place forthwith. Every member will be required to take notes every time he hears a knocker at work and report the same to the club. From that time forth every member will be required to knock the knocker whenever and wherever it is possible to hit him. There are several knockers in San Francisco whose tongues are always wagging, but who are very tender and thin-skinned when a knock is aimed at them. They think it very cute to spoil a sale by insinuations and false statements, but when they feel the tattoo that our club will beat on their anatomy they will imagine that they have awakened from a sleep in a boiler factory, and it is a two to one bet they will yell for mercy. It is the most effective way to cure this bad habit I know of. I hope every horseman who is not a knocker will begin knocking every knocker he hears knocking in the future.

Yours truly, A VICTIM.

San Francisco, Jan. 15, 1902.

May Sue the N. T. A.

The case of the chestnut gelding Arch W., which was the subject of general discussion last spring, may be aired in the civil courts, the owner of the horse having last week instituted suit against the National Trotting Association, says The Horse Review. How he will be able to get service on the officers of that organization is a question. In one suit the court is asked to force the National Trotting Association to release the horse from suspension and reinstate him. The other asks damages in the sum of $20,000 to reimburse the owner for the loss sustained during the past year by the enforced idleness of the gelding through his suspension until all claims for illegally won money are paid. Opinion as to whether the National Trotting Association had jurisdiction in the case of Arch W. was quite equally divided last spring, when the affair was so much commented upon, and if the case ever comes to trial considerable interest will be centered in the case, and the judges' decision as to whether the parent association had jurisdiction in the matter will be awaited with more than passing interest.

No one will be interested in the $20,000 suit for damages, it being preposterous to claim that Arch W.'s enforced idleness was worth anywhere near that amount. No court will attempt to place the amount which a horse that did not race might have won had it been raced, and it is an open question whether Arch W. under any circumstances could have proven a winner in his class last year. On the other hand, the National Trotting Association may have saved the owner money, such as entrance fees and shipping bills, by keeping him off the turf.

A Canard Refuted.

Some evil minded person started the rumor a few weeks since that cases of glanders had been found among the horses at the salesyard at 11th and Market streets in this city known as the Killip & Chase yard, and that the State Veterinarian had so reported. The following letter will show that the report was as false as it was vindictive:

OFFICE STATE VETERINARIAN OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 20, 1901.

To FRED H. CHASE, San Francisco, Cal. Dear Sir:—In reply to your communication of even date I will say in justice to all concerned that your horses are not suspected of being affected with any contagious or infectious disease, and that your stables located at 11th and Market streets, San Francisco, are not under quarantine or any other restrictions as far as this office is concerned.

Yours truly,
CHARLES H. BLEMER
State Veterinarian.

G Peirano of Lodi, owner of that good looking stallion Alta Genoa by Dexter Prince, will make a season with the horse at Lodi this year at $30. Alta Genoa was much faster than his record and is proving a sire of size and good looks as well as speed, and many valuable colts by him are owned around Lodi.

Strike!—if they don't give you Jackson's Napa Soda

Broodmare Sires.

[Chicago Horseman, Jan. 14]

According to information secured by this paper there were, in 1901, twenty-two stallions whose daughters produced five or more standard performers. Nutwood is again found at the head of the list, and again he is far in the lead with the enormous total of twenty-two representatives. He is followed by Onward, whose daughters have produced sixteen new performers, and by Red Wilkes, who is the sire of the dams of fourteen new ones. Running down through this list of stallions with five or more to their credit, the preponderance of Hambletonian blood in the male is astounding; it is remarkable that of twenty-two horses in the list only three do not trace to the hero of Chester. No less than seven are his sons, nine others are grandsons and three others are great grandsons, the three exceptions being Blue Bull, Kentucky Prince and Cyclone.

To more plainly show the increase in the number of performers produced by the daughters of the leading Scion of the Royal Families.

That well posted horse breeder, Samuel Gamble, has often remarked in the writer's hearing: "If a breeder desires to succeed in producing harness horses that will sell for good prices in the markets he must get right up among the royal families of that breed." There was never a truer remark made and we are pleased to see that Mr. Gamble has assumed the management of a young stallion that is one of the bluest blooded of all the royal lines—Stam B. 2:11½, and will keep this grand race horse at Pleasanton during the season of 1902.

Stam B. is not only one of the gamest and fastest trotters ever produced in California, but he is one of the handsomest stallions in America, losing nothing in comparison with his great sire Stamboul, whose magnificent individuality won for him gold medals and blue ribbons whenever he met the best of America on the tan bark of the National Horse Show.

The dam of Stam B. is the mare Belle Medium, whose trotting record is 2:20, and whose sire is that great son of Hambletonian, Happy Medium, that sired the trotting queen Nancy Hanks 2:04, dam of that splendid three year old Admiral Dewey that took a record of 2:14½ last year. Belle Medium is one of the handsomest mares in California to-day and it is no wonder that Stam B.'s colts have so much of this very desirable and necessary quality, as it would be difficult

Along the line of last week's table, which showed the one hundred leading sires of standard performers, there is presented below the list of stallions that have sired the dams of fifty or more performers and as a comparison there is given the same table as it stood at the close of 1896. In the table for 1901 it will be seen that there are ten stallions which have sired the dams of one hundred or more, which is one more than the total number which have sired one hundred or more performers themselves. Nutwood, Red Wilkes and Electioneer have each sired one hundred or more, and sired the dams of 100 or more performers in the list. With 186 to his credit, Nutwood has taken a long lead as the greatest sire of dams. Only fourteen more additions during the coming season will make his total two hundred, and as he secured more than that number in each of the last five years the chances are that he will pass the mark before another campaign shall have been ended. George Wilkes stands second in the list with a total of 163. Blue Bull, whose daughters have been producing standard performers at the rate of from eight to ten every year for the past six or seven seasons, is a close third, while quite a distance in the rear comes Mambrino Patchen, who reigned for so broodmare sires, there is presented a third table below. It shows the total number of performers produced from 1896 to the close of 1901. During those years Nutwood sired the dams of no less than eighty-seven trotters and pacers. He is followed by Red Wilkes, who has sixty. A stallion that occupies third position, leaving such noted sires of dams as Strathmore, Blue Bull, Onward, Electioneer, George Wilkes, Belmont and others behind, is Jay Gould, a horse that has seldom if ever, been referred to as a great broodmare sire. At the close of 1896, his daughters had produced but fourteen performers; now they have to their credit a total of seventy-three, making fifty-nine that he secured from 1896 to the close of 1901.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda hasa dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

to find two handsomer representatives than his sire and dam.

The second dam of Stam B. is Argenta, a producing mare by Almont Lightning, a stallion that was not only a handsome horse, but was considered by General Withers, his breeder, to be one of the best colts Almont ever sired. Hon. H. J. Jewett paid $10,000 for Almont Lightning but the horse died before reaching the age of eight years, leaving very few foals.

Mary Adams, the third dam of Stam B. was a daughter of that great broodmare sire Mambrino Patchen, his fourth dam was by the great Mambrino Chief II, fifth dam by Mason's Whip, a son of the noted Blackburn's Whip one of the great thoroughbreds of his day whose blood is found in the veins of many of the fastest modern trotters.

Stam B. is surely destined to be a great sire of speed, high action and extreme beauty. He imparts those qualities to all his get without exception. As a race horse he had few equals. He and his rival Zombro were the greatest three year old trotters of 1895 in the United States. Stam B. during his racing career started in 21 races, was first 10 times, second 6 times, and third 5 times, thus never being fourth or unplaced. He won $75,000 in purses and was one of the gamest of the game. Those breeders who admire handsome carriage, good looks and size as well as speed can find no better stallion to mate their mares with than this son of the now deceased Stamboul, champion of the track and show ring.

Notes and News.

Gazelle 2:11½ (dam of Zolock 2:10½) is in foal to Council Chimes 2:07½.

The English Army requires between 18,000 and 19,000 horses in time of peace.

Hart Boswell's fee this year will be $50 instead of $30 as the types made us say last week.

Pique, at the age of thirteen, is the dam of Chain Shot 2:06½, Brash 2:15½ and Deputize 2:22½.

Pittsburg will have a horse show this year, and $25,000 has already been subscribed for that purpose.

Get one of those Palo Alto broodmares and breed her to some good stallion every year. There is money in it.

Some talk is heard now and then about matching Anaconda 2:01½ against Prince Alert 2:00½ the coming year.

Nominate your stallion in the California State Agricultural Society's Special Harness Stallion Stake for 1905.

Zombro 2:11 will have a full book at Los Angeles. His services there will be limited, as he goes to Oregon, June 1st.

The two minute trotter will have to go forty-four feet every second. Cresceus went 43.108 feet a second in his record mile.

There is no need of your horse suffering with scratches or cracked heels. Veterinary Pixine will cure them every time.

Andy Welch is out after the Lord Derby-Boralma match, and says he will give as much as any other track to secure the race.

A $10,000 event for trotters and one of $5000 for pacers are liable to be found on Cleveland's Grand Circuit program for this year.

Lucille 2:07, the champion wagon mare, is jogging sound at Memphis, and has apparently recovered from the injury received last summer.

Several extra good looking roadsters will be sold at the administrator's sale of the late J. B. Chase's horses at 1732 Market street February 4th.

Don't forget the date of the Palo Alto sale of stallions and broodmares at the Occidental Horse Exchange. It is Thursday next, January 30th. The horses will be at the yard on Monday for inspection.

It is rumored about New York that a matinee racing club will be formed in that city next month on the plan of the famous club at Cleveland. The more clubs of this sort the better. San Francisco should have one.

A. J. Feek, of Syracuse, N. Y., has sold to A. H. Miller, of Buffalo, the bay trotting mare Red Princess 2:12½ for $3000. She will be entered liberally in the big stake events the season of 1902. She has shown three heats better than 2:15.

Five of the greatest pacers of 1901, Coney 2:02, Dan Patch 2:04½, Royal R. Sheldon 2:04½, Audubon Boy 2:06 and Charley Hayt 2:06½, have double or treble crosses to George Wilkes. This speaks volumes for Wilkes blood and for judicious breeding.

D. L. Crane, the well known horseshoer, formerly of Sacramento, is now located at Los Angeles. Mr. Crane has shod as many trotters and pacers on the California circuit during the past few years as any man, and the horse men all speak highly of his work.

Here is one of the stories that is starting about once a week on the Hot Air circuit: "It is said that Ed Geers has purchased a mule with which he expects to win the next Transmutia Stake at Memphis, Tenn. It is said that the mule stepped a mile the third of January in 2:47½."

When Cresceus stepped the Dallas, Tex., track in 2:07 on New Year's Day, he recorded his twenty-third mile of the season better than 2:10, two of these miles having been trotted over half-mile tracks. It was the fastest mile ever trotted in January, and the last quarter was trotted in 29½ seconds.

Only three trotters acquired world's records in 1901, a stallion, a gelding and a mare. Cresceus reduced the trotting record from 2:03½ to 2:02½, Peter Stirling lowered the record for geldings three years old from 2:12 to 2:11½ and Janice trotted a mile and one-eighth in 2:24, the record for that distance.

G. C. Owens, who has been located at the Concord, Contra Costa county, race track since last fall, and is handling a few trotters and pacers for different owners, has a high opinion of the Sidney stallion Sidmore 2:17½, sire of Teddy the Roan 2:17½, Little Miss 2:17½, General 2:14½ and others, that is owned in that county. Mr. Owens drove Sidmore a public trial at the Concord fair last year, and although the horse was not in condition for a full mile at his best speed, turned the track in 2:17½, going the first half in 1:11 and the last quarter in 30 seconds.

Dan Misner has a colt by Meridian 2:12½ in his string and is jogging him on the park roads preparatory to training for the circuit. This is the first of Meridian's get to be trained, but there are more coming and they will get race records as soon as they are old enough to race, as they are fast.

The Eastern Grand Circuit dates will be fixed at a meeting to be held at Detroit next Tuesday. The Detroit Club desires to open the circuit as usual, but asks that its date be put one week later than last season. There are fourteen associations asking for a place in "the big ring."

Thos. S. Griffith, who is now nicely located at Seattle's new race track, where his horses are all doing well. There will be a four day's meeting at Seattle in June or July and one in October. Mr. Griffith says he expects to win a race or two there with his green mare Guysome by Hammer.

James Thompson is at Palo Alto Stock Farm at work on the trotting colts that are being prepared for the big sale at Cleveland in May. Superintendent Covey is confident that this, the last consignment of youngsters from Palo Alto to the salesring, will be the choicest lot ever sent across the mountains.

Arthur Brown, lessee of the Napa race track, put men to work on the track last Monday and will soon have it in good condition for training horses over. The track is being plowed up and will be harrowed, leveled and worked until its condition is as near perfect as possible. It will be one of the best tracks in the State to train horses on.

A well bred three year old bay colt by Diawood 2:11 is advertised for sale in this issue. His dam is by Wilkesdale 2:29, a well bred son of Alcantara; second dam by Calabar 8059, son of Guy Wilkes; third dam Madam Wilson by John Nelson. This is as rich breeding as there is in the books and as the colt is a good individual he should be worth all the money the owner asks for him.

Who will buy Bell Bird 2:22, daughter of Electioneer and Beautiful Bells? She is to be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange January 30th, which is Thursday next, and as she is a full sister to Hinda Rose 2:19½, Alta Belle 2:23½, St. Bel 2:24½, Chimes 2:30½ the great sire, Bell Boy 2:19½, Bow Bells 2:19½, Bellflower 2:12½ and Belsire 2:21½ and but twelve years old, should be worth a lot of money.

Inquiries for good horses for road and park purposes are numerous. No less than four advertisements of horses wanted are in our advertising columns this week. A pair of mares is wanted by one, a driving mare by another, a single footer by still another, and a gentleman's driving horse that can show better than a 2:30 gait is desired by still another. Some of our readers should be able to supply these wants.

The annual meeting of the Directors of the Northern New York Trotting Horse Breeders Association was held at Glens Falls on January 13th. C. W. Cool was elected President, F. W. Bentley, Secretary, and W. I. Griffing Treasurer. The association will apply for dates on the Grand Circuit this year. All the California horsemen who have raced at Glens Falls speak in the very highest terms of the management and of the track.

Azmoor 2:20½ by Electioneer out of Mamie C., dam of three in the 2:30 list, by the thoroughbred horse imp. Hercules, is to be sold at the Palo Alto sale next Thursday. Azmoor is twenty years old, but a sound and vigorous horse and would have large earning capacity in proper hands. He has sired a number of good race horses, among them the horse Betonica that took a record of 2:10½, and paced a public trial at the Santa Ana fair in 2:06½.

Mr. E. D. Dudley, of Dixon, writes us that his bay mare, Bee by Sterling out of Flash by Egmont, is the dam of Monroe B. 2:19½, which will give Mary by Flaxtail another descendant in the standard list, as Sterling is one of her sons. The record of Monroe B. was made at the State Fair last year in a race for members of the Sacramento Driving Club. He won the second, third and fourth heats, getting his record in the second.

Thomas Charlton of Ukiah has sold his trotter Black Bart 2:17½ to William Andrews of Iowa. The horse was shipped to this city this week and will be sent from here to the home of the purchaser in a few days. Black Bart was on the California circuit last year, starting as a green horse. Out of six starts he won four first moneys, was fourth once and behind the money once. He is a good looking horse and a good prospect for a 2:10 trotter.

Little Tobe, a 14 hand trotter by Pimlico 2:10, was one of the handsomest little horses ever seen on a race track. He could step like a drum major and lift his knees as high as any horse. He sacrificed his tail to the demand of fashion and was placed in the New York Horse Show, where he won second to T. W. Lawson's Glorious Bonnie, another trotting bred high stepper. Vivian Gooch of Windsor, England, paid $4000 for Little Tobe and will take him home with him.

It is with regret that we chronicle the death of Mr. Frank P. Lowell, who passed away after a lingering illness and much suffering on the 15th of this month at his home in Oakland. Mr. Lowell at one time was quite an extensive breeder of trotting horses, having owned the stallion Don Marvin and other well bred ones. He had been an invalid for years prior to his death. Mr. Lowell was an upright, honorable man in all his dealings and leaves many friends to mourn his loss.

If some millionaire would but essay to get the world's pole record to sensational figures it would have a splendid effect in many ways. It has been 2:12½ since 1892, and no really first class pair of race trotters have ever been tried as a team regularly. A man who organizes a 2:10 or 2:09 team of trotters can readily engage them after they were to show high form. Teamwork ever appeals to the wealthy, and invariably interests the more humble enthusiasts.—Exchange.

I have been told that Mr. E. Smathers intends starting his $10,500 purchase, Lord Derby 2:06½, in the matinee races, and has determined to try his hand at bringing the Boston Cup to New York. At a meeting of a part of the Road Drivers' Association directors, held at the Rossmore, it was decided to hold a public meeting within two weeks to consider plans for forming a matinee club here this season. This means possibly securing of Empire City track as no other is available, seemingly.—"Percy" in N. Y. Telegraph.

During the season of 1901 the Kansas City Driving Club made the following record: Number of events in matinees, 98; number of heats, 241; number of starters, 380; fastest heat trotted, 2:16; fastest heat paced, 2:15; average time of all heats, 2:24½; horses owned by members and started in matinees, 57; membership of club, over 300. Not included in above was the exhibition mile of Cresceus in 2:09½, on October 24th, establishing the world's record for one-half mile track. Jas. A. Patton is president of this prosperous matinee society.

Sam Gamble writes us from Pleasanton that he desires "to claim the name Allegro for his black colt by Axtell 2:12 at three years old; first dam by Simmons 2:74, second dam (dam of Jeanette 2:22) by Artillery 750, record 2:21½; third dam, that grand broodmare Lizzie Hayden by Peavine 513; fourth dam Lizzie Brinker (in great broodmare list) by Drennon, thoroughbred." Mr. Gamble has a great young stallion in this fellow, but will have to guess again for a name, as there are already two stallions registered by the name "Allegro."

Henry Glide, of Sacramento, is trying to fill an order from Mexico to purchase a carload of standard bred stallions. They must be sound young horses, three or four years old, and must weigh from 1100 to 1200 pounds when matured. Speed nor records are required, but size and good looks. Mr. Glide's order also calls for a carload each of Holstein cattle, Devons and Jerseys (the latter in particular) and a carload of blooded sheep. Any of our readers who have animals of the desired kind for sale should address Mr. Glide at once at the general postoffice, Sacramento.

Among the California mares that will be bred to Cresceus 2:02½ this year are Miracle by McKinney. She is a full sister to Coney 2:02 and is owned by Mr. John W. Gardner, of San Francisco, who bred her. Miracle is now at the Ketcham Farm at Toledo, having gone East in the car with Cresceus. Little Maid 2:18, a pacing mare by Rockwood owned by mine host C. A. Harrison, of the Abbottsford Inn, Los Angeles, also went to Toledo in the car to be bred to the champion. Mr. Geo. Fox, of Clements, who leased his stallion Silver Bow to Mr. Ketcham, has arranged to send his mare Kitty Fox by Pancoast to Cresceus this spring.

Z. E. Simmons, for forty years one of the most promising horse men in the country, is lying seriously ill at the home of his brother-in-law, Daniel J. Bernstein in New York. Mr. Simmons owned George Wilkes 2:22 when the famous horse trotted his first race under the name of Robert Fillingham at the Fashion track, on Long Island, in 1861. Six years later he backed Ethan Allen and running mate to beat Dexter in single harness, and put something like $50,000 in his pocket when the old stallion vanquished his rival in 2:15. Mr. Simmons has lived on his breeding farm near Lexington, Ky., for twenty years or more. He is 72 years old.

Palmer Clark rightly claims that the matches for $20,000 between Boralma, Lord Derby and The Abbot will not decide which is the superior race horse. He holds that as one horse or the other may not be in condition on the day of the match, the race may be a walkover for the other. Mr. Clark suggests that a series of contests in which all three horses would compete in each race would be much more satisfactory. While there is no doubt as to this let us not ask too much. If an owner puts up his money and loses it because his horse is not in condition the man that has one little lone dollar to see the race should not howl loud enough to be heard in the next county. The match races may result in the two greatest races ever seen, and they may not, but the public should consider that the chances of not getting a dollar's worth are very remote.

James Berryman is at work on three promising horses belonging to Newlands & Reardon of Oakland. He has the six year old stallion, Charles Marvin, a full brother to Don Lowell 2:14½, that is a very handsome large horse and an excellent trotting prospect. Charles Marvin will be permitted to serve a few mares this spring and then placed in training for the first time. Mr. Berryman thinks he has a prize in a diminutive bay mare by McKinney out of a Sidney mare. She is a trotter with a gait that is about perfection and shows bursts of speed that look to be of the 2:15 variety. The sorrel mare, Maud R. by Jim C., is another good prospect that Mr. Berryman has in charge. She is a pacer without a record and will be raced in the slow classes this year. Mr. Berryman is a careful man and says he does not propose moving any of these horses fast for some time yet. He has taken them to the Alameda track and has plenty of stall room for a few more which he will train at reasonable terms.

American Candidates For English Derby.

[BY J. J. BURKE]

For the first time in its history the famous Epsom Derby, to be run on Wednesday, June 4th, will in all probability have as competitors for the glorious "blue ribbon of the turf," as Lord George Bentinck described it to Benjamin Disraeli, at least four American turfmen of renown.

It is peculiarly appropriate, too, that this, the "Coronation Derby," should be the occasion of a concerted effort by Americans to win it, just twenty-one years after the late Mr. Pierre Lorillard's Iroquois should have added this coveted trophy to the many which adorned the home of his owner at Rancocas.

For the first time since the death of the Queen it is declared that the royal colors will be seen in public. Those colors are purple, gold braid, scarlet sleeves, black velvet cap with gold fringe. The recent announcement that Lord Marcus Beresford has been appointed manager of the King's racing stud makes this more than probable.

There are two colts in this year's Derby who were nominated by the King while he was still Prince of Wales, and it is only reasonable to expect that, whether these colts have a chance to win or whether they have not, one or both may be started in order to lend eclat to the occasion.

It would be no new thing to see those colors in front in the Derby. Twice have they been in the van, once on Persimmon in 1896, and again on Diamond Jubilee, his full brother, in 1900, both winners bred by their owner, this fact alone being quite as much cause for congratulation as the actual winning of the great race, for to breed even an ordinary stake winner affords the keenest pleasure to the real sportsman.

It is against such turfmen as the King of England, Duke of Devonshire, Lord Alington, Duke of Portland, Lord Bradford, Lord Durham, Lord Falmouth (nephew to the more famous nobleman of the same name), Lord Rosebery, Baron Rothschild, Mr. Leopold de Rothschild, Duke of Westminster and some of the very highest class French turfmen that our own Americans will this year send their representatives.

If any of the quartet should be fortunate enough to win the great race no ordinary language would suffice to describe the real feelings of such a man. Some slight idea may be had when it is recalled that last May, at the local Gravesend track, when news of the victory of his leased English colt, Volodyovski, in the Derby, reached Mr. Whitney he at once gave carte blanche to the caterer at the track to open wine for all comers.

Most important to American lovers of the best class of racing is the shipment by Mr. Whitney of his colt Nasturtium to run for the stake. He was accompanied by a stable companion, but few really imagine that this colt, Intruder, a juvenile of no known form, was sent over with any real hope of being a dangerous contender.

Experts agree that it would have been far better if the American colt had been sent across the Atlantic last September or October, but, as is well known, the intentions of his owner were not then centred on this enterprise, and it was only after consultation with the trainer at his English stable that Mr. Whitney decided to take all the risks that a midwinter journey implied.

James R. Keene's best known candidate for the Derby is Kearsarge by Kingston, out of Flying Squadron. This colt was bred by Mr. Keene at his Kentucky farm and sent to England as a yearling, no doubt after having shown good trials, which have to some extent since been confirmed by his double victory on two consecutive days, his more important victory being a race called the Prendergast Stake, which requires a colt of class to win.

There is a stable companion of Kearsarge called Cheiro, by Horoscope out of Veva, who has never run, and about whom little is known. He is a Derby candidate also, bred in this country by Mr. Keene, and sent over in company with Kearsarge. These two, with all of the horses now in England the property of the Messrs. Keene, have recently been placed in charge of another trainer, Felix Leach, whose brother is a famous Newmarket veterinarian.

Mr. Richard Croker's nomination for the Derby is called Stanhope. He is a big coarse colt, and Jacob Pincus, who trained Iroquois and who has spent some recent years in England, compares him to Tom Ochiltree, the great cup horse owned by George Lorillard and raced a quarter of a century ago.

Stanhope is the produce of the King's horse, Florizel, mated to an American mare called King's Daughter, sent to England by J. E. McDonald in 1896 and now owned by Mr. Croker. This mare is a daughter of the late Mr. August Belmont's grand horse Kingfisher, who as far back as 1871 was actually timed a mile in 1:40 in a race at two and a quarter miles, he and Longfellow practically running each other to a standstill, so that, as Pincus says, "a yeller dog" might have beaten both at the finish but for the fact that they were the only starters.

The full time was 4:02½, which would make the last mile and a quarter in 2:22½, or about fourteen seconds slower than the average time of a race at this distance, showing how the pace of the first mile told. This was thirty years ago, and the statement was recently made by Kingfisher's trainer at that time that he was good enough to have won the English Derby of his year.

Stanhope, Mr. Croker's colt, is a grandson of Kingfisher, but whether he is a colt of the same class as his ancestor is open to question. Mr. Croker thinks he is a good one, but many cold-blooded observers of him at Newmarket think otherwise. His late trainer, Enoch Wishard, has stated that he has shown speed as good as half a mile in 51 seconds, up hill part of the way.

An intensified international flavor attaches to the Derby of this year by the fact that Mr. William K. Vanderbilt has a colt called Ellsmere engaged. This youngster was foaled in France, the produce of an American mare, Ella Pinkerton, who was sent over to that country in foal to the dead Hanover, whose premature death was one of the greatest blows the turf of this country has ever sustained. Mr. Vanderbilt has been a consistent purchaser of American mares for his stud in France, and only recently he bought the stallion Halma, a son of Hanover, the purchase of this horse having undoubtedly been prompted by the promise shown by Ellsmere, who was among the best colts of his age on the French turf in 1901.

His notable victory at Maisons Lafitte in October last, when he defeated a field comprising two and three year olds at seven furlongs and ran as if he liked a long race, certainly entitles him to great respect. The colt is also in the Grand Prix, to be run only a few days after the Derby, and the winner of the English stake is sometimes at a disadvantage in trying for the French prize so soon after the Derby.

Mr. Vanderbilt has, however, a very strong stable this year, judging from their performances in 1901, and one thing which may be in their favor is that there is no two year old racing in France until August 1st. It should be a source of gratification to Americans to know that all of Mr. Vanderbilt's best colts and fillies are the produce of American mares purchased from Mr. Pierre Lorillard in 1895. Among them may be mentioned Blush, Ildico and Dolinka, all familiar to students of our stud book.

Nasturtium is beyond doubt the colt in which most interest is felt, because of the great odds he encounters in his attempt. Not alone must he be of good enough class to be able to win if he had no setbacks of any sort, but he must survive all the chances of sickness and changes of climate that lurk upon the heels of a race horse. His predecessor, Tommy Atkins, sent over a year ago on a similar errand—viz., to win the blue ribbon—died almost immediately after landing. Killashandra, a filly, met the same fate.

On the other, Kilmarnock, Elizabeth M., Elkhorn, St. Cloud, Voter and many others landed safely and most of them raced up to their known form. St. Cloud was within a short head of winning one of the big Fall handicaps. Voter was a failure in England, but a success here; St. Cloud a success in England, a failure in America. Kilmarnock was a real good horse in both countries, and from the tone of John Huggins, his trainer, there is not a horse upon the English turf that has a better chance for the honors to be won in the Ascot Gold Cup and Alexandra Vase, to say nothing of the other valuable races in which he is engaged.

As to the public form of Mr. Whitney's candidate, racing critics liked the manner in which Nasturtium won the Flatbush Stakes at Sheepshead Bay, seven furlongs, run in 1:25 3-5. But it was over the new or nearly straight seven furlongs, and did not rank as good a performance as was that of Requitel in 1895, when he ran around the turn in 1:26, defeated the good colt Ben Brush, ran the first five furlongs in one minute flat, and went on the full mile in 1:40, as timed by a number of experts at the time. This was the most notable public trial ever shown, and when David Gideon, who owned him at that time, was recently asked if such a colt as Requitel could have won this year's English Derby he emphatically declared that he could have won "fifteen Derbys."

The same good judge was asked how he liked the chances of Mr. Whitney's colt for the Derby and he answered that if he was as good a colt as he appeared to be in this country he would be a dangerous competitor, but that it would have helped his chances very much if he could have been landed safely in October last.

James Rowe, Mr. Keene's trainer, who ought to know what sort of a colt it took to win the Derby, said that he was influenced by the fact that John Huggins was very much of the opinion that Nasturtium's chances were second to none. Jacob Pincus, who trained Iroquois when he won the Derby of 1881, was confident that Nasturtium had a good chance to win, but he had never seen him run, and hence was dependent upon the opinions of his friends, some of whom thought that the colt had bad action for one who would be required to win over the peculiar Derby course. "But Kingfisher had bad action, too," said Mr. Pincus, "and he could have won any Derby, and might have beaten Longfellow in 1871 in the three-mile race that was to follow the Cup of that year, but old John Harper refused to run Longfellow against Kingfisher, who had a walkover."

John W. Rogers, trainer of Nasturtium during the season of 1901, has expressed the utmost confidence in the colt, claiming that for speed he had no superior in America, and he was certain that he would go the Derby route.

And finally John Huggins, the man who is to train the Derby colt, is of the opinion that in five months' training he will be able to fit Nasturtium to run a race good enough to win the Derby if his class is equal to it.

Just what the Derby is and the sort of course the winner has to run over to achieve this great honor are interesting to Americans who are familiar with the circular tracks of this country. As an event, no race in the world surpasses it in drawing power. It is declared that a million people see the race or some part of it. This may be an exaggeration, however. The transportation facilities to Epsom are not really first class. London supplies a greater part of the crowd, yet the attendance is much more cosmopolitan than those at the now inclosed courses at Sandown or Kempton Park.

In good weather the "going" is all right, but in times of drought it becomes dry and hard. The course, a mile and a half, is a great test of merit, although the turn at "Tattenham Corner" is condemned as dangerous. There is not a long "run in," considering this turn, yet it is said that the Derby fields seldom run wide. The shape of the course is not unlike a horseshoe. The first half mile is up hill somewhat, then a long descent to "Tattenham Corner." For the last three furlongs of the race there is a gentle rise. Good shoulders are essential for a Derby colt.

This year will be the 122nd running. It was first raced for in 1780, and its winner, Diomed, imported to America. In five crosses Lexington, the greatest horse of his time, went back to Diomed as follows: Lexington, Boston, Timoleon, Sir Archy and Diomed. Not once in fifty years is the Derby winner less than the best of his year, although it has sometimes happened that the best of the year was disqualified through the death of his nominator, or because he was not entered in the stake. Frequently a Derby winner has been retired at the close of his three year old form and begun to earn enormous fees for his owner.

Immense prices are often realized for Derby winners when sold. Thus Ormonde was bought by a young Californian for $150,000, and two years ago his grandson, Flying Fox, was sold for over $187,500—a record never yet equaled. His present owner is M. Blanc, the famous continental turfman.

More than once it has been charged that horses more than three years old have won it, and it was proved to be true in one instance—that of Running Rein, in 1844. In 1867, Hermit won at long odds, it having been reported that he had burst a blood vessel several days before the race. The winner of 1868, Blue Gown, was purchased by Mr. James R. Keene in 1876, but died at sea on his way to America. There have been two dead heats for the race in its entire history—1828 and 1884. Mr. Pierre Lorillard was the only turfman who won with an American horse. L. Reiff was the only American jockey to ride a Derby winner—Volodyovski—New York Herald Jan., 13th.

Will Ride Across the Continent.

On our front page to day is a picture of Mr. G. von Zedlitz-Neukirch of this city, formerly an officer in the German army, and a gray horse he proposes riding from San Francisco to New York. The gentleman purchased the horse from Mr. H. B. Goecken, the well known hay and grain merchant of this city, who bred and raised him at his farm near Livermore. He is called Young Roland, and was sired by Mr. Goecken's stallion Roland, a son of the Electioneer stallion Junio and the running bred mare Oregon Bello. The dam of Young Roland was a full sister to Sweetbriar 2:26½, therefore by Eugene Casserly, a son of the old twenty mile trotter Gen. Taylor, and out of Peanuts by Geo. M. Patchen 31. Young Roland is full of trotting blood, is a good weight packer and a very hardy horse. He will get a pretty severe test on the trip as his rider weighs about two hundred pounds. The trip will be begun about March 1st.

Owen Brothers' good racehorse Grady, winner of many stakes and races at all distances, died at the farm of his owners in Fresno county last week. He was by Three Cheers out of Gold Cup and one of the fastest and most consistent thoroughbreds that ever raced in California.

THE PRINCIPAL SUBJECT of conversation among breeders of harness horses on this Coast at the present time is the Special Stallion Stake announced by the California State Agricultural Society for the get of stallions that stood for service in 1901, the races to be trotted and paced by the three year olds in 1905. A wager has already been made by a prominent horse breeder that the stake will exceed $20,000 in value. Without doubt it is one of the best stakes ever devised and that it should have been inaugurated by the State Agricultural Society is a matter of pride for Californians. Every stallion owner that has visited the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week has asserted that he will name his stallion in the stake and endeavor to have as many of the stallion's foals of 1902 named as possible. After the stallions are named on February 15th, it is certain that breeders will peruse the list carefully who in 1901 sent their mares to be bred, as they will naturally wish to know whether the colts that appear this spring will be eligible to the stake, which will doubtless be the richest stake ever trotted or paced for this side of the Mississippi river. We presume all our readers are familiar with the conditions of the stake, but if not we refer them to our advertising columns where they are fully set forth. There is no standard bred stallion in California, that was in the stud last year, whose owner can afford to keep out of this stake, as the winner of either division will hardly bring more fame and reputation to its sire than any other event will do that is trotted or paced on this Coast in 1905. The owners of the sires of winners will not only be paid $250 each out of the stake, but their horses will receive a very greatly increased patronage the following spring, as "breed to the sires of stake winners" is getting to be a rule with harness horse breeders as it is with the breeders of thoroughbreds. Every stallion owner in the States and Territories in which stallions are eligible should name his horse in this stake.

TWENTY-FOUR BROODMARES, one stallion and two geldings from Palo Alto Stock Farm will be sold at auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange, 721 Howard street, next Thursday. This announcement should be sufficient to attract to the sale every man in California who intends devoting any of his time and attention in the next few years to the breeding of light harness horses. Palo Alto is the greatest breeding farm ever founded, and has done more to increase the value of California horses than any other venture. The horses that now comprise this famous stud are to be dispersed during the year, through sales in San Francisco, Sacramento, Cleveland and New York. The mares and stallions that will be offered here in California are among the best on the farm. There are many producers and great individuals among them, and their breeding is choice. This is the time and the opportunity for breeders to get something good and choice and it should not take long to dispose of this first consignment. The mare Bell Bird 2:22 as a two year old, a daughter of Electioneer and Beautiful Bells, is in the catalogue. She should bring thousands of dollars. Elsie by Gen. Benton is another. She is the dam of Palita 2:10, Rio Alto 2:16½, Novelist 2:27, Mary Osborne 2:28½ and Salvini 2:30, all colt trotters and is out of Elaine 2:20, dam of four in the list. Ella, 2:29, a full sister to Helena 2:11½, is another. Lady Well 2:16½, a daughter of Electioneer that has produced a 2:20 three year old is to be sold. Coralie, a young mare by Boodle 2:12½, out of a full sister to Anteeo 2:16½, Antevolo 2:19½, and others will go to the highest bidder. Lady Nutwood, daughter of the greatest producing sire in the world, is in the catalogue. She has produced Ned Thorne 2:11½ and three others with records, and was stunted to Mendocino last May. Sabling, a full sister to Sable Wilkes 2:18, and Laura Drew, dam of the first yearling to beat 2:30, will be sold. Azmoor, one of the best representatives of the Electioneer-thoroughbred cross, is the only stallion to be offered at this sale. He is a producer of extreme speed and a high class horse. The sale will begin on Thursday morning next at 11 o'clock at 721 Howard street. Send for a catalogue to William G. Layng, auctioneer, at the above address if you have not already received one, look it over carefully and be there ready to bid. There will be many of the animals sold for less than they are worth.

THE GREAT DISPERSAL SALE of the thoroughbreds and other stock on the Sonoma Stock Farm will be held at the salesyard, 1732 Market street, on Tuesday, February 4th, beginning at 10 A. M. This sale is by order of the court and is held that the estate of the late J. B. Chase (who was one of California's leading breeders of thoroughbreds) may be settled. There are nineteen highly bred broodmares, nine yearlings, eleven two year olds, one three year old and eight four year olds. Among the producing mares are Catalina, dam of Centella and Randwick, Mischief, the dam of Amanda; Rosedale, dam of Manzanillo; Rebecca, dam of Isaline, Daniella, Misfortune, Fortuna and Glorianna; Miss Lou, dam of Glengaber; Mary E., dam of Antoinella and others. Among the mares that have won races are Amanda by Warwick, Mischief by Thad Stevens, Marigold by Milner (winner of the best long distance race ever run in California, holding the record of 7:20½ at four miles, which is the world's race record for mares), Centella by Joe Hooker; Rosedale by Joe Hooker, Phoebe Ann by imp. Friar Truck, Constance M. by Joe Hooker, Mystery (winner of three Derbys) by Three Cheers, Miss Lou by Volturino, Mary E. (never beaten) by Ironclad, Farewell by imp. Glenelg and Miss Pollard by imp. Idaliun, brother to Sir Modred and Cheviot. There is much of the celebrated Katy Pease and Hennie Farrow blood in the mares and their produce to be sold at this sale, and the colts and fillies are by such horses as imp. Trentola, Eolo, Del Norte, Dare, Primrose and other well bred horses. Mr. Chase, in establishing the Sonoma Stock Farm, laid its foundation in the lines that had produced long distance race winners, and he met with much success. Few breeding farms in the world have turned out a greater proportion of winners to the number bred. As a side issue he also bred roadsters, giving particular attention to size and good looks, and among the twenty horses of trotting blood to be sold at this sale are many very handsome and stylish individuals. The sale is absolute and without reserve and buyers will have the best opportunity to get horses at their own prices that has been offered in San Francisco for years.

MR. FRANK P. KENNEY, Secretary and Manager of that sterling publication the Kentucky Stock Farm, has sold his interest in the paper to Mr. Charles L. Monsch, President of the company, and retired temporarily from journalism. Mr. Kenney is such an active business man that he will not be long out of harness, and as he prefers the journalistic end of life's game, and has a natural aptitude for it, will doubtless remain in that line. The Stock Farm, under his management, has been greatly improved and has ahead of it a very prosperous year. It is one of the best papers devoted to horse interests that is published.

THE ONLY OBJECTION that can be offered to the proposed change in the rules that will permit three races to be sandwiched instead of two, is that it will allow more than the regular 25 minutes between heats where there is considerable scoring. This should not be weighty enough to prevent the change. If the time in some cases is drawn out to 40 minutes between heats, it will probably result in a closer contest in the following heat, and if the forty minutes is taken up by a couple of good heats in other races, the public will be pleased.

SEVERAL STALLION ADVERTISEMENTS that reached us too late for this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will appear next week. The breeding season will begin on the 1st of February and owners should have their advertisements in by Wednesday next that they may appear in the first edition in February which will be printed next Saturday.

THE RETURN TO AUCTIONS AND MUTUALS

as the system of betting on harness races, which has been so long desired by owners and breeders of harness horses in California, may be accomplished this year, and if so there should be a most successful circuit. The State Board of Agriculture has taken the first step, and at its meeting in Sacramento on the 8th of February will in all probability decide that no books can be made at the State Fair on harness racing. Secretary Geo. W. Jackson has, during the past week, sent out a request to all the harness horsemen in California that they send to the Board their opinion as to the most desirable system of betting for harness races. This request is made upon a return postal card and the recipient has but to fill out the blanks on the same and drop the card in the mail. There should be no delay in the matter and we hope, for the credit of harness horse owners and those interested in the business in any way, that every card sent out by the Secretary will be returned as requested. The Board is ready to act as the majority of the horsemen desire. If the State Board abolishes the evil of book betting on harness races, the district boards will be encouraged to do the same thing and with fair purses the circuit of harness racing will be ahead of anything seen in California for years.

REPORTS ARE PUBLISHED in all the San Francisco dailies of an Eastern plunger who is breaking the books and winning such loads of money at Oakland every day that it requires the services of several assistants to carry it home. $80,000 is the amount he is said to have won Thursday. The probabilities are that he did not win one-tenth that sum, but the crowd of suckers that will read the story and try to emulate him will lose more in a day than he wins in a week.

MR. B. S. KREHE reached Agricultural Park, San Jose, this week with his two handsome stallions, Aleco 2:10 by Alecyone, and Pistol, a son of Lancelot. The performances and breeding of these horses, both of which were purchased in the east last fall by Mr. Krehe, were printed in our holiday edition, together with half tone engravings of both. As they are fine individuals and bred in fashionable lines they should be well patronized.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

It is fair to assume, that in the light of experiences during the past two seasons, the days of professionalism at the traps are numbered. Amateurs and professionals are drifting further and further apart, and at the open-to-all shoots nowadays no big attendance can be looked for unless there is considerable added money to draw a crowd. At many shoots last year there was but a small gathering of shooters at the "open" traps. The reason was not far to seek: There was company at those traps that was far too hot for the average amateur to back up against; as a natural result he was not present, and the manufacturers' agents had it all to themselves. Only a few years ago an average of thirty entries was quite an ordinary tournament; now an average of twenty-five in all the program events is considered good, and very few shoots attain that standard. Undoubtedly much of this is due to the introduction of professionalism, that is, the sending around to tournaments men hired by manufacturers of and dealers in sporting goods to show off and expound the good qualities of the articles manufactured by their employers. At first this was a small thing, but it grew very rapidly until "de gang" got to be recognized as such, and when that time came the amateurs grew wiser and tightened their purse strings. Having once learned the lesson they never forgot that they had no chance to come out even in a contest with a man whose business it was to shoot, and who, by constant and assiduous practice, had reduced trapshooting to a very fine science.

A few days ago, says a correspondent in Shooting and Fishing, I asked an old hunter and trapper where was the best place to shoot a bear, elk, or cougar. "In shooting large game," he replied, "such as elk, bear, cougar, and even deer, I have, whenever it was possible, shot them through the shoulders. That is, in my opinion, the best place. Oh, if you could always put a bullet through the brain or heart, that would be all right, but one can't always choose the target. I use a 40, 44, or 45 calibre. If you smash a big animal through the shoulder and break the bones, you generally disable it so that it can't get away or do you any damage. That has been my experience, and I have hunted and trapped for many years through the mountains of northern California and southern Oregon. I have met all sorts of big game there I have never failed yet to bring an animal down when I smashed his shoulders; yes, and he generally stayed down. If you have any show at all, you stand a good chance of putting a shot through the shoulders. If you go for the head or heart you may miss, and then the animal will escape or else will make things hot for you. I make it a rule of shooting through the shoulders. You will knock out a bear or cougar almost every time, or an elk. Remember, you want a gun with a big bullet—a 50 calibre is the best."

The Money is Up.

NEW YORK, January 22.—Articles of agreement for the two match races for $20,000 a side between Thomas W. Lawson's Boralma and E. E. Smathers' Lord Derby and John J. Scannell's The Abbot were signed to-day by the owners, thus consummating what promises to be two of the greatest trotting races ever decided on the turf.

The agreement was signed by Mr. Lawson and forwarded to Messrs. Smathers and Scannell, and as the conditions were satisfactory to the latter, both gentlemen affixed their signatures without delay.

The conditions named in the articles are the same as those accepted by the owners of the racers when they posted their forfeit of $5000 each. The Boralma-Lord Derby match will take place first and the Boralma-The Abbot race be decided on a date to be selected not earlier than two weeks subsequent to the Boralma-Lord Derby match. The following is a copy of the articles signed by Mr. Lawson and Mr. Smathers to-day. The agreement between Mr. Lawson and Mr. Scannell is practically the same, except that the Boralma-The Abbot race will not take place until two weeks after Boralma meets Lord Derby. Mr. Smathers would like to have his match decided at Brighton Beach, because he believes there is more interest taken Cresceus Reaches Home.

Cresceus 2:02½ and his party arrived home in Toledo last night, says the Toledo Bee of January 10th.

"Is Cresceus in good condition?" was asked of owner and driver George Ketcham.

"Good condition? Well, I should say he was. Why, we were fifty-four hours on the road from Waco, and when we took Cresceus out of the car last night for a time I was afraid he would get away from the boy who was leading him. The rest of the horses in the car were pretty well tired out, but not Cresceus—he's a wonderful horse.

"Cresceus is in as good condition now as he was when he left Toledo in the spring. The man who put new shoes on him this morning said that his legs were in finer condition than ever. I am going to have him weighed to-day to see how much he has gained. Tomorrow he will be taken out to the farm.

"The health of all the members of our party is excellent," said Mr. Ketcham, "and we didn't miss a feed. I never had such a good time in all my life and I never was so glad to get back home, either."

"Cresceus has trotted his last race," continued his owner, "but not perhaps his last fast mile. Possibly, next August, I shall go after 'em again."

When asked as to the close of his trip, he said:

Apropos of this some funny conditions were met with in the west. The track at Waco was so bad that no exhibition was given there at all, there being no fence around part of the track. At Denison, on January 4th, a mile over the half-mile track there was covered in 2:14, in spite of the deep sand which covered it.

At Tucson, Ariz., a dandy was run across, there being as much as eight inches of sand in the stretches, while on the turns the wind swept it clean and the track there was a rock, and had been covered with shavings as a sort of mediator.

At Albuquerque, N. M., on Christmas Day a mile was covered over a half-mile track in 2:16½. It happened that near the track was a spring. The spring became lively and flooded the track, but the mile was made in pretty good time after all.

Something like twenty-two exhibitions were given since Cresceus left Toledo. The Columbus mile still stands first at 2:02½, and that over the half-mile track at Kansas City in 2:09½ is the best since the horse left Toledo.

Mr. Ketcham brought back with him a number of trunks filled with valuable and beautiful trophies given him in honor of Cresceus. This morning a valuable bridle came from Phoenix, Arizona, braided entirely of black and white horse hair, a very valuable and unique specimen indeed.

It was an interesting trio that came down Adams street this morning—Cresceus, the fastest trotter in the world, led by Eddie Mitchell, who has worked with the horse for the past three years, and the little snub faced Bull Terrier mascot, which has followed the successes of the great horse all over the country.

Eddie Mitchell was all smiles, and it kept him busy greeting his friends; the mascot seemed to be glad to be home again, too; Cresceus, wrapped up in a fine blanket, green and yellow trimmed, the gift of John Wanamaker, the Philadelphia Sunday school teacher, alone seemed to take his new environment with coolness.

The Ketcham party arrived last night at 10:30 over the Clover Leaf, coming direct from Waco, Texas, after a trip of about two days. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ketcham, Miss Rachel Ketcham, Tim Murnane, Cashier Greene, Eddie Mitchell, Peter Driscoll, who had charge of Mike the Tramp, Cresceus' running mate, and Tom Caffrey, a helper.

Cresceus was taken to Mr. Ketcham's stable on Eleventh street this morning and fitted out with six ounce road shoes. While at the forge on St. Clair street he was the attraction which led many to give him a formal call.

Cresceus is certainly a horse with a good disposition, and was brilliant enough to keep discreetly silent.

He nibbled apples given by Eddie Mitchell, and when fitted out with his new shoes, stood for a picture and was taken back to the stable.

THE ABBOT 2:03 1-4.

in the race there than in any other place. The articles governing the contest follow:

This agreement, made and entered into this — day of January, 1902, between Mr. Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, owner of Boralma, party of the first part, and Mr. E. E. Smathers of New York, owner of Lord Derby, party of the second part.

1. The parties of the first and second part hereby agree to have the said Boralma and the said Lord Derby meet in a special match race at a time between the 15th of July and the 1st of September, 1902, which is to be hereinafter mutually agreed upon by the parties of the first and second parts.

2. The said race is to be trotted at a track to be hereinafter agreed upon between said owners, said track to be agreed upon to be that track which shall offer the best inducements for said race.

3. The bids for said race will be received up to March 1, 1902.

4. Trotting associations desiring to secure the said race are instructed to send their offers to Harry Beecher, sporting editor of the New York Journal, who will forward the same to the parties of the first and second parts for final action.

5. The parties of the first and second parts further agree that the special match race in which said Boralma and Lord Derby will contest shall be the best three (3) in five (5) heats. The race to be decided under the National Trotting Association rules of 1901.

6. The said match race between the said Boralma and said Lord Derby to be for the sum of $20,000 a side and all additional moneys.

7. Five thousand of the $20,000 to be deposited upon the signing of said agreement. The second $5000 to be deposited on July 1, 1902, and the balance, $10,000, to be deposited the night before the date selected for said match.

8. It is mutually agreed upon by the parties of the first and second parts that all forfeits and said side stake shall be posted with Harry Beecher, sporting editor of the New York Journal.

California favorite hot weather drink—Jackson's Napa Soda.

"The tracks were very bad in Texas and the fact is I did not care to waste any more time there, and besides I was not able to close the dates rapidly enough."

The horse will now be put in the stud.

The Cresceus car was attached to the Katy flyer, and besides the mascot dog, Bob Cresceus, Cresceus himself and Mike the Tramp, the trotter's pacemaker, there were four other horses brought back from the West to become temporary residents at the Ketcham farm. These were: Silver Bow by Robert McGregor 2:16½, a stallion owned by Mr. George Fox, a Californian, and leased by Mr. Ketcham. Silver Bow is a large horse; sixteen and a half hands high, a dark bay with no white on him.

Louenia Wilkes 2:14½, a trotter by Ashland Wilkes, dam by Patchen Wilkes, owned by Henry Bing, of Denison, Texas.

Miracle, a full sister to Coney 2:02, pacer; owned by John W. Gardiner, of San Francisco.

Little Maid 2:18, pacer, by Rockwood; first dam by Pocahontas Mambrino; owned by C. A. Harrison, Los Angeles.

Others that are coming in the very near future are Kitty Fox by Pancoast, from Clements, Cal.; B. K. Walker by Dictator, first dam by King Rene, from Denver, Col.; Lucy Carr 2:14½, trotter, and Adebell, a full sister to Adbell, the champion yearling trotter; owned by Alexander McLaren, Quebec, Canada.

Cresceus went a mile over the Dallas, Texas, track in 2:07½ on New Year's Day, the fastest mile trotted over any track at that time of the year. Mr. Ketcham was asked if he regarded that as the most remarkable mile trotted during the trip. He said that it would be hard to decide what was the most remarkable mile, but he himself thought best of the mile at Pueblo, Col., in 2:10½, which was covered over a very poor half-mile track.

"The western tracks as a rule are very poor, and without plenty of water there's no way of keeping the tracks in good condition."

Geo. Berry, the efficient superintendent of the Spreckels Stock Farm at Napa, is looking with great pride upon a colt that was introduced to him one morning last week by the imported Australian mare Candid by Splendor. Candid was a stake winner in Australia and California and this colt by her is sired by that good horse imp. St. Andrew, sire of many winners and one of the best sons of St. Simon ever brought to America. The youngster is large and very active and a handsome fellow all over.

Pacific Coast Derby and All-Age.

[REPORTED BY ALBERT BETZ.]

The nineteenth annual trials of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club were held at Santa Maria, Santa Barbara county, beginning on Monday morning, January 13th, and were completed on the afternoon of Wednesday, the 15th inst. But two stakes were run: The Derby with seven starters and the All-Age with fifteen. The small number of Derby starters was a disappointment, there having been thirty-five original nominations and twenty-one having paid second forfeit; but death and disease played havoc with the young dogs, and, as a matter of fact, the older ones did not entirely escape.

The Derby purse was $350, of which 50% went to first, 30% to second and 20% to third. The All-Age purse footed up $340 and was divided up in like manner.

Prof. John A. Balmer, of Cle-Elum, Wash., officiated in the saddle; and it was at once apparent that a better choice could hardly have been made. His decisions met with the general approval of those present who understood what field trials were for, and no adverse comment was heard concerning his rulings.

Cuba Jr., the winner of first in the Derby, was by all odds far ahead of any of the other Derby dogs; but he met with defeat when up against the seasoned dogs in the All-Age. Dr. Daniels and Pearl's Jingle, the winners of first and second in the latter event, are Pointers hard to surpass, and Prof. Balmer compares them favorably with some of the best Pointers he has seen in the Eastern trials. Peach Blossom and Northern Huntress, who divided third in the All-Age, were but little behind the winners of first and second. They go with great speed, have a wide range, hunt diligently and have a merry way of going. Blossom's bird work was not the best, but with another season's work she will be a bitch hard to beat. Huntress has had but little work on California quail and should improve wonderfully with more experience.

While the weather conditions on the particular days the events were run were rather favorable than otherwise, the extreme dryness prevailing made it difficult for the dogs to locate birds. Many were found, but they seemed to emit little or no scent. Notwithstanding, the trials were very successful and the attendance was good, many of the local residents taking as much interest therein as the members of the club. Had there been a rain a few days previous to the time the trials were held the grounds and conditions would have been ideal. Residents of Santa Maria did all in their power to make them a success and to provide for the comfort of the visiting sportsmen.

The annual meeting of the club was held on Wednesday evening, January 25th, and the following officers were elected: J. E. Terry, of Sacramento, President; Hon. W. W. Van Arsdale, of San Francisco, First Vice-President; Hon. H. W. Keller, of Santa Monica, Second Vice-President; Albert Betz, of San Francisco, Secretary-Treasurer. Executive Committee—Hon. C. N. Post, W. S. Tevis, Clinton E. Worden, John H. Schumacher and T. J. A. Tiedemann. It was decided to run the next trials commencing on the second Monday of January, 1903, the place of holding the trials to be determined later by the Executive Committee. The same stakes are to be run as were scheduled for this year.

The question of selecting and maintaining permanent grounds was discussed at length, and it is hoped that within a few months such selection will be made.

The following named gentlemen were proposed for and elected to membership: F. J. Stone, of Fresno; Geo. H. Anderson, of San Jose; Dr. C. W. Hibbard, of San Francisco, and R. L. Jones, of the Hart Hotel, Santa Maria.

A vote of thanks was extended to Prof. Balmer for his services to the club and for the efficient manner in which he judged the trials.

The following were noted amongst those in attendance: J. E. Terry of Sacramento, Cap't Roland of Nevada, Geo. H. Anderson of San Jose, Mr. McCaffrey of San Luis Obispo, Mr. McDaniels of Paso Robles, Hon. H. W. Keller of Santa Monica, F. W. Emery of Buena Park, John H. Schumacher and A. Marquis of Los Angeles, Dr. Bagby, R. L. Jones, Thos. Cooper, Mr. Elliott, Mr. Trott, Mr. Blosser, Dr. Lucas and others of Santa Maria, Hon. W. W. Van Arsdale, J. M. Kilgarriff, H. T. Payne, Dr. C. W. Hibbard, Chas. Douglas, Fred Butler, Geo. Whitney, W. A. Cutler, Frank Maskey, T. J. A. Tiedemann, Albert Betz of San Francisco, R. M. Dodge, Bakersfield, W. B. and Fred Coutts of Kenwood, J. E. Lucas, San Rafael, C. H. Babcock of McCloud and F. J. Stone, Fresno.

The genial countenance of Judge C. N. Post, one of the organizers of the Club, who never failed to be present at all previous trials, was greatly missed by the members of the Club; official duties prevented his attendance.

The Derby.

The draw for the Derby was held on Sunday evening, January 12th. But seven entries paid the starting fee, and the order of running was as follows:

Clinton E. Worden's English Setter dog Wade Earl with W. B. Coutt's Pointer bitch Kenwood Rose.

H. L. Betten's English Setter bitch Rod's Lark (in the string of W. W. Van Arsdale) with W. B. Coutt's Pointer dog Ned Funston.

F. J. Stone's English Setter dog Diana's Rodfield with Stockdale Kennels' Cuba Jr.

W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter dog Oakley's Pride drew the bye.

Monday, January 13th. The morning was quite cool, and weather conditions were more favorable than had been expected. After a drive of about six miles the first brace was cast off in a field adjacent to the river bed, the ground being extremely dry.

Wade Earl—Kenwood Rose: Cast off at 9:15, in sage brush. Wade Earl was handled by John E. Lucas. W. B. Coutt's handling Rose. Soon after going down Wade Earl pointed a moment on running birds, which he flushed. Rose followed with a point on a single, being somewhat unsteady; then flushed and chased. Wade made another point on a single during the heat. Rose, however, had the better range and style, the Setter evidently being in poor condition. Ordered up at 9:55. (Wade Earl later died while en route to the kennels of his handler.)

Rod's Lark—Ned Funston. Down at 10:15, the former handled by C. H. Babcock, the latter by Coutts. After amusing themselves for some time chasing rabbits Ned made a nice point and was quickly followed by Lark with a snappy point. Neither dog was well under control and they were an evenly matched pair. They ran until 10:50 but no further bird work was had. Both had good range and speed. This heat was run in the river bed where the going was rather difficult.

Diana's Rodfield—Cuba Jr. Down at 11 A. M., Diana's Rodfield was handled by F. J. Stone, R. M. Dodge having charge of Cuba, Jr. The dogs were cast off in the river bottom where the going was rather difficult. Both dogs displayed good speed and range, the Setter for the first fifteen or twenty minutes outranging the Pointer and staying out better, but at the end of that time he slacked up materially and the Pointer had the better of the heat. No birds were found, and the dogs were ordered up at 11:35.

Oakley's Pride (a bye). Handled by Babcock. During the running of the Diana's Rodfield—Cuba Jr., heat, the bye dog, Oakley's Pride, was given a run of thirty-five minutes on ground adjoining the river bank. The judging was done by Mr. John H. Schumacher and Mr. T. J. A. Tiedemann. Some point work was done, one point on a single on the bank of the river being within view of all the spectators. His range was but medium and he slowed up materially before the end of the run.

This ended the first series and a bountiful lunch which had been furnished by the hotel management was partaken of.

SECOND SERIES.

This series was run on new grounds, northwest of the scene of the morning's work, which were reached after a four mile drive. More birds and better cover were found and the work of the dogs considerably improved. The first brace of the second series was:

Kenwood Rose—Rod's Lark. Down at 1:40. The dogs were in heavy brush, where birds were plentiful, but the work was rather poor. Few points were made. Rod flushed and chased, Rose doing likewise but being steady to wing. Each dog was credited with a point, but many opportunities were lost. Up at 2:20.

Ned Funston—Cuba Jr. Down at 2:32. Cuba soon found birds and pointed in fine style, being steady to shot. Ned backed honestly. Cuba quickly followed with several more points and acknowledged wing to flushed birds. Ned received credit for a point during the heat. Cuba outclassed his opponent and put up a fine heat, making no mistakes. They were ordered up at 2:55.

Diana's Rodfield—Oakley's Pride. Down at 3 P. M. Oakley was the first to come to point; no birds were found. They had been seen to leave the ground over which he was working. Rodfield made a beautiful back while Oakley was on point. Rodfield was the better in style and range, though neither did much work and both missed chances. They were ordered up at 3:50.

This was the last brace down for the day, and, as it afterwards appeared, the last brace in the Derby. At the conclusion of this heat the judge inquired of the handlers if any of them objected to being put down again, and objection being heard he announced that no more heats would be run on that day. In this series the dogs were in charge of the same handlers who had them in the first series.

After dinner the winners were announced as follows: Cuba Jr. first, Rod's Lark second, Ned Funston third.

SUMMARY.

All-Age Stake.

The drawing for the All-Age Stake was held on Monday evening, January 13th, after the Derby winners had been announced, and fifteen dogs paid the starting fee. The order of the drawing resulted as follows:

Stockdale Kennels' English Setter bitch Peach Mark II. with W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter dog Count's Mark.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Cuba Jr. with T. J. A. Tiedemann's English Setter bitch Northern Huntress.

W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter bitch Shadow with Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Bow's Son.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer bitch Jacuba with W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter bitch Peach Blossom.

J. E. Terry's English Setter bitch Lady with Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Cuba's Zep.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer bitch Nellie Wilson with J. E. Lucas' Pointer dog Alec C.

W. W. Van Arsdale's Pointer dog Dr. Daniels with Clinton E. Worden's Pointer bitch Pearl's Jingle.

J. E. Lucas' Pointer bitch Fan Go drawing the bye.

Tuesday, January 14th. Conditions were even more favorable than on the preceding day, the sun being obscured by clouds, and a cool breeze blowing. Better bird work was the order of the day, though the dryness of the ground somewhat interfered with the dogs showing at their best. An early start was made and the first brace was cast off at a point near where the last heat of the Derby had been run.

Peach Mark II.—Count's Mark. This was the first brace down, being cast off at 9:10. The former was handled by Dodge and the latter by Babcock. Count found first after being down but a few minutes and pointed a bevy in a very creditable manner, being perfectly staunch when the birds were flushed. The dogs soon got into tangled brush and were brought again to open ground, but though birds were seen no more bird work was done. Count had the better style, his range however being rather limited. Peach Mark II. appeared to be ailing and did not make much of a showing. Up at 9:55.

Cuba Jr.—Northern Huntress. Down at 10:04, the former handled by Dodge, the latter by Coutts. Cuba was the first to find, pointing a bevy in comparatively open ground in full view of the spectators. This piece of work was much admired, as the dog caught the scent while in the act of leaping over low brush and staunchly held his point. Northern Huntress showed better range than the Pointer, also staying out better, and after being out of sight of the judge for some little time was found on point. The birds flushed and she was steady to wing. In this heat both dogs missed opportunities to point, birds being plentiful and cover good. Cuba had the better of the heat on bird work. Up at 10:52.

Shadow—Bow's Son. Down at 10:55. The former was in charge of Babcock, the latter in charge of Dodge. Soon after being cast off Bow's Son came to point and was nicely backed by Shadow. However, no birds were raised. He followed this by pointing and flushing a single. Shadow, while a speedy and easy moving bitch, seemed unable to locate, though many opportunities were given her. Up at 11:35. Little work on birds in the heat.

Jacuba—Peach Blossom. Jacuba handled by Dodge, Blossom by Babcock. Down at 12:32 in rather heavy cover. Blossom, a very speedy and stylish bitch, was soon out of sight in the high brush. She was found by the judge in the vicinity where birds had been seen to flush, and upon sighting the judge stiffened into point. Sent on scattered birds Blossom made a point on a single and was staunch. Both dogs had flushes. Blossom in range, style, speed and stamina outclassed anything seen up to that time and had much the better of the heat. Up at 1:05.

Lady—Cuba's Zep. Lady was handled by Coutts, while Dodge looked after Zep. Cast off at 1:30 in pasture land, covered in places by high brush. Zep at first showed great speed and range. He hunted with a low nose, but worked diligently, having two or three points on singles to his credit at the end of the heat. Lady nicely backed one of Zep's points and both dogs were steady to shot. Lady did not display anything like her form of last year. Up at 2:07.

At the conclusion of this heat a move was made to the river bed grounds, four miles nearer town, and the first brace there put down was:

Nellie Wilson—Alec C. Down at 3 P. M. Nellie Wilson handled by Dodge, Alec C. by Lucas. Nellie Wilson was suffering from a stiff shoulder, but held gamely to her work. The dogs were first cast off on open ground, but soon worked over to the river bank where the birds were hiding among the willows. In this heat Nellie made a number of nice points, being steady to wing and shot, and several times was backed by Alec. She retrieved a bird which her handler killed. Alec also had several points to his credit, birds lying close, but did not take advantage of all opportunities offered. Alec had the better range. Up at 3:40.

Dr. Daniels—Pearl's Jingle. Off at 3:45. The Doctor was handled by Babcock, Jingle by Lucas. They were put down in open ground and at once started with great speed and range. Both are stylish workers. This was the fastest and widest ranging brace yet down. After a gruelling race of forty-five minutes without finding birds, both dogs showing remarkable speed and range as well as stamina, often being from one-quarter to one-half mile from their handlers, Dr. Daniels found and pointed a bevy. He was so exhausted that he dropped flat on his point, rising to his feet when his handler approached. Jingle came up and backed honestly. Both were staunch when the birds were flushed. Ordered up at 4:20.

At the conclusion of the heat the judge stated that in his experience he could only remember one or two races where a brace of dogs had made a finer showing.

The bye dog, Fan Go, handled by Lucas, had been put down immediately after lunch under supervision of Mr. John H. Schumacher and had two points on singles to her credit. She had good speed and ranged well.

This concluded the day's sport; and in the evening the judge announced that eight dogs would be carried into the second series.

SECOND SERIES.

Wednesday, January 15th. An early start was made for new grounds among the foothills about eleven miles east of town, where it was reported that birds were plentiful and cover good. This report was verified when the grounds were reached. They were rolling and hilly, altogether dissimilar to those which had previously been used. Cover was good and birds were there in abundance. It was, however, impossible for teams to follow the dogs and the spectators either rode or followed on foot, sometimes being able to see an entire heat from some elevated position. Weather favorable.

Dr. Daniels—Cuba Jr. Down at 9:40. Dr. Daniels was the first to point on a single. A bevy was flushed and it seemed that one or other of the dogs should have located it. But little bird work was done although many birds were seen. Dr. Daniels had better range and stayed out better than Cuba, who did not show as well as he did in his Derby heats. They were ordered up at 10:45.

Count's Mark—Northern Huntress. Down at 10:55. Huntress first found and hunted a bevy, Count immediately after pointing a single. He also made two flushes but stopped to wing on each occasion. Huntress had the better speed and range and worked better on birds. This brace was down nearly an hour.

Peach Blossom—Pearl's Jingle. This was the first brace after lunch, being put down at 12:35. Both ranged wide and well and covered a great deal of ground. During the heat both dogs had a point on singles. Peach later slowed up and Jingle outranged and outlasted her, while Blossom was the more stylish. Little bird work was done, yet many birds were raised by those following. This brace was also down nearly an hour.

Fan Go—Lady. Down at 1:38. Neither dog showed much speed or range in this heat. After being down for some time Lady made a couple of nice points on singles in good cover and was staunch. This was about the only bird work done in the heat. Both dogs missed opportunities.

THIRD SERIES.

Northern Huntress—Peach Blossom. This was the only brace down in the third series, and it was evident to those who had closely followed the trials that the two bitches were running for third place. Blossom is better in style and range but was not the equal of Huntress in bird work, the latter having three points to her credit in the heat. This, in the opinion of the judge, fully offset Blossom's superiority in style and range. The dogs were in charge of the same handlers throughout the series of the stake.

At the conclusion of the heat the judge announced his decision as follows: First, Dr. Daniels; second, Pearl's Jingle; third, Peach Blossom and Northern Huntress.

The decision of Judge Balmer met with general approval, and no criticism whatever was heard relative thereto.

Field Trial Notes.

The winning dogs in the All-Age at Santa Maria last week are mentioned as follows by one of the gentlemen present:

Dr. Daniels, winner of first, is a handsome, wide-ranging dog, which hunts his ground with ease and judgment and is high class in every particular. His work has shown he is the equal of any of the Eastern Pointers, and it is likely he will be sent on the circuit next year.

Pearl's Jingle is also stylish and wide-ranging and runs with a high head, although not as fast as Dr. Daniels. The two Setters, Peach Blossom and Northern Huntress, are very much alike in color and size. They can hardly be distinguished one from the other while in action. Blossom, however, has a bit the best of Huntress in style and seems a trifle more earnest in her work, otherwise there seems little to choose between them.

When Dr. Daniels and Pearl's Jingle were put down it seemed as if the best had been kept for the last, for this brace of Pointers put up one of the finest races ever seen in a field trial. They ran at a side-splitting pace for forty-five minutes, ranging from one-quarter to one-half mile and finished with Dr. Daniels on a fine bevy point, Jingle backing beautifully. The judge complimented the handlers on the fine showing made by the dogs.

Dustproof Harry, the irrepressible, had to be reminded several times during the heats that he was not running the meeting; in fact, the judge once, in a gentlemanly and courteous manner, suggested that the club committee appoint one man to give orders and direct affairs and he would know what to do. He added, in deserved sarcasm, that until that arrangement was made he preferred to and would do the judging himself. A jackass does love to eat thistles. This diet is palatable and fattening to the jack himself, and is also a source of intense amusement to the observant genus homo.

Apologies of the insatiable habit of the "Special Agent" to "butt in," we cannot refrain from recounting the story of the eminent kennel authority when he was honored by an unsuspecting and indulgent club of Eastern sportsmen, who, to their lasting chagrin, courteously allowed the Coast visitor to preside in the saddle. The story told by the judge (?) upon his return is entirely different from that recounted by a Los Angeles sportsman, "who was present at the Eastern Field Trials three or four years ago and had, on his return here, an amusing story to relate concerning the self-constituted Pacific Coast authority on field trials. The Coast wise man and field trial authority had attended the club trials a year or two previously and being an unknown quantity, save for the persistent heralding of his great abilities, coming from his own spout and pen—he was given the opportunity of acting as one of the judges. 'Fools rush in where angels fear to tread.' When the local Dogberry arrived here again his stories were bombastic and grandiloquent and a few of those who did not know him were inclined to think he was 'some punkins on bird dogs.' The gentleman who pricked the bubble on his return from Newton had heard nothing but self-praising eulogistic stories and when he met the Eastern sportsmen and spoke of our windy friend's judging according to his information, he was heard with astonishment which was followed by hearty laughter. One and all the Eastern sportsmen were unanimous in saying that the judging by our Coast oracle was the most ludicrous exhibition of field trial judging and absolute ignorance of the sport that it had been their misfortune ever to witness. After what they had been led to expect and understanding the standard required of a judge of field trials, their indignation and astonishment at the conceit and presumption of the Pacific star of dogdom was supreme. Even at this day it is only necessary to remotely refer to the great man's work in the saddle to provoke the sarcastic risibilities of those familiar with the history of the trials that year. In mentioning this incident we will be at the pains of explaining that we do not refer to H. H. Briggs, who has judged several Eastern trials with distinction and ability."

Distemper has taken hold of a number of the dogs that were at Santa Maria. It is believed the disease emanated from a stable where several dogs were placed for a night or two when the handlers arrived at Santa Maria. An ailment, distemper, it is claimed, was somewhat prevalent among the Santa Maria horses. The theory has been advanced that the dogs caught the distemper from the horses. It is a well known fact that colts and horses are subject to distemper and other similar sicknesses, whether it is transferable or not, by contagion, from the equine to the canine, is a matter we will not here attempt to go into, it is certain, however, that several good dogs died of distemper, caught at Santa Maria, and some other dogs are now down with it.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

Verona Cash, a handsome stylish little bitch, owned by Armand De Courtoux, is down with dropsy and will probably soon succumb to the sickness.

The first two days' trials were held on the Oso Flaco, and the third day on Section 16, southeast of town, which was found to be the better location of the two.

Fox Terrier Fanciers Meet.

The Pacific Fox Terrier Club held a regular meeting upon last Monday evening at No. 41 Sutter street, N. H. Hickman in the chair and Messrs. Harley, Moore, Ford and Martin present. J. G. Morgan and J. L. Cunningham of San Francisco and W. B. Fechheimer of Portland, Oregon, were elected members.

The special prizes won by members' dogs at the recent Oakland show were distributed as follows: $5 to C. K. Harley's Vibo; $5 to W. W. Moore's Vina Belle; $5 to J. W. Murphy's Woodlawn Two-Spot.

The entries for the second division Produce Stakes closed with the following:

1. C. K. Harley's Queen Dance (Norfolk Victorious—Norfolk Valse) whelped July 15, 1901, to Vibo (Visto—Eggsford Dora) five dogs and one bitch.

2. C. K. Harley's Carmencita (Cambridge Punch—Maybelie) whelped July 25, 1901, to Champion Aldon Swagger (D'Orsay—Dusky Pearl) five dogs.

3. W. F. Foster's Lillian Sage (Warren Sage—Lillian Stroller) whelped July 12, 1901, to Norfolk Trueman (Champion Norfolk Veracity—Norfolk Jewel) three dogs.

4. Robert Armstrong's Golden Spatter (Warren Sage—Blemton Spinaway) whelped July 5, 1901, to Champion Aldon Swagger, one dog and four bitches.

5. G. J. M. E. D'Aquin's Aldon Kitty (Von Voit—Dusky Pearl) whelped July 17, 1901, to Aldon Artist (Wawaset Actor—Aldon Radiance), two dogs and two bitches.

6. J. P. Brown's Richmond Favour (St. Leger—Richmond Luck) whelped July 6, 1901, to Raby Duval (Claude Duval) two dogs and four bitches.

7. E. Courtney Ford's Eclipse Blanche (Bend d'Or—Hedford Birch) whelped to Norfolk Trueman

8. N. H. Hickman's Irene (St. Vigilant—Elmwood Grace) whelped July 29, 1901, to Warren Sceptic (Claudian—Warren Spray) three dogs and three bitches.

9. N. H. Hickman's Ione (Scorcher—Lillian Sage) whelped October, 1901, to Norfolk Trueman three bitches.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

A fine litter of Fox Terrier puppies is reported from Wandee Kennels. They were whelped on December 29th last and muster two dogs and three bitches nicely marked. The dam is Wandee Delight, she by Norfolk Victorious out of Norfolk Tatters. The sire of the youngsters is Vibo.

Dogs in India are subject to dangers from which their English brethren are exempt. Colonel Anderson of Worlee lost his favorite fox terrier, Lucy, under somewhat peculiar circumstances. The bitch "spotted" a fine big cobra making for the roots of a tree in the Colonel's compound, and promptly dashed off to kill the reptile. Unfortunately Lucy seized the snake just as it had got its head into the hole, but rather low down the reptile's back, and in drawing it out of the hole to give it a shake and break its back, the snake just managed to get its head round and inflict a bite on the plucky little dog's cheek. Poor Lucy rolled over on her side and died within a minute of being bitten, and the snake got away into the roots of the tree. It is gratifying to learn that the Colonel had the tree cut down there and then, and after some hours of steady digging the snake was unearthed and promptly dispatched.

Another quite recent Indian dog story is the account of a curious accident that befell a fine English Greyhound. This dog, with another, had been exercised by the kennel boy, one being on the chain, the other loose. The latter spied a young kid in a field, and being newly imported and therefore not used to the Indian "Bakhri," started off to course it. Catching it up in a few strides the hound cleverly picked it up and treated it as a hare in the most approved style, threw it up, dislocating its spine and killing it on the spot; but in so doing the hound also broke its own spine, and whilst the kid rolled over on one side the hound did ditto on the other, and both lay dead in the field. The death of the hound appears to have been caused in this instance through the weight of its quarry being too much for the hound, and thus causing the dislocation and rupture of the spinal cord.

County Game Laws in Force.

The present State Game and Fish Laws are in force and unchanged in the following counties:

Alameda,
Colusa,
Contra Costa,
Merced.

Monterey,
Santa Cruz,
San Benito.

Solano,
San Joaquin,
Sonoma.

The following counties have adopted ordinances in regard to fish and game, and which are now in force as follows:

Fresno—Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1.

Marin—Male deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. Quail, Oct. 15 to Jan. 15. Shooting on county roads or in cemeteries prohibited. The use of "pump" gun, repeating shotgun or any kind of magazine shotgun for hunting in the county is prohibited.

Monterey—Sea gulls and blue cranes, killing of prohibited. Use of guns of larger caliber than 10-gauge prohibited.

Santa Clara—Quail, Oct. 8 to Feb. 1.

San Mateo—Quail, Nov. 1 to Dec. 1. Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. Shooting from boats at high tide prohibited.

Hunting Notes.

On Tuesday next most sportsmen will have put away their field guns until the fall open season is in again. Those who still desire a few days' further shooting will have an opportunity on English snipe and geese, there being no close season on these birds.

The dry season has given the duck hunter many chances for a good shoot. The birds left the dry interior for the baited ponds and feeding grounds in the marsh and tidelands contiguous to the bay shores, and also the tule sections of the Sacramento and San Joaquin basins.

One of the best shoots noted for some time was the lucky experience of James Maynard and a guest at the Canvasback Gun Club's ponds on last Sunday. The rain of the previous evening deterred the other members from making a visit to their preserve. Results the next morning proved that they had made a wrong guess concerning the movements of the birds. Ducks were plentiful enough to have allowed two guns in each of four ponds with an assurance of the limit bag to each shooter by 10 o'clock in the morning.

The party left the club house before daylight on Sunday morning; walking down the railroad track they soon reached the shooting ground. Maynard selected Pond No. 1 for his shoot and leaving his guest in charge of Keeper Dan Sweeney was soon lost to sight in the darkness as he struck off to the right over the sedgy morass, following a familiar trail to where his boat was located. The other shooters soon arrived at their rendezvous and taking a tule-splitter the two push-poled through a short channel and across the shallow pond, where the guest was soon installed in a comfortable box blind and Keeper Sweeney then placed out a big bunch of decoys, afterwards getting into another box blind close to his companion.

Ducks were in evidence from the start, when the two hunters left the track and walked ten yards to the boats, their advent caused hundreds of ducks to fly away from the pond, in fact until it was light enough, legally, to shoot, the presence of many birds was constantly indicated by the whistling of their pinions as they flew about in many directions. The soft tenor piping of the teal was answered by the guttural quack of the spoonbill and later on the sprigtail added its querulous notes to the concert. Mudhens, impudent and plentiful, were on hand at all times.

While the decoys were being placed out the teal commenced to pitch into the water, alighting in several instances within a few feet of the boat and its occupant. During the morning teal would alight frequently among the decoys and not more than twenty feet from the concealed shooter, who had the opportunity of studying their movements and watching them for some little time. A number of doubles were made by the shooter who suddenly arising in the blind, the teal would take to wing, generally giving a straight away shot and another easy one when the bird selected for the second barrel would commence to climb after the report of the first barrel.

Later on in the morning the sprigtails came in and worked to the decoys in better style than they could be trained for it, were such a thing possible. Flying high at first and with craning neck and head carried first to one side then to the other, the bird would sweep around in two or three wide but diminishing circles and then come in over the pond just about thirty yards high—when a careful sighting and proper lead would enable the shooter to drop the bird right in the pond. In this pond the limit was shot before 9 o'clock. Maynard also shot his limit in No. 1 pond by 8:30.

San Francisco Kennel Club.

At a meeting of the San Francisco Kennel Club held on Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: A. B. Spreckels, President; John E. de Ruyter, First Vice-President; E. Courtney Ford, Second Vice-President; N. H. Hickman, Secretary-Treasurer; Chas. K. Harley, Director. The Board of Directors will constitute the Bench Show Committee which committee will appoint the superintendent for the next bench show. The Superintendent, it is proposed, will have full and complete charge of the business and every detail pertaining to the arrangement and conduction of the show, with the exception only of selecting the judge or judges.

The Bench Show Committee were to meet yesterday for the transaction of some preliminary business, selecting dates for the spring show and the appointment of a superintendent.

The selection of the judge or judges and also of the superintendent of the next show is speculative up to this date, however we do not believe that we are straining a point in mentioning the names of Mr. J. J. Lynn as in line for Fox Terrier judging and L. A. Klein as judge of some other breeds. It would not be a great surprise should Mr. Klein be requested to act in the capacity of superintendent.

An effort will be made to have the show this year at an earlier date than heretofore. It is claimed that, as a rule, just about the time in May when our local show is held many people have either left town or are getting ready to go. If the show dates were made for two or three weeks earlier, in April, this would induce not only a larger entry of dogs but an increased gate attendance.

The arguments advanced by Mr. Hickman in this respect we believe to be good ones.

The club might also take the initiative in not following another stereotyped custom, and that is, instead of having a four-day show, to cut it down one or even two days. The most indifferent analysis of this proposition is almost convincing that there is no necessity out here for a four-day affair. The saving in expenses of hall, light, help, etc., is alone a feature that should make the innovation acceptable. Since the club has been organized there has not been a single paying bench show. There is no reason why the club members should always be called upon to contribute their quota, or a part of it to the guaranteed fund. Bench shows, under far less auspicious patronage and advantages than the present club has enjoyed, have been paying ventures in the past and under proper management could be again.

A number of prominent members of the club propose to send their dogs to the northern shows this year, showing under P. K. L. rules. This is in a friendly sportsmanlike spirit and will be done for the mutual interest of Coast fanciers.

A communication from Manager R. M. Dodge, of Stockdale Kennels, says: "Everything goes on nicely here at the kennels, and I expect a fine litter of puppies about the 23d inst. They are by Cuba of Kenwood-Petronella. She is by Young Jingo-Florida; she is half sister to Cuba Jr. I expect to breed four more bitches in a few days, and if the demand for Pointer puppies keeps up I will have no trouble in disposing of them. The Pointers are on top this year, and if they keep on improving as they have in the last few years the Setter will have to look out for his laurels."

Striped Bass Notes.

The sport of striped bass fishing will receive a new impetus when the salt water enthusiasts become aware of the big catches of the gamey fish caught on Friday by W. R. McFarland and on Friday and Saturday, last week, by Al M. Cumming. McFarland fished San Antonio slough from 10:30 in the morning until about 3 P. M. and landed a catch of twelve fine fish. The largest bass scaled 11½ pounds. The total weight of the catch was 80½ pounds. When he left the slough to catch a train for the city the fish were still eagerly taking the trolling spoon. During the time these fish were caught, it was comparatively low water—the last of the ebb and the first of the flood tide. They were all taken on a Wilson spoon.

Mr. Cumming and Frank Ireland were fishing in the same water on Friday and at the time McFarland left had not landed many fish. During that afternoon and a part of the day following, the total catch was twenty fish, which turned the scales at 116 pounds. Cumming claims that the best time to hook the bass is the time three hours before and three hours after low water.

A number of anglers will try San Antonio creek again to-morrow for bass.

The San Francisco Striped Bass Club held the annual meeting and banquet on Tuesday evening. A number of prizes won during the past season were given to the various successful fishermen.

Steelhead Fishing Notes.

The anglers on Russian river have had a merry time of it up to the middle of the present week. The record for two day's fishing, Saturday and Sunday, we believe, was 92 fine fish. The female fish were full of roe but were hardly ripe for spawning. It has been a noticeable fact that of the comparatively few fish which fought the anglers on the river, the females were the ones who cut out the pace for the fishermen. For some reason, unknown to the angler, the buck steelheads this season show no more spirit than just so many lumps of liver.

Since the seizure of the six nets by Deputies Cross and Welch the fish have had an opportunity to go up the river and loaf about the pools, waiting for the rising of the river after the rains.

Another net was taken near the mouth of the river by Cross on Sunday night last. The nets already taken were worth several hundred dollars.

Last Sunday, in one pool the fish were striking in nice manner. The first boats were soon joined by the whole river flotilla, some twenty boats in all. The exhilarating spectacle of nearly every rod being at work at the same time was a scene to warm the cockles of an angler's heart.

Among the lucky fishermen who landed fish were. Al Wilson and Alex T. Vogelsang, twelve fish; John Butler and Frank Marcus, twelve; Hart Williams, six; Mr. and Mrs. Davis, seventeen; M. J. Geary and Donald McRae, nineteen; J. B. Gilbert, four; J. O'Neil, five; L. Rondeau, eight. J. Gibson, ten on Saturday; J. A. Pariser and James Watt, eight; O. W. Jackson and Ed Painter five.

The rains this week will materially break up the best fishing season on Russian river for the past four years.

Several good sized steelhead have been taken out of the "White house" pool at Point Reyes recently. Reports from many Coast streams showed that the run of big steelheads was a large one, distributed over most of the available streams.

The many friends of Secretary Horace Smith of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club will be pleased to hear that the genial and esteemed sportsman was well enough this week to take a trip down town in a cab.

Fishing at Bonnington Falls.

[J. MAYNE BALTIMORE.]

British Columbia affords a wide and fascinating field to the hunter and angler. To the nimrod, there is excellent hunting in many regions. British Columbia is noted topographically for its many lofty and rugged upheavals and the great expanse of its forests.

In the mountains and woods are found noble as well as smaller game. Here are met the grizzly, bald-face and silver tip bear, the stately and graceful caribou, other deer, the wolf, lynx, wildcat, wolverine and a variety of feathered game.

But to the ardent angler, there is "ample scope" in which he may fairly revel. There are all kinds of fishing except ocean angling. Of course, along the coast there is plenty of marine fishing; but we are speaking with special reference to inland water sport.

Away from the Pacific Coast, British Columbia abounds in rivers, smaller streams and lakes. None of them are destitute of fish. On the contrary, the waters teem with speckled beauties. However, it must be said that of later years the fish in some sections are very noticeably diminishing. Persistent fishing has drained the finny resources of some of the streams and lakes; and now vigorous efforts are being made by the authorities to put a check on the piscatorial "record smashers."

Probably one of the most favorite points in the Kootnais for casting the lure is to be found at what is known as Slocan Crossing on Kootnai river. This is just below the famous Bonnington Falls on that stream. The Kootnai is one of the most beautiful and picturesque streams to be found in all British Columbia. It is a large stream taking its rise in the Kootnai lakes, and after many devious windings pours its clear, cold floods into the lordly Columbia near the international boundary.

Excellent fishing is found in the Kootnai lakes and Arrowhead lake but the best point is found at Slocan Crossing.

A branch of the Canadian Pacific Railroad extends from the great mining town of Rossland up to Nelson. This branch passes through the little smelter town of Trail, which is some eight miles east of Rossland. Slocan Crossing is about forty miles from Rossland and thirty from Nelson. The best point at which to fish is just below the last of the famous falls. There are many large ragged rocks on both sides of the Kootnai river where safe footing may be found. The water is not very deep nor rough. At the proper season of the year great and exciting sport may be had below the falls. The fish rarely require any coaxing, they will jump at a hook almost as fast as it is dropped into the water. Both bait and flies are used. Trout from eight to sixteen inches long are caught almost by the ton. All, however, are not the "Simon-pure" trout, a good percentage are salmon trout. They are a beautiful fish, and many esteem them as highly as either genuine lake or mountain trout.

The fame of the fish caught at Slocan Crossing has spread far and wide, and there is an active demand for them. The fish supplies for Rossland, Nelson, Trail, Northport and other points come from the Kootnai, and actual tons are caught and shipped to these points during the season.

A number of persons engage in supplying fish to the various markets during the spring and summer and do a lucrative business. Still, the Crossing is a favorite resort for the real sportsman—he who fishes for the pleasure and excitement without any thought of sordid gain or profit.

The place is easily, rapidly and comfortably reached by rail. The region is a wild and picturesque one, and the view afforded by Bonnington Falls a sublime, magnificent one. Many during the heated term camp out near the stream and spend days in fishing and rambling through the woods and mountains which are near at hand. It has become of later years a favorite outing rendezvous. Large and small game are met in those regions.

What has happened to the noble buffalo and other game animals may yet be repeated of the fish at these falls. Persistent and remorseless fishing will surely ere long exhaust the supply. It is noted that fish are growing scarcer each season. At no distant day even Slocan Crossing will be literally "fished out."

THE FARM.

The Dairy Business in Kings County.

[Hanford Sentinel.]

We have received a careful estimate as to the amount of butter that was made in this county, or from milk produced in this county for 1901, and that estimate places the amount at 620 000 pounds, which at the average price realized amounts $142,600. The cheese factory has probably paid to the dairymen for milk fully $25,000 more, making an estimated distribution of money from the dairy for the season of $167,600.

From thirty acres of ground in Lindley district, near Pajaro, John E. Trafton gathered 6543 sacks of potatoes—218 sacks to the acre. It is a wonderful showing, and it came in a year when such crops count—when spuds are of high value. The value of that crop is estimated at about $260 per acre. The Pajaro valley is not given to blowing, but as some of her neighbors have been claiming records for field crops during 1901 this section has been offering a few "exhibits" in the way of enormous crops per acre of apples, berries, beets, onions, potatoes, etc., just to show that Pajaro valley is yet a leader when it comes to crop records—and it expects to retain that distinction.—Pajaronian.

STAM B. is a fine and substantial upstanding bay, 15 3/4 hands tall, weighs 1100 pounds, and now rightly ranks among the most promising young sires of the land. That he is now in public service in California is a fact for which breeders may be grateful. He is already proving a sire of speed and gameness, together with size, superb style and high action, transmitting these qualities to every foal regardless of dam. He is acknowledged by all who have seen him to be very near the real and ideal race horse and all-around sire. His racing qualities were beyond criticism, and all close observers know that in his blood are represented the kings and queens of the trotting turf and show rings.

Percheron Stallions

FOR SALE.

Native Son, foaled April 28, 1897. He is a points and was sired by Raglan, 1st dam by Adolph, 2d dam by Imp. Welnort, 3d dam by Imp. French Spy. Native Son is one of the most promising young draft stallions in California, and is a sure foal getter. He was bred to 23 mares last year and 21 of them are in foal. His six year old brother weighs 2600 pounds, and Native Son will be as large at the same age.

Chief of Kneiphusen. This beautiful Percheron stallion, bred by Joseph Blondin of Livermore, Alameda Co., was sired by Raglan. First dam by Starlight, 2d dam by Adolph, 3d dam by French Spy. Raglan No 14,739 was imported from France by Theo. Skillman. Raglan was bred by Joseph Davignon of Graucourt Department of Orue. Three of Raglan's colts were shown in Livermore on the 24th of February, 1900 and their average weight was 1856 pounds. Chief Kneiphusen was foaled March 5, 1897, and took the first prize in the San Francisco and San Mateo Horse Show in Tannorau Park. He has been bred to 32 mares and got 48 in foal. His colts can be seen at Livermore and at Redwood City. When he is full grown he will weigh over 2100 pounds.

132,000 Deaths from this alone.

One special danger menaces those who live well, who can use champagne and fine liquors, and that is Bright's Disease. Posted clubmen understand this so well that many have texts made every few months. Others drink nothing but dry wines. But still the deaths reported from Bright's Disease and Diabetes are increasing at a fearful rate. The last census reports show that since 1890 the increase has been nearly fifty per cent and that the deaths in the United States alone from above causes and diseases growing out of them last year reached the enormous number of 132,000.

Hence the importance of every clubman knowing this one fact, viz.: That Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable in about 87% of all cases. The Fulton Compounds are now saving the lives of hundreds, and will, when better known, save the lives of thousands who are now with little hope.

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent
Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

INTERESTING and VALUABLE HORSE BOOKS MAKE YOUR SELECTION.

Any of the following Books will be sent Postpaid for the price named:

THE PRACTICAL HORSE KEEPER

By George Fleming, LL. D., F. R. C. V. S.

A guide to those who have to do with horses, containing chapters on Breeding, Purchasing, Stable and Stabling, Feeding and General Management, Riding, Hunting, Breaking and Training, Harness and Driving, Shoeing and Diseases of the Foot, Injuries, Lameness, Diseases of the Horse, the Ass and Mule, etc. Bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.90c.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN TROTTER AND PACING HORSE

By Henry T. Coates.

The book, besides treating of Driving Horses, gives a condensed history of the best horses in this country, with mention of their best performances. It is invaluable in its suggestions to horse trainers, and is the latest book on this subject published. Illustrated with 4 fine pictures. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Bound in cloth.90c.

YOUATT ON THE HORSE

The Horse. By Wm. Youatt.

Together with a General History of the Horse and a Dissertation on the American Trotting Horse and an essay on the Ass and the Mule, by J. S. Skinner. With an engraving on steel and 58 illustrations on wood. Bound in full cloth. Size, 5½ x 8½ inches.$1.15

THE HORSE IN THE STABLE AND IN THE FIELD

His management in health and disease. By J. H. Walsh, F. R. C. S. (Stonehenge). Illustrated with over 80 engravings from photographs. Handsomely bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches.$1.15

DISEASES OF THE HORSE AND HOW TO TREAT THEM

By Robert Chawner.

New Edition and Concise Manual of Special Pathology for use of Horsemen, Farmers, Stock Raisers and Students of the Agricultural Colleges. Fully illustrated. Bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Cloth.$1.25

"It is an unpretending treatise free from technicalities, and well adapted for the use of farmers and stock raisers. The object of Dr. Chawner was to make a popular and reliable handbook in that department of veterinary science which treats of the horse and his diseases and in this object he has succeeded and supplied a practical want. There is no extraneous matter. Information is imparted with commendable brevity and in language plain and simple enough to be understood by all. The fallacies of the old school are rejected, and the treatment prescribed is that of modern practitioners."—Turf, Field and Farm.

THE AMERICAN GENTLEMAN'S STABLE GUIDE

The American Gentleman's Stable Guide, containing a description of the American Stable and Method of Feeding, Grooming and the general management of horses, together with the directions for the care of carriages, harness, etc. Fully illustrated. Pocket Edition. Size, 5 x 7 inches. Bound in cloth.$1.15

"The book contains a familiar description of the American stable, the most approved method of feeding, grooming and general management of horses, together with directions for the care of carriages, harness, etc. The whole is founded on the careful study and experience of many years of the author's life, and forms a valuable manual for any one who has charge of the noblest of man's irrational servants. Its low price and great value should give it general circulation among horsemen."—Indiana Farmer.

HORSE BREEDING RECOLLECTIONS

By Count Lehendorff

The Manager of the Government Stud of Germany, who has made a special study of the intricacies of horse breeding, and in the volume before us embodies the result of years of careful study. While all may not agree with his conclusions, none will dispute the value of his observations. Size, 5½ x 8½ inches. Bound in full cloth.$1.15

"The recital of his experiences and the suggestions which he furnishes will undoubtedly prove of value to all who are interested in equine matters. Everyone so interested ought to own a copy of this valuable vade mecum."

makes the following statement in his recent book,
"Art of Revolver Shooting."

The U. M. C. Co., U. S. A., have supplied me with large quantities of .44 gallery ammunition loaded with both round and semi-round bullets.

These have a small charge of black powder, and I should prefer this ammunition for self-defense as well as for competition up to 20 yards, as I find it the most accurate for exhibition shooting.

I think the U. M. C. gives slightly less recoil and fewer "unaccountables" than the English equivalent.

They also load these cartridges with smokeless powder, which I have used and with which I have made my bests on record in the rapid fire competition.

Send for new U. M. C. illustrated catalogues for further information concerning these modern Short Range or Gallery Cartridges, which are coming into wide use among experts and others. Game Laws and Shooting Records Free.

Palo Alto Broodmares at Auction.

Palo Alto's sale of broodmares which came off as per announcement at the Occidental Horse Exchange, on Thursday of this week, showed very conclusively that the revival of interest in the breeding of trotting horse is something more than newspaper talk. At least five hundred persons crowded the salesring and buyers were present from all parts of the United States and a few from foreign countries. The stock sold were all in that splendid condition so typical of everything that comes from the great Palo Alto farm, and the prices received were good. The highest price received was paid by Mr. Henry Pierce, of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, for the Gen. Benton great broodmare Elsie, that had a five hours old colt by McKinney 2:11½ at her side. Mr. Pierce's bid was $775 and was made after C. A. Durfee had offered $750. Mr. Pierce stated that he purchased the mare for Dr. Hamilton, of Boston, Mass., who had telegraphed a limit of $1000 as a bid for the mare. Elsie is twenty years old and one of the youngest looking animals for those years in the country. She is the dam of Palita (2) 2:16, Rio Alto (3) 2:16½ and three more in the list. This mare was a great bargain.

Bell Bird, yearling record 2:26½, two year old record 2:22, by Electioneer out of Beautiful Bells, and a magnificent individual 15.3 hands high and a beautiful brown, went to the nod of H. S. Hogoboom of Sacramento, who, it was rumored purchased for Mr. Fred Raschen, a wealthy business man of the capital city. Bell Bird is twelve years old and has been in the stud since 1895, producing a colt that year by Dexter Prince. In 1898 she foaled a colt by Wildnut and in 1900 a filly by Dexter Prince. She is now in foal to Iran Alto 2:12½. Although she has not produced a standard performer as yet, she is comparatively young for a brood mare and being a member of one of the greatest families in the world colts and fillies from her will be valuable. Mr. Hogoboom immediately booked her to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ and sent her to Nutwood Stock Farm where she will be kept until dropping her Iran Alto foal and then bred to Mr. Carter's great horse. This should prove a speed nick and Mr. Hogoboom has already had an offer for the result of this mating.

The twenty year old stallion Azmcor 2:20½ went for a low price, Rancho del Paso securing him for $210. He will be bred to some of this farm's best mares this year and will be a very profitable investment. While Azmcor cannot be said to be fashionably bred, being out of a thoroughbred mare, he would have been a profitable investment for some one at three times the money he brought.

The prices realized and the parties purchasing were as follows:

Bell Bird 2:22, br m, 1890, by Electioneer-Beautiful Bells by The Moor; H. S. Hogoboom, $750.

Clarion 2:25½, b m, 1887, by Ansel 2:20-Consolation by Dictator; John Rowen, $250.

Elsie, ch m, 1882, by General Benton-Elaine by Messenger Duroc; Santa Rosa Stock Farm, $775.

Ella 2:29, b m, 1884, by Electioneer-Lady Ellen by Carr's Mambrino; C. X. Larrabee, $300.

Ladywell 2:16½, blk m, 1886, by Electioneer-Lady Lowell by St. Clair; Santa Rosa Stock Farm, $325.

Asombrosa, b m, 1896, by Azmcor-Ahwaga by Gen. Benton; J. Wright, $360.

Zorilla, blk m, 1897, by Dexter Prince-Lily Thorne by Electioneer, F. Gomet, $475.

Wildmay 2:30, b m, 1887, by Electioneer-May by Wildidle; D. Hamm, Seattle, $340.

Cecino, b m, 1898, by Mendocino-Cecil by Gen. Benton; James Duncan, $185.

Coralie, b m, 1897, by Boodle 2:12½-Coral by Electioneer; D. Hamm, $400.

Clarionette, br m, 1896, by Dexter Prince-Clarion by Ansel; L. Lassell, $200.

Anselma 2:29½, ch m, 1885, by Ansel-Elaine by Messenger Duroc; C. X. Larrabee, $200.

Sylla Barnes, ch m, 1894, by Whips-Barnes by Electioneer; J. Wright, $260.

Lily Thorne, blk m, 1888, by Electioneer-Lady Thorne Jr.; C. F. White, $275.

Lady Agnes, b m, 1884, by Electioneer-Lady Lowell by St. Clair; Santa Rosa Stock Farm, $450.

Lady Nutwood 2:34½, b m, 1880, by Nutwood-Lady Mac by American Boy Jr.; C. X. Larrabee, $200.

Ororose, b m, 1898, by Oro Wilkes 2:11-Melrose by Sultan; C. Christensen, $210.

Sabling, blk m, 1892, by Guy Wilkes 2:15½-Sable by The Moor; C. E. Fredericks, $350.

Giacinta, blk m, 1895, by Guy Wilkes-Sproule by Le Grande; E. R. Reames, $175.

Corsica, b m, 1892, by Dexter Prince-Corsican (thor); S. J. Crooks, $125.

Morning Glory, b m, 1881, by Electioneer-Marti by Whipple's Hambletonian; R. E. Steele, $150.

Laura Drew, ch m, 1883, by Arthurton Molly Drew by Winthrop; S. J. Crooks, $100.

Azmcor 2:20½, b s, 1882, by Electioneer-Mamie C. by imp. Hercules; Rancho del Paso, $210.

Menzie, ch g, 1889, by Mendocino-Lizzie by Wildidle; L. Bowman, $160.

Altower, br g, 1898, by Altivo-Wildflower by Electioneer; E. W. Flannery, $165.

Total for the sale $7590, an average of a little over $292 per head for the 26 horses sold.

At the conclusion of the Palo Alto sale, a few horses and colts belonging to other parties were sold as follows:

Essie, b m, 1884, by Nephew-Eva Clay by Clay; $300.

Bay colt, 1900, by McKinney 2:11½, dam She 2:12½ by Abbotsford; F. W. Covey, $500.

Lottie Kisber, br m, 1893, by Kisber-Flossie by Prompter; J. C. Bocarde, $165.

Bessie, b m, 1896, by Richards Elector; Club Stables, $127.50.

Meetings Announced.

It begins to look as if the California circuit of 1902 will be the best seen in this State for years. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN received word from the Napa Agricultural Society this week that the dates August 11th to 16th were claimed by that association and that within a short time twelve purses for harness horses, ranging from $600 to $800 would be offered.

Secretary C. F. Thomas, of the Woodland Association, also writes claiming the week prior to the State Fair as the Woodland dates. Mr. Thomas says the association will soon advertise two stakes of $1000 each for the slow class trotters and pacers, to be followed by one of the most attractive harness programs ever offered by this popular association.

Bakersfield, the centre of the oil belt, will get into the circuit this year, and the Secretary of Agricultural District No. 15, located there, has officially claimed the week prior to the Los Angeles meeting. Bakersfield citizens will do everything in their power to make this one of the best meetings ever held in California. The driving club proposes to donate $2500 to the club, the business houses of the town will add $3000 more and the State appropriation of $2500 is available. This will give a guaranteed fund of $8000, which will insure a good fair and race meeting.

The State Fair will hold a two weeks meeting a usual and if the Board's plan of no books on harness events is carried out, trotters and pacers will have a better chance than for many years past.

The P. C. T. H. B. A. will give one or more meetings and the outlook is most favorable all along the line.

Horse Show at Haywards.

The people of Haywards, Alameda county, propose giving a horse show on the 8th of March this year for the purpose of showing to the breeders of that section and all who may lend their presence to the occasion, the sort of stallions that will be in service this year in Alameda county. The show, however, is not to be confined to stallions, but all sorts of horses will be welcome to take a place in the parade. No prizes are to be given, but the show is to be on the lines of the historical Court Day in Kentucky, when horse owners from miles around bring their animals to a county seat or other town and show or offer them for sale.

The Haywards people will make the date of this horse show a general holiday and will have a fine band of music and other entertainment to amuse and edify all who attend.

Mr. Geo. Oakes, editor of the Haywards Journal, has been chosen Secretary of the Horse Show Committee and all who desire information in regard to it should address him. Further particulars will be given in these columns later on.

Oakland Baron Sold for $17,500.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Jacob Ruppert, Jr., bought Oakland Baron, 10 years old, trotter, by Baron Wilkes, dam Lady Mackay, for $15,700 at the Fasig-Tipton sale to-day. Oakland Baron is a brown stallion with a record of 2:09½. He will be raced, but will also be used for stud purposes at Poughkeepsie. Oakland Baron was consigned by the Philadelphia Brewing Company.

Lady Mackay, the dam of Oakland Baron, was bred in California. She is by Silverthread, he a son of The Moor out of Gray Dale (dam of Longworth 2:19) by American Boy Jr., a son of Williamson's Belmont. Lady Mackay's dam was Fleetwing, the dam of Stamboul 2:07½. Lady Mackay is in the great broodmare list, being the dam of Lucy R. 2:18½, Oakland Baron 2:09½ and Semi Tropic 2:24.

Barondale Has Arrived.

Tom James, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, but now a resident of San Jose, was pleased one day last week when a car rolled into the Garden City depot containing his stallion Barondale 2:11½, two broodmares and a colt. The latter is by Barondale and a very handsome piece of young horseflesh. Barondale stood the trip well and came out of the car as though he had not been in it longer than overnight. He is a very handsome horse, and Mr. James, who was in this city last Thursday, informs us that Barondale is on view at all times and that he will be pleased to show him to breeders or any others that admire a good horse.

Barondale is one of the best bred horses ever brought to California and as Mr. James has put his stud fee down to the very low figure of $40, there is no doubt at all that the stallion's book will be filled very early. Barondale has a race record of 2:11½, obtained as a four year old and made in the third and fourth heats of a race. He was a good race horse and a good winner, and although not put into the stud until six years of age, has already produced race winners. He is by Baron Wilkes 2:18, one of the truly great sires and race horses. His dam is that great producing mare, Nathalie (that is also the dam of Grand Baron 2:12½, own sister to Clarinda, dam of two, and half sister to Prodigal, Patron and Patronage) by Nutwood; second dam Beatrice, that prolific dam of speed and speed sires, by Cuyler; third dam Mary Mambrino (founder of a great family) by Mambrino Patchen; fourth dam by Embury's Wagner, thoroughbred, and thence on through the best four-mile blood in the American Stud Book.

A Protest Sustained.

Every secretary of a trotting association is embarrassed and annoyed by the lax and slipshod methods of a certain class of horsemen in making entries. These people are generally illiterate and fail to make their entries correctly or in such a manner that their purpose can be clearly understood. The wise secretary will cast such an entry out or else send for further information, but the too eager man will accept it and supply its deficiencies from his imagination. A case before the Board of Appeals of the American Association at its recent sessions shows how such a man is liable to overstep himself. A horseman entered a horse at a western meeting last summer in the 2:40 class, without specifying whether the animal was a trotter or a pacer. The secretary, finding there was no 2:40 class for pacers, placed the name of the horse in the 2:40 trot. After the entry list was published the secretary discovered that the horse was a pacer, and permitted him to start in the 2:35 pacing class, in which he won third money. A keen-eyed competitor in the race noted the fact that the horse's name was not in the published list of entries to the 2:35 class and protested the money. When the case came before the Board of Appeals the above facts were brought out, and the board promptly sustained the protest and ordered the money redistributed. The owner of the horse deserved to lose his money for his slovenly way of making the entry, and it would serve the greedy secretary right if he was compelled to lose the entrance fee.—Et.

Of the eleven trotters that were added to the 2:10 list in 1901 only four started the season with records better than 2:12: three had records better than 2:15 and not so good as 2:12, two had records better than 2:30 and not so good as 2:15, and two had no records at all. Those of the latter class are Eleata, that trotted to a record of 2:08½ and Captor that went into winter quarters with a mark of 2:09½. The greatest reduction of record shown by any of the newcomers to the list was by May Allen, that lowered her previous mark of 2:25 to 2:09½, a reduction of 15½ seconds, and All Right is next, having reduced his record 10 seconds, from 2:19½ to 2:09½. The best showing, made by the green class was by Eleata 2:08½, Captor 2:09½, Country Jay 2:10½, Col. Cochran 2:10½, and Neva Simmons 2:11½. These trotters not only distinguished themselves by taking fast records, but are numbered among the largest money winners of the past season. Eleata is not only the fastest green trotter of 1901, but was, all things considered, the best race mare seen on the Grand Circuit last season.

President H. I. Wilson of the Montana Jockey Club made the following announcement this week: "The Montana Jockey Club has decided to open its summer meeting at Butte on Saturday, June 14th. Racing will continue at Butte and Anaconda for at least sixty days. We guarantee no purses less than $250. It is our aim to carry on high class racing, and also to secure the very best of officials, which will guarantee these results. Our stakes will be announced by February 20th."

ALLSTON, MASS.—Dr. J. A. Tattle: I was troubled with a severe attack of rheumatism, and was unable to walk. After applying your Elixir a few times I became entirely well. I can recommend it as the best liniment I have ever seen. Respectfully yours, MISS E. M. STOCKWELL.

Notes and News.

Napa has claimed its dates.

Woodland has done likewise.

Bakersfield claims dates and is in line.

The modern buyer's motto is "Show me."

Dates for the North Pacific Circuit have been claimed and announced.

The State Fair will give the best meeting this year ever held in Sacramento.

Old Joe Patchen 2:01½, it is said, has been permanently retired from the turf.

Thirty mares have been mated with Dan Patch 2:04 since he closed the campaign of 1901.

Goshen Jim 2:10½ sold for $750 at the John Splan Chicago sale. His new owner is John Ryan, of Minneapolis.

Charley Doble is wintering at Binghamton, N. Y., with Red Seal 2:10, Jack D. 2:10½, Thompson 2:14½ and others.

There are 632 horses to pass through the Midwinter sale held by the Fasig-Tipton Company in New York this week.

Eddie Rice states that he is ready to match Anaconda 2:01½ against Prince Alert 2:00½ for any sum up to $10,000.

As soon as the Breeders Association selects its dates it will announce its purses. There will be many of $1000 each.

Fair Lawn, Ash Grove, Woodburn and Palo Alto will soon be named among the great breeding farms of the past.

The National Trotting Association's treasury balance on Nov. 1, 1901, was reported by Secretary Gocher as being $20,044.26.

Fenella, the dam of Janice 2:08½ foaled a colt by McKinney 2:11½ at the Meek Ranch, Haywards, one night this week, but the foal was dead when found.

The Terrace Farm stable, of Titusville, Pa., including the $17,500 Beaucant and Terrace Queen 2:09½, in charge of trainer L. D. Shafter, will soon be shipped to Memphis.

Andy McDowell promises to have a good stable of horses out this season. He will again race Martha Marshall 2:07½, besides several other record horses of prominence.

The Northern California circuit will soon be organized and dates and purses announced. There will be plenty of racing for harness horses in the northern end of the State this year.

Napa claims the week of August 11th to 16th inclusive. Twelve purses for harness horses, ranging from $600 to $800 each, will be announced soon. Get your horses ready.

Ed Sunderlin, of Lebanon, N. H., drove 60 races this past season, and was back of the money only four times. His best winner was the Governess 2:19½, who won a piece of the purse in 15 races.

Robert I. by Hambletonian Wilkes is at the Alameda track. He has shown a quarter in 32 seconds without hopples and is a candidate for the 2:10 list this year that has a good chance of being elected.

Welcome 2:10½, the handsomest stallion in California, will be in the stud again this year at the Meek Farm, Haywards, at $25 the season. The first and only Welcome ever started, Hillo, got a record last year.

Hope So, the dam of Heirlooms 2:11½, Strathsc 2:13 and Strathbelle 2:14½, also the granddam of Strathmeath 2:10½ and Josephine P. 2:27½ by Blue Bull, died recently at Delavin, Wis., the property of Phillips Bros.

Geo. Gray, Superintendent of the Meek Estate at Haywards, has three very handsome and large draft stallions for sale. They are all sure foal getters and will be money makers in any good location. See advertisement.

Boralma 2:07 has about the biggest contract to fulfill of any horse that will be out this year. To defeat two such horses as Lord Derby 2:06½ and The Abbot 2:03½, is an undertaking that about equals any of the jobs given to Hercules.

The early closing events for Readville's Grand Circuit meeting are: The Massachusetts, 2:12, trotting, $10,000; The Blue Hill, 2:30, trotting, $5,000; 2:24, pacing, $5,000; 2:10, pacing, $3,000; 2:16, pacing, $3,000; 2:25, 2-year-olds, trotting, $2,000.

A good broodmare should have size for the offspring is influenced largely by the dam in this respect, and she should have a cheerful and pleasant disposition, with plenty of vim. If she has speed all the better for the foal, but one cannot get a good driver out of a sluggish stumbling dam.

William Harold 2:13½, sire of that great race mare Janice 2:08½, winner of the big race at Memphis last year, will make the season of 1902 at the Meek Farm, Haywards, at $40. This is one of the most promising sires of extreme speed in America.

That old time Grand Circuit trotter, So Long 2:13½, formerly a bread-winner for Budd Doble and W. J. Andrews, has been sold by H. G. Kilkenny of Lowell, Mass., to W. S. Adams of North Chelmsford. The son of Erelong is now 20 years old.

One who has been down the big line several times says: "Don't monkey with the Grand Circuit unless you know your trotter can put in five heats in 2:12 or better and your pacer can last through a long race where the heats are all better than 2:10."

George Starr will campaign Emma Winter by Directum on the Grand Circuit this year. Since she took a three-year-old record of 2:14½ in 1890 Emma Winters has developed wonderfully, and Starr considers her one of the highest class mares now in training.

Rosa Sprague, the dam of McKinney 2:11½, will have another granddaughter in the list this year barring accidents. The dam of Ferenno 2:10½ has a four year old by Allie Wilkes that is said to be the pacing wonder of Yarmouth, Mass., and capable of a 2:10 record.

Twenty-three head of Mr. Billings' horses are in training at Memphis, including Lucille 2:07, Little Boy 2:01½, Franker 2:11, Mazette 2:04½, Hontas Crook 2:07½, Free Bond 2:04½, Frazier 2:07½, Dr. Monical 2:09½, Captor 2:09½, Battleton 2:09½, Dr. Book 2:10, Jaymaker 2:15½ and Louise Jefferson 2:17½.

"The Brighton Beach plan," which is the name given by the Eastern journals to the plan that sends all horses to the stables that do not win a heat in three, is being exploited as a new thing. The California State Agricultural Society has followed this plan for several years with success and satisfaction.

Fred W. Thompson of this city, who for several years held the position of Secretary of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club, has again been chosen to fill that position. Mr. Thompson is a painstaking and efficient officer, and very popular with the members of the club. A better choice could not have been made.

At the time Directum was purchased by Mr. Savage, of Minneapolis, he also bought a weanling filly by that horse, his dam being Janie T. 2:14, as a two year old. They have been leading it some since getting it home, and have discovered that it has more speed on the trot than a pacer they have with a record of 2:22, it having on several occasions been able to outfoot the pacer in question.

While book-betting has always been subordinated to auctions and mutuels on the Eastern trotting tracks, it has been getting in its deadly work until there is a general outcry against it from horsemen and turf writers. It would be a good thing to abolish the evil altogether, and the N. T. A. and A. T. A. could do no better act than to make a rule prohibiting book-betting on harness races.

Ashland Wilkes heads the list of sires of new standard performers for 1901, with twenty to his credit. Axtell stands second with fifteen and McKinney third with twelve. Allerton, Direct, Expedition and Sphinx are next with ten each. Of the forty-three sires with five or more to their credit, all but six have standard records. Breeding to trotters seems to be the popular and successful plan of getting them nowadays.

To become a successful trainer requires the most excellent judgment, the greatest amount of skill and an almost perfect knowledge of the horse, his disposition, temperament and constitution. The work that one horse must have to condition him would kill another, and to make this distinction requires an ability possessed by few in the business. Those that do possess it have risen to the front rank in the profession.

C. K. G. Billings has announced his intention of sending the world's wagon pacing champion Little Boy 2:01½, against Star Pointer's record of 1:59½. Scott McCoy, trainer of the Billings stable, will be allowed to race Little Boy against Star Pointer's long long standing mark. The attempt will be made at one of the grand circuit meetings, and if unsuccessful another attempt will be made at the fall meeting at Memphis.

It is stated that Mr. E. E. Smathers purposes to start Lord Derby in the matinee races this summer, and that he will endeavor to wrest the Boston Cup from Harry Devereux. It will be necessary for Mr. Smathers to belong to a matinee club that is a member of the League of Amateur Drivers before he can participate in these events, and it is probable that he would be ineligible to compete for the Boston Cup in any event.

Bell Bird, daughter of Electioneer and Beautiful Bells, sold for $750 at the Palo Alto Sale. She went to the bid of H. S. Hogoboom of Sacramento, who immediately booked her to Martin Carter's great stallion Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, sire of John A. McKerron 2:06½ to wagon, and the foal will be worth two or three times the amount paid for the mare. Belle Bird is now in foal to Iran Alto 2:12½, and this foal will be worth a lot of money. Mr. Hogoboom has for many years been one of the most energetic and enterprising horsemen in California and though he has had his share of bad luck and probably a little more, he has never cried quits but is still in the ring. That he is on the right track now is as certain as taxes.

Mr. M. E. McHenry, the reinsman whose name and fame are intimately associated with Anaconda, Searchlight, Dan Patch and a host of other equine celebrities, writes Mr. E. J. Tranter, as follows, viz: "Replying to your letter of Jan. 2, will say when we left California with the Keating string of horses, the spring of 1899, Agitato could beat both Searchlight 2:03½, and Anaconda 2:01½, and had he not been taken sick at Denver, I think he would have won every race he was entered in."

It is said that Senator Frank Jones, proprietor of the Maplewood Farm in New Hampshire, will never be able to attend to business matters again, as after a long and severe attack of pneumonia he has been attacked with softening of the brain, from which there is no hope of relief. No sadder news has been received in the circle of horsemen than this. Mr. Jones is one of the most intelligent, progressive and enthusiastic breeders of harness horses in America, and his loss will be a most serious one.

Secretary W. H. Gocher has sent out official notice that the biennial meeting or congress of members of the National Trotting Association will be held at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York, at noon, Wednesday, February 12, 1902, in accordance with Article VIII, Section I of the By-Laws. In accordance with a resolution adopted at the congress in 1898, the committee on credentials will meet at the Murray Hill Hotel, at 10 o'clock A. M., on Wednesday, February 12, 1902, to receive credentials from delegates. Any proposed changes in the rules should be sent to the secretary to be submitted to the rule committee.

At the Walnut Grove Stock Farm there are five three year olds by Nushagak that will compare favorably with the same number by any one horse in America. One is out of the mare Nosegay by Langton and trotted in a workout last August a last half in 1:12½, last quarter in 34 seconds and last eighth in 16½ seconds. There is also one from the mare Woodflower (dam of Prince Ansel 2:20 and Seylex 2:15½) that has trotted a quarter in 38 seconds with very little work. The others are just as good considering the work given them. The Nosegay and Woodflower colts are both in the Occident and Stanford Stakes for 1902.

A handsome beveled-edge card containing a photograph of the stallion Roy Direct 2:10 and four of his yearlings has just been printed for Geo. A. Davis of Pleasanton, owner of this fast and good looking son of Direct 2:05½. The picture is a true likeness of the horse and yearlings and no handsomer family ever posed before a camera. Roy Direct is at Los Angeles for the season and is having quite a number of very choice mares booked to him. That he will produce extreme speed is as certain as anything can be. He is one of the most vigorous sires in California, as is proven by the fact that thirty-one mares bred to him in 1900 produced thirty-one foals.

The 15th Agricultural District, comprising the county of Kern, will give a fair and race meeting this year during the week preceding the Los Angeles meeting, and has put in a claim for that date. The Bakersfield Driving Club will donate $2500, the business men of Bakersfield $3000 more and the association has a State appropriation of $2500. With this amount of money in sight there is not a doubt about the success of the fair and purses will be offered so as to attract all the best horses in the State. Bakersfield is one of the liveliest towns on the Pacific Slope, is in the centre of the oil belt and a thriving, booming place. The Bakersfield fair will be a hummer.

Maggie N. by Hambletonian Wilkes out of Anna Belle by Dawn is now in the hands of C. F. Bunch at San Jose and bids fair to be the best of Anna Belle's foals. The daughter of Dawn has produced the trotter La Belle 2:16 and Robert I., one of the fastest green pacers in California, and this statement in regard to Maggie N. is made with knowledge of the facts. Maggie N. is the property of Green Meadow Stock Farm, Santa Clara. This farm has also turned over to Mr. Bunch for training Dexter Wilkes by Hambletonian Wilkes out of Balladina, trial 2:15, by Gladiator, next dam thoroughbred. This young horse is one of the best prospects in this part of the State.

The Wisconsin Association of Matinee Driving Clubs was organized in Sheboygan, January 8th, by about twenty-five representatives of the gentlemen's driving clubs of the State. The following officers were elected: President, W. E. Tallmadge, Sheboygan; Vice-President, A. M. Murphy, Green Bay; Secretary, T. M. Bowler, Sheboygan; Treasurer, Fred Carney, Jr., Marinette. Directors—W. S. Carpenter, Menominee; F. B. Desnoyes, Green Bay; J. H. Keith, Manitowoc; E. L. Whitehill, Sheboygan; Charles Fose, Appleton, and W. H. Ellis, Milwaukee. Board of Appeals—Fred Carney, Jr., three years; M. H. Murphy, Manitowoc, two years, and F. B. Desnoyes, one year. Six clubs signed the agreement.

There is undoubtedly something to be said on both sides of the proposition to shorten the distance in all races over mile tracks. In races between fast horses which have become classed it is of course as fair for one as for another, and the owner whose horse by a slight mistake lands behind the flag in one race, can hope for better luck the next time. It is in the colt stakes and futurities that a shorter distance is likely to prove harmful. These races are supposed to be given for the purpose of encouraging breeders to persevere in a business which at the best is one of many disappointments. Under the present rule very many of the races prove a walk-over, and in quite a large percentage some youngster, by distancing the field, gets the whole purse. This is all right for the fortunate owner, but the others who have been to the trouble and expense of breeding and training their youngsters with the hope of winning at least a part of the purse are likely to become discouraged and give up breeding altogether.

The Breeding of Bloomsbury.

The mystery supposed to enshroud the breeding of the thoroughbred stallion Bloomsbury (sire of the phenomenal Josie G.) on the dam's side of the house, has been cleared away, thanks to the splendid memory of the great California turfman and breeder of "the days of old, the days of gold," Achilles F. Grigsby of Napa, Cal.

In a letter to the writer, Mr. Grigsby takes one back to the year 1850 or 1851, when the gold excitement in this State was at its fiercest and when the tide of immigration was at its highest stage. The search for California's principal product, however, had been so absorbing that the possibilities of this section as a racing or breeding center had been well nigh overlooked, the result being that Mr. Grigsby and the brothers Williamson, owners of the great Belmont (sire of Mamie Langford, Owen Dale, Dashaway and other celebrities of after years) were among the very few owners of thoroughbreds in this State, and "quarter horses" were consequently the rage. Thinking that this, the land of gold and sunshine, would be an excellent part of the world in which to make a good-sized "pile," David Hughes of Kentucky, a veteran racing man, sent his son Andrew across the plains about the year 1850, with a bay mare by Trumpetor (son of Sir Solomon and a Hickory mare) out of Sophy Wynn, by Blackburn's Whip; second dam Sophy (Old) by Blackburn's Buzzard and third dam by Columbus; fourth dam by Meade's Celer, and fifth dam an imported mare. Sophy Wynn was owned until an old mare by Dr. E. Warfield of Fayette county, Kentucky, the man that bred the immortal Lexington and many others of note. The supposition is that Sophy Wynn passed into the hands of David Hughes along about 1837 or 1838, that Mr. H. was a man not particular about registering his thoroughbreds, in fact, at that day there was no American Stud Book, and he may not have been at all prominent as a breeder and racing man, or might have lived in an obscure portion of the Grand Old Commonwealth. The Stud Book (see vol. 2, page 320) shows that Sophy Wynn had foals by Trumpetor when she belonged to Dr. Warfield and that she had foals the date of whose breeding was not known.

This bay Trumpetor mare, afterward called Old Sopha, was brought across the plains to California by the adventurous young Kentuckian, Andrew Hughes, who, upon his safe arrival in the land of gold, discovered that thoroughbreds were exceedingly scarce and that the only kind of race he could engage his mare in was at a quarter of a mile or quarter mile and repeat. As she had a high turn of speed, Old Sopha was entered in these turf events, and ran with no little success, and it was only natural that turfmen and race goers of that era like Theodore Winters, should remember her as "a quarter mare."

Notwithstanding this belief, Mr. Grigsby, who afterward purchased her of Andrew Hughes, did so with the knowledge that the mare was not only a thoroughbred, but a well bred one into the bargain. He has preserved the pedigree as given him in writing by Andrew Hughes in the early fifties, and sent me a copy, which read: "Old Sopha's sire Trumpetor, he by Solomon, dam Hickory, second dam imported mare Trumpetta." (It should be Sir Solomon and dam by Hickory, but it served to identify the mare nevertheless.) Then it went on: "Old Sopha's dam Sophy Wynn, by Blackburn's Whip, second dam by Buzzard; third dam by Columbus," which is exactly correct, according to the stud book compiler, Col. Bruce. After her racing days were over Old Sopha, as the Trumpetor mare was known, was bred to several thoroughbred stallions, among the number Bulwer, a gray horse by Grey Eagle from Julia Ann, by Medoc. She foaled, late one November, presumably about 1856, a wee gray filly called Deuces, which, on account of its coming into the world two months before it should, was at a great disadvantage in a racing way. However, Deuces was trained for Mr. Grigsby and raced some, and sent to the stud, was bred in 1860, to Dashaway, a superior race horse of the early sixties by Belmont out of Lady Davis, by Red Bill (son of Medoc.) The result of this union was Cheripe, a bay filly, foaled 1861. J. S. Gibson, then, as now, of Williams, Colusa county, saw Cheripe as a yearling, and purchased her through Mr. Grigsby's trainer, Jim Merritt, and she was entered in one or more races by Mr. Gibson in 1864.

Langford, the first really great racer bred in California, a son of Williamson's Belmont and Liz Givens by imp. Langford, was owned in his older years by the late Hon. John Boggs, of Colusa county, who was ever an ardent lover of racing and race horses and a rider of no mean reputation in his young days. Mr. Gibson bred Cheripe (the daughter of Dashaway) to Langford in 1874, and in 1875 she foaled a bay filly, which was called Lady Langford. The last-named was bred to Three Cheers (then owned by W. M. Murry of Sacramento) in 1892, and in 1893 she foaled Bloomsbury, a bay colt of beautiful proportions and which as a two year old proved a veritable speed marvel, defeating the best horses of any age in training in this State over the shorter routes. Bloomsbury has proven as phenomenal a sire as he was a racer, but as Mr. Gibson had not been careful in the matter of registering his horse's dams, and had not secured evidence enough to satisfy the Stud Book registrar that he was a pure thoroughbred, the matter was placed in my hands for investigation, the result being that through the kindness of Messrs. A. T. Grigsby and Theodore Winters (the latter owned Deuces and bred Queen by Norfolk from her) I have been able to place evidence before the American Stud Book Registrar which I hope and believe will enable Mr. Gibson to register Bloomsbury's progeny from imp. Czarina as thoroughbreds, which they undoubtedly are. The pedigree of Bloomsbury therefore now reads:

BLOOMSBURY, b s, foaled 1893. Sired by Three Cheers (son of imp. Hurrah and Young Fashion, by imp. Monarch).

- 1st dam, Lady Langford, by Langford.
- 2d dam, Cheripe, by Dashaway.
- 3d dam, Deuces (Lady Mace), by Bulwer.
- 4th dam, Old Sopha, by Trumpetor.
- 5th dam, Sophy Wynn, by Blackburn's Whip.
- 6th dam, by Blackburn's Buzzard.
- 7th dam, by Columbus.
- 8th dam, by Meade's Celer.
- 9th dam, an imported mare.

RALPH H. TOZER.

Size of Thoroughbreds.

It has been a very general view that the race horse has increased considerably in size during the last hundred years. There was reason to allow that the late Admiral Rous was correct in stating that it was a hand from about 1760 to 1860, the date, or very nearly so, when the Admiral wrote his well known letters, says "Augur" in Sporting Life. There have been several changes in the last forty years, and those who have watched racing closely may have seen that there are more big horses and mares than could have been found at the date in question, but, generally speaking, there have been more bad horses produced from this multiplicity in size.

Take the yearlings sent up for sale, or located in the racing stables from private studs, the large majority will be over 15.2 before they reach the age of two years. This means another two inches in growth before they are two years and a half, and so the average size would be 16 hands, with many considerably over.

There is certainly some advantage, on the rule that a good big one is better than a good little one, but then in former times where there was one good big one there were five good little ones. In giving that estimation there seems more reason why the better levelness was maintained before the first half of the last century than now, as big horses of their day like Lottery, who stood 16 hands, had better chances with small mares. Good little horses were quite plentiful during the twenties and thirties, as there was Little Red Rover only 14.3, Perion not quite 15, Middleton 15.1, Camel under 15.2, Mulatto the same, Gainsborough 15.2, Lamplighter 15.1 and many others.

Touchstone, of whom there was a beautiful drawing by the senior Herring some three weeks after he won the St. Leger, is described by the great artist as medium size, which, I suppose, would be 15.2, and truly the great Westminster horse set the stamp on our thoroughbreds. Mated to a tall, somewhat leggy mare like Crucifix, he got them bigger than himself, as is noticeable in Surplice, and still more so in Pontifex, brother to Surplice, as the latter was a very big horse indeed.

At the same time, though, Pontifex came back to regulation size when mated to probably half-bred pony mares on the Welsh border, as he got beautiful hunters when so located, and the pretty little horses, Flash in the Pan and Heidelberg, the latter a perfect picture. In and out for size, the Touchstones were of the greatest use to the country, as even the little Flash in the Pan, who was not more than 15.1, got magnificent weight carrying hunters, worth from 400 to 700 apiece. So it was with all the descendants of Touchstone, as if they happened to be of the commanding order, like Atherstone, they invariably got level stock.

A writer in the London Sportsman picks for the winner of the English Derby this year a colt called Cupbearer. He is owned by the Duke of Westminster and is being trained by John Porter, who has already trained a half dozen Derby winners. The colt is by Orme, son of Ormonde, and out of Kissing Cup by Hampton. Porter is training sixty horses at the present time and Cupbearer is said to be the best one of the entire lot.

Hardly a day passes but one hears of a big price being refused for a colt or filly by McKinney 2:11½. There is no stallion in America whose get is more in demand.

Race Horse and Sire.

Few stallions in America attract the attention from breeders that Diablo 2:09½ did last year. His son, Sir Albert S. 2:08½, was the champion of the California circuit, and his daughter Diodene 2:10½ was the champion pacer of Oregon and Washington. Tags, a daughter of his that went East, was a big winner and reduced her record to 2:11½. El Diablo, a son, raced well, won a large amount and lowered his mark to 2:12½, while six of the Diablo's entered the list during the year and quite a number that raced lowered their former records. Diablo had a reputation as a champion race horse and sire of great speed prior to last year, and the performances of his get simply added to it. He made a better season in the stud than ever before got a better class of mares and more of them than in previous years and for the first time in his life got a really good start as a sire. This year he will attract to his court some of the best mares in California and that his fame will increase from year to year is now as certain as fate. He has to his credit in the 2:15 list Clipper 2:06, Sir Albert S. 2:08½, Diodene 2:10½, Daedalus 2:11, Diawood 2:11, Tags 2:11½, Hijo el Diablo 2:11½, El Diablo 2:12½ and Inferno 2:15, with a half dozen in sight this year.

It has been claimed in the columns of this journal for several years past that the only trouble with the Diablos was their extreme early speed, which so many trainers are unable to handle. Permit them to reach the age of maturity before giving them hard campaigns and they will prove iron horses. Flesh and bone can stand only a certain amount of strain, but when some of our trainers get possession of a colt that can show a 2:20 gait as a two year old, they imagine that miles at that rate of speed is beneficial. There are a dozen Diablo's in California that would have had records below 2:15 had they not been worked to death as colts. There has never been a horse standing for service in this State whose produce showed speed with more uniformity, and whenever his colts and fillies are way wise they seem anxious to show speed of a high order, and being very ambitious will show too much of it unless restrained. Nor has any stallion ever begot more good looks and style than Diablo. Who ever saw a real homely colt by this horse? And as for his breeding, there is none better anywhere.

His sire, Charles Derby 2:20, was a fast racehorse and is a great sire, as he has produced three in the 2:10 list. His grandsire, Steinway, held the champion three-year old trotting record, and has produced a son that still holds the three-year-old pacing record—Klatawah 2:05½—besides three others in 2:10. Charles Derby's dam was Katy G. by Electioneer, one of the greatest of sires, and she is one of the greatest of broodmares, having produced five with records from 2:05½ to 2:25.

The dam of Diablo is the great broodmare Bertha. She is the dam of five that have fast records—Diablo 2:09½, Elf 2:12½, Don Derby 2:13½, Ed Lafferty 2:16½ and the colt Jay Eff Bee that took a yearling record of 2:26½. Bertha is by Alcantara, a sire of 149 in 2:30, a son of George Wilkes and the great broodmare Alma Mater, dam of 8 in 2:30. Bertha's dam is Barcena, a great broodmare; her grandam is Blandina, a great broodmare, and her great-grandam is another great broodmare. No stallion can show a more extended list of great producing stallions and mares is his pedigree than Diablo.

When it comes to conformation and good looks Diablo is right up in the front ranks, even when the Apollos of equine beauty are on parade. There is not a qualification desirable in a sire that he does not possess. It is a pleasure to note that in his new home in Woodland, Yolo county, where he made a season last year and will be located in the future, he is highly appreciated. Already mares from all parts of the State have been booked to him, although his fee has been raised to $50 for the season of 1902. Those who breed to Diablo can rest assured that they could not have selected any better bred stallion, better individual or better sire, had they looked the country over. Send to his owner, Wm. Murray, at Woodland, for Diablo's tabulated pedigree and terms.

We wish to call attention to the advertisement of the Oakland Carriage and Implement Co. in to-day's issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. Mr. Stein, the manager of this firm, is a lover of the trotting horse and spares no pains to secure the lightest and easiest running wagons and the neatest harness that are built in the United States for his patrons. This firm has the agency and keeps in stock the celebrated Faber sulkies and speed wagons and they have now on exhibition a 50 lb. Faber piano box buggy which is the finest and lightest speed buggy ever built. Horsemen will find everything that is necessary to get to the front, of the very best quality and at the most reasonable prices at this popular Oakland establishment.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

To Be Mated With Cresceus 2:02 1-2.

Mr. C. A. Harrison of Los Angeles, owner of the mare Little Maid 2:18, gives the following interesting information about his mare which has been sent East to be bred to Cresceus:

"Little Maid made her record in a winning race to high wheels at Portland, Oregon. She is by Rockwood, he by Fleetwood and he by Happy Medium. Her dam was Pocahontas by Hambletonian Mambrino, sire of Carlye Carne 2:11½ and many other good ones; second dam by Black Stranger, son of Gen. Knox; third dam by Waterloo, the first trotter with a record ever owned in Oregon; he was a Morgan horse and a good one. Little Maid has paced a quarter in 30 seconds for me and shown me that she is a mare of exceptional speed and disposition as a road mare. I never saw her equal. The pleasantest vacation I ever had was the two weeks I drove her on the San Francisco speedway, and I failed to find a roadster that could outstep her, and I also failed to find one in Los Angeles.

"In shipping her away to the Ketcham farm I did not mean to deprecate any of the sires of California, as I consider that this State has as many first-class stallions as any State in the Union, with possibly a few exceptions. I selected Cresceus as I consider him the greatest trotter it has ever been my pleasure to see, and besides I thought as Little Maid was the fastest pacer I ever drove or owned, and this being my first attempt at raising a fast one, I would select the fastest and most popular stallion. I am sure Little Maid will be a speed producer, as I own her son, Printers' Ink by Altamont, and in sixty days' work I drove him a mile in 2:26½. I then turned him over to I. C. Mosier, and in two weeks' work he trotted a mile in 2:22½, last half in 1:10½, last quarter in 34 seconds and last eighth in 16 seconds; so I guess in breeding the Maid to Cresceus I may get a fair proportion of the speed mixture. It is my intention to race Printers' Ink the coming season. I will nominate the prospective young Cresceus in all the best stakes. A colt or filly without stake engagements is a poor investment. I believe it behooves all California breeders to patronize the Breeders Stake, the Occident and the Stanford. Yours truly,

C. A. HARRISON."

A Speed and Stop Check.

An ingenious little device that is proving a boon to over-burdened horses and is bringing woe to many a careless, dilatory or brutal driver is to be seen nowadays on the delivery wagons of many big mercantile houses, breweries and truck companies of New York and other large cities. In these days of sharp competition and good wages it is essential to the success of large business enterprises that the greatest possible service be obtained from men and horses alike, but wise employers, who take pride in their handsome delivery animals and pay tidy sums for stanch horseflesh, find no economy in overworking their draught animals. But try as they would, the managers of many business concerns having fifty or a hundred or more horses found it almost an impossibility to place the responsibility for abuses until the "speed and stop check," or indicator, of which there are several patterns, came into the market to aid the work of the Bergh Society, delivery superintendent and stable bosses.

Now, if Fritz or Patrick stops at his favorite saloon to play a game of pinochle with his cronies and then compels his horses to make up the lost time afterward, it is all indicated on the "speed and stop check," modeled after the fashion of the cyclometer of bicycle fame. The indicator is about the shape of an ordinary alarm clock, with a face about five inches across and divided by minute and hour lines. A clock hand moves continuously, but another dial is so arranged that it records only while the wagon moves, stamping each quarter mile as it is wheeled off. The indicator is attached to a rear wheel, and if a driver stops the time hand goes on, but the distance marker does not. With the number of miles traveled, the time consumed and the stops all indicated, it is easy for the employer to tell at a glance if his horses have been overdriven and if the driver has been attending to duty promptly. —Horseman.

Barb Wire Cuts.

The following is said to be the best treatment for horses that have been cut by barb wire: If cut severe tie short in stable to keep from biting cut, and fill immediately with common salt. If required to wash, use very strong salt brine; sprinkle salt in until it is healed nicely, as it will commence to do shortly. Never use any grease or greasy salve on cuts on horses. This is just as good for any cut on horses.

Thomas W. Lawson has engaged the services of Tom Marsh, late of Maplewood Farm, Portsmouth, N. H., as trainer and driver for the coming year.

A Confidential Query.

Did you never buy a gold brick? Honest? Cross your heart. Was you ever 'up against it' with no friend to take your part? O, you joke about the farmer with his 'whiskers an' his way. Of lettin' people do him up because he's such a jay. But was you never vanquished by some fellow critter's art? Did you never buy a gold brick? Honest? Cross your heart? Did you never give your money to some man that put on airs? An' find that all he left you was certificate of shares? Did you never place your hopes upon some promise very dear, An' watch yer hopes all vanish as you waited, year by year? Did you folly never lead you up to disappointments snarl? Did you never buy a gold brick? Honest? Cross your heart? —Washington Star.

"Tribe" or "Family."

It has become a common practice among writers of trotting turf literature to designate certain breeds of horses as "families," as for example, the Wilkes family, the Electioneer family, the Pancoast family and the rest, writes "Wirelight" in the Kentucky Stock Farm. Tribe is the better word, for in a strict sense stallions are not the founders of families, that being a prerogative of the dam. As applied to the human race it is an accepted theory that the "mother rules the family, the father the house." It is a well settled principle among breeders of thoroughbred horses that the honor of founding a family belongs to a particular mare. The Levity family furnishes an example. Levity was a mare by the imported stallion Trustee, and the family founded by her is one of the most celebrated known to the running turf. The name of her sire is never mentioned in connection with her family or its descendants. A family supposes the closest alliance; a tribe supposes no closer relation than that created by a common interest. Family is confined to a comparatively small number, while tribe is a term of extensive import. Hamburg is a descendant of the Reel family, and while he was sired by Hanover, by Hindoo, he belongs neither to the family from which Hanover came nor to that from which Hindoo sprang. Each of the three horses named descended from a different family, as equine families are reckoned, and necessarily so, for the polygamous habits of a stallion renders it impossible for him to become the founder of a family.

The systematic breeding of the light harness horse does not date back far enough to make it possible to properly classify many of the trotting families, and it will not be attempted here, but to illustrate the idea it may be stated that the tribe commonly known as the "Pancoast family" is in truth the Mary Mambrino family. This mare was sired by Mambrino Patchen, dam Belle Wagner, and from Mary Mambrino we have Beatrice, dam of Patron 2:14½, Prodigal 2:16, Patronage (sire of Alix 2:03½), and of the dams of Patriot 2:24, Grand Baron 2:12½ and Barondale 2:11½; Elvira 2:18½, dam of Ponce de Leon 2:13 and Queensware 2:25; Marcella, dam of the dam of Marcus 2:21, etc.

The named produce of Mary Mambrino and the produce of her daughters and granddaughters properly belong to the family founded by her and should be so classed in her honor. But while Patron, Prodigal, Patronage and Ponce de Leon are descendants of the Mary Mambrino family, it cannot justly be claimed that a colt sired by either of them is necessarily a descendant of the same family, unless it can be shown that the colt traces in tail line to Mary Mambrino. Thus, while Ponce de Leon is a descendant of that family, his daughter Prelatess 2:15½ is a member of the family founded by Primrose, the line of descent being Black Rose by Tom Teemer, Primrose by Abdallah, Primula by Connaught, Primacy by Belmont, Prelacy (dam of Prelatess) by Lord Russell. From the same point of reasoning Alix could not properly be placed to the credit of the Mary Mambrino family, albeit she was a daughter of a descendant of that family.

The time will come when writers for the turf press and compilers of catalogues will give honor where honor is due by naming the trotting families after their real founders. In that time we shall hear Impetuous 2:13 and Extasy 2:11½, spoken of as the descendants of the Kathleen family instead of the Dictator or the Baron Wilkes family, as the case may be, and the Alma Mater, the Midnight, the Betty Brown, the Millionaire, the Miss Russell and the Waterwitch families will become as familiar to the public as the so-called Electioneer and Wilkes families are at the present time.

Diodine 2:10½ by Diablo 2:09½ was the sensation of the Splan sale at Chicago and brought the highest price—$2050. Diodine was bred and raised in this State, and purchased three years ago, when she was a three year old, by Dr. Powell Reeves, of Seattle, who afterwards sold her. She took her record at North Yakima, Washington, last fall. Her purchaser is Peter Truax, of Eau Claire, Wisconsin, who will place her in the hands of Charles De Ryder to campaign, and he intends entering her in the fast pacing classes on the Grand Circuit. Eastern horsemen say that Diodine looks very much like Edith W. 2:05.

Getting Ready at Aptos.

Down at the pretty half-mile track at the Sprickels Farm near Aptos, Santa Cruz county, Sandy Smith began work a few weeks ago on twelve young horses bred at the farm, and this week took up a dozen more to put in shape for the Fasig-Tipton May sale at Cleveland.

Among them is a chestnut mare by Dexter Prince out of a mare by Antevolo, grandam the dam of Crown Point 2:17½, that will be one of the greatest show mares ever led into the ring whenever she is entered in a horse show. She is a beauty and Sandy stands ready to go broke if there is anything that can outshow her. Besides, she is an M. & M. candidate and at Cleveland will show as much speed as anything offered at that great speed sale. No better gaited one ever wore a trotting harness.

Venus II 2:11½ was a very handsome and speedy mare but she has a full brother in this lot that marched a quarter in 40 seconds after being driven two or three times, and he was never handled a day in his life until Sandy took hold of him last month.

A full brother to Czarina 2:13½, is one of the most level headed geldings ever driven, and is a striking contrast to his fast sister in disposition although he shows all the speed she did, and more at the same age having trotted quarters in 35 seconds already.

A pacing queen is a filly by Cupid 2:18 out of Gracie S., the dam of Dione 2:07½. This is as slick gaited a pacer as any man ever saw and can step a quarter in 35 seconds or better right now. She was never handled until this winter.

Of the twelve that Sandy is working on there is not one that has a blemish or any unsoundness, which is a good showing to start on.

Aptos Stock Farm turns out as great a proportion of good lookers as any farm in America, due in a great measure to the abundance of feed given the colts while growing, and the fact that they have many hills to climb while young makes them strong in wind and limb. The greatest money winner of last year, while bred at Palo Alto, was sired by the Aptos Stock Farm's stallion Dexter Prince, and there are quite a number of his get, fully as promising, that are to go to the Cleveland sale in May.

A Plain Business Proposition.

There are numerous advantages to be gained through a judiciously displayed advertisement of a first-class harness stallion. Very few owners but what believe they have a good stallion—a prominent sire already or the making of one; a stallion bred well enough to mate with the best mares within reach and one that should be afforded ample opportunity to demonstrate his superiority. Nearly every owner with whom we have been acquainted entertains a belief similar to the above. Such a belief is natural and to be commended, for one must believe in his own stallion before he can expect the public to think well of him. A suitable advertisement, judiciously placed, calls the attention of horsemen (everywhere) to the fact that you have a horse worthy of being advertised; that you have a good horse—one that you believe in and one that you want everyone else to believe in. The fact that you advertise him is ample evidence of the faith you entertain. It also demonstrates the fact that you want to cultivate a similar faith in owners of broodmares. Few men will continue advertising a stallion that they have lost faith in; the public has long ago recognized this fact and prefer doing business with the enthusiastic owner. And, again, a judicious advertisement locates the stallion with the public, and they naturally look to the locality in which he is owned for colts or aged horses sired by him. Many a good sale has been brought about in just this way. Not long since a business-like owner told the writer that his stallion advertisements had always paid him in the number of sales made through them. The advertisement located his horse, its continued publication attracted the attention of buyers, and numerous sales were the result. As a general proposition, it does not pay to hide the identity and location of a good stallion. Such a horse should be kept before the public, in season and out of season, during good times and bad times. It is money well expended, this thing of judiciously advertising a well-bred and promising harness stallion. —Western Horseman.

Lively times are promised at the meeting of the stewards of the Grand Circuit, at Detroit, the last of this month. The trouble is likely to come over the assignment of dates. The Detroit Association is likely to insist upon opening the Circuit this year the same as usual, and they also wish to hold their meeting a week later than last year, which unless some one of the tracks which expect to be in line are frozen out will probably push the dates of the Eastern members ahead, and it is not expected that they will stand for this.

WASHINGTON JOCKEY CLUB which holds its meetings at the Bennings track, advertises several stakes to close Saturday, February 15th.
There is added money in each and every instance none receiving less than $700, the highest being the Grand Consolation for two year olds, to which the sum of $2500 is added to the stakes. Entry blanks to these stakes can be had at this office.

A LIST OF STAKES to be run at the spring and autumn meetings of the Westchester Racing Association at Morris Park will be found among the advertisements in this issue. Entries for the same will close Saturday, February 15th. Entry blanks can be had at this office. For the spring meeting there are three stakes for two-year-olds, four for three-year-olds and eight for three year-olds and upward, to all of which there is added money from $1200 up to $3700. A good list of steeple-chase and hurdle stakes is also advertised. The autumn stakes for two and three year olds are rich events, added money ranging from $2000 to $4000 in each stake. Remember, entries close February 15th.

A GOOD CIRCUIT IS ASSURED to harness horse owners in California this year. Already dates have been claimed by the principal district associations and announcement of purses will be made during the current month. Napa, Woodland, the State Fair and Bakersfield have claimed their dates and first class meetings will be given at each place. Other announcements will be made within a few days. It is very probable that racing will begin during the latter part of July and continue until the latter part of October.
There will be at the very least calculation twelve weeks of racing for purses from $300 to $1000. This is better than any other circuit west of the Rocky mountains will offer, and also better than the majority of circuits over East. The Grand Circuit offers many big purses it is true, but it takes speed of the very highest order and horses of iron constitution and gameness to win expenses over there. California's racing season is held in weather that cannot be excelled anywhere on earth.
Horses are not prostrated by heat nor compelled to race in the mud. Good days and good tracks can be depended upon. If there is no bookmaking on harness races in California this year it will be the most successful season ever given here

NEXT TUESDAY at 10 A. M. sharp the sale of the Sonoma Stock Farm horses will begin by order of the court, at 1732 Market street, in this city.

This is an absolute disposal sale of the horses owned by the late J. B. Chase, proprietor of the Sonoma Stock Farm, who, probably more than any other prominent California breeder, established the foundation of his breeding theories on the lines of blood that could go a distance at extreme speed, and it will be noticed that the names of the famous four-milers, Katy Pease, Joe Daniels, Thad Stevens, Wildidle and other great long-distance performers, appear in the pedigrees printed in the catalogue. To this blood he brought some of the best imported blood ever brought to California from England and Australia, and the success that marked his efforts shows plainly in the list of race winners every year.

From the Chase paddocks have come Hidalgo, who won many memorable races both at the East and in California; Gilead, winner of the Thornton and other stakes, and conqueror of Rey El Santa Anita, Hawthorne, etc.; DeBracey, who beat the best three year olds in the Middle West and California and ran a mile in 1:40; Monterey, one of the crack two year olds of 1894, sired by Hidalgo; Marigold, who ran a mile in 1:41, two miles in 3:30½ and four miles in 7:20½, the world's race record for mares; Centella, winner of twelve races and $9565; Kildare, winner of more than twenty races; Morven, a heavy winner on the flat and over the sticks; Del Norte, who broke the Coast record at a mile and a sixteenth; Top Gallant, winner of fourteen races and "in the money" on fifty-three occasions;
Horatio, a good two and three year old; Phoebe Ann, a winner East and West; Mischief, a stake winner and producer; Glen Ellen, a winner and phenomenal producer; Mystery, who won three Derbys and took the measure of Geraldine and Acclaim; Manzanillo, won two races at Sacramento in 1898 and defeated the famous Libertine; Rebecca, a winner and one of the most wonderful producers alive; Marian, her sister, a good winner and the mother of Sir John, Sykeston, Lady Marion, etc., and Modwena, a stake winner, and many others. Many others might be named, but these are sufficient to show that speed and also endurance of the highest quality have come from the Sonoma Stock Farm.

Of the trotting stock little need be said. They were bred as a side issue, and it was always the idea of Mr.
Chase to make good looks and size his principal aim in breeding horses of this description. The blood of such handsome horses as Saladin, Antevolo, Buccaneer and Secretary will be found in the pedigree of these horses, and many fine individuals are in the consignment.

All the thoroughbreds of this consignment have been carefully registered with The Jockey Club, and as there are broodmares, yearlings, two, three and four year olds, breeders and turfmen should certainly be able to secure something to their liking in the lot to be offered, for they are members of the best known racing families in this part of the world.

IT IS DUE BREEDERS, who mated their mares last year, that the stallions patronized by them be nominated in the Special Stallion Stake offered by the State Agricultural Society. Unless a stallion is nominated, his foals of this year cannot be entered in this stake, and as it will be one of the richest stakes ever given for three year old trotters and pacers there will be a general desire to name the foals in it. It is due breeders who patronize stallions that they have every opportunity offered them to place their colts in stakes.

Now that Lucile 2:07, Mr. Billings' champion wagon mare of 1900, is going sound, and Chain Shot 2:06½, Lord Derby 2:06½ and The Monk 2:08½ are in the hands of gentlemen who take an interest in the amateur game, general attention is again centered in the probability of John A. McKerron 2:06½ holding the honors as the wagon champion. Reports from Walnut Hall Farm, McKerron's winter quarters, indicate him to be in superb condition. Messrs. Burgoyne and Benyon speak of him as having a monumental appetite this winter and an unequalled capacity for everything eatable that comes his way. He has taken on a great amount of flesh and is full of life and vim. McKerron and Lucile will have a marked advantage over the other contestants—should they contest—in receiving a special preparation to wagon, while Lord Derby, Chain Shot and The Monk will be asked to pass through the grueling process of the campaign with little opportunity to point them for the amateur wagon championship.—Horse Review.

Iran Alto 2:12½ has been credited in many of the papers, this journal among them, with being the sire of the fastest four year old gelding of 1901, Thomas R. 2:15. The honor really belongs to McKinney 2:11½, whose unsexed son El Milagro took a race record of 2:14½ last year. The writer with many others thought that El Milagro, who is out of the dam of Margaret Worth 2:15, was a stallion, but we learn that he is not, so the four year old gelding record of 1901 should be credited to him.

Rate of Speed for One Eighth Mile.

Trainers are beginning to work their trotters and pacers for the season of 1902, and the following table of reference will come handy to many. In it the rate of speed per eighth of a mile is shown for miles from three minutes down to two minutes, so that a glance at the figures shown at any part of the mile will give the rate of speed at which the horse was driven:

In none of the tables of the big money winners of the year which have been compiled has the name of The Abbot appeared. This is because his winnings were in special races or for exhibition miles. As a matter of fact, the ex-champion trotter won more money during the season of 1901 than any animal on the turf with the single exception of Cresceus 2:02½.
At Brighton Beach he got $5000, notwithstanding the fact that he was distanced by Cresceus. At Readville, although again defeated by the chestnut stallion his winnings were $10,000. At Hartford he got $1000, at Terre Haute $500 and at Lexington $5000 forfeit money because of Boralma's non-appearance, owing to sickness. This makes $21,500 which he won for his owner without winning a race. Mr. Scannel thinks that the gelding will prove a good investment. He is but eight years old and is in the best of condition this winter.

Monochrome is the name which John Rowen of Emeryville has selected to have his four year old stallion registered under. Monochrome, as his name signifies, is of solid color and is a beautiful bay by Mc-Kinney 2:11½ out of Hattie, the dam of Monterey 2:09½ and Montana 2:16. He stands 16.1 and has never been worked for speed on account of his size, but is a very fast colt. He will make a limited season at Stockton this year at $30.

North Pacific Fair Circuit.

The managers of fair associations in Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and Idaho are very much alive and have already agreed upon dates for a circuit this year. Representatives from many of the associations met at Seattle, January 15th, as follows:

J. A. Fullerton and Robert Leighton representing Vancouver Jockey Club, Vancouver, B. C.; T. B. Gunn and A. J. Splawn, Washington State Fair, North Yakima; Chris Simpson, Irvington track, Portland; W. H. Wehrung and M. D. Wisdom, Oregon State Fair, Salem; J. B. Stetson, Idaho Inter-Mountain Fair, Boise; A. T. Van De Vanter, King County Fair, Seattle; R. L. Kline, Whatcom County Agricultural Assn., Whatcom; Chas. D. Jefferies, Spokane Inter-State Fair, Spokane; W. H. Keary, Provincial Fair, New Westminster, B. C.; Dan Currie and T. F. Oliver, Snohomish County Agricultural Association, Everett, Wash.; C. W. Mounts, Lewiston, Idaho, and Bill Nye, of Chilliwick, B. C.

J. A. Fullerton was chosen chairman of the meeting and M. D. Wisdom, secretary. Upon motion the chair appointed C. D. Jefferies, R. L. Kline and T. F. Oliver a committee on dates for a spring racing circuit. The committee reported as follows and the report was adopted:

Seattle.....	Aug. 18 to 28
Vancouver, B. C.....	Aug. 30 to Sept. 1
Whatcom.....	Sept. 2 to 6
Everett.....	Sept. 8 to 13
Salem.....	Sept. 15 to 20
Portland.....	Sept. 22 to 27
North Yakima.....	Sept. 29 to Oct. 4
Spokane.....	Oct. 6 to 14
Lewiston.....	Oct. 15 to 18
Boise.....	Oct. 20 to 25

The matter of offering early closing events was taken up and thoroughly discussed. It was practically decided that the following named associations would offer at least two $1000 early closing stakes for harness events, and some of them will add a liberal stake for runners:

Seattle—A stake for 2:30 trotters and 2:16 pacers.
Salem—For 2:25 trotters and 2:18 pacers.
North Yakima—For 2:40 trotters and 2:20 pacers.
Spokane—For 2:20 trotters and 2:25 pacers.
Boise—For 2:23 trotters and 2:28 pacers.

The other associations will also give early closing stakes of smaller amounts.

A resolution was passed that in the sense of the meeting expert judges be employed, and the names of Chas. D. Jeffries and Robert Leighton were recommended as competent men.

A Board of Appeals, to consist of J. A. Fullerton, M. D. Wisdom, A. T. Van De Vanter, T. B. Gunn, C. D. Jeffries and J. B. Stetson, was chosen, and by this Board all disputes, etc., arising in races will be settled.

Many stallion owners are increasing the fees for the services of their horses this year. In this connection Palmer Clark says: It will be remembered that in the days of the boom period nothing so thoroughly took the heart out of an enthusiastic breeder as when he had to sell a two year old colt or filly for much less than he had paid for the stallion services—a condition that was bound to, in time, and did, result disastrously to the breeding interests.

I believe that the largest fee now charged for the public service of any stallion is that of the champion trotter Cresceus, and which is placed at $300, a figure that would seem about fair considering his supreme position. Axtell 2:12, who once commanded a service fee of $1000, is now standing at $100; Chimes, the sire of The Abbot 2:03½, is standing at $100, while Sphinx, styled the leading son of Electioneer, is offered at $65; Red Heart 2:19, sire of Chainshot 2:06½, Red Seal 2:10, etc., is standing at the low figure of $30; Highwood 2:21½, sire of several in 2:10, the latter's former stable companion, commands $50. All these figures are within the bounds of reason, and some exceedingly low, considering the caliber of the horses, but while these conditions obtain there is much to encourage the great army of lay breeders, so to speak, who do not own a stallion of their own, as it puts the very best within the reach of all. The danger, however, lies in the rapidly returning prosperous conditions which have a tendency to a return of the fictitious values placed on horses and their earning capacity, which, persisted in, ultimately brings the collapse that follows as a consequence.

Never before in the history of the trotting horse business have values been on so legitimate a basis as present, and it is to be hoped that breeders will exercise sufficient judgment to maintain a status of affairs the very legitimacy of which will attract the surplus capital resulting from a period of continued business prosperity.

It is understood that William G. Layng, the owner of the undefeated pacer, Sir Albert S. 2:08½, is about to close negotiations with a prominent Eastern horseman to lease this horse to race on the Grand Eastern Circuit.

Nutwood Wilkes 2:16 1-2.

New laurels are earned every year by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, the premier stallion of the Nutwood Stock Farm at Irvington, Alameda county, in this State. In 1901, his son John A. McKerron, that took a three year old record of 2:12½ in 1898, and reduced it to 2:10 in 1900, trotted to a wagon record of 2:06½ driven by his owner, Mr. H. K. Devereux of Cleveland, an amateur. For two years in succession John A. McKerron was returned the winner of the Interstate Cup for wagon trotters, and should he win the contest again this year the cup will become the permanent property of the Cleveland Driving Club. This cup has been to amateur horsemen what the America's cup is to yachtsmen, and the handsome son of Nutwood Wilkes has had to meet the best wagon trotters of the country in both contests. That he has won his races in straight heats and outclassed all the horses contending is a tribute to California as a breeding state and to Nutwood Wilkes as a sire of extreme speed and race horse qualities.

There is no horse in America to-day that stands a better chance to succeed to the champion sire crown than this son of Guy Wilkes and Lida W. by the great Nutwood. He is a comparatively young horse, having been foaled in 1888, and taken his record in 1896. Every year he produces a sensational trotter and the names of Who Is It 2:12 the ex-champion three year old gelding, Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, one of the largest money winners of 1900, Stanton Wilkes, a phenomenally fast pacer, as well as John A. McKerron, the champion stallion to wagon are known wherever harness horses are read about. One of the attractive features of Nutwood Wilkes is his extreme beauty, and as he imparts this quality to his get his services are much sought after by those astute breeders who realize the fact that speed without good looks will not bring the highest figures when horses are placed in the salesring.

Having size, style, handsome proportions, speed and the ability to reproduce them, Nutwood Wilkes, if his pedigree is satisfactory, has no superiors, and in this latter qualification he is pre-eminent. Sired by Guy Wilkes, one of the greatest of the great sons of the immortal George Wilkes, he gets from his sire the best strains of the Wilkes blood. The dam of Guy Wilkes was the great broodmare, Lady Bunker who, was by Mambrino Patchen. Now of the sons of Geo Wilkes that have produced 100 standard performers Alcantara sire of 149, Baron Wilkes sire of 100, Gambetta Wilkes sire of 101, and Simmons sire of 106 were out of Mambrino Patchen mares, while Onward sire of nine in 2:10 and of 158 in 2:30, and Red Wilkes sire of 165 in 2:30, were out of mares by Mambrino Chief 11, the sire of Mambrino Patchen. Is any further proof needed that this Geo. Wilkes-Mambrino Chief cross is one of the greatest in the stud book.

Having such blood on his sire's side, let us look at the dam's side of the house. The mare that produced Nutwood Wilkes was Lida W. 2:18½ (dam also of the producing sire Direct line 2:29) by Nutwood. A well known turf writer in speaking of a Nutwood mare once said: "If she is by Nutwood that is enough; she would be all right if she was out of a barrel." Nutwood is the greatest of all sires. He has 166 in the 2:30 list and his daughters have produced 186. Nutwood mares have 35 in the exclusive 2:15 list, more by far than the daughters of any other stallion. Among these fast ones are Arion 2:07½, the world's champion two year-old; Fred Kohl 2:07½, Ethel Downs 2:10, Precision 2:10½, Nemoline 2:11½, Ned Thorne 2:11½ and other trotters, as well as the following among the pacers: Eyelet 2:06½, Bellwood A. 2:07½, Sunland Belle 2:08½, Nydia Wilkes 2:09½, Barondale 2:11½ and many others.

The second dam of Nutwood Wilkes was by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 2:27, one of the old-time race horses of California whose blood is found in such fast ones as Anaconda 2:01½, and many more, and whose sire, Geo. M. Patchen 2:23, was the champion stallion of his day.

The third dam of Nutwood Wilkes was the mare Rebel Daughter, that was a daughter of the Mambrino Patchen of the Pacific Coast, Williamson's Belmont. Rebel Daughter was a thoroughbred and won at a mile in her racing days. Williamson's Belmont sired Venture 2:27½, the first thoroughbred horse to take a trotting record, and Venture sired the dam of the champion stallion Directum 2:05½ and also the dam of Cupid 2:18, sire of Venus II. 2:11½, and Cupid's full brother Sidney Dillon, sire of Dolly Dillon 2:07.

There is not a pedigree that shows more speed lines than that of Nutwood Wilkes. It is right up in the most fashionable, up-to-date families and that is where breeders must look for success. Modern methods compel people who want the best to breed to the best of tried and proven sires. Nutwood Wilkes has earned a place in the very front rank of the best speed sires of America.

Zombro at Los Angeles.

The book of Zombro 2:11 is filling very rapidly at Los Angeles, where this horse is now located until June 1st, and the colts and fillies by him are attracting so much attention that the probabilities are that Mr. Beckers will be compelled to turn mares away.

This week Jos. Desmond, of Los Angeles, sold his Zombro filly Italia 2:23½, winner of last year's Occident Stake, to Mr. J. Murray, of Cleveland, Ohio, for $3500. Italia will remain in Walter Maben's care until May 1st, when she will be shipped to Cleveland and placed in the care of Chas. Tanner, one of the leading trainers and horsemen of America. If she has no accidents and stands the climate she will be entered in the M. & M.

Willard Stimson, of Los Angeles, sold this week to John Bradbury, of the same place, the Zombro colt Lord Kitchener, trial 2:26½, for $1000 in cash. Lord Kitchener's dam is Sarah Benton by Albion, second dam by Inca. The colt is in Walter Maben's string and will be put in training.

The cream of all the Zombro's in Los Angeles, it is said, belongs to Col. E. L. Mayberry. She is out of Lady Woolsey by Woolsey, full brother to Sunol. She showed a quarter last summer in 32 seconds with sixty days' work and is now in P. W. Hodges' string. Col. Mayberry says it will take $5000 to buy her.

The prices offered for Zombro youngsters is the proof of the horse's popularity and breeders are taking notes accordingly.

Many a well bred trotter is sent into the sale ring and sold before his or her true worth is suspected and in many instances the breeder would pay a good price to recover some of these rejected ones. The stallion The Peer, sire of last season's good trotter, Dave Hughes 2:15½, was early in life docked and is some, where doing the hackney act. He was sired by Mambrino King, dam by Nutwood, and Dave Hughes is one of the very few foals he sired before he had his tail cut off, as a part of his preparation to make a high stepper of him. Another one that was sent to the sale ring from Village Farm, before it was suspected that she would become very valuable some day, was Court Lady, an own sister to the now famous Lord Derby 2:06½. She was sold as a carriage mare and she is doubtless engaged in pulling someone's carriage, although all trace of her whereabouts has been lost. Lots of men would give a big price for her to use as a broodmare, but the chances are that none of those who would like to own her will be able to find her.—Horse World.

The stupendous magnitude of the business done at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, is shown by last year's official reports, which gave for the twelve months a total of 16,200,000 head of live stock at cash sales amounting to $200,000,000. The horse market was established in 1866, and that year a total of 1553 horses were received. An idea can be formed of how this branch of the business has grown, by the fact that on May twenty-fifth last, more horses were received on that one day than were received the entire first year. The total for 1901 was 109,390 horses and mules; the sales amounting to $13,128,000. The largest number for one day was 1667, and the largest number for one month 13,288, the month of March.

KENNEL HYGIENE.

A popular fallacy exists that feeding of milk to puppies produces in them worms. Like all other forms of animal life, intestinal worms can only come into existence from pre-existing parents, and in their case, through the medium of eggs developed from other worms. Therefore, the only way the administration of milk could cause the presence in the intestines of these parasites would be by their eggs getting into the milk between the time it is drawn from the cow and imbibed by the puppy, as worms do not inhabit the milk glands. But this is hardly likely, as milk above all articles of diet is preserved as clean and pure as possible nowadays.

What really happens is as follows: Eggs of worms are probably widespread over the ground. Puppies are all the time getting matter from the surface of the ground into their mouths, and at the same time swallow some of the eggs lying about.

No doubt milk is an excellent nutritive material for worms as well as for their host, and in this manner milk will cause worms already existing in the bowels to rapidly thrive and grow. But this is no argument against the use of milk, as by the time puppies are through taking it they should be treated to bring about the expulsion of the parasites.

Many text books and kennel publications advise that bones should be given "in order that the dog may keep his teeth clean."

This theory is contradicted by Dr. Cecil French, a well known Eastern authority on veterinary matters, who believes that bones are not only useless, but frequently a menace to the dog's safety, claiming that in an extended practice among ailing dogs he has had numerous opportunities of observing the ill effects of a diet of bone. How a dog can clean his teeth by gnawing a bone is somewhat beyond comprehension. The Doctor argues, that which constitutes uncleanness of a dog's teeth is the accumulation of tartar owing to the derangement in the salivary secretion and small particles of food. This matter is invariably found deposited in between, at the posterior surfaces and around the necks of the teeth, where any rubbing process of bone against the tooth is impossible. If bones were such excellent tooth-cleaners it is presumable that poor persons unable to afford the luxury of tooth brushes would avail themselves of such inexpensive substitutes.

On the other hand, bones are splendid tooth wearers. One need only look at the teeth of some dog that has habitually gnawed bones to be convinced that these organs would have been in a better state of preservation had he not so used them.

But the ill effects do not stop at this. Splintered bones frequently wound the walls of the stomach and set up violent gastric inflammation which may terminate fatally.

Sharp bones—especially those of chickens—it will be remembered the death of Glenwood Kennels' smooth coat bitch Belline, last year, was caused by a chicken bone—often become lodged in the throat or wedged in the teeth, from which positions they are removed with difficulty. Dogs have been destroyed by ignorant policemen and others, the poor animals were supposed to be suffering from rabies, when they were making frantic attempts to dislodge bones from their jaws. Old dogs commonly suffer from impaction of the rectum, so that only operative measures will effect the removal of the obstructions. These are found to consist largely of bone grit that has failed to become dissolved or digested in the stomach and on reaching the rectum packs into a rock-like mass.

Size in the Fox Terrier.

Signs are not wanting that there is likely in the near future to be a change in the size of the fox terrier. Upholders of the popular variety as a working dog have for years decried the modern craze for a big dog on the score that it was unsuited for the purpose that it was at one time required for. In the kennel terrier of old, from which the modern dog has undoubtedly descended, we had a less showy animal, but one that was better calculated to perform the allotted duties than the present day type. True, customs have changed somewhat since it was the fashion for a fox terrier to be included with the pack of foxhounds, to oust, if necessary, Reynard from his underground retreat. Now the services of the fox terrier are practically discarded, and the fox, on going to earth, is allowed to remain.

For all that, the fox terrier should not be allowed to degenerate into a purely fancy breed, and though straight legs and clean fronts are very nice to look upon, yet they are not everything in a breed that is intended to be a worker. The old Parson Jack Russell strain of terrier was—and looked—a working one, yet it has been practically allowed to die out. There are but very few (we only know two) fanciers that hold any of the hunting parson's strain of fox terriers.

The judging at the fox terriers' own show, at Cheltenham, last November, was a revelation to upholders of the big type of dog, and the judge's work was very freely criticised. There the awards went to the smaller type of dog. However, fashion in dogs has ever been fickle, and it now remains to be seen whether a complete return to the old love—namely, an altogether less leggy type of dog will result. It will be a trifle hard upon those who have founded kennels upon the type hitherto most favored, and have been taught to regard it as the correct one, to find themselves suddenly shut out of the competitions by reason of the large size of their dogs. Yet that is exactly what will occur should the fiat go forth that the maximum weight must be lowered considerably.—"Corydon" in Exchange and Mart.

Gabilan Kennels

Is the name of an institution in Hollister that is successfully managed by Mrs. Thos. Murphy, who knows more about dogs in a minute than the average man learns in a lifetime. From childhood Mrs. Murphy has taken an interest in canines, and beginning on a small scale has worked the business up until she has become an established authority on stock, pedigree, etc. The kennels are situated upon the corner of East and Seventh streets. The star of the kennels is Danstone's Pride, a two year old English Setter, by Count Danstone out of Fairland Queen, imported from the East at a cost of $200. This dog has already earned its cost in stud fees. Two handsome Scotch Collies are boarded for San Francisco fanciers. A Pointer bitch with a litter of puppies, the property of the editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, are also on board. The puppies are bred on Glenbeigh-Rip Rap blood lines and are a constant source of attraction to our local sportsmen. A fine breeding of Fox Terriers has been developed at the Gabilan Kennels. They are not handsome animals, but they are great ratters. There are also Skye Terriers and Cocker Spaniels in the kennels. All the dogs are well fed and kept in healthy condition. In March an importation of Gordon Setters will arrive from the East, most of which have been bargained for by sportsmen. A visit to the kennels is full of interest.—San Benito Advance.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Joe Cummings' Boy by Ch. Joe Cummings ex Grace Grady was recently sold by Mr. S. Christianson to Mr. J. A. Chanslor, of Los Angeles. Mr. Christianson also sold to a visiting New Jersey sportsman a promising Setter puppy by Joe Cummings' Boy ex Kitty R.

Mr. W. C. Ralston's recent purchase, a promising young English Setter, Bowling Green, whelped August 12, 1900, by Count Danstone out of Phil Wand's Flora W., has gone the way of all good canines. The young Setter died at Kenwood last week, much to the regret of his owner.

Five more Newfoundland dogs have been bought by the prefect of police of Paris to re-enforce the two already possessed as auxiliaries to the river police brigade. The mission of the dogs is to save persons from drowning and also to help the police discover malefactors concealed in the numerous hiding places on the quays. Experiments show that the dogs, if properly trained and looked after, can be very useful.

In the selection of Mr. T. J. A. Tiedemann as a member of the executive committee, the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club is to be congratulated in obtaining the experienced services of a thorough sportsman and of having among its list of members a field trial promoter and enthusiastic lover of high class dogs whose prestige would be an acceptable feature to any sportsmen's club. Mr. Tiedemann was the moving spirit in the formation of the Pacific Northwest Field Trial Club and is the owner of that handsome and consistent performer Northern Huntress, one of the few winning Setters at the recent Santa Maria trials.

As was intimated in last week's issue of this journal, Mr. L. A. Klein has been appointed by the Bench Show committee to act as Superintendent of the spring dog show of the San Francisco Kennel Club. Mr. Klein has the advantage of a ripe experience not only in connection with bench shows but in general kennel affairs and is a gentleman of good executive abilities. These necessary attributes will no doubt tend to a smooth and easy settlement of the thousand and one preliminary details that are essential in making a dog show satisfactory to the club, exhibitors and the general public.

The club will open to-day an office at 138 Montgomery street, Occidental Hotel building, to where all communications should be addressed. Mr. Klein will assume complete direction of the coming bench show.

BARKS.

In moving into town as well as moving out don't forget your pets.

A large, wide ear in a Great Dane is a defect, but not a disqualification.

The legs of a Scotch Terrier should be straight, or as near straight as possible.

You must not expect to breed all winners, even though you pair together champions.

There is not an insurance company that accepts policies on dogs except at a prohibitive rate.

The eyes of old English Sheepdogs vary with the color of the dog. In a pigeon-blue dog a wall, or China, eye is correct.

The "feather" of any dog is the long hair which grows at the back of the fore and hind legs and along the body underneath.

You ought always keep your dogs and cats nights where they will not disturb the sleep of your neighbors and so come in danger of being poisoned.

You ought always to kill a wounded bird or other animal as soon as you can. All suffering of any creature, just before it dies, poisons the meat.

You should not harbor poor breeding stock. A good specimen eats no more than a bad one, and is more likely to produce what you are seeking.

The ears, as a rule, grow with the head, but in the case of a Spaniel they grow feathering after the ear proper and head are full grown, and drop a little also, making them longer.

Measurements in any dog are of very little guide to its merits, and less so in puppies, which may be one thing at four months old and something entirely different at nine months old.

It is not right to think any sort of food good enough for your stock. If you want them to thrive give them the best food procurable, and plenty of it. You will get best results from this method of treating them.

You should not be above taking a bit of advice from old hands. If you desire to succeed in your hobby you will be able to use all the wrinkles you can pick up when mixing with those who spent many years in learning what they know.

It is quite customary for bitches to secrete milk in the glandular organs at the time they would be due to whelp, though never served by a dog, or when served and miss proving in whelp, just the same.

The Bedlington Terrier is a very hardy variety. Its chief points are narrow skull, powerful jaw, neck rather long, narrow chest, arched loin, good top knot and small eye. Average weight, dogs, 23 to 24 pounds; bitches, 20 to 22 pounds, when full grown.

Striped Bass Club Prize Winners.

At the banquet of the San Francisco Striped Bass Club last week ten prizes were distributed to the ten club members who caught during the past season the ten largest striped bass.

The prizes awarded were all useful and beautiful articles dear to the angler's heart and doubly valuable to the lucky fisherman by reason of the competition which was necessary for acquiring a club trophy.

G. Luttrell led the chosen ten with the record of a sixteen pound fish and was presented with the Ripley "high hook" gold medal, to be worn by the club champion, and the regular first prize, a fine split bamboo rod. President Charles Breidenstein annexed second honors, a split bamboo fishing rod. Mr. Breidenstein had the honor during two previous seasons of wearing the high hook medal for the largest fish caught by a member during the two years, bass weighing nine and sixteen pounds respectively.

James S. Turner won third prize, a Vom Hoffe reel. James Lynch took fourth prize, a tackle-box. Fifth prize was a fishing creel, won by Will S. Turner. Nat Meade's prize, the sixth, was also a Vom Hoffe reel. A corduroy coat and vest, the seventh prize, went to Senator Sid Hall. W. Hilliegass won a fine gaff, the eighth prize. A canvas suit, the ninth prize, went to James Watt. The ten award, or mysterious prize, was won by Wm. Ashcroft.

Among those present at the dinner, which was enlivened by speeches, toasts, songs and anecdotes, were: Charles Breidenstein, Chairman. Walter D. Mavsfield, President of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club, Geo. W. Mitchell, J. S. Turner, Chas. H. Kewell, W. S. Turner, Nat Mead, Bert Spring, W. H. L. Miller, Wm. Ashcroft, G. Luttrell, Jas. Lynch, Jas. Watt, W. Hilliegass, F. E. Dayerkosen, Chas. Huyck, C. B. Hollywood, Elmer Rodekopf, George Vance, W. Wilson, Clarence Ashland, C. Colgan, A. C. Cunningham, W. D. Nicholson, J. M. Thompson and others.

Advices from J. F. Orr on Wednesday report Russian river in fine condition for steelhead angling for the two days remaining of the open season. Close season commences to-day and will be in force until April 1st.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

Fishing at The Rocks.

[J. MAYNE BALTIMORE.]

Santa Catalina Island and many other points along the coast of Southern California afford magnificent marine fishing.

With the exception of salmon fishing along the lower Columbia, Puget Sound and the Fraser river in British Columbia, there are no fishing grounds like those to be found between the bay of San Francisco and the Mexican boundary line.

While that is true in a general sense, yet there are many points along the coast of Oregon and Washington where a great deal of sport and excitement may be experienced.

Of course, there are no big fish to be captured like the tuna, barracuda, jewfish, yellowtail, etc., yet there are many small fellows that may be "snagged" with the proper lure. Prominent among these "small fry" may be mentioned tomcod, rockcod, flounder (or sole) and porgies.

One of the favorite summer resorts along the Washington coast is found just north of the mouth of the Columbia river. It is known as North Beach. A few miles beyond the little fishing town of Ilwaco, the beach begins and extends clear up to the mouth of Shoalwater bay, a distance of some 16 miles. Opposite the mouth of the bay named, stands the little hamlet of Oysterville, so famous for its delicious bivalves.

From McKenzie's Head clear north to Oysterville is a sort of straggling village. It is along this broad strip of wet, glistening beach that so many thousands of "seasiders" resort during the long sweltering days of July and August.

Down near McKenzie's Head, which is less than two miles north of where the waters of the Columbia river and those of the Pacific Ocean meet, the high and bold headland shuts abruptly down upon the sea. At that point, there is no beach. The ocean beats with great and constant fury against eternal and immovable rock abutments. But the erosions wrought by the tireless action of the waves are very marked.

Near this place are located "The Rocks." Here is where capital ocean fishing is to be found. There are a number of high, ragged rocks standing not far from the mainland. Some of these rocks are quite large, and, at extreme low tide, rise fifteen or twenty feet above the ocean's surface. During very high tide the crests of some of these rocks are almost or entirely submerged.

When the tide is very low, the most of the rocks may be reached, though not dry shod. One must wade nearly half leg deep to gain these points.

All around these rocks splendid fishing is to be found. At the proper time, and under favorable circumstances, the finny denizens may be pulled out almost as rapidly as the hook can be cast. It is rare sport and great strings are captured daily.

During the seaside season "The Rocks" are a favorite point of rendezvous. For hours every day they are covered with anglers—men, women and even children. The latter are carried in through the water, but, generally, the ladies are left to shift for themselves. Though wading several feet deep in cold sea water is quite a trying ordeal for ladies at first, they soon become accustomed to the excitement and enjoy the sport.

At that point the supply of fish seems literally exhaustless. How many thousands are caught every season is impossible to estimate; yet, as the years come and go, they appear as numerous as ever. These fish are all very palatable when properly cooked and are highly relished by those who are temporarily roughing it by the sad sea wave.

But still there is a time to fish down at "The Rocks," and there is a time to desist. Low tide is the time to angle. When the glittering waters commence crawling toward the tawny shore, then is the time to call a halt, pick up your string of fish (if you are lucky enough to have any), take your rod and line and move toward the mainland.

To remain on these slippery rocks during high tide is exceeding perilous. The waves dash with great force and fury against and upon the rocks. They are rarely covered, except at flood-tide; but the bitter spray is carried clear over the tops in blinding showers.

Some rash and fool-hardy persons have braved the danger and remained on the rocks during the high tide. However, they have been drenched to the skin and chilled to the very marrow; besides incurring the peril of being swept from their slippery, treacherous footing and carried off by the hungry sea. Danger seems to add a zest to the fascination of surf fishing. "The Rocks" have had their tragedies. Several adventurous persons have lost their lives there. They persist in remaining too long, and when attempting to reach the land, were borne away by the engulfing surf and perished. In some instances the bodies have never been recovered from the sullen waters.

Angling for fish is not the only sport the average seashider has. Catching flounders, sprawling crabs and digging for the nimble and delusive clam, affords great diversion to the fun-loving multitudes.

Nimrods are not entirely without an "occupation." Back from the beach game birds may be bagged in the proper season. Still further back are deer; while in the mountains and forests are found black and brown bear, and the sly and wary cougar.

The little village of Ilwaco, which is located on the eastern shores of Baker's Bay, presents a scene of great activity during fishing season. Salmon fishing begins in March and ends in August. In the course of the season almost countless numbers of the royal salmon are captured and canned.

During the fishing hours, hundreds of little boats may be seen skinning around Bakers' Bay, above and below Sand Island, and even down near the white line of breakers which mark the famous "Columbia River Bar." It is a most interesting feature of the great misty, watery reaches—the many scores of boats constituting the "salmon fleet."

In and around Ilwaco and Fort Canby, are also good fishing grounds for porgies, tomcod, rockcod and flounders.

One of the pleasantest and most exciting kinds of sea fishing is casting into the surf. Many kinds of fish on the coast are caught in this way, and afford infinite sport, a big fish being by no means easy to handle in heavy water. There was a time when the angling fraternity looked with amusement on the man who waded into the surf and cast his bait into the sea. That amusement has now died out, and surf-casting is a favorite method of fishing with very many successful anglers. There is a freedom about this style of fishing that recommends it very strongly to many people. It is far different to holding a hand-line in a boat and hauling in anything that happens to bite and take the hook. Surf-casting brings into play the full skill of the angler when a heavy fish is hooked, and a fish of ten or twelve pounds is not so uncommon a catch. To play and land such a fish is a feat any man may be proud of, and the surf angler should have all the credit coming to him.

AT THE TRAPS.

Professionalism at the trap was brought about by the necessity of educating the general public up to trap shooting. The sport of inanimate target shooting did not catch the popular fancy very readily at the outset. Something had to be done to get the people interested in the sport. At one time a certain cartridge company took a team of Eastern shooters and a team from the West and went round the country giving exhibitions much after the plan of the circus people. The skill of the members of each team was of the highest class, and crowds witnessed their performances, with the result that trap shooting took a boom and gun clubs began to be organized all over the country. Then came the struggle for patronage on the part of the different gun and ammunition houses. This led to the employment of many of the best shots as trade representatives, whose sole business it was to attend shoots and show off the products of their respective employers. These men were naturally most expert, and, shooting in the sweepstakes as they did, they just as naturally won about 80 or 85 per cent. of every purse. At first the amateurs did not care about this, or perhaps they did not notice it. But it finally got to be such a monotonous thing, this putting up money to fatten the professionals' pocketbooks, that the amateurs rebelled and showed their disapproval by remaining at home instead of going to a shoot and "contributing." Once the amateur failed to come to a shoot, the professional's doom was sealed. He became no longer of service to his employer, because there was nobody shooting whom he could influence to use his company's products. Professionals, however, will not be done away with altogether; their ranks will be thinned, but there will still be some of them left. The modus operandi will, of necessity, be changed; they will have to "shoot for targets only" and will not be permitted to take part in the purses in the sweepstake events.

There was a time when the professional class was very useful to its employers. The public wanted educating, and the sport needed introducing to notice. Now that same public is extremely well educated, and there is no more popular sport than that of trap shooting. Of course special brands of powders, special makes of guns and special shells will still need introducing to the shooters, but the great "booming period" has gone forever in trap shooting; and outside of the small minority directly interested in the work no one else will regret it. Much good has been done by the temporary introduction of the professional class into the ranks of the trap-shooters. The remarkable work done by professionals has attracted universal attention, and has caused many to take an interest in and to become finally infatuated with the sport who would otherwise have never heard of "clay pigeons." The prominence, also, given to the sport has had its effects in clearing the shooting world of many abuses that made it a byword. Formerly, and not many years ago either, a man who shot at the traps was looked down upon by his neighbors; now it's the reverse, and trap-shooting has become the sport of the business man in his hours of recreation. The drawing of a strict line between professionals and amateurs is a long stride in the right direction.

Notwithstanding the fact that the traps of the present day throw the targets farther and faster than in the past, practice, better guns and quicker loads have enabled shooters to keep up with the procession. Just as in the matter of the armament of the navy, it has been a fight between the manufacturers of armorplate and the manufacturers of high power guns and armor piercing shells; so in the inanimate target business it has been a fight between the manufacturers of traps and targets and the manufacturers of guns and powders. In both instances the struggle for supremacy has been keen, and has resulted in the present high class of all the articles mentioned. In trap shooting honors are about even, and experts in naval matters state that the same result has been attained in their branch of arms, explosives and armor plate.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Miller & Lux have on their Kern county lands a band of between 75 and 100 elk, a noble animal rapidly becoming extinct. The corporation has offered the elk to the Order of Elks in this State, and the various branches of this great fraternal organization are considering the proposition with a view to obtaining a reserve for them.

Petite, piquant Miss Victory Bushnell, is the subject of our illustration this week. The picture was taken at the Field and Tule Club house recently by Fred Bushnell. The sweet little Diana, despite her few summers, takes great delight in the outing trips of her parents and has, for one of her age, a surprising knowledge of shooting and fishing matters.

The Los Angeles gun clubs have been enjoying exceptionally fine sport, in spite of the dry weather. Shooting during the week ending January 18th, has been eminently satisfactory, and as the open season for ducks and quail closes February 1, hunters were preparing to make the most of the remaining time.

The members of the Centinela club were out in force Thursday last week. A party consisting of John C. Cline, Archie Freeman, Major Daniel Freeman, Captain Banning, Nat Myrick and Willard Stimson, killed 154 birds, most of which were sprigs.

Many shooters, particularly those who reside in or near the center of large populations, are very generally of the opinion that smokeless powders for shotguns have knocked out black powders. The firms who load the majority of shells sent out over the country tell a far different tale. In fact, black powder loaded shells for shotguns are in a majority of ten to one. This will astonish most people who shoot at the trap, for black powder is generally barred in all competitions on account of its noise and volume of smoke, both of which are very annoying to men at the score. On the other hand, it shows that the vast bulk of shooting done in this country is not at the traps, but in the swamps, woodlands and prairies of the United States.

It seems a great pity that the government either will not, or cannot, protect the few remaining buffalo in the Yellowstone National Park from the raids of the skin-hunters. It is undoubtedly a hard matter to properly police the park; but difficult as it is it can be done, and yet not cost a fortune to do it.

The buffalo are scarce enough now; another year or two like the last will settle them all, and there will then be no excuse for the government to plead. From all hands will come that old cry "We told you so." The government knows the state of the case, but up to date it does not seem to have taken more than ordinary pains to insure the last remnants of the mighty herds of buffalo that once roamed over the prairies in countless thousands, against utter destruction, by hide and head hunters.

The Yellowstone Park is deservedly the greatest game reservation and greatest national park in the world, and it is only meat that within its borders should be preserved, instead of leaving the matter to private parks, the remaining specimens of perhaps the noblest of beasts of this great continent.

A press dispatch from Auburn dated January 27th, recounts a tragedy which transpired near Forrest Hill, Placer county, wherein one Frank Said was accidentally killed last Sunday by his hunting companion, Albert Ralston, while the two were indulging in a deer hunt. It is just possible that these two hunters (?) were as inexperienced in woodcraft and the handling of firearms as they were, to place the most charitable construction on their trip to the hills, ignorant of the game statute which provides a close season on deer at this time of the year. While hunting casualties have been somewhat few in this State during the hunting seasons last closed, still there have been a number of fatal accidents, the particulars concerning this last one being the following: The men had discovered fresh tracks, and Said volunteered to climb a hill and get in the rear of the game. Ralston heard a noise in the brush, and, mistaking Said's gray hat for a deer, fired his rifle, killing him instantly. At the inquest held on January 27th, at Forest Hill, Ralston was completely exonerated, the two having been close friends. Said saw service as a surgeon in the Philippines, and had an honorable discharge. His home was in Delaware, O.

Steelhead Fishing.

A number of local anglers found the "White house" pool in the tide waters at Point Reyes to be productive of sport and a few large fish last Sunday. Among the fishermen trying their luck were John Gallagher, A. C. Cunningham, J. Fatjo, Theodore Rothschild, E. E. Stevens, F. Carroll, H. Battu, S. Riordan and Charles Precht. Carroll seems to have been high hook with a catch of seven steelhead, the largest of which weighed fourteen and one-half pounds. These fish, all but two, were caught on a No. 3 Wilson spoon and after this spoon was lost a No. 4 Wilson spoon was substituted. The other fish were caught with fresh roe. These fish made but little fight.

The season just closed on Russian river has been a better one for the angler than has prevailed for about five years past. The run of ocean fish ready to go up to the spawning grounds has been a very good one indeed. From the beginning the net men have been in evidence and undoubtedly caught many fish. They paid well for their temerity however, as, in all, eleven nets were seized and confiscated. Many sportsmen argue that a close season for a year or more would be of incalculable benefit in re-stocking the coast streams with steelhead. The angler, although in toto his catch amounts to a round number of fish, is by no means so great a factor as the net men and fish spears. These latter are at the illegal game night and day to a far greater extent than is generally known. For instance at San Gregorio and Pescadero when the fish are running, the natives line the banks for a long distance. Fires built on the shore and burning high, illuminate the poaching saturnalia, plainly disclosing the approach of each fish, salmon or steelhead, as it swims through the ocean rollers and into the placid waters of the lagoon, its course to the mouth of the stream being eagerly watched. It is a wary fish indeed that passes through the gauntlet and escapes a grave in the briny barrels of the human cormorants stationed along the stream.

The fecundity of the steelhead is great else the species had been exterminated long ago. It has been noticed and commented upon, by fishermen, for instance, some seasons the ranks of the winter run of steelheads in the Paper Mill tidewaters has been sadly depleted and but a very few fish have been able to go up stream and spawn. These few fish however have been enough to make the supply of fish the following year a noticeable one. If the fish could be taken and stripped of spawn at a hatchery the same as is done with salmon, wonderful results would be accomplished in re-stocking the coast streams with steelhead. An instance of the feasibility of such a scheme is shown in the successful efforts of the Ukiah hatchery superintendent, Col. La Motte, in keeping the streams of Sonoma, Napa and other counties stocked with fish.

Many anglers are loth to entertain the scheme of a close season such as prevails in the case of the brook trout, for the reason that the big fellows, the ones who give the angler a jolly fight, are only available during the winter run.

Some Impressions of the Game Law.

The open season on feathered game in this State closed yesterday. In the list of protected birds we find every kind quail, partridges, grouse, sage hens, all varieties of wild duck, rail, curlew, ibis and plover. English snipe, geese, swans, robins and a number of other birds are not on the protected lists. English snipe and swans should, without doubt, be enumerated in the list. The subject of protection for robins and meadowlarks has been pretty well threshed out and the question still remains unsolved.

Reports from all over the State, however, seem to determine that the majority of sportsmen are in accord on one argument and that is that the season has been closed too early, by two weeks at least. In many sections the best duck shooting is had in January and February. In many localities ducks do not make their appearance until the middle of October or beginning of November.

The puzzle to every sportsman is, what was the cause and reason for shortening the season on ducks during a time when the shooting was generally at its best.

We firmly believe that this and other game law juggling was part of the scheme formulated by interested parties for the purpose of individual gain and profit, directly and indirectly, and not for the expedient and proper purpose of protecting game and fish.

Some of the present provisions of the game law are exasperating to many devotees of gun and rod. Cholerick individuals will and have violated hated, unfair or class provisions of the law—these are just the results that have been counted upon. Game law violations have been used as capital and awful examples, strenuous efforts have been made and lying exaggerated statements published to the effect that the most drastic measures and methods were absolutely necessary to preserve the "valuable food supply of the people." Harping on the same string the apostles of game protection advocated extra county policing (for a consideration) this would naturally be followed by the advocacy of a corps of State officers. Protection of fish and game by proper and paid supervision, both State and county, is good and necessary, but fake protection of fish and game and for the schemed benefit of one or more individuals is another thing.

One result of the abortive attempt to provide a fat office for one of the apostles last year during the sessions of the legislature, is the antagonism and wide breach between the city and country sportsmen—of course there are many individual exceptions.

The independent city shooter has a hard time of it when he goes fifty miles away from this city, unless he has friends in the country. On and adjacent to most of the preserves the club men are at war with the country shooters.

The elimination of the statutory prohibition against the use of guns larger than a ten guage was craftily accounted for by the statement that the limit bag of fifty made such discrimination now unnecessary. This is false and misleading. The non-mention of large bore guns was in the interest of a firearms corporation against whose guns laws and ordinances have been directed, and in subsequent litigation decisions were rendered, that able lawyers claim will not stand. The non-mention of any kind of gun would decrease the chances of future litigation.

Of one certain style of fish and game law protection—the diversion of the money of the State for missionary purposes in the formation of so-called fish and game protective associations which have been notoriously unsuccessful in the dual work of fish and game protection and also in the prosecution and conviction of alleged violators of the law, but eminently successful in creating class antagonism and forming political clubs—we will have something to say later on.

The general feeling of indifference and aversion for the present game law and its particular sponsors has been shown in its persistent violation. Quail have been marketed and are served in hotels and restaurants with the same impunity that wild ducks are served in these establishments the year round.

Both ducks and quail have been very plentiful this year. The presence of the ducks in greater or lesser numbers in different localities being contingent upon weather conditions and feed. The dry winter has not made quail hunting, in many respects, as good as some seasons we have known.

Mistakes of Poultry Farmers.

In looking over the average poultry house in winter, the most common defects are damp floors, upon which the fowls stand and mope, and sometimes contract rheumatism. Broken windows, letting cold in upon the fowls in daytime, will check laying, and are common causes of roup; droppings left for weeks to heap up under the roosts; lack of a supply of water, or dirty drinking viands; lack of plenty of good sharp grit, which alone is a sufficient cause of failure; lack of fresh meat and cut bone, which should be fed twice a week; overfeeding, overcrowding, and furnishing no inducement to scratch for a living. These are the most common and important mistakes, and those who wonder why the hens do not lay will do well to go over the list.—Cal. Cultivator.

Ten months is long enough for any pig to live. If it is not large enough and fat enough to kill at the end of that time it is not worth keeping. The feed used in keeping a pig alive is lost, it is only the feed which makes the pig grow which gives any returns to the owner.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

SPECIAL HARNESS STALLION STAKE FOR 1905

For the Get of Stallions that made Private or Public Service, Season of 1901, for their Foals of 1902.

To Close FEB 15, 1902.

The Race to be contested at State Fair at Sacramento in 1905, when Foals are three years old. . . .

Entrance fee for stallions to be the price that they made public service during the season of 1901. All other stallions that did not make public service, entrance fee to be $20. Stallions to be named with the Secretary, February 15, 1902.

All foals that are the get of any stallion entered in this stake to be eligible to be entered on June 1, 1903. Entrance fee $50 each, of which $5 must accompany the entry, with breeding and name, if any, of foal, and a further payment of $10 March 1, 1904, and a further payment of $15 each May 1, 1905, and a final payment of $30 on the first day of August, 1905, and all colts making this payment shall be eligible to start. Starters to be named in writing through the entry box 4 P. M. day before the race.

The California State Agricultural Society to add an amount equal to all moneys paid in by the nominators of the stallions, not to exceed one thousand dollars.

Entrance moneys paid in for stallions and added moneys shall be divided 60% to the end for trotting colts and 40% to the end for pacing colts. No nominator allowed to start more than one colt in either end.

The nominator of any colts shall on May 1, 1905, then declare as to the trotting or pacing end he desires to start his colts. All moneys paid in on colts transferred to the pacing division shall be segregated and placed to the credit of the pacing stake, and all other payments shall be placed to the credit of the trotting stake.

All payments not made as they become due declares entry out and releases subscriber from further liability.

Hopples awarded in both classes. Mile heats, three in five. Nominator of the sires of the winning colts in each end to receive $250, to be deducted from the money added by the Society and the money paid in as entrance on stallions, balance of the stakes and added money to be divided 50, 25, 15 and 10%.

Right reserved to declare two starters a walk-over, for stakes paid in only.

When only two start they may contest for all entrance money paid in, not heretofore provided for, to be divided 66% per cent to the winner and 33% percent to the second horse. A horse distancing the field in either class shall be entitled to all moneys paid in and 25% only of the money added by the Society, not heretofore provided for.

Open to all stallions that have made private or public service in any of the following States: California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and Arizona during the season of 1901.

No entry will be accepted except under this condition: That all disputes that may arise in regard to the conditions or contest of this race, shall be settled by the Board of Directors of the California State Agricultural Society, or those whom they may appoint, and their decision shall be final.

Remember the date of Closing for Stallions is FEBRUARY 15, 1902.

Native Son, foaled April 28, 1897. He is a handsome black with brown points and was sired by Raglan, 1st dam by Adolph, 2d dam by imp. Weinort, 3d dam by imp. French Spy. Native Son is one of the most promising young draft stallions in California, and is a sure foal getter. He was bred to 23 mares last year and 21 of them are in foal. His six year old brother weighs 2600 pounds, and Native Son will be as large at the same age.

Chief of Kneiphusen. This beautiful Percheron stallion, bred by Joseph Blondin of Livermore, Alameda Co., was sired by Raglan. First dam by Starlight, 2d dam by Adolph, 3d dam by French Spy. Raglan No 14,739 was imported from France by Theo. Skillman. Raglan was bred by Joseph Davignon of Graucerie Department of Orue. Three of Raglan's colts were shown in Livermore on the 24th of February, 1900 and their average weight was 1856 pounds. Chief Kneiphusen was foaled March 5, 1897, and took the first prize in the San Francisco and San Mateo Horse Show in Tauroran Park. He has been bred to 52 mares and got 48 in foal. His colts can be seen at Livermore and at Redwood City. When he is full grown he will weigh over 2100 pounds.

132,000 Deaths from this alone.

One special danger menaces those who live well, who can use champagne and fine liquors, and that is Bright's Disease. Posted clubmen understand this so well that many have texts made every few months. Others drink nothing but dry wines. But still the deaths reported from Bright's Disease and Diabetes are increasing at a fearful rate. The last census reports show that since 1890 the increase has been nearly fifty per cent and that the deaths in the United States alone from above causes and diseases growing out of them last year reached the enormous number of 132,000.

Hence the importance of every clubman knowing this one fact, viz.: That Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable in about 87% of all cases. The Fulton Compounds are now saving the lives of hundreds, and will, when better known, save the lives of thousands who are now with little hope.

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent

Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

STAM B. 23444

RECORD 2:11⁴. By STAMBOUL 5101, a trotting and show king; dam, Belle Medium 2:30, a great brood mare by Happy Medium, sire of the great all-round mare, Nancy Hanks 2:04, and other great ones; second dam by the handsome sire Almont Lightning (sire of the dam of Zombro 2:11 and other great all-in-all animals, both on the turf and in the show rings; third dam by that sire of game, sound, handsome animals, Mambrino Patchen 58; fourth dam by that speed producing sire, Mambrino Chief 11; fifth dam by that stylish and long distance racing horse, Mason's Whip.

STAM B. is a fine and substantial upstanding bay, 15.3 hands tall, weighs 1100 pounds, and now rightly ranks among the most promising young sires of the land. That he is now in public service in California is a fact for which breeders may be grateful. He is already proving a sire of speed and gameness, together with size, superb style and high action, transmitting these qualities to every foal regardless of dam. He is acknowledged by all who have seen him to be very near the real and ideal race horse and all-around sire. His racing qualities were beyond criticism, and all close observers know that in his blood are represented the kings and queens of the trotting turf and show rings.

Terms for the Season, $40.

Payable at the end of June, with return privilege. Reduced rates to any one person breeding over three mares. Pasturage for mares, $4 per month. Freight must be prepaid on all mares. Season commences February 1st and ends August 1, 1902. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes.

Sire McKINNEY 2:11⁴
Sire of 19 in 2:15 and 28 in 2:20 list

Dam IGO (registered) by Antevolo 2:49. Second dam, Daisy May by Nutwood 600. Third dam, Ralston Mare by Alexander's Abdallah.

MONDESOL, 4 years old, stands 15¹/₂ hands, weighs about 1100 pounds; is the best bred young McKinney stallion, combining as he does the blood of Electioneer and Nutwood with that of the greatest son of the great Alcione. He is in every respect a splendid individual and should be seen by every owner of a good mare in this State before looking elsewhere.

$40 for the Season, with return privilege.

Young Venture

by Talcott's imp. Flying Morgan, son of Old Flying Morgan. YOUNG VENTURE carries more of that great Herod Eclipse blood than any other trotting stallion in the world. That is the thoroughbred combination which crosses so well with the Hambletonian strains and produces the greatest harness horses on the track.

WALTER WINANS

Vice President of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain

makes the following statement in his recent book,
"Art of Revolver Shooting."

The U. M. C. Co., U. S. A., have supplied me with large quantities of .44 gallery ammunition loaded with both round and semi-round bullets.

These have a small charge of black powder, and I should prefer this ammunition for self-defense as well as for competition up to 20 yards, as I find it the most accurate for exhibition shooting.

I think the U. M. C. gives slightly less recoil and fewer "unaccountables" than the English equivalent.

They also load these cartridges with smokeless powder, which I have used and with which I have made my bests on record in the rapid fire competition.

Send for new U. M. C. illustrated catalogues for further information concerning these modern Short Range or Gallery Cartridges, which are coming into wide use among experts and others. Game Laws and Shooting Records Free.

Mention this paper.

Also, as the official records show, 54 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers; 37.5 per cent of all the guns winning money were Parkers; and 34.6 per cent of all the were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world.

Write for prices. BREEDER AND Barondale 2:11 1-4 Meeting With Favor.

The breeding of the stallion Barondale 2:11½, which Tom James of Iowa has brought to California, is attracting much attention from breeders and mares are being booked to the son of Baron Wilkes already. Those who have seen Barondale say that he is a grand individual and fully up to what one would expect from his breeding. Mr. Martin Carter looked him over one day last week while in San Jose and decided to send his great mare Lida W. 2:18½, the dam of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, to him. It should be a great cross. Besides being a son of the renowned Baron Wilkes he is so richly bred on his dam's side that those who believe in the efficacy of great broodmares in a pedigree are enthusiastic over Mr. James' horse.

Nathalie, his first dam, is by Nutwood. She has produced Barondale 2:11½ and Grand Baron 2:12½. She is an own sister to the great broodmare Clarinda, dam of Pat Clair 2:22 and Patriot 2:24. She is a half sister to Patron 2:14½, sire of Ananias 2:05 and six more in the 2:15 list, to Prodigal 2:16, sire of John Nolan 2:08 and nine more in 2:15, and to Patronage, the sire of Alix 2:03½, the world's champion trotting mare.

Beatrice, his second dam, is by Cuyler 1:00, and is the dam of Prodigal 2:16, Patron 2:14½ and Patronage 4:43, and is a full sister to Elvira, the dam of Queensware 2:25 and Ponce de Leon 2:13, the sire of Edwin B. 2:12½, Percy 2:13 and Preston (3) 2:13½.

Mary Mambrino, founder of the great family which bears her name, is the third dam of Barondale and is by Mambrino Patchen 58. She is the dam of Elvira 2:18½ as a four year old, a champion record at the time, and is the grandam of over 60 in the 2:30 list.

From here on Barondale's dams run into the thoroughbred families, his fourth dam being by Embry's Wagner, a son of the great four mile race horse Wagner, the fifth dam Lady Bell is recorded on page 126, Volume 2, of Bruce's American Thoroughbred Stud Book, and was by Bellfounder Jr., the sixth dam by Monmouth Eclipse, seventh dam the celebrated Multiflora by Kosciusko, eighth dam by Rosicrusian, and on to the eleventh dam, a mare by imp. Brilliant.

Few trotting stallions have a pedigree that can be tabulated as far as that of Barondale.

Monterey 2:09 1-4 in the Stud.

Many breeders in California will be glad to know that after much correspondence with Eastern parties who desired to buy or lease that great son of Sidney, Monterey 2:09½, his owner, P. J. Williams, has concluded to keep the horse here and place him in the stud. Mr. Williams will divide Monterey's time between the farm at Milpitas and San Lorenzo, which latter point is easily accessible from all points in this part of the State. If Monterey ever goes East, and the probabilities are that some astute breeder will yet offer Mr. Williams a price for him that he cannot afford to refuse, there will be many Californians who will regret that they did not breed to him when they had the chance. His crop of two year olds, though not numerous, contains so many high-class promising youngsters that parties owning them want more of the same kind and have been writing to Mr. Williams and booking their mares. Monterey is by the great sire Sidney and out of a great broodmare by Commodore Belmont, son of Belmont 64 that sired Nutwood 2:18½. Monterey's breeding is all right and his individuality is of the highest order. No grander looking stallion will stand for service in this State, and his extreme speed and marvelous action are the very acme of the qualifications demanded in a sire. Monterey will be in the great table as soon as his colts are old enough to start in races, and he will be a much sought after stallion before many years have passed.

A Handsome Filly

SACRAMENTO, FEB. 5, 1902.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—My mare Abbie Woodnut, the dam of Diawood 2:11, and Abdine 2:17, foaled a handsome chestnut filly January 10th by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½. Horsemen that have seen this filly say she is the handsomest youngster they ever saw, and that she is worth lots of money. She has two crosses to the world's champion sire Nutwood 2:18½. I claim the name Lady Carreta for this royally bid little miss.

MRS. E. W. CALLENDINE.

Breeding of Cassiar 20491.

A subscriber at Rohnerville, Humboldt county, writes for the breeding of the dam's side of the horse Cassiar by Soudan 5103. Cassiar's dam is Carrie Malone (full sister to Charles Derby 2:20, Klatawah (3) 2:05½, Steiner 2:29½, H. S. Covey 2:25 and Sunlight 2:25) by Steinway, second dam Katie G. by Electioneer third dam Fanny Malone by Niagara, fourth dam Fanny Wickham by imported Herald, fifth dam by imported Trustee. Cassiar has no standard record.

Nutwood Stock Farm String at Pleasanton

William Cecil, trainer for the Nutwood Stock Farm arrived at Pleasanton track this week with nine head of trotters and pacers from the farm, all with one exception sired by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½.

In the string is that good trotting gelding Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, that has entirely recovered from his sickness of last year, and will be fighting for a 2:10 or better record this season.

Irvington Boy 2:17½ has also rounded to after a wrestle with the distemper last year. He is one of the gamest pacers ever foaled and will be a good horse in his class on the California circuit.

Verona 2:27 is a handsome filly whose mark made last year is no measure of her speed, as she has trotted much faster since it was made. She is out of a mare by California Nutwood, second dam by Grand Moor.

A pacer that is showing well is called Mixer. He is a three year old, and a full brother to the trotter Bob Ingersoll. Another of this family is Muriel C. a two year old full sister to Mixer and Bob that trots with an easy open gait that is the admiration of everyone.

A four year old out of a mare by Direct Line is very promising as is a full sister, a natural pacer.

The only one in the string that was not sired by Nutwood Wilkes is a two year old filly by Searchlight 2:03½, dam Zeta Carter by Director, second dam Lida W. 2:18½, dam of Nutwood Wilkes. This filly is very promising.

Cecil believes he has the best string of youngsters he has ever handled and that he will give several of them records and reduce the marks of the record holders.

There are a number of others left at the farm at Irvington, among them a two year old brother to John A. McKerron 2:06½ that will be a larger horse than his famous brother in all probability and will also be fast as he can show a very fast gait now. There is also a four year old sister to McKerron on the farm. She was bred to Mendocino, the Palo Alto stallion last year. Mr. Carter is not certain she is with foal. If not she will be worked some this year and may be given a record.

Azmoor 2:20 1-2 at Sacramento.

Mr. H. W. Davis, of Auburn, Placer county, was the purchaser of the stallion Azmoor at the Palo Alto sale. As the well known horseman, Vet Tryon, made the high bid on the horse it was naturally supposed he was purchasing for Rancho del Paso and it was so announced by Mr. Layng, of the auction firm, but Mr. Tryon was acting for Mr. Davis, who has placed the stallion in Vet's hands, and Azmoor will make the season of 1902 at the Sacramento track, at the low fee of $25. Had Azmoor sired nothing but Betonica 2:10½ he would be considered a successful horse, as Betonica is one of the grandest looking stallions in America and has been a public exhibition mile in 2:06½; but he also sired Azmon 2:13½, Bob 2:15, Rowena (2) 2:17, Bonniel (4) 2:17½, Mary Osborne (3) 2:28½ and others. Azmoor is by the great Electioneer and his dam the noted thoroughbred mare Mamie C. that produced three standard trotters and is the grandam of one. The sire of the dam of Mamie C. was imported Hercules, whose get are all noted for size and extreme beauty as well as great stamina. At $25 Azmoor is one of the cheapest stallions to breed to in California.

Stam B. 2:11 1-4 Arrives at Pleasanton.

PLEASANTON, FEB. 5, 1902.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Stam B. 2:11½ arrived here today in fine form. He is surely a grand individual, much grander than I expected to see, as I have not seen him since he was a four year old, six years ago. His book is now open.

SAMUEL GAMBLE.

Messrs. Pierce Bros., of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, are purchasing Electioneer broodmares to cross with their splendid stallion Sidney Dillon. Knowing that stallions with the blood of Strathmore in them have proven valuable to breed to such mares, for instance Steinway, who sired Klatawah 2:05½, Chas. Derby 2:20, Sylvanway 2:10½, etc., out of Electioneer mares, they are taking no chances. They bred Sidney Dillon to Dolly by Electioneer and got Dolly Dillon 2:07, the champion trotting mare of 1901. At the recent Palo Alto sales they purchased Memento 2:25½, Miss Naude 2:29½ (dam of Nordeau 2:17½), Ladywell 2:16½ and Lady Agnes (dam of two), all by Electioneer. They have mares by Anteeo 2:16½ and Advertiser 2:15 also, so they are keeping their famous farm and its horses to the front.

Sam Gamble writes us that his colors for 1902 will be a red vest and a hammer, and that he will wear his pantaloons well turned up. We can account for the selection of the red vest and the turn in the pantaloons as Mr. Gamble now has Stam B. 2:11½, one of the handsomest stallions in America, but we can't make out what the hammer is for unless Sam intends knocking the knockers. If that's it we hope he will "strike till the last armed foe expires."

Novel Harness Racing.

If the present plans of well-known horsemen are carried out New York followers of harness racing will see in the spring, at some near-by track, a novel meeting, held for the purpose of testing the merits of numerous departures from the present system of trotting.

There has been for a long time much discussion and criticism concerning the trotting turf, its lack of progress, its needs and its shortcomings. Many suggestions have been made with a view to improving the sport, and it is now proposed to give a fair and open trial to some of the most important of the changes advocated. The system in vogue on the running turf is to be followed very closely in many particulars—dashes, handicaps and selling races being notable features of the programme.

Francis M. Ware, the secretary of the Newport Horse Show, is the originator of the project. Ten or more men are to subscribe $1,000 each as a guarantee fund to finance a six days' meeting in May or June. No profit is sought and no loss is expected. The outlay will be limited to $12,000, but it is deemed safe to have in hand a sufficient amount to defray all expenses regardless of receipts.

Following are some of the special conditions which will govern the proposed meeting:

One two-in-three mile-heat race and four dashes daily; dashes to be at varying distances over one mile. Distance, in at least three heat races, to be 40 yards. Weight to be waived in all dashes, except those under saddle. Some races to be handicaps by distance, some by weight and some by time. One race daily a selling race. Some races to wagon, some to saddle. All entrance fees to be 5 per cent only, spot cash, and none conditional.

Drivers to wear silk jackets and caps, and claim colors at entry. Grooms to wear clean jumpers or their own coats. Ten dollars fine to employer for every violation of this rule.

Starters in all races limited to eight. Should twelve or more remain in race, management to separate them by lot, add $200 to amount offered for original event, and divide this sum into two purses. At least two races to be sweepstakes, i. e., all entrance money added to purses; and one event "free entrance," but $20 to withdraw.

A paddock to be provided, and all horses brought to it before their races and kept there until after finish. Grooms restricted to its confines.

Not more than two scores allowed in each heat or dash. If the word is not then given all entries to be lined up at the 40-yard distance and started flat-footed. In at least two heat races horses to be drawn by lot into two sets, one set to contest the first heat, the other the second, the first three in each heat to contest the third and last. Money awarded on positions in last heat. Distance, 40 yards.

Hopples barred in certain races. No heat betting allowed; betting on race results only.

Selling race winners to be sold immediately after drivers dismount. Claims for beaten horses must be made to secretary within 15 minutes after winner passes the wire; all beaten horses must remain in paddock up to that time or be liable to a fine of $50.

All starts in handicaps to be flat-footed and at sound of gong or megaphone. Entries close for first day one week in advance; for each day thereafter at 4 P. M. on the day before. Declarations for all races of the day must be made one clear hour before start for first race and conspicuously posted.

Here is the first day's program, as framed by Mr. Ware:

First race—Purse $600 ($400, $150, $50): mile heats, best two in three; in harness; trotters.

Second race—Purse $350 ($225, $100, $25): dash, 1½ miles; in harness; trotters.

Third race—Purse $350; dash, 1½ miles; in harness; pacers.

Fourth race—Purse $350; dash, 1½ miles; to wagon; pacers and trotters.

Fifth race—Purse $350; dash, 1½ miles; to saddle pacers; to carry 150 pounds.

Subscriptions to the meeting are to be received up to February 15th.

It seems that Cresceus was not the only money winner on the recent trip of the champion through the Southwest. His prompter, Mike the Tramp, is not an over-handsome horse, but he can move like the real thoroughbred he is when called upon to do so. Down in Arizona some of the native cowboys jollied Mike's caretaker, Eddie Mitchell, about the runner's lack of beauty, so Eddie got even with them by starting Mike in the running races provided for the cowboys' ponies, and making them all look like the proverbial 30 cents.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

Matinee Racing at Los Angeles.

(Herald, February 2d.)

Under ordinary circumstances it is the custom of the Driving Club to bring its matinees to a close as early as 4 o'clock and not later than 4:30. The custom was broken yesterday, however, and it was nearly 5:30 o'clock when the last race had been decided. There were nine events on the card, three of them out of the ordinary run of races. As only fourteen heats were contested during the afternoon and as a pool box is not in evidence to be fed, the program dragged to a considerable degree. The track was very dusty, and late in the afternoon a cold wind interfered with the sport.

Perhaps the performance of the "guideless wonder," General Wiles, afforded more interest than any other attraction. General Wiles was scheduled to go a mile "without driver or sulky." The docile animal, gaily caparisoned in white, made the mile with one long break. He was followed around the track by a broncho hitched to a cart. The long break did not suit the judges, and they asked that the General trot another mile. This did not suit the horse, and he made several determined efforts to get past the drawgate toward the stables. He was finally led past the drawgate and started on a second journey. The horse trotted the back quarter in 33 seconds, a 2:12 gait, and then concluded to run for nearly half a mile, finally crossing under the wire at a fine trot. He made a final break for the exit and was led out.

The second feature, from the horseman's point of view, was of much more interest. K. V. Redpath and G. B. Tibbott have for weeks been working Bastina and General Wiles as a team for the purpose of making a try for the matinee team record of 2:30. The effort was made yesterday afternoon, and the horses went the distance without a skip in 2:26, four seconds better than the local record and equal to the State record. Before the trial Mr. Redpath said that he believed the team could be worked to beat the State record, after the mile was made his opinion was concurred in by a number of horsemen.

The third novelty, the half-mile riding race, runners barred, proved a fizzle. Two horses, Babe and Starlight, were drawn, and of the three that remained only one, Medico, had any speed. No time was taken.

The first race was a mixed event for trotters and pacers. It was won in handy style by The Rover in two straight heats.

George made a try for the second heat, racing with The Rover to the three-quarters pole. There George went skyward and the race was over.

The 2:25 pace developed a horse race worthy of the name. Toughnut, Polo and Burley F. were the principal contenders in the first heat. Burley F. broke on the far turn and Polo did not have the speed to challenge Toughnut in the stretch. The second heat went to Burley F., his owner, H. G. Bundrem, doing a good bit of driving through the stretch. Toughnut did not figure in this heat on account of a bad break on the back stretch. The third heat went to Toughnut, although Polo was driven through the stretch. Burley F. lost by breaking on the far turn.

The third race, a mile dash for trotters, brought out four mediocre horses. Willard Stimson won with Julia M., chiefly because there wasn't another horse in the bunch that stayed on its feet. At one time A. W. Bruner's Billy Green seemed to have a chance, but he broke in the final drive.

The fourth race was the free-for-all trot, two heats in three. Sweet Marie owned by William Garland, won about as she pleased. E. T. Earl, with Sweetheart, went after Sweet Marie in the first heat and the owner was forced to negotiate the mile in 2:15. Sweetheart broke in the second heat and Willard Stimson, with Vendome, made a gallant effort to beat Sweet Marie but Vendome did not have the speed when called on. Sweet Marie winning the second heat by a length.

Primrose won the free-for-all pace in hollow fashion. She took the first heat in 2:12, eased up, and the second just as easily in 2:13. Montecito Boy paced a good race, but he and Floretta Bell were outclassed.

The three-minute class mile dash could scarcely be called a race. Dr. John Ferbert drove My Girl around the track in 2:39 and won by twenty lengths. The third horse, Dandy, was a quarter of a mile more or less, in the rear.

First race—2:25 pace, two in three.
The Rover, b. g. (Godfrey Fritz)	1 1
Tom Moore, br. g. (Dr. M. L. Moore)	3 2
George, b. g. (R. E. Muncey)	2 3

Curby Sires.

Advices from Kentucky are that Audubon Boy 2:06, the largest winner of 1901, has improved greatly since being fired and blistered on retiring from the late campaign. He will not be raced as often in 1902 as in 1901, but it is expected to lower his record. Because of his curby hocks, Audubon Boy sold as a scrubby yearling for the insignificant sum of $35, having been an eyesore to Peter Duryea, who partly owned him. But other curby-hocked horses have made turf history, notably the $105,000 Axtell, the $25,000 Patron, and the celebrated "plow-horse," McDoel, who defeated Allerton at Lexington for the Transylvania Stake, driven by Budd Doble. McDoel was originally known as Sedalia Boy, was buck-kneed and curby beyond description, his four feet not being over two feet apart on the floor when he was stationary, so crooked fore and aft was he; and yet how he raced! Crescens 2:02, mightiest trotter of the time, was curby, and the iron marks yet show where it was removed and a flesh bandage formed to support the joints. Kentuckians patronize curby horses without hesitation. Northerners hold them greatly in disfavor. If the first few crops of foals are in the main curby, a sire's doom is sealed. Wedgewood 2:19, best campaigner of his days was a curby horse, sired lots of curby youngsters, yet was freely forgiven because of the game Favonia 2:15 and the great John R. Gentry 2:00 produced by his daughter, Damewood, and toward the end of his career begot a cleaner-limbed lot because there was much study made as to the ancestry of his patrons.

Ever interesting is this matter of atavism. Belle, dam of old Belmont, was a very curby mare. Belmont sired Wedgewood. Not a few have at times suspected that the gray scar on Nutwood's hock came from a blister, the hair coming in white. However, Nutwood sired some curby animals, as do all stallions, yet his daughter, Manette, gave us the $125,000 Arion, and breeders freely booked to him, when first purchased by Stout & Son, at a fee of $1000. He died with the white patch on his hock just as he had lived, and none know positively as to its exact history, unless it be Lucas Brodhead, of Woodburn Farm. Nutwood's dam, Miss Russell, was a gray mare, and the produce of gray mares at times have such streakings peculiar to them.

Old Pocahontas 2:17 to wagon, had a white patch on her body and one on her thigh, but never reproduced them. James Butler's elegant old trotting mare, Mambrino Maid 2:15, whom James Goldsmith won $7000 with in her first season on the Grand Circuit, had a white patch on her thigh, yet her sire was a dark bay and her dam likewise. They may have got these markings from a remote ancestor.

The breeder of Hopeful 2:14 had a mare that had a "watch" eye. He bred her and her daughters and granddaughters persistently. In the fifth generation the "watch" eye appeared. He had anticipated such a happening and had bred fully as much for experimental purposes as aught else, just to see whether there really was a state truly to be considered as atavism.

Curbs many times come from strains, but the crooked leg, sickle shape hock with protruding curb joint usually will be reproduced even when the sire has perfect hocks and no tendency to unsoundness.—Exchange.

Justin Morgan, the founder of the Morgan family, died in 1821. He was 28 years old, and his death was caused by a kick. He was perfectly sound and free from any blemish, and his spirit was not broken.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonade and be refreshed.

Century Mark Sires.

[Western Horseman]

Some idea of the actual progress we are making in breeding harness speed may be drawn from the fact that no less than nine different speed sires have to their credit more than one hundred standard performers. An interesting study is the comparative merit of the ten leading sires, to date, of standard performers, and as an aid in this line a series of tables are herewith presented. Even with the leading sires absolute correctness in statistical calculations, taking in the past season's achievements, are difficult to produce without recourse to the official returns from all trotting and fair association meetings. Yet we believe that the following tabulations of the ten leading sires are correct. At the close of 1901 the ten leading speed sires, measured by their number of standard performers, are as follows, the first figures being the year of foaling of each:

1—1870. Nutwood 2:18	165
2—1868. Electioneer	160
3—1875. Onward 2:25	159
4—1874. Red Wilkes	158
5—1876. Alcantara 2:23	148
6—1879. Pilot Medium	117
7—1879. Simmons 2:28	107
8—1880. Wilton 2:19	103
9—1881. Gambetta Wilkes 2:19	101
10—1882. Baron Wilkes 2:18	98

Baron Wilkes is two short of the century mark, but he is added to make up the total of ten leading sires. Having made the standard mark the relative merit point in the above table, we will now measure the same ten stallions by their 2:15 performers; a test of merit more in keeping with present day requirements. Under the 2:15 test their relative standing is as follows:

1—Alcantara	28
2—Onward	26
3—Baron Wilkes	25
4—Red Wilkes	22
5—Simmons	21
6—Wilton	18
7—Gambetta Wilkes	17
8—Pilot Medium	15
9—Nutwood	13
10—Electioneer	13

[To show how McKinney 2:11, the leading California sire rates with these stallions it is only necessary to state that as a sire of 2:15 performers he would be sixth in the above list as he has 19 in that list. He has but 42 in the 2:30 list, but he is only fourteen years of age while the youngest of the five stallions that have more 2:15 performers to their credit is Baron Wilkes whose age is 19, that of the others being Alcantara 25, Onward 26, Red Wilkes 27, and Simmons 22.—Ed. B. & S.]

Sixteen Palo Alto Mares to McKinney.

PALO ALTO STOCK FARM, Feb. 1, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir: Palo Alto Stock Farm will breed the following named mares to McKinney this year:

Coral (3) 2:18 (full sister to Anteeo) by Electioneer 125.

Lucyneer (3) 2:27 (dam of Lucrative 2:13, Minnie B. 2:15) by Electioneer 125.

Elden (3) 2:19 (dam of Eleata (4) 2:08) by Nephew 1220.

Athena 2:15 by Electioneer 125.

Avena (2) 2:19 by Palo Alto 2:08.

Rowena (2) 2:17 (dam of Rowellan (3) 2:15) by Azmoor 2:20.

Sweet Water (2) 2:26 (dam of Adabella (2) 2:25) by Stamboul 2:07.

Aerolite by Palo Alto 2:08—Manette (dam of Arion 2:07).

Aria (3) 2:16 (dam of Adaria 2:15) by Bernal 2:17.

Sweet Rose (1) 2:25 by Electioneer 125—Rosemont by Piedmont 2:17.

Avenada by Dexter Prince 11363—Avena (2) 2:19 by Palo Alto 2:08.

Esperita by Mendocino (3) 2:19—Sprite (dam of Sphinx 2:20 and 4 others in 2:30).

Sunolito by Advertiser 2:15—Waxana (dam of Sunol 2:08).

Anteeo by Dexter Prince 11363—Columbine (dam of Anteeo 2:16, etc.).

Rosemont (dam of Montrose (3) 2:18, etc.) by Piedmont 2:17—Beautiful Bells 2:29.

Lustro by Boodle 2:12—Luta (sister to Advertiser 2:15) by Electioneer 125.

Yours truly,

F. W. COVEY.

Senator Hanna, his brother, L. C. Hanna, and others are back of a scheme to donate one of the finest speedways in the world to the city of Cleveland. Property owners along Lake avenue from the Lake Shore Railway tracks to Clifton Park have started a movement to macadamize the entire stretch, five miles in length, to present to the city. With few exceptions all of the property owners have announced their willingness to bear their share of the expense.

The Village Horse Liar.

"The Village Horse Liar" is a theme which Trotwood, in the Horse Review, treats in this fashion:

Every horseman is familiar with the fellow, but, like the buffalo, the red man and the coyote of the desert, he has gradually retired before the progress of civilization. In Tennessee he was once as numerous as poverty or the skunks that infested the hillside village. He was the product of ignorance, conceit and mean whisky that has given in and passed away before the advent of the public school, the daily paper and the locomotive.

He is rare now—so rare that when I ran upon one a few weeks ago in the village store of a backwoods county I determined to put him on paper, that the coming generation might not entirely permit his likeness to pass from the memory of man.

I had gone after quails. It was nearly noon and the shooting had been good. I have found that the birds do not feed much during the noon hours, and it is best to rest the dogs from 12 until 2. The shooting had brought me close to the little village that lay among the hills, as primitive as they ever get to be. No railroad had ever been in fifty miles of it. Even as I came up I saw that the three stores were closed, the blacksmith shop was shut up and the tannery was deserted. Nothing but the church was in progress, and that was in full blast. It adjourned just as I reached it, and they all came boiling out. There was intense excitement, much talking, head shaking and gestures; much laughing that showed victory on one side, and silence that meant defeat on the other.

I soon learned that a church debate had been going on for ten days between the Methodists and Campbellites, as the denomination is called there. It lasted from 8 to 12 every day, and all business was suspended while it progressed. The subject under discussion was "Infant Baptism," and the two denominations had reached the red-hot phase of the argument. The Methodist preacher was an old man; the Campbellite was young and just feeling his spurs. They had been at it hammer and tongs all morning. Each would argue a half-hour, then there would be a song and a prayer, and the other would reply. Both churches were out in force and all parties were hot. I knew, of course, that at the end of the twelve days' debate all parties would hate each other more cordially than ever, and every one would believe just exactly what he had believed before. I asked an ardent Methodist whom they called Squire Tobey what it was all about.

"Oh," he said, "it's called a 'bait twixt our preacher an' the Cam'ellite. But it's jes' a one-sided thing, for our preacher is a-givin' that little Cam'ellite hell."

Perhaps so. But the Campbellites didn't look at it that way, for I heard an indignant old sister of that faith say as she stopped to buy a box of snuff at the village grocery.

"Wall, these old preachers air pretty good, but it it takes the young uns to give us fresh gospel. I wasn't baptized when I was a baby, an' I've got to-day as much religion as arry Methodist that ever spattered water."

At this point the horse liar entered. I am sorry, because I had become interested in that religious debate. I felt sure it would end in a funeral.

It is a good thing to land in a little place where you are not known and know no one. It's a good thing to try it once in a while just to study human nature.

It was plain to see that the horse liar was the most knowing and best posted man in the village—in his own opinion. You could tell it by the way he paid a nickel for a cigar and puffed at it; by the way he glanced around to see who was looking at him; by the negligé cut of his cravat, the cockish way he wore his hat, the very swagger in his mode of expectorating. The others in the store were not novelties, but I was, and when they had gathered around the stove I knew the talk he was giving them was all for me. The following is the conversation just as it occurred—the main talking being by the horse liar—the others being Tom, Dick and Harry—it matters not—questioners and listeners who were merely innocent carriers of fuel to his flame:

"I told you all the fus' o' the year that that Dan Patch 'ud be a great hoss. Now he's beat every pacer that come out, won more money 'n any of 'em an' come in one point of P'inter's record. Who was he by? Joe Patchen, one of the bes' sons of old Tom Hal I ever saw. He was a little light about the body, but he was a great race horse. He was foaled over there about Mooresville an' is full brother to Little Brown Jug. I'll never forget the day that Ed Geers was training old Joe as a three year old and had 'im shod so he couldn't go at all. I showed Ed how to shoe 'im an' that Fall he won the Pennsylvania at Lexington. Ed Geers never has forgot me for that, and every time he sees me he tells me I give 'im the fus' real lesson he got in shoeing a pacer."

He puffed away at his cigar awhile, and the rest of them stood around and looked worshipful. Hespert and resumed:

"I've been thinkin' for some time I'd write to the papers an' expose all this pedigree they've made up for old Tom Hal any way. I've got the affidavits of dying men that proves he were got by a cavalry boss endurin' the war, but they all got around me an' begged me not to do it. I wasn't worried 'bout myself, but I was afeared some day they'd expell Ed Geers off the track for it, an' now I see they've done it."

"What?" exclaimed about ten of them in a chorus.

"Well, 'twas sort o' this way, too," he went on. "Of course Ed Geers had to swear to the breedin' of enny-thing he raced. You or I or eny man 'u'd do that. It's natural an' part of the American Association rules. They can't blame 'im for that. He didn't know old Tom was bred that way, but you see, they had 'im in that well known law rule laid down by Blackstone, Ignorantia non est excusum—ignorance of law is no excuse. They jes' naturally had 'im. Oh, the papers was full of it an' had it up an' down, but I'll give you what I think is the inside history."

Here he arose, looked knowing and the others stood with mouths wide open. Even the grocer stopped measuring my powder long enough to hear it.

"It's this way: You see, Ed Geers has been drivin' a boss all the year called Onward Silver, an' winnin' right and left, downin' the gold bugs an' trusts an' monopolies an' wipin' the dust up with 'em. This naturally riled the administration, specially since McKinley died, an' so the gold bugs had it in for 'im, an' now they've ruled 'im off—an' the best man that ever pulled a line."

I left right there and went back to the fields to keep out of the discussion and, maybe, a fight. But I thought as I went along that that was just about a sample of real horse information in the backwoods.

The Grand Circuit of 1902.

The Stewart of the Grand Circuit Trotting Association met at Detroit January 28th to agree on dates for the coming season, and arranged them as follows:

Detroit, July 14th to 19th.

Cleveland, July 21st to 26th.

Columbus, July 28th to August 2d.

Buffalo, August 4th to 9th.

Glens Falls, August 11th to 16th.

Readville, August 18th to 23d.

Providence, August 25th to 30th.

Hartford, September 1st to 6th.

Cincinnati, September 22d to 27th.

Terre Haute, September 29th to October 4th.

Representatives of the different tracks announced that following amounts will be offered in stakes and purses:

Detroit.....	$50,000	Readville.....	$40,000
Cleveland.....	35,000	Providence.....	45,000
Columbus.....	40,000	Hartford.....	45,000
Buffalo.....	30,000	Cincinnati.....	40,000
Glens Falls.....	30,000	Terre Haute.....	35,000

Total.....$300,000

Syracuse and Brighton Beach were left out of the circuit, but will both give meetings with large purses and stakes.

Since the meeting of the stewards, Secretary Cully of the Brighton Beach association has purchased from the Glens Falls association its dates, and will be in the Grand Circuit.

Auctions vs. Books.

Secretary George W. Jackson of the California State Agricultural Society received 64 answers to the circular he sent out to the harness horse men asking for an expression of opinion as to the best system of betting on harness races. There were three questions asked, as follows: Book betting on heats, mutuals on heats, or auctions and mutuals on result of race only. The answers received were as follows:

	For.	Against.	Total
Bookmaking.....	1	63	64
Mutuals on heats.....	33	31	64
Mutuals and Auction Pools on result of race.....	63	1	64

The opposition to books is almost unanimous, while those who favor mutuals on heats are in a very slight majority, showing that there is a very large contingent who favor betting only on the result of races.

The Directors of the State Agricultural Society will meet to day, and it is probable that they will decide whether books will be permitted on harness races at the State Fair this year. It is hoped and believed they will vote to abolish all bookmaking on harness racing.

Warren Lewis, the Grand Circuit auctioneer from Ypsilanti, Mich., has purchased the big, game pacer, Charlie D. 2:24½, who has been second in 2:10½ and paced the last half in a winning race in 1:04½ on the Ann Arbor track. The price paid was $800.

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet.

William Harold 2:13 1-4 and Welcome 2:10 1-2.

Over at the Meek Estate Farm near Haywards, Alameda county, Superintendent Geo. Gray (than whom no more genial, or more successful manager of a big farm lives in California) will again have those two highly bred stallions William Harold and Welcome in the stud this year. William Harold's daughter Janice, whose untimely death at Santa Rosa in December last was a great loss to the trotting turf, was one of the sensational mares of the country. She won a race at a mile and an eighth at Memphis last fall, trotting it in 2:24½, the world's record at the distance and got a record of 2:08½ for the mile. She was one of the handsomest as well as one of the gamest trotters ever foaled, and had she lived a mark of 2:05 or better would certainly have been within her reach. She was the first and the only one of William Harold's produce to be raced.

The breeding of William Harold is such that had he not produced such a good one as Janice, he could reasonably be expected to, as he comes direct from families that produce extreme racing speed. He was sired by Sidney 2:19½, one of the leading speed sires of the world, sire of Lenna N. 2:05½ and 96 in 2:30, and his dam was Cricket 2:10, dam of three in the list, by the great Steinway, sire of Klatawah (3) 2:05½ and many more extremely fast ones. Steinway blood breeds on. He has sired four in 2:10, his son Chas. Derby has sired three in 2:10 and his grandsire Diablo is the sire of Clipper 2:06 and Sir Albert S. 2:08½. Moreover, Steinway's own sister Soprano is the dam of ten in 2:30, her only equal in this line being Beautiful Bells. William Harold has two crosses of Strathmore, one of the greatest sons of Hambletonian 10. He is a good individual and his produce are all endowed with more than the usual share of good looks.

Welcome 2:10½, the other stallion in Mr. Gray's charge, is one of the grandest lookers ever seen in California. He is as near the perfect type of a harness stallion as has been bred, and although he weighs 1300 pounds is a model of symmetry. Welcome took a trotting record of 2:27 and has a pacing record of 2:10½. It is confidently believed that he can trot in 2:15 or better with a few months' work. Welcome is by Arthur Wilkes 2:28½, a son of Guy Wilkes that has produced four in the 2:15 list, and his dam is Lettie by Wayland Forrest, dam of two in the 2:15 list, and of Maud Singleton 2:28½, dam of Silver Ring 2:14½. The first and only one of Welcome's get to be trained is Iloilo, that took a standard record last year. The get of Welcome are considered among the most promising young horses in California and have extreme beauty as well as size and speed.

By referring to our advertising columns this week the announcements of these two stallions will be found with particulars as to service fees, etc. They are worthy of being mated with the best bred mares to be found.

Bakersfield Matinee.

BAKERSFIELD, FEB. 2, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Enclosed you will find a program of our matinee which was held today. The track was in fair shape, but the weather was bad, cloudy and cold. However it did not keep the horse lovers away for there were three hundred in attendance.

The track is under the superintendence of H. H. Shears, and by the time the fall meeting comes off it will be second to none.

The great little blue roan horse Richmond Chief 2:14½ is now in the hands of T. H. Fogarty, who will make the season with him here. There is a show for another well bred horse here as there are more mares to be bred than one horse can serve.

The summaries of our races on the 2d was as follows:

Uncle Jim.....	(A. Lindberg)	1	1
Robin.....	(Thos. H. Fogarty)	2	2
Lompoc.....	(Geo. Bevan)	3	4
May Gates.....	(A. L. Conklin)	4	5
May Hogan.....	(Thos. O'Brien)	5	1

Time—2:33, 2:34

Free for all, two in three.

The Inter-State Fair Association of Spokane, of which Chas. D. Jeffries is manager, has announced three stakes for its fall meeting in October, entries to the stakes to close April 1st. The first is for three year old pacers eligible to the 2:30 class, and the second for three year old trotters eligible to the 2:35 class. These stakes are guaranteed to be worth $500 each. A stake for pacers of the 2:24 class, $25 entrance, is also given, to which $500 is to be added by the association.

A WORD TO STALLION OWNERS:—On the 15th of the present month, which is just one week from to-day, there will close with Secretary Geo. Jackson of the California State Agricultural Society a stake that should have the support of every stallion owner on the Pacific Coast and the territory adjacent thereto. It is a new stake, on a plan that has never before been tried with harness horses in America, but has met the endorsement of every intelligent owner and breeder who has read its conditions, besides receiving very flattering notices from the leading turf journals of the east. This Special Stallion Stake was gotten up by the Directors of the State Agricultural Society for the purpose of encouraging the breeding of harness horses of high class and extreme speed, and no stallion owner can afford to allow the stake to close without naming his horse, as only the get of stallions nominated will be eligible to the stake. Last year standard bred stallions were patronized to a greater extent than for several years previous, and there will, as a consequence, be more standard bred foals this year than at any time since the boom days of breeding. The increase in the value of harness horses has excited a renewed interest in colt stakes and, as is evidenced by the large lists of entries in those closed last year and this, breeders generally desire to patronize the stakes. Stallion owners owe it to breeders who have patronized their horse that he be named in this stake so as to make the colts and fillies dropped this year eligible. The nominating fee is only the price of one service, and there will be paid to the owner of the sire of the winner the sum of $250. If there is a class of people who should patronize and support colt stakes it is the men who own stallions and stock farms, and keep their horses for public service, or breed horses for the market or racing purposes. Colt stakes are the very life of the breeding business, and give to the owners of good colts the opportunity of earning large sums with them without being compelled to gamble with the book-makers. The winner of a big stake is a legitimate money earner and the stallions that sire the money earners are the ones breeders are looking for. The California State Agricultural Society has inaugurated a stake that can be patronized by stallion owners in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and Arizona, and if there ever was a time when the breeders of standard trotting and pacing horses should rally to the support of this sterling organization it is now. There will be no trouble in securing a large number of entries of the foals of 1901. Hundreds of owners have already expressed a desire to enter in the stake, but the stallions must be first nominated and the duty first devolves upon owners to see that their horses are named. It will be one of the greatest stakes ever trotted. It has already attracted the attention of the harness horse world, and we appeal to stallion owners to show that their interest in the business of breeding is not entirely selfish, but is as broad as that manifested by those who pay out their money for stallion fees and entrance money in stakes. Let the list of stallions nominated contain the name of every stallion worth breeding to in the States and Territories included in the stake district.

SUPERINTENDENT COVEY of Palo Alto Stock Farm has made another ten strike, or perhaps it were better to call it a sixteen strike, as he has booked that number of the great farms best mares to McKinney 2:11 1/4. His letter announcing this fact and giving the names and breeding of the mares, will be found on another page of this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. As these mares will all be offered at auction this year, some in New York and some in California they will attract bids from those who want that greatest of all crosses the Wilkes-Electioneer blood. In this connection it will interest our readers to know that Mr. C. W. Williams, owner of the great stallion Allerton, has recently written as follows of these two great families: "Rysdyk's Hambletonian founded one of the greatest families of trotters of which we have any record. He was the foundation from which the trotting horse came. One hundred and fifty of his sons are the sires of standard speed. The sons and grandsons of two—George Wilkes and Electioneer—have sired more performers than have the sons and grandsons of the 148 others. There are but two great trotting families. To deny this is to wipe away all the records of the past. Year by year these two great families have grown in popular favor, and could it be otherwise? Their blood of the past few years has produced nearly all the record-breakers, nearly all the winners of the colt stakes, and nearly all the 2:10 performers, and, if we judge the future by the past, the time will come when every race of any importance will be won by horses carrying the blood of one or both of these great sires. To solve the breeding problem is not hard. Others are doing that for us every day. The breeder who makes a mistake now simply refuses to profit by the experience of others. The produce of good mares bred to the best stallions will be bred in fashionable lines, will have speed, and will sell in any market in the world." This is pretty strong talk, and while we may not agree with Mr. Williams when he says "then are but two great families," there is no question but the Electioneer and the Wilkes are the two greatest, and such being the case the combination of the two will in all probability produce the greatest horses of the future.

MCKINNEY'S BOOK will be full before many of those who now contemplate breeding to this great horse realize the fact. Superintendent Frank Covey has booked sixteen of Palo Alto Stock Farm's best mares to him and Mr. Durfee is receiving letters every day from all parts of the country from owners who want to breed their mares to the champion stallion. As McKinney is limited to 50 mares this year those who get their mares on the book will be lucky. When the extreme speed test is applied by the 2:15 and 2:20 lists McKinney leads everything at his age. At fourteen months he is the sire of 19 performers in the exclusive 2:15 list, a showing never made by any other stallion in the world, and at the same age he is the sire of 28 trotters and pacers in the 2:20 list. He has sired 42 with standard records and of these about seventy per cent are in the 2:20 list, and nearly fifty per cent in the 2:15 list. No living stallion can make such a showing. When it is added that four of the forty-two, or nearly ten per cent of his standard performers are in the 2:10 list, and one has a record of 2:02, is it any wonder that McKinney is called a champion sire?

COL. SANDERS D. BRUCE, founder of the American Stud Book and also of that well known journal, Turf, Field and Farm, died at New York, February 1st, aged 77 years. Colonel Bruce was born in Lexington, Ky., August 16, 1825, and claimed to be a direct descendant of Robert Bruce, the Scottish king. In 1846 he was graduated from Transylvania University. On the outbreak of the Civil War he joined the Union cause and served through the war. He built the fortifications at the mouth of the Cumberland river. In the battle of Shiloh he was wounded by a falling horse. He was recommended for promotion to Brigadier-General by Sherman and Grant, but resigned in 1864 because of heart trouble and went to New York, where, in the following year, he founded Turf, Field and Farm. He published six volumes of the Stud Book, and then sold the rights of the publication to The Jockey Club, although he stipulated that Vol. 7 should be published just as he had compiled it. He was recognized as one of the leading authorities of the world in thoroughbred history and pedigrees.

EVERY GOOD HORSE should be fitted with a good harness and good boots. In the latter one cannot be too particular, and all various devices for protection should protect. A poor fitting boot may ruin a valuable horse, and a poor harness may cause one to lose a stake. There are few horsemen in California who are not aware of the fact that John A. McKerron the leading harness maker of the Pacific Coast took the gold medal at the Paris exposition for the best display of boots and light harness, but there may be some new comers in the ranks who are not acquainted with this fact and for their benefit we make the statement. Mr. McKerron fills orders nearly every month from the Eastern States, Europe and Australia, and his trade is growing wherever his goods are known. This is the reward one gets for establishing a standard and keeping to it all the time. "In leather and workmanship the best is none too good," is one of McKerron's maxims.

SANTA ROSA STOCK FARM offers for sale four well bred young stallions, all with records below 2:20 and all fit and ready for the stud. Two of them are by Direct 2:05 1/4, one by Diablo 2:09 1/4 and the other by Wildnut. The Diablo stallion is one of the best bred horses on the continent, as his dam is Biscari, a producing mare by Director 2:17, and his grandam the great mare Bicari, dam of six in 2:30 and four producing sons including the sire Pancoast, sire of Patron and other good ones. Pierce Bros. have many stallions on the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, and these horses are offered for sale to make room for the young stock. Any horseman who is endowed with an average amount of intelligence and energy can make with any one of these stallions this year twice the amount asked for him.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT happened Mr. R. B. Milroy, of the California Jockey Club, last Saturday evening. In getting on a Market street car he slipped and fell to the pavement, striking the back of his head with great force, and also breaking the tibia, the large bone of the leg. He was taken to his home and while the fracture of the leg is uniting rapidly, the injury to his head gives him much trouble and his condition is serious. Mr. Milroy's many friends will regret to hear of his accident, and earnestly hope that he may quickly be completely restored to his usual robust health. Mr. Milroy is one of the most popular officials connected with racing in California and numbers his friends by the thousands.

Sonoma Stock Farm Sale.

The dispersal sale of the thoroughbred and trotting stock belonging to the estate of the late J. B. Chase was held by auctioneer W. H. Hord, at the salesyard 1732 Market street, last Tuesday. While the stock was not in very good condition and were mostly of the old fashioned line of breeding, some very fair prices were obtained and the sales were quickly made, many bidders being present.

Ethelinda, chestnut mare foaled 1894 by Peel-Glen Ellen by Kyrle Daly, was knocked down by Chas. Fair for $175. Centella by Joe Hooker out of Katy Pease also went to the bid of Mr. Fair and brought $500, the highest price of the sale.

Some fairly well bred mares went for from $30 to $60. Mystery by Three Cheers out of Mistake by Wildidle brought $200, the bid of Chas. Boots, and Miss Pollard by imp. Idallum out of Marin by Kyrle Daly also brought $200, Mr. E. J. Molero being the buyer. The stallion Daresold for $75 and the purchaser was offered $300 for the horse within two hours. The yearlings averaged about $30, the two year olds much better, as Roodwia by Dare-Phoebe Ann brought $200, Tortula by Peel-Ethelinda $125 and Sulitelma by imp. Trentola-Catalina $120. Helen Dare, a four year old filly by Dare-Mary E., fetched $125.

When the trotting bred ones were reached the prices averaged better considering the breeding, as there was not one in the lot that could be called highly bred. There were fourteen head sold, mostly short bred or out of thoroughbreds and the prices received were from $40 to $140. The latter figure was paid for a horse called Captain Blair by Saladin Jr. (a son of Saladin by Nutwood) out of a mare by Buccaneer. This was a rather good looking stallion eight years old, and worth more than the sum paid for him.

There were several well posted horsemen present who picked up real bargains at very low figures, and while the prices all through were low, the sale was, all circumstances considered, a satisfactory one.

The Memphis System.

"Old Campaigner" makes the following comments in the last issue of Kentucky Stock Farm about Murray Howe's invention:

The Memphis system was given a trial in but two races at the meeting last fall. If the program had been made up entirely of that sort of events it would have been one of the most successful ones ever put through. Every one of the six heats caught the crowd; the time was fast and every driver, with a possible exception, was out for all he could get every heat. An accident in the first heat of the trot had to do with spoiling the contest, to a limited extent, and in the second heat of the pace there was something out of gear. But those instances only served to show what a great thing Murray Howe's plan is. In regard to the matter of betting, you must know that no one was at all tangled except those who wanted to bet on the final result. And they ought to have been ashamed of themselves, for under that system if the best horse in a race has the same luck that he would have in any other sort of race of heats he will win the most money. And that will give his backers in the auctions their winnings. It looks as easy to me as the addition of 2 and 2.

Take the pacing race, for instance. On his regained form, as shown at Lexington, Audubon Boy was considered the best horse in the field. That being true, there was nothing to do but play him to win the most money. New Richmond was as safe a second choice, with a chance that he might out-race Audubon Boy in the mile and an eighth heat, just that much more inducement to make a play on him. Dr. Monical was the logical third choice. Go and look at the summary of the race and see if the money did not go to the horses in the order I have stated. The accident to Dolly Bidwell in the first heat of the trot makes it difficult to discuss that event fairly. But the fact that Janice was able to trot the first heat in 2:09 and the second at the rate of 2:08½ is pretty good evidence that she was the best thing in the field, outside of Dolly Bidwell, and there is no sure thing that the Inglewood mare had any the best of the Californian. In both races it was a case of pick the one you think is best and bet your money accordingly. I am unable to see wherein it differs from any heat race, except that there is no danger that some shrewd laying-up will affect the result. The driver who lays up a heat in one of the Memphis plan races is liable to come out at the little end of the horn. Murray Howe fixed that good and plenty when he arranged to trot the big money heats first and second.

Get a pencil and a sheet of white paper and go to figuring it out for yourself. If you do you will discover that it is a hard one to beat, and that the only way to get any money out of it is to race horses from the drop of the hat. And those who were there can, by jogging their memories a little, recall how much more enjoyable the three-heat races were than, for instance, that drawn out three-in-five event that Will Leyburn finally won. There was a something about it that made you want to stand up on your chair and hurrah for the man who had the genius to invent the system and the nerve to give it a trial. They never thought of the awful disadvantage of having to look clear across the track to watch a field start for the half-mile dash. All they remembered was the lightning-like speed at which the horses came to the wire and set a new world's record for the distance. The starts from the head of the stretch for the mile-and-an-eighth heats were not annoying, and if they had been the flight of the horses past the wire at a two-minute gait was enough to make the people forget that there had been any delay or anything that was not what it should have been. The simple truth is that the two races I am talking about made a big hit, and if there should be no other kind of harness races all this year we would not only not be any worse off, but in my humble opinion there would be a decided increase of interest in the harness game. If we cannot come to dash racing, then I am heartily in favor of the universal adoption of the Memphis system. You will pardon me if I tell you that the man who expects the half-mile dash on top of a dash of a mile and another of an eighth longer to work any harm to the trotting breed is in need of a new thinking. And that is all that it is necessary to say about it. If we wait for the Memphis system to injure the trotter and pacer we will have to do all the waiting in our coffins, for it won't come in your time, nor mine, even if we live to be a thousand years old."

Weights for the Big Handicaps.

The weights for the Brooklyn, Suburban and Brighton handicaps this year were announced yesterday and from now until the races are run there will be no end of speculation among followers of the turf as to the probable winners. When the entries to these rich handicaps were made public several weeks ago it was universally conceded that the fields to go to the post would be of a much higher class than usual. With the weights attached, it is the consensus of opinion that the handicaps will provide better sport than has been seen on local tracks in many years. Handicapper W. S. Vosburg has assigned topweight, 127 pounds, to Clarence H. Mackay's noted Banastar, in the Brooklyn and Suburban handicaps. Banastar, it will be remembered, won the Metropolitan Handicap last spring in impressive style but in the Brooklyn, for which he was made favorite, the horse was badly cut down and did not race again. On a plane with Banastar in the Suburban, Handicapper Vosburg has placed J. B. Haggin's Watercolor, with 127 pounds too, thereby showing that in his estimation Watercolor is the best four-year-old in training. Last year Watercolor showed ability to carry weight and go a distance with the best horses in the east, so that he has also been asked to carry the highest impost, 126 pounds, in the Brighton.

L. V. Bell's Alcedo, who won the Suburban last year in the fastest time ever made in that event, stands third in the Suburban and second in the Brooklyn, with 125 points for each event, while in the Brighton his burden will be 124 pounds, close behind Watercolor. Gen. F. C. McLewee's Gold Heels, winner of the Woodlawn Vase last year, comes next in all three events, with Frank Farrell's Blues on equal terms with him.

W. C. Whitney's Ballyhoo Bey had weight assigned in both the Suburban and Brooklyn, but it is not likely he will race at all this season. Frank Farrell's Bonniert has 123 pounds in the Suburban, 122 in the Brooklyn and 121 in the Brighton. W. C. Rollins' Herbert, who was a consistent handicap horse last year, is rated well up among the top notchers together with Capt. S. S. Brown's much talked of colt, Garry Herrmann, who was favorite for the American Derby a year ago in the winter books but went wrong early in the spring. W. H. Laudeman's Hernando is asked to shoulder 120 pounds in both the Brooklyn and Suburban with a pound less in the Brighton. J. G. Follansbee's crack colt Roehampton, whose winning streak as a three year old is still remembered, may have a following as he is let into the Brooklyn with 118 pounds and into the other two events with 117. Green B. Morris' two candidates, Autolight and Watercure, have comparatively light imposts, and as both have been running strongly on the coast this winter, they are bound to be considered. August Belmont's Brigadier, who holds the record of 1:37 4-5 for a mile on a circular track made at Sheepshead Bay last year, looks dangerous with only 109 pounds in the Brooklyn, 108 in the Suburban and 107 in the Brighton. J. A. Monahan's The Rhymer, who has taken the measure of many of the older horses on a muddy track, may be a factor with his light weight in all three races. W. C. Whitney's great three year old filly Endurance by Right gets into the Brooklyn with 106 pounds, and Clarence H. Mackay's star colt Heno's burden in the Suburban is 107 pounds, but as in previous years, despite Conroy's victory in the Brooklyn a year ago, there is a feeling among turfmen that three year olds cannot be expected to show winning form in these important events. So, in all probability Endurance by Right and Heno will be passed up, unless their owners voluntarily withdraw them.

Mr. Mackay's Gulden and Kamara have light imposts in the Brooklyn, and his Western colt His Eminence, who won the Kentucky Derby last year, has 110 pounds in the Suburban. Trigger, also owned by Mr. Mackay, has been liberally treated in both of these races. Buckley & Bailey's Toddy, the winner of the Brighton Handicap last summer, is another light-weight carrier. Jacob Worth's fine gelding, Oom Paul, who showed remarkable stamina in his two year old form, has only 100 pounds in both the Brooklyn and Suburban, which means that mavy a good bet will be placed on his chances if he goes to the starter in either event. J. G. Follansbee's Keynote, with but 92 pounds in the Brooklyn and Suburban and 93 in the Brighton, cannot fail to attract a loyal following. Petra II., the consistent little mare, is another possible factor with 92 in the Brooklyn and 93 in the Brighton. Old Alsike, "Father Bill" Daly's warhorse, has the lowest weight of all, 86 pounds, in the Brooklyn. The following table shows the weights of all the horses in the three handicaps:

Horse and age	Suburban	Brooklyn	Brighton
Banastar, aged	127	127	121
Watercolor, 4	127	127	126
Alcedo, 5	125	125	124
Gold Heels, 4	124	124	123
Blues, 4	124	124	123
Ballyhoo Bey, 4	123	123	122

Bonniert, 4	123	122	121
McMeekin, 5	121	121	119
Herbert, 5	121	121	119
Garry Herrmann, 4	121	121	119
Hernando, 4	120	120	118

Disapproves Matinee Pictures.

[American Sportsman.]

The very worthy vice-president of one of the leading matinee clubs of the west, John R. Thompson of 38 State street and 175 Madison street, Chicago, does not approve of matinee pictures in a harness horse journal. Mr. Thompson said to a representative of the American Sportsman last week that it looked to him like a cheap way of advertising. Another gentleman, who is less pretentious and does not live in Chicago, fully approves the picture advertising, but said he feared it might injure his credit in the banks should they witness a picture of his handsome form and Chesterfield pose in a 65-pound speed wagon, behind a $900 trotter. We are glad to know, however, that cases like the above are very rare. Robert Bonner, a Christian gentleman of rare modesty, took great pride in a picture that a sketch artist made of him driving Lady Palmer and Flatbush Maid, and W. K. Vanderbilt paid good money for a picture of his once champion drive with Maud S. and mate, and Frank Work, even now points with pride to the picture on the wall, of his team drive in 1884, of Edward and Dick Swiveler in 2:16½. The prejudice of a few very fair horse fanciers, against being known as horsemen is probably a hereditary trait, coming down from the time when our pious forefathers and foremothers regarded the horse as an engine of war and an instrument for unlawful sport. To-day among all people of intelligence—Christians as well as the more worldly minded—the horse is regarded as man's best, most useful, most intelligent and most recreative animal friend. It is true we gamble on him somewhat. And do not Christians, so-called, gamble on wheat and corn and pork and all the products of the earth and trees? Still we do not refuse pork chops or wheat bread because of this.

Molly O. H. L., a five year old mare by Robert McGregor out of Mabel by Mambrino Howard, therefore an own sister to the champion trotter of the world, sold at the Fasig-Tipton sale last week for $900. The catalogue stated that she is "a grand individual, a natural trotter of exceptional speed and if trained would undoubtedly secure a low mark." She was bred last June to Oakland Baron 2:09½, the horse that sold for $15,700 an hour before she was put up. If as represented this mare was the biggest bargain of the sale, and the comparatively low price paid for her shows that buyers are capricious. If she foals a colt from her mating with Oakland Baron it should be worth more than the sum paid for the mare. Oakland Baron is the only stallion whose first and second dams are both producers of 2:10 trotters. The dam of Molly O. H. L. has produced four in the list, two of them being 2:10 performers and one the world's champion. Taking other sales into consideration, Molly O. H. L. should have brought $3000 at least.

California favorite hot weather drink—Jackson's Napa Soda.

Shadow Chimes 2:06½, whose handsome and racy proportions are pictured on the front page of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week, was raced by Ed Geers and was one of the fastest pacers out during last season. He is by the Palo Alto bred stallion Chimes and his dam is Charmer, a daughter of Mambrino King.

TROPHIES FOR RACING.

A Custom that Should be Fostered in America.

Rome learned horse racing from Greece, and the Romans carried the pastime with them into Britain. The earliest racing in England, at Chester in 1512, was attended by the presentation to the winner of a silver bell by the Company of Saddlers in the presence of the mayor.

This custom was kept up for many years, the city of Chester subscribing an allowance toward the expense of bells. Gold bells were later added to sweepstakes at York, and gradually grew in value from 3 shillings to £10 in 1625, after the great impetus given racing by the accession of the Stuarts. James I., after establishing horse racing in Scotland, patronized and saw it prosper in England.

After Charles I. came to the throne racing still grew under his patronage. Newmarket was established, and Charles gave a silver cup of the value of 100 guineas to be run for instead of bells. During the civil wars racing languished, although Cromwell is said to have favored the sport, but after the restoration in 1660 it took on new life, and royal plate was given at each of the principal courses by Charles II. This monarch was the first to enter and run a horse in his own name. Queen Anne was much devoted to the sport, and not only gave royal plate to be competed for, but ran horses for it in her own name.

In 1706 the Doncaster races were established, when four guineas a year were voted by the town corporation toward a plate. In 1716 the Town Plate was established by the municipal government to be run for annually, and it remains today one of the most famous trophies of the English turf. The first gold cup was given by Queen Anne in 1710, and was valued at 60 guineas. It was a four-mile heat race, and was won by Bay Bolton, whose blood is traced to many American bred horses. The Ladies' Plate was established at York in 1716, and a piece of plate contributed by ladies was competed for by lady riders in 1725 on Ripon Heath in Yorkshire.

The gold cup originally run at York under Anne was transferred to Ascot in 1807, where it is run for annually in the spring in the presence of the largest gathering of royalty and nobility seen on any race course in England. This trophy is now known as the Ascot Gold Cup, though from 1845 to 1853 it was called the Emperor's Plate, because during those years it was donated by the Emperor of Russia. In 1854, during the Crimean War between England and Russia, when gifts were not passing between the two countries, it again took the name of the Ascot Gold Cup, which it has ever since kept.

The present king, when Prince of Wales, always sojourned at Ascot during the week of the spring meeting, and daily, before the first race, entered the grounds and drove with a retinue of carriages and company up the course in front of the multitude to the royal stand. It is said the king will resume racing in his own name, which he discontinued during the mourning period, and it is to be presumed he will continue his visits and the royal parades at Ascot.

The Queen's Vase was first given in 1838, shortly after Victoria's accession, and in 1865 the Alexandra Plate was established in the name of the then Princess of Wales, now the queen.

Besides the many royal gifts in England to the sport York, Liverpool, Doncaster, Manchester and other cities and towns vote annually money or plate to the local race meetings.

Under the rules of the English Jockey Club a "cup" is any prize not given in money. The chief, if not the only, challenge trophies of England are the New Market Challenge Cup and Whip, which were purchased in 1768 by subscription of 5 guineas each by twenty-five gentlemen, and have ever since remained open to competition. These antique racing prizes are the subject of separate contests, the winner of each retaining it until challenged and defeated, but the property in them remaining in The Jockey Club, and in no case can either leave the United Kingdom.

The most celebrated racing trophy in America, and, indeed, in any country, is the Woodlawn Vase. It is a superb piece of work by Tiffany, some thirty inches high, surmounted by a representation of the great horse Lexington, and embellished by other statuettes of Victory and the horse and racing figures of the most striking design and workmanship.

It was presented by the famed Kentucky breeder, R. A. Alexander, of Woodburn, to the old Woodlawn Association of Louisville in 1860, to be run for at its spring and Fall meetings at four miles and to be won successively three times before becoming the property of the winner. Its history takes in the last period of Southern racing before the war and its first period thereafter. At the first races held for the cup, in 1861, Captain Moore, of Kentucky, scored two wins with the horses Mollie Jackson and Idlewild, and then, the war forcing suspension of racing, the vase, with all the other valuable Alexander silver, was buried and remained buried at Woodburn throughout the continuance of the conflict. In 1866 and 1867 efforts were made to revive the race. Asteroid in 1866 and Merrill in 1867, both by Lexington, and both belonging to Mr. Alexander, walked over for the vase. In the autumn of 1867, General Abe Buford's Harry of the West, by Lexington, beat Lee Paul for the trophy, but the Woodlawn Association, becoming financially involved, returned the vase to Mr. Alexander. The Louisville Jockey Club, under the presidency of Colonel M. Lewis Clark, purchased the vase in 1878 and added it to the Great American Stallion Stakes of that year. The Dwyer Bros.' Bramble, with McLaughlin up, won it, and they took it East with them and returned it temporarily to Tiffany's, where it excited much interest.

During succeeding years the vase was added to several races in the East, to be won twice by the same horse. In 1883, 1884 and 1885 it was added to the Great Long Island Stakes at Sheepshead Bay at two mile heats. Eole won it in 1883 and the great Miss Woodford in 1884 and 1885, again making the vase the property of the Dwyers.

It was subsequently raced for without being won, the last occasion being at the last meeting at Jerome Park, when J. W. Rogers won it with Sir Excess on September 24, 1894, beating the Dwyer Bros.' Banquet, and the Dwyer Bros., on the last day of the same meeting (October 4th) beating in turn Sir Excess with Banquet. The first race was at a mile and a furlong, and the last one at a mile and a quarter. The vase remained the property of the Dwyers until about a year ago, when it became the property of the Westchester Racing Association. At the special request of Tiffany & Co. the vase was given a conspicuous position among their exhibits at the late Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

The Dwyer Bros. during the ownership of the trophy donated it for the several contests in which it was a prize, until they finally parted with it to the Westchester Association. The Westchester Association has added the vase to its Morris Park Autumn Weight for Age Race, the conditions being that it should become the property of the winner only when he shall have won it twice consecutively. The stake has also $3000 added, and is for three year olds and over, at two miles and a quarter. It was raced for first last fall, the good horse Gold Heels scoring, with Watercolor second and Blues, entered by the Fleischmanns, third. The only other notable cups of this country was one given by Mr. W. Travers in his lifetime to the stake called for him at Saratoga, and one given by Mr. August Belmont to the winner of The Belmont at Westchester.

The Travers Stake is still an important event at Saratoga, but the trophy ceased at the death of Mr. Travers. The Belmont at Westchester was named for the elder Belmont in his lifetime, but the cup was first added by the younger and present Mr. Belmont in 1895, and was won by him in that year, as the Travers Cup was once won by the old racing firm of Hunter & Travers, of which Mr. Travers was a member. The Travers prize was in the shape of a trunk, or an upright, with branches for fruit, and the Belmont Cup was first a figure of the statuette description, but has since taken the uniform shape of a large silver dish, or tray, for the centre of the table.

Cincinnati, through the generosity of the well-known racing patron Mr. Flieschman, will give a cup to be called the Cincinnati Cup. This cup like that of the Travers and the Belmont, will be a presentation prize. That is, it will not be a challenge cup, subject to be called for other contests, but will go as often as offered to the winner as his property to grace his home, and the homes of his children forever.

It will be the first cup offered to any association racing under the Western Jockey Club rules, and it is important for those horsemen expecting to contest for it to know that its value need not be stated in the conditions of the race, and it will not count as winnings in estimating the value of the stake. In the east the rule is, "The value of prizes, not in money, must be advertised in the conditions, and be estimated in the value of the race." The Western Jockey Club's rule (No. 167), in part is: "Winnings shall include all prizes up to the time appointed for the start, * * * but not second or third money, or the value of any prize not of money, or not paid in money."

Bob Kneeb's is dead. He was one of the characters of the trotting turf and came into world wide notoriety by being accused of "ringing" the mare Bethel in Germany under the name Nelly Kneeb. He spent a year in prison than for the alleged offense, but before they got him in limbo he slapped the face of a German prince and showed that he wasn't afraid of anything that wore titles. On returning to America he was reinstated by the American Trotting Association and during all his driving last year tried to redeem the good name he had lost. He was one of the most efficient horsemen in the country.

New Starting Machines.

Two improvements on the Australian starting machine, are heralded by the eastern press, one the invention of Frank Carr, the other devised by Dr. Crowley of St. Louis.

"Carr's machine is different from the model of last spring, and looks like a hook and ladder wagon, with steel stalls protruding from the side. These stalls are padded to insure against the injury to the horse, and work on pivots which permit of their folding flush with the side of the truck, which is mounted on wheels. The truck is placed crossways on the track, and as the horses come to it they are turned in the right direction, the side of the stall pulled out and set rigidly beside the horse, until every horse in the field is in place, just as in the stalls in the barns. The barrier consists of a breast strap, one for each stall, attached to a stout spring, which works inside the steel tubing which forms the side of each stall. When the horses are in place the pressure of a button releases each of these breast straps. They are worked by the one rod, so they fly back inside the tubing faster than the eye can follow them, all disappearing simultaneously, the machine being so arranged that one cannot be released without all being released. This makes a standing start, though the mechanism can be so arranged as to make a running start if it is desired, but the one thing which is impossible is for one horse to have an opportunity to break before another. They cannot break until the button is pressed, releasing the strap. When the start is made the machine is immediately hauled from the track."

"On the other hand, Dr. Crowley uses the webbing as a barrier, but it is the frontpiece of a large inclosed paddock, running easily. The starter does not release the barrier at the moment he signals the boys to break, but waits until every horse in the field has breasted the webbing and is in motion, the pressure they exert against the webbing carrying the entire machine along the track. When all the horses are abreast of the webbing and on even terms, the webbing is released, and flies out and upward like a flash, leaving the horses free to go on about their business. His experiments at his farm have shown him that after the rear part of the machine, which is a wooden fence, has been pulled against the legs of a refractory horse, he very rapidly makes up his mind to "right about face" and break with the others. Dr. Crowley's machine has had a number of practical tests and has accomplished all that its promoters, Dr. Crowley and Louis Lemp, expect. Mr. Carr's machine has not yet had a practical test, but one will be made at the Fair Grounds early in April, President Tilles, of the Fair Grounds, who has seen the working model, is quite taken with the invention, and if it stands the practical test, which it appears certain it will, it will probably be adopted for the summer meeting."

The late Captain Ben E. Harris, of San Francisco, devised a stall machine, years ago, that answers very well the description of the Carr machine as given above. The Captain, who was quite an inventive genius, also perfected a gate that in the writer's opinion is better than any of the devices yet patented. The webbing of this gate was three or four feet wide, made of strong netting with a two-inch mesh. The springs which raised it were of the C variety and threw the webbing outward and upward with great speed.

Not the Same Bloomsbury.

BONANZA, Oregon, Jan. 24, 1902

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Will you kindly let me know whether the horse Bloomsbury, the sire of Josie G., is the same horse that ran in Sacramento some thirty years ago against Compromise?

SAMUEL WALKER.

Answer—No; that Bloomsbury was foaled in 1864 and was by Boston out of the dam of Orphan Boy. He was owned by Tom Atchison. The pedigree of Bloomsbury, sire of Josie G., is fully set forth in a very interesting article published in our last issue, and from the pen of that well known turf authority, Ralph E. Tozer.

The figures compiled by the New York State Racing Commission show that the tax of five per cent on gross receipts paid by the racing associations of New York since the law was passed in 1895 has brought into the State treasury the sum of $538,389. During the past five years the enormous sum of $5,875,000 has been paid to owners of thoroughbreds in the shape of purses and stakes. Last year the sales of thoroughbreds at public auction in New York amounted to $1,631,788, a sum far in excess of any ever before realized in a single year. Of this amount $861,642 was paid for yearlings, $320,076 for broodmares, $315,070 for horses in training, $67,000 for stallions, and $58,000 for weanlings. There were 1077 yearlings sold, and, as they realized $861,642, the average was a fraction in excess of $800 a head, an exceedingly good showing when it is taken into account that these 1077 sold represented the total of all consignments, including some that had been injured in travel, and others about whose training there was question from physical indications of unsoundness.

Notes and News.

The State Fair Directors will meet to-day.

It will pay to advertise your stallion early.

P. C. T. H. B. A. Directors meet next Tuesday.

Kingmond 2:09 brought $3000 at the New York sale.

Elden, dam of Eleata 2:08½ will be bred to McKinney 2:11½ this year.

Billy Andrews 2:06½ by Bow Bells sold for $2000 at Fasig-Tipton sale last week.

The total number of horses exported in the last six years is estimated at 300,000.

San Jose claims the 31, 4th and 5th of July as dates for its first meeting this year.

McZeus 2:13 by McKinney was purchased by M. G. Olivette, of Elmira, New York, at the New York sale last week for $550.

Prince Alert 2:00½ and Anaconda 2:01½ will probably meet in a match race before the racing season of 1902 shall have passed away.

If your horse is not clipped and is kept in a warm box stall don't blanket him. He will be better all around without covering.

A chestnut filly four years old, by Cresceus 2:02½ out of Agnes Donovan by Allie Wilkes, sold for $575 at the New York sale last month.

Director Joe, a five year old stallion by Director 2:17 out of Josephine Young, the dam of Joe Patchen 2:01½, sold for $2500 at the New York sale.

Gen. Wiles is doing the guideless wonder act at the Los Angeles matinees, and last Saturday trotted a quarter in 34 seconds without a driver.

Louise Mac 2:09½, one of the prettiest and fastest mares ever seen on the New York speedway, sold for $1500 at the Fasig-Tipton sale last month.

Mr. Ketcham is greatly taken with Silver Bow 2:16 since he has been jogging him at Toledo, and thinks him fast enough to race and lower his record.

Nearly all the Palo Alto bred horses sold at the recent Fasig-Tipton sale in New York brought more money than when originally sold by the farm.

Breeders of Morgan horses all report that there is a large and unsatisfied demand for stallions, mares and geldings showing the real characteristics of this breed.

Sweet Marie made good at the last Los Angeles matinee, winning her race in straight heats and trotting one of them in 2:15½, driven by her new owner, William Garland.

Who Is It 2:10½, gray gelding by Nutwood Wilk s 2:16½, sold at the midwinter sale in New York last month for $1850. He was purchased by R. C. Taylor of Worcester, Mass.

Jasper Ayers 2:09 went through the Fasig-Tipton sale last month in New York. He brought $700 and was purchased by David Lamar of New York. Jasper Ayers is now ten years old.

Mr. Geo. W. Ford is winning races with the get of his stallion Neernut as often as he starts them at the Los Angeles matinees. He drove Toughnut to victory there last week, the fastest heat being 2:22½.

Mr. Gerken's gelding The Monk 2:08½, was crowned the champion trotter of the Speedway for 1901 at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the New York Road Drivers' Association last Saturday night.

Pacing horses have the call. They are in demand almost as much as trotters. Instead of trying to get rid of them several trainers will spend their time this winter to convert out-classed trotters into pacers.

To Arms, a gray filly foaled in 1898, by Adbell 2:23 out of Sallie Benton (dam of Surpal 2:10, Starlight 2:15½ and Nordica 2:15½), was sold at the New York sale last week for $2300. W. W. Estill, of Lexington, Kentucky, was the purchaser.

The early closing events for Readville's Grand Circuit meeting are: The Massachusetts, 2:12, trotting, $10,000; the Blue Hill, 2:30, trotting, $5000; 2:21, pacing, $5000; 2:10, pacing, $3000; 2:16, pacing, $3000; 2:25, three year olds, trotting, $2000.

F. Gomet, of this city, purchased one of the gems of the Palo Alto sale in the mare Zorilla by Dexter Prince out of Lily Thorne by Electioneer, next dam the dam of Santa Claus 2:17½. Zorilla is a very handsome mare, over sixteen hands high and was foaled in 1897. She is said to be a ringer for the famous mare Eleata 2:08½ that led the money winners on the grand circuit last year over east. Zorilla was not trained as a two year old owing to her size, but has a way of stepping that presages great things in the near future.

The Colorado Springs Driving Association has reserved the Roswell track from June 7th to June 14th for its annual meeting. The Roswell track has been considerably improved since last season and is now regarded by local horsemen as two seconds faster than last year.

Jack Groom, who developed and drove the fast pacer Sir Albert S. 2:08½ in all his races, has moved to Alameda track, where he will open a public training stable. He has Sir Albert S. in his string and the son of Diablo is looking bigger and stronger than ever. He also has a couple of green horses and expects one or two more shortly.

Mr. Fred B. Taylor, of Los Angeles, who purchased the pacing mare Primrose at the sale of Mr. M. M. Potter's horses last December, seems to be able to drive her about as well as Mr. Potter did. He won the free for all pace at the last matinee of the Los Angeles Driving Club, the two heats being paced in 2:12½ and 2:13½, fast time for a matinee race.

Trotting bred horses are bringing good prices right here in California. When the prices obtained at the eastern sales are compared with those obtained at the sales here, the California market must be recognized as a pretty good one. Of course if a breeder has high class horses to sell New York is the place, but for average horses the San Francisco market is as good as any.

According to a dispatch sent out from Buffalo last week, it seems as if the Hamlins had practically decided to dispose of nearly all their trotting and pacing stock and give up the racing game entirely. The health of Mr. C. J. Hamlin, head of the concern is such that he is no longer able to give any time or attention to his racing interests. Nearly all of the horses at present controlled by the Hamlins will be sold the coming season.

A "world's record" that is, in its way, an enviable one, is held by Mr. William C. Rawson, of Cleveland, O., formerly at the Wheaton track, near Chicago. He made the shoes worn by both Star Pointer 1:59½ and Cresceus 2:02½ when they established the present championship records at the two harness gaits. He also shod John A. McKerron for his amateur championship trotting record of 2:06½.

James Faris, Jr., of Sacramento, who purchased the mare Nellie Benton 2:30, dam of El Rami (4) 2:14 and El Benton 2:23 by Gen. Benton, at the Palo Alto sale last week, had her shipped to Nutwood Stock Farm to be bred to Nutwood Wilkes this year. Nellie Benton is in foal to Monbells 2:23½, son of Mendocino and Beautiful Bells. She is a grandly bred mare, being out of Norma, the dam of Norval 2:14½, Norris 2:22½ and Nellie Benton 2:30 by Norman 25.

Among the "has beens" that were sold at the New York auction last week were those once good race horses, Ottinger 2:09½ and Columbus S. 2:17, both bred in California. Few horses ever campaigned better than Ottinger, who had a pacing record of 2:16, but performed best at the diagonal gait. Columbus S. won the Occident, Stanford and other stakes in 1892 and was sold for a big price. Both these horses have seen their best days, however, and Ottinger brought but $150, while Columbus went for $90.

Richmond Chief 2:14½ will be in the stud at Bakersfield, Kern County, this year. He is a steel gray or blue roan horse of very handsome proportions and is a well bred one, being by Monroe Chief 8:75 sire of twelve in 2:30 out of the registered mare Ela by A. W. Richmond, grandam Grey Dale (the dam of Longworth 2:19, sire of El Moro 2:13½) by American Boy Jr. Richmond Chief is now owned by Mr. T. H. Fogarty, Secretary of the Bakersfield Driving Club.

An error is made by the Los Angeles Herald when it states that the team record of California was lowered a quarter of a second at the matinee of the local driving club by Gen. Wiles and Bastina. They stepped the mile in 2:26½. Belle Button and Tom Ryder won a race at the Oakland track in 1892 in 2:16½ and 2:17½, beating Our Dick and Turk Franklin. Tom Ryder and Belle Button were both pacers as were the team that contested against them. Gen. Wiles is a trotter with a record of 2:15, while Bastina got a mark of 2:18½ at the pacing gait.

Mr. D. Hamm, proprietor of one of Seattle's leading hotels has been in San Francisco for several days on a visit and last week attended the sale of Palo Alto brood mares at the Occidental Horse Exchange. Mr. Hamm purchased Wildmay (dam of L. 96, 216½) by Electioneer, dam May, (dam of two in the list) by the four mile thoroughbred horse Wildside, second dam that good race mare of early days, Mayflower, ore of Palo Alto's greatest brood mares by St. Clair, and has sent her to San Jose to be bred to McKinney 2:11½. He also purchased Coralie by Boodle 2:12½ out of Coral 2:18½ full sister to Anteeo. Coralie was shipped to Seattle this week. She is in foal to Monbells 2:23½.

Brown & Blamey's good horse Lochinvar 2:20 (record made in the fourth heat of a winning race) will make the season of 1902 at Marysville. Lochinvar is by Director H. 2:27, a well bred son of the mighty Director. The dam of Lochinvar is Venturers by Venture 2:27½, sire of the dam of Directum 2:05½, and his second dam is by Signal. Lochinvar is a very handsome black horse, stands 15.2½ hands and weighs over 1000 pounds. He is one of the most level headed and purest gaited trotters, and will be a valuable acquisition to the breeding ranks of the section of country in which he is located. His service fee will be placed at the low figure of $20. A full brother to Lochinvar will be in training at the Marysville track this spring and a mare by Sterling, and Lochinvar will also be trained as soon as his season is over. These three with a few others will be raced over the California circuit this year by Mr. John D. Blamey.

H. K. Devereux, of Cleveland, who owns John A. McKerron by Nutwood Wilkes, the champion amateur trotting stallion, with a record of 2:08½, will own his horse next fall after the races for the Boston Challenge Cup in September. "I want to get that challenge cup," said Mr. Devereux, during a recent conversation, "and then I shall see what is in my horse. I do not know what he can do, but he always did everything asked of him, and I believe he is the only trotting stallion that stands a chance of lowering the colors of Cresceus 2:02½. I shall not drive him myself after he becomes a professional, but have a driver in mind who can get the best results from the horse. There is a vast difference between 2:02½ and 2:08½. I believe McKerron can get there."

W. J. Irvine, of Sacramento is the owner of a big chestnut horse called Talisman by Steinway, first dam Woodline by Woodnut 2:16, second dam Maud by Whippleton, third dam You Guess by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, that he thinks is going to be a winner this season. Tom Holmes worked Talisman three heats at Lodi on Monday of last week, and drove one of them in 2:23½, excellent time for that sandy track. Talisman is a very handsome horse, sixteen hands high and weighs 1,145 pounds. He wears no boots, and Mr. Holmes likes him very much. Mr. Irvine's two year old April Fool by Bay Bird out of Lady Ainsely by Our Jack 2:13½ is coming very fast and should nothing happen will be a prominent one when the bell rings for the Occident and Stanford stakes in 1903.

While, as a rule, the doctrine of heredity will assert itself with sure potency, there are exceptions. Mr. Ketcham tells of a case that happened on his farm, just before the death of Robert McGregor. Mr. Redmond of New York, had nine high class brood mares on the Ketcham farm, and while visiting there told Mr. Ketcham to breed four of the mares to Robert McGregor and four to Cresceus. The other mare by Alcantara, Mr. Redmond said, was not worth breeding as she had a runt colt by her side, no bigger than an Andalusian cat, and that she had never produced anything worth breaking. Mr. Redmond then presented the runt colt to Tim Murnen, the farm superintendent, who sold the measly product, when weaned, for $35. Mr. Ketcham, however, decided to breed the Alcantara mare to Cresceus, and the result so pleased Mr. Redmond that he took the colt and paid for the service. This colt is now at the Kalamazoo stock farm, and Mr. Redmond writes that he is one of the most promising he has ever bred, and will beat 2:20 as a three-year-old early this season. Hence, it is safe to infer that true blood will always tell if you hit the right mingling or nick.—American Sportsman.

Advertiser 2:15½ sold for $5300 at the Fasig-Tipton sale. The New York Sun, the harness horse department of which is edited by Gurney Gue, gave the following account of this sale: "The lordly Advertiser 2:15½, his seal-brown coat glistening, clean-limbed and with neck arched as he was led around the ring, headed the Tracy lot, and it was recalled that he was contemporary with the mighty Arion as a youngster and $60,000 once was refused for him. In 1899 Gen. Tracy paid $2450 at Cleveland for the stallion, and after three years he advanced not a little in popularity. Advertiser started at $2000, a stranger crying that bid, rapidly advanced to the $3000 mark, where David Lamar held the boards. Lamar and Mr. Whiteley of Muncie, Ind., battled until $3500 was reached, which retired the local man. W. Harry Orr of Reading, Pa., then fought it out with Whiteley to a desperate finish. One hundred at a time had been the order from $2500 to $5000, then after raises of $50 the horse finally reached $5300, Mr. Whiteley's bid, and Mr. Orr said 'let him have him.' The hammer fell on one of the best sales of the year. Advertiser is 14 years old, and save Adbell, the champion yearling trotter, has sired nothing especially sensational with the best of opportunities."

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

San Francisco Bench Show.

The dates for the local dog show are now definitely selected, being April 23d, 24th, 25th and 26th. This will bring our show on at the close of the northern circuit. A number of local fanciers have announced their intention of not only attending the northern shows in person, but will also enter their dogs.

The spirit of mutual interest among the fanciers of the Coast is gradually becoming enlarged and lately has shown a tendency to take on a broader and more general development that will undoubtedly be of much benefit to all the kennel interests concerned.

In this respect a communication received by the secretary and superintendent of the show, Mr. L. A. Klein, from a prominent and whole-souled fancier of Seattle, Mr. Julius Redelsheimer, is most significant and which we take the liberty of quoting in full:

SEATTLE, WASH., Feb. 1, 1902.

Mr. L. A. Klein, Superintendent S. F. Kennel Club—
DEAR SIR: Your wire of recent date, as well as your letter of the 28th ult., to hand, and I desire to express myself in behalf of the "dog" men at this end.

We were very much pleased with the spirit of your letter and wire, and while we show under different auspices we must never forget the interest of the dog. It will be utterly impossible for me to change any dates. The Victoria show starts the 3d, 4th and 5th of April, Seattle following on the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th. The Portland Kennel Club has asked of the Pacific Kennel League dates for the following week: April 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th.

All shows having made arrangements according to above dates, it would be hard at this time to change. If your club will follow the Portland show, will say that I will do my part to see that there are good, large handlers' prize given at the three shows—enough to compensate some good handler to bring a large string. I would say a contingency prize; so many dogs from California, a certain amount—if increased a still greater prize to be given. In that way it will compensate a handler well. Will also add that I will guarantee that I will make every effort to reciprocate, and will even go so far as to attend your show in person.

I have never had the pleasure of meeting many of the San Francisco dog men, but am pleased to say that I have been in correspondence with Mr. N. H. Hickman. Will again add let us be good dog men and work for the best interests of the dog, letting all our little personalities be thrown one side.

Wishing your show all the success that you yourself can wish it, with regards to Mr. Hickman and hoping to see you all in the near future, I remain

Yours respectfully,

JULIUS REDELSHEIMER.

We have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with Mr. Redelsheimer, but from what we know of him in the past the above communication is in keeping with his deserved reputation as a gentleman fancier and fair-minded sportsman. We also feel impelled to state our firm conviction, that among the ranks of the northern ladies and gentlemen who are interested in dogs, that there are a number of others imbued with the same sentiments and sterling enthusiasm.

A coalition of interest in the circuit of dog shows this season will be going a long way towards a unity of interest and the positive development of much benefit to Pacific Coast kennel affairs.

It is proposed to send the Premium List to press about the 15th inst. and a strong effort is being made to offer therein one of the best lists of specials ever given in this city. Responses so far have been generous and liberal.

It is hoped that under the auspices of prominent society ladies and gentlemen this show will be the largest and best ever held this side of the Rockies.

A strong incentive to compass this result is the fact that the proceeds of the exhibition will be devoted to different charities under the direction of the patronesses of the show.

Aside from the laudable purposes of the club the opportunity is now ripe for a combination of kennel interests that demand the attention of Coast fanciers in view of the ownership and breeding of so many high class dogs of different breeds at present in the possession of many owners resident upon, as might be termed, the remote zone of the national kennel world.

Some New Fox Terrier Importations.

What promises to be the beginning of a large importation are the two wire haired Fox Terriers recently purchased in New York from the Cairnsmuir Kennels by Mr. Irving C. Ackerman, who is at present in the East.

Humberstone Bristles, a dog brought over by Mr.

WANDEE KENNELS' VIBO.

Geo. Raper in 1901, and which was won out over Hands Up in New York that year, and was then beaten by Hands Up, under Mr. James Mortimer at Pittsburg and won over the latter dog again at Boston under Mr. J. J. Lynn is one dog. Bristles is by the famous Meeresbrook Bristles out of Humberstone Weasel. A bitch known as Meggy the Maid will be Bristles kennel mate.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The Chicago Pet Dog Club will be known hereafter as the Chicago Kennel Club. Permission to change the title of the club having been granted by the A. K. C.

The Cocker Spaniel Champion Red Roland died at Ottawa, January 5th, after having been on the sick list for a few days. Red Roland was whelped in 1890, and was especially well known to Cocker breeders in the Dominion.

James L. Little has been suspended for a period of eighteen months by the A. K. C. executive board. Mr. Little's suspension was ordered for fraudulent entry of the dog Newcastle Zizi in the classes for French Bulldogs at the Washington and Danbury shows of 1900, and the Atlanta show of 1901. The wins of Zizi were recommended for cancellation.

A correspondent of the Field writes: "If salt is detrimental to canine health I have failed to discover the fact after a trial of over forty years. My dogs always have salt with their food, and it is no more hurtful to them than earth, which, as I stated some weeks ago, they constantly eat. Giving salt to dogs does not prevent them from eating filth, to which disgusting habit I fear I may say all puppies, and many dogs which ought to know better, are unfortunately prone."

Meeting of the Fly-Casters.

An enthusiastic meeting of the members of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club was held on Tuesday evening in the assembly room of the Mills Building.

The annual election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Walter D. Mansfield; First Vice-President, Colonel Geo. C. Edwards; Second Vice-President, H. F. Muller; Secretary-Treasurer, T. W. Brotherton; Captain, H. Battu. Executive Committee—Horace Smyth, C. G. Young, Ed Everett, J. S. Turner, F. H. Reed.

The casting contests of the club will be held this year at Stow Lake as heretofore. The initial meeting will take place on Saturday, February 15th, at 2:30 P. M., and continued on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

The schedule of contests this season will be on about the same plan as prevailed last season, viz: ten contests, Saturday and Sunday meetings twice a month; the first five meetings of the series will be for classification, the concluding five contests being class contests.

To enable the club members to prepare for the open-to-the-world fly-casting tournament which is now being arranged, there will not be any regular club fly-casting contests between June 7th and August 23d. The open tournament will be held presumably during the last week of July or first week of August. This arrangement has been made so that the meeting will be convenient for the attendance of Eastern sportsmen.

This tournament is now regarded as a fixed feature and will no doubt be a success. A large attendance of fly-casters is anticipated. The club will put up a number of elegant trophies for the different events, also a list of handsome prizes will be offered by different anglers who are interested in the success of the tournament.

The schedule of fly-casting contests at Stow Lake, for this season, will be issued, possibly, next week.

Chas. B. Hollywood, J. Homer Writch and Fred W. Lees were elected members of the club. The membership roll, it is proposed, will be supplemented with a list of ten honorary members. This list will be composed of gentlemen who are known as experienced anglers and who have a standing of eminence in the ranks of public life, professional or business vocations. The eligible must reside without the counties of San Francisco, San Mateo, Alameda and Marin.

President Walter D. Mansfield submitted a communication conveying the pleasant news that a fly-casting club will shortly be organized in Portland, Oregon, where it is proposed to hold a tournament in 1905 during the World's Fair. The new club will be formed under the auspices of the Oregon Fish and Game Association.

It is advocated by a number of gentlemen interested in fly-casting that clubs be formed throughout this State and on the Coast wherever suitable water can be found to allow of indulgence in the pastime.

Among the members present at the meeting were: W. D. Mansfield, J. S. Turner, Henry Skinner, H. F. Muller, C. G. Young, A. Battu, Jas. Watt, S. A. Heller, F. E. Daverkosen, Dr. W. E. Brooks, Charles Huyck, Colonel C. G. Edwards, J. B. Kenniff, C. R. Kenniff, A. T. Vogelsang, E. A. Mocker, M. Richards, H. Kierulff, A. M. Blade, S. Rosenheim, G. H. Foulks, Charles F. Grant, T. W. Brotherton.

Steelhead fishing at Point Reyes last Friday was excellent and several fine fish were caught on the last day of the season. John Butler landed three fish, the largest weighed fourteen pounds; John Gallagher, F. Carroll and G. Luttrell also hooked some large fish in excellent condition.

Striped bass are still in evidence, R. W. McFarland landed a thirteen pound fish on Sunday while trolling San Antonio slough. Two other large bass were taken the same day by other anglers.

Quo Vadis Striped Bass Club.

Such is the club name adopted by ten salt water anglers who have this week perfected arrangements to enjoy striped bass fishing in the waters of Petaluma creek and its tributaries in the vicinity of Burdell's station, Sonoma county.

The membership of the new club includes A. M. Cumming, A. Dalton Harrison, George W. Emmons, Will S. Kittle, John B. Coleman, F. T. Hayes, Henry Landsberger, W. F. Bogart, Fred H. Bushnell and Edward Painter.

The club house will be one of the best appointed houseboats ever placed in the waters of San Francisco bay. This boat, Fred H. Bushnell's well known Cuckoo, is fitted up not only in a sumptuous manner but with every convenience for the syndicate of anglers who have purchased her. The boat has six comfortable and large sleeping apartments, a commodious dining or sitting room, cosily fitted with couches, etc. A big kitchen, completely fitted with a full complement of culinary utensils, is another satisfactory feature of the transfer.

With the ark is included a gasoline launch and a number of row boats.

The Cuckoo, for a number of years past, both at Tiburon cove and at Greenbrae, on the Corte Madera creek near the railroad bridge, has been, during the pleasant summer months, an outing headquarters for Bushnell and his friends and also has been the scene of many hospitable entertainments and re-unions where its genial owner has provided lavish welcome to many prominent clubmen, theatrical celebrities and other people more or less eminent in public life here and in the East.

The newly organized club has started under very pleasant and auspicious circumstances and will no doubt have many delightful summer days in a happy location that is to be visited to cause its manifold excellencies to be appreciated.

A Fight With a Big Sea Bass.

Perhaps the most exciting event in the history of angling in California up to that time was the taking by Frank V. Rider, of New York, secretary of the Tuna Club, the season before last of a black sea bass weighing 327 pounds—a fish that was caught with rod and reel and a twenty-one-thread linen line. Almost the entire population of Avalon turned out to meet the angler, and the catch gave Mr. Rider fame, and made him the holder of the club black sea bass medal and cup. Next to the tuna, in the estimation of various takers of big fish with rods, the black sea bass is considered one of the greatest of game fishes. At the time it was thought impossible to beat this catch, but last year the honor passed from New York to Philadelphia. T. S. Manning, one of the executive committee of the Tuna Club, has defeated Mr. Rider by taking a 372 pounder.

Mr. Manning began fishing at Catalina Island last year on May 1st, and ended the last of September. On his last trip for black bass he went to a favorite spot about two miles south of Avalon bay. Here the water is two or three hundred feet deep within almost casting distance of the wall of rock. The latter has a circling beard of kelp which rises from the great depths, its long leaves swinging in the current in tidal measure. In this fishing, one must have the anchor ready to throw off, there being no time to haul it in after the fish strikes—so terrific is the rush. The tackle Mr. Manning used was the regulation Tuna Club outfit—a light rod with a reel that would hold 1000 feet of twenty-one-strand line. The bait was a piece of albicore, a toothsome dainty to the king of the bass. Patience is sometimes required in this bass fishing. Half an hour passed before the line began to twitch and quiver and run out in the way peculiar to the biting of this big fish, which nibbles like small fry. Ten or twelve feet had slipped away before he struck. Then the angler cried, "Cast off!" to the boatman, and the vicious hissing of line through the water told the story. The rush was so violent that the moment the big brake was put on the reel the heavy boat whirled around as on a pivot. They went rushing away, stern first, after one of the wildest of the sea horses.

The fish made its first run directly out to sea, taking 800 feet of the line before it could be stopped. The Mexican boatman was backing water all the time—a necessary move, as without it the bass would have taken all the line. When the boat is forced in the same direction as the fish the angler can usually stop the fish when it has taken 600 feet of the line, after which it will tow the boat. While it was perfectly calm in the lee of the island, beyond the point it was blowing hard and white-caps covered the surface; it was in this direction that the fish rushed. Mr. Manning fought the fish hard, endeavoring to stop it, reeling in when an opportunity offered, but invariably losing the line gained when the fish surged down and made a fine burst of speed. In a short time it had towed the boat into the rough water, and, there being no way of turning, the sea began to break over the stern. Now the fish circled about the boat, ever surging down, and at the end of an hour and a quarter Mr. Manning found himself three miles from shore, with not ten feet gained. In fact, the fish had gained 200 feet, and 800 feet of line was out. It was evident, as a wave swept over the boat, that should the fish pull harder than usual on the line at a time the rail was near the water the craft would fill.

Matters began to look serious when suddenly the fish turned shoreward, perhaps forced by the efforts of the angler, and they moved toward the rocky sea-lion rookery that forms the south end of the island. The fisherman did not wish to lose the fish, as it was undoubtedly a large one, yet in such a sea to fight it to a finish was suicidal, so he determined to try the effect of some oil which he had in the boat. Some was turned overboard by the boatman, and the effect was marvelous; it spread around the boat and at once produced a calm that augured well for the success of gaffing. It was a singular spectacle—a sea of white caps all about, but in one small spot a low yawl boat floating in water perfectly calm. Then, probably for the first time, a fish was taken with the aid of oil. The boatman now took in his oars and devoted himself to the oil can, while Mr. Manning began to fight the fish by what is known as the pumping method, as the game was down perhaps several hundred feet. This consists of reeling until the tip of the rod is near the surface, then lifting until the rod is upright, dropping it quickly to reel as it drops, to lift again.

This presently began to have its effect, and in twenty minutes the big creature was within fifty feet of the boat, and the weary angler was disposed to raise a cheer. Repeatedly it broke away, but finally, three hours and a half after the strike and half a mile off the sea-lion rock, the fish was reeled to the surface, and as it made a rush the Mexican boatman thrust his heavy tuna gaff beneath it and gaffed it. The fish rolled over, nearly throwing the man from the boat, and with one lift of its mighty tail deluged boat and men. But it was theirs, the mightiest bass ever landed, so they believed. Lashing the gaff they cut its throat, then with difficulty ran a rope through its gills and out of its mouth and had it secure. It was a monster, too big to take into the boat, too big to tow, and they were in a quandary. Fortunately a larger boat came along, whose occupants offered, with the spirit that animates all sportsmen, to get into the Manning boat and give their own to the fish. By the united efforts of six men the fish was hauled into the empty boat and the two boatmen now began to row to Avalon, where the giant was hoisted ashore by means of the wharf crane, and found to weigh 372 pounds, beating the record of Mr. Rider by forty-five pounds.

The black sea bass is very abundant at Catalina and not unpalatable when cooked properly. At an annual banquet of the Tuna club the piece de resistance was a black sea bass of sixty or seventy pounds, which silenced critics by proving good eating.

AT THE TRAPS.

The proposed consolidation of three local trap shooting organizations, the Olympic, Lincoln and San Francisco Gun Clubs seems to meet with general endorsement and by many shooters is regarded as a good move in the right direction.

The membership of the three clubs above mentioned is to a great extent comprised of the same shooters—some sportsmen are members of all three clubs and most of them members of two clubs.

This state of affairs is not conducive to the best interests of the sport nor to the strength of the individual club. A combination of effort and interest by one amalgamated organization can accomplish more, for live bird shooting as well as blue rock meetings, than where the interests are diversified by several clubs, neither of which are strong enough to warrant three independent organizations where under the circumstances one would suffice.

At a meeting of the San Francisco Gun Club, a committee consisting of Jos. J. Sweeney, Clarence A. Haight and G. H. T. Jackson were appointed to confer with representatives of the other two clubs for the purpose of bringing about the proposed consolidation.

The Olympic Gun Club held a meeting last evening for the purpose of taking favorable action in the matter.

The Union and Empire Gun Clubs will announce a trap shooting program, possibly next week, both clubs will continue as separate organizations.

The California Wing Club propose to offer the members a good live bird program for this season and will also increase the value and amount of prizes for the winning shooters.

The Empire Club will open their season on the grounds at Alameda Point with a blue rock shoot on Sunday, March 2d.

Ode to "Crotalus Lucifer."

J. MAYNE BALTIMORE.

Coiled in a heap, the vicious reptile lies;
His flat head low, wide open his lidless eyes;
So still is he, he seems quite fast asleep,
Yet now and then there is so sly a peep.

His long round body in graceful pose,
The bronzed skin, the pointed nose,
Attract the eye, the senses charm,
But warn to keep from reach of harm.

Drawn by subtle power one is held,
Charmed to advance, and still repelled.
Alternate spots of black and white,
Shine with dull hues in shifting light.

Slowly his mottled coil he shifts;
Quickly upright, his head he lifts;
Some sound his sluggish ears detect,
All his fierce instincts are erect.

A sudden attack he doesn't like,
And, instant goes, upon "a strike;"
From gaping mouth his tongue he darts,
With anger'd strength, his scaly body starts.

From horny tail the s-k-i-r-r-i-n-g-note is sung,
"Tread not on me, or you'll get stung."

The black rattlesnake (Crotalus Lucifer) is quite common in many parts of Oregon, Washington and British Columbia.

Those who go out hunting and fishing in some regions during the sweltering days of summer, are afforded rare opportunities of forming an intimate acquaintance with these extremely interesting (?) creatures.

Last summer a jolly crowd of anglers went out for a few days' sport in Stevens county, Washington. The writer was a member of the party. There were all kinds of rattlers—long, short, lean and fat snakes.

We fished in a beautiful little mountain lake and in two small streams—one emptying into the lake and one flowing out.

It was difficult to determine which were more numerous—the fish or snakes. Our crowd caught great strings of trout and we had a real royal time. Plenty of fish to eat and fine water to drink. There were two serious drawbacks to our pleasure—sweltering weather and rattlesnakes.

The latter were disposed to be friendly and intimate. They really insisted upon being neighborly—of visiting our camp. Some actually invaded our beds and wished to remain over night with us. Of course, this honor we were compelled to decline with thanks. But the party made havoc with these ugly, hideous crawlers. It was death on sight to every snake. How many we killed no one knows. At first the boys felt very ticklish, but they soon got used to the snakes and lost their fear. Still, they never would let one of them get away alive. Really, it was a wonder that some of the party were not bitten. All were lucky enough to escape unscathed. Still, the boys were ready for emergencies, having thoughtfully brought along a number of bottles filled with potent "snake medicine."

That trip would have afforded a rare treat to a student in herpetology. He could have studied the genus snake leisurely and to signal advantage. Being a lover of Natural History, I took no little interest in watching these truly repulsive and disgusting creatures. Somehow there is a repulsive fascination about them. No wonder so many scientists become deeply absorbed in the study of "snakology."

The boys skinned a good many of the snakes, and captured the rattles and trophies. A number of the skins were dressed and made into belts. They are suggestive looking articles.

Finally, we broke camp and started for the Valley. Soon after starting, the team came across a big rattler that was coiled up snugly in the middle of the road. The audacious reptile disputed the right of way. It refused to stir, and donned its war paint. Both horses refused to advance, and matters were at a standstill until one of the boys riddled the serpent with a load of bird shot. It measured a few inches over four feet in length. When the crowd got home they had some modest fish stories to relate; but, the snake yarns overshadowed everything else. The joke of it was that they were mostly true.

That is how I came to pen the ode to his shakship. Prof. John Muir, the noted geologist and naturalist, of California, in his new and magnificent book entitled "Our Parks," enters a strange plea in behalf of the rattlesnake.

He says he never killed but two of these reptiles and that he is heartily ashamed for having done so. According to Prof. Muir's idea Crotalus is a harmless sort of fellow, unless pushed and attacked; that he will always glide silently away if allowed an opportunity of making his escape, etc.

If Prof. Muir had been one of our party on that outing, I am sure his views would have undergone a radical change. He would have found the rattler anything but an amiable creature. On the contrary, he would have found him aggressive and always spoiling for a fight.

As to Dogs.

Dogs are the most widely disseminated creatures known to man. Compared with him, the mosquito may be said to flock alone. The dog has doubtless penetrated from pole to pole and infests all that region that lies between. He is the practical sewer of the Orient and is pretty much the only sewer it knows. Almost every dog regrets that it is not an Oriental dog. As city sewers in the East, dogs are particularly valuable in promoting the economy of municipal taxes.

The dog is beloved and made a fool of by the rich and is tolerated and deplored by the poor. The poorer a man is the more dog he has visited upon him by a Providence whose ways are inscrutable. Doubtless each newly acquired dog incites the poor man to a more desperate resistance to poverty. As a pet of the rich woman, the dog gives employment to the veterinary; the rich man's dog is seldom well and the poor man's dog seems unable to become ill if he wants to.

Thus it will be seen that dogs have special and general uses.

Mosquitos, tadpoles, frogs—one may hark back from one to the other, but no one knows to what he must revert in his search of creation for the primitive dog. A dog isn't a degenerate or overdeveloped fox, or wolf, or coyote. He is not any of those things that a great many different scientists have thought he might be if he were closely enough investigated. A dog has almost the same distinction of being just a dog from beginning to end.

A dog may locate himself almost anywhere and still remain a dog—not always in good standing, but unmistakably of his own genus.

The dog prefers human society above all other. His taste may be questioned by those more cynical than he; but for a dog the judgment is pretty good.

All things considered, then, the subject of the dog should be approached with a serious and dignified spirit.

The more neglected a dog is the better he thrives. This is so unlike any other domesticated animal that it is worthy of note. A dog is the most nervous animal in the world. Even when he sleeps he moans and jerks his legs and deports himself in a manner to denote nightmare or pleasant dreams. A dog's tail is almost a neurotic necessity. It serves the purpose of the American rocking chair to the American, for whom it was designed. A dog, like an American, must keep something going all of the time or die.

If a man would know when a dog is in a mood to receive his attentions he should look the dog in the eye.

A wagging tail is only the rocking-chair element of canine distraction, but the dilation of the pupil of a dog's eye indicates that the man who is looking at it should go home the other way.

A dog is most amenable to the mind cure. A well-poised man can think a dog out of fits if he is given time enough. The only difficulty in effecting a cure under such circumstances would be the difficulty of securing the dog's attention for a sufficient length of time. A dog with hydrophobia can't put himself into that receptive mood which mental scientists exact of their patients.

A dog does not think out, but smells out his animosities and friendships. He arrives at correct conclusions in this way more quicker than those who intellectually analyze their emotions.

The howling necessity of a dog's life is bones. Bones serve several purposes of a dog. A bone, it is said, is a dog's toothbrush. O'Grady and the dog should have been admirable and sympathetic companions—except the dog does not need that his bones should be grilled.

A perfectly delectable bone, from the view point of a dog, is a bone entirely dandied of tissue.

The only way to properly serve a dog his bone is from the ground. All his food should be served thus. The more dirt he eats with his food the better for the dog. When the dog was in a wild condition he doubtless ate more or less dirt when tearing his food in pieces on the ground. And if he cannot have it in any other way in his domesticated condition, it would be well to serve it in salt cellars. A dog should have dirt and plenty of it. One good meal in twenty-four hours is enough for a physically sound dog. In a wild state he probably did not have a square meal as often, since it required finesse, much accident and a great deal of fight to procure anything to eat at all. Quick service and plenty of it is death to dogs.

A dog's stomach is far too weak to enable him to thrive on the food that coarse man demands. No higher living than something months dead is well suited to a dog's digestion. A garbage heap in bad odor with the Health Board is best adapted to the alimentary purpose of the dog.

Dog biscuits—which one would think doubtful enough to suit the requirements even of a dog—are bad things for him.

Hash is better.

A dog agrees with the philosophy that filth is simply misplaced matter—and he places it as soon as he can. Tripe is an excellent thing to feed a dog. If you want to kill him, give him common table salt. That will do it.

If a dog leads a sedentary life—that is to say, if he spends his days in coursing over an area no larger than a forty-acre lot his food should be boiled. If meat is given to such a dog raw, he wants to go out and fight a policeman.

A dog should be closely watched when he eats. When his jaws become flaccid he has eaten all that is good for him. He may not think so, but it should be as you decide and not as he thinks. Mrs. R. Wilfer could have explained the matter to the dog.

Women who are partial to violet scented lapdogs should feed their dogs rice and peas. In such case the dogs will be less readily located in the dark.

A feed of hot meat is likely to result in a cold dog, soon or late.

When a lapdog is ill, the best treatment for him is a lead tonic. Given in the right way, it will produce results. If he is well, it is best to give him something to make him sick—thus suitable lapdog treatment may be administered legitimately.

For self-respecting and much-respected dogs, extensive scientific treatment is possible in case a dog becomes diseased.

To arrive at a physical diagnosis in a dog's case the dog must be let alone. The operator should sit down on a barrel or a soapbox out in the stable. The dog should be tethered before him with plenty of rope and allowed to roam about. Then watch the dog. If he lies down on his stomach with some cold, hard substance under him, he may have inflammation of the stomach. According to what is his trouble, he will roam restlessly, sink into the dark miserably, scratch himself, whine with his nose in his paws, droop his rocking chair, etc.

If the man on the soapbox understands the diseases of dogs he will be able to arrive at a knowledge of what is the matter with the one before him. To carry the examination further, the dog must be approached and your hands given him to smell of. If he decides after that that he is willing to be poked, you are to run your hand through his hair, the length and breadth of his backbone. The texture and tenacity of the hair should convey a meaning to the man whose hand is engaged. Fold up the dog's ears. He may have something the matter with them. If you fold them tight enough you will most certainly find out if there is anything wrong.

After this poke him in the stomach gently. If it be hard, it indicates something.

After you have decided what his disease may be, there is specific treatment to be given. If his physic is to be taken in the form of a pill, the man on the soap box must take the dog between his knees. Give him a hand to smell of for a moment, till he has become calm and reassured. Then a towel is to be passed in front of the dog in a manner to hold his paws down. Then his jaws are to be pressed gently open. If they won't press gently, then take a crowbar. After the jaws are opened the pill is to be placed as nearly down into his stomach as a man's capacity will admit. Then hold the dog's jaws together for a long time. In time the dog will swallow, and you will have successfully administered the pill. This is the manner of procedure to be adopted by the man. In the meantime the dog has been doing things.

When a dog is anaemic he must be given beef tea. The formula for this follows: Buy a rump steak. Cut it up in a round chopping bowl with a double-bladed meat chopper. Remove from the rump steak every particle of skin and fat, with sand-paper, if necessary. Do not wash the rump steak before or after chopping. Place the rump steak nicely in a clean saucepan, with a pint of spring water. (Spring Valley may be used if too far from undiluted water.) Place rump steak and water over a slow fire. Let it do so for ten minutes. Remove the rump steak from the fire and pour off the liquor. Set the liquor to cool. When cooled, skim off the fat, after this strain the liquor through a piece of four cent unbleached cheesecloth. (At five cents per yard it would not necessarily kill the dog.) Mix. Quantity of dose according to size of dog.

For sick dogs it is well to mix ground rice with their beef tea, and boil it up. It must not be made too thick. If a dog is weak and cannot digest well, too thick soup may thin the dog.

The man or woman who gives a dog a hot bath should be hanged—and no mercy on his soul. A Fitzsimmons of a dog would wilt under a warm bath.

Don't put soap or soda on a dog to make his hair fluffy.

Wash a dog in eggs. For a Prince Charles, one egg will do for three dogs. A Newfoundland should not be washed when the hens aren't laying.

Brush a dog every morning and rub him off. Don't try to train him to keep out of the mud. If you do you will have to train him with a sandbag.

Don't ridicule a dog. He feels it as children feel a reprimand before company, or when reminded that father was never as freckled when he was a boy.

A little camphor rubbed into a dog's hair will keep out the moths and things. When more heroic treatment is desired, rub him with castor oil. The dose for this use is measured by the pound. To one Newfoundland dog take five pounds of castor oil. After this treatment the dog may be warranted moth-proof. Nothing will stay on such a dog; and it doesn't matter if anything does, because no person will stay near enough to him to care. Also, after that, the dog doesn't care.

Don't go to the family medicine chest when you want to doctor the dog. A dog must be doctored on the principle that if you want to sweat him you must pack him in ice. Nothing operates on a dog after a manner that might be reasonably expected. A dog's nerves are not to be toned by strychnine. You can't monkey with aloes or rhubarb around a dog. Not only a dog's teeth drop out if you administer calomel, but pretty much everything else that belongs to him. He salivates to the point of disintegration. When you want your dog doctored, don't think that the main thing in the case is to sit on a soapbox and diagnose him and then to pry his jaws open. Send for some one who knows how. A dog would surprise you after the administering of some nostrums.

In the administering of medicines, one must deodorize them if they have any peculiarity of smell. Valerian, for instance. Cats like valerian, and maybe dogs do, but in choosing a medicinal agent at random, in point of odor valerian seems to be sufficiently significant.

A big dog is inclined to swallow half its head, in size of mouthful. In the case of such a dog you may excavate a hole in his meat and put in a tablet or a capsule and the business is done; but when the medicine is in liquid form it is well to hold the dog's head at a tilt of forty-five degrees and then insert a funnel-shaped tube between the spaces of the teeth, after pulling his cheeks away at one side. If the dog happens to be one who has cut his wisdom teeth and the space is all filled up, you may knock out a tooth. Pour the medicine through the tube and then close the opening.

Under some circumstances ground glass and tin filings are good for a dog. One who is giving this treatment should grind the glass pretty fine and file the tomato can almost out of sight. A dog won't take it in chunks. When doctoring a dog it is well to remember that it is not a goat.

However, don't give your dog truffles and angel cake and you won't have to give him plate glass and the new tin coffee pot.

Don't "harrie" the dog. He deserves your consideration, because he is the only friend you have who will ask you to forgive him for your weaknesses.—Dolores Bacon in the New York Times.

About Gun-Fitting.

The art of gun-fitting, as gunmakers technically term it (though the shooter is fitted and not the gun), is more studied to-day than ever before. The crack shot or even the good shot, does not want fitting with a gun. His gun fits him like a glove, or, if it does not, he has adapted himself to its peculiarities by constant practice, until these very peculiarities best suit him in shooting his best. It is not for the crack shot, whose measurements are all known, that gunmakers have to study and practice fitting; it is for the young or inexperienced shooter ordering, it may be, his first gun, and uncertain as to the bend, length, and cast-off that can best enable him to become a good shot. It is here, we believe, that a good gunmaker of long experience can exercise his skill. It is here, indeed, that his knowledge is absolutely required to decide what peculiarities in the shooter must be met by corresponding alterations in the stock of his gun, and what by efforts on the part of the shooter himself to overcome them. The inexperienced gun-fitter is sure to rely entirely on his "try-gun" for the requisite adjustments or alterations in measurements that may permit the shooter with all his faults unremoved to get quick alignment correctly. The fitter of small skill does not attempt to distinguish between physical disability and mere errors of style that could be easily removed from the form of a young shooter. He takes his customer as he finds him, and with his try-gun he arrives at cast iron measurements that he thinks the try-gun has shown to be those best suited to the shooter. He depends entirely, does this young fitter, upon his try-gun, and in three cases out of four it misleads both him and his customer entirely. A more experienced fitter again can recognize that the modes of his customer in aiming and firing want alteration quite as much as the stock of the gun wants readjustment to meet removable drawbacks in the shooter. We have never therefore advocated or supported the blind belief in an adherence to the use of the try-gun of the unskilful fitter as if that tool were able by rule of thumb to supply his want of experience and skill. The try-gun we regard as a good servant in skilled hands, but a bad master in unskilled ones.

How Clams are Canned.

An industry peculiar to San Luis Obispo, California, has recently been started, and has been tested far enough to prove a success. It is a clam packing factory. The plant is at Pismo, and is running at full blast with some gathering clams, some cleaning tins, some cooking clams—all busy.

The clams are gathered from the sand on the beach by men armed with a flat fork and a sack. The sand is raked over at low tide, the clams placed in sacks, carried above high-water mark and dumped on the beach. This continues until the rising of the tide drives the clam gatherers from the place where the bivalves are found. Then the clams are hauled to the factory, where they are handled in a unique way. First they are placed in a vat and just enough fresh water poured over them to wash off the sand. After the vat is full and the sand washed off a close-fitting cover is placed over the vat and the steam turned on for thirty-five minutes. The clams are then opened and the juice emptied out.

The juice is drawn off into white pine buckets from a faucet at the bottom of the vat. The clams are then allowed to cool, after which the meat is removed from the shell and later minced by a machine made for the purpose.

After mincing the meat is placed in tin cans of various sizes, according to the orders on hand. The tins are then soldered and placed in a cage and lowered into an iron steam tank and the steam turned on.

After this steam cooking the tins are taken out and the cooking process is finished. A small hole is punched in the top of each tin to allow the air, or any gas that might be made by cooking, to escape, and the hole is soldered up.

The cans are then placed away where they undergo four weeks of testing, and if any of the tins bulge or show any signs of spoiling they are thrown away.

Each day for four weeks the tins are tested by being struck with a small iron rod. The clam juice is cooked, tested and handled in the same way for the same length of time, and at the end of four weeks the cans are labeled, packed together and shipped to their destination.

To a Puget Sound Salmon.

[CARRIE SHAW RICE.]

Salmon of the sapphire sea,
Tell thy story now to me,
Flashing up the silvery streams
With thy dazzling glints and gleams:
Dancing where the water brawls,
Leaping baby waterfalls;
Marvelous thou art to me,
Salmon of the sapphire sea.

Prince in glittering coat of mail,
Salmon of the silvery scale,
Very much to know I wish
If you love the baby fish;
True; I know you point with pride
To your schools beneath the tide;
But the desks, I fear, are low,
Where the Hump-backed salmon go.

Gleaming like a thing of light,
Through the meshes of the night;
Hear me whisper through the sea—
Spear and seine are waiting thee,
Veil thy beauties then, and flee,
But thy story leave with me:
Salmon of the sapphire sea,
Let thy story stay with me.

Our Largest and Wildest Game Birds.

Now that the duck hunting season is over it is now absolutely necessary for the sportsman to put his gun away in its case there to remain until the opening of the next shooting season.

Besides snipe shooting there is one style of sport wherein our Coast shooters have an opportunity to enjoy shooting second to no coterie of sportsmen in the country.

Goose shooting is now in order and the birds are here in countless thousands, particularly in Colusa, Solano and Yolo counties, in fact most anywhere in the Sacramento valley and San Joaquin valley as well will the sportsmen find geese in plentiful numbers.

The wild goose in California is still worthy of the hunters' attention and is able to furnish a great day's sport. This grand bird has been given a proper distinction by the able pen of Thomas S. Van Dyke in the following lines:

Foremost among those who merit eternal torment is the man who invented the expression "tame as a goose." If he is not consigned to the same limbo with the man who said "you can lead a mule but can't drive him," it will be because old Pluto's atmosphere scorches feathers so that he don't know what a game bird is. The goose is the largest of all our game birds, all of the species are wild as the most fastidious lover of something that knows how to escape could desire, and some of them, such as the black brant, are almost equal to the wild turkey in the art of disappearance.

There are many geese still left in Southern California in spite of its settlement, as you will quickly learn by going along the coast of Orange county, or down into Santa Margarita, to Elsinore lake, Warner's ranch, and similar places. But the day is well past when they will fly anywhere near a badly concealed tenderfoot, and even on the best flyways a pit in the ground is about the only thing on which much reliance can now be placed. Even then decoys are nearly as essential for good goose shooting on most grounds, while the art of calling, if you understand it, will help out the bag in wonderful shape. But unless you can imitate very closely the melodious "honk" that rings so far across the plain from the throat of the big Canada goose you had better not try it.

Even twenty-five years ago, when there were millions of geese here, it was extremely dangerous unless you could give that silvery ring quite well. And even then you had to lie still instead of craning your neck to see whether the game were coming, and could not be shifting your gun into position, but had to rely on a quick movement when the geese were within range. Even then it was wonderful how quickly so large a bird can sheer off out of reach of the best gun just at the moment he seems within certain reach. And he does it so gently and gracefully that you cannot imagine how much he has increased the distance until the gun rings vain thunder across the plain and the flock of geese drifts away off on the side without even a feather whiffing to earth. Often you can hear the shot strike as if against the side of a barn. But it produces about the same effect and you can strain your eyes out watching for a goose to fall. And if at long intervals one does weaken in its flight, and after long laboring settles slowly to the earth, it is likely to be at a distance you care not to cover, and if you go there you may find that some coyote had bagged it ahead of you.

At night it was much easier to hide where the geese could not see you. But even then it was no sure thing, and if you wished a certainty of seeing a long black neck and head with showy collar around the throat painted against the moonlit sky as you glanced full of hope along the iron rib of your gun, it was still advisable to remain well hidden and not to move until the game was so close that sheering off was impossible.

And there was still little difference in the size of the goose. The little Hutchins goose, or "little honker," as he is called, because marked almost exactly the same as the large Canada goose, is about as wild as any of them and can shed shot from his little sides of mottled gray in almost as charming a manner as a wild-bred alligator. So too with the white fronted goose or "brant," as he is commonly called, and the snow goose or "white brant." All four of these abound here and all are about equally wary as well as tough. The Hutchins goose and the white-fronted are the best for the table, the Canada next and the snow goose last. Yet they all are very good when on good feed and fat. This they are quite apt to be after there is plenty of grass; so that a good goose hunt means a large bag of fine game as well as considerable sport in the hunting of it.

In this hunting the novice is quite certain to find surprise as well as sport. The goose seems a very slow flyer because so large. But he is really moving at a rapid pace when once well under way. There is little safety in aiming back of the bill and it is quite safe to aim well ahead of it, as the neck and head are large enough to make a mark of themselves and with fine shot you are more apt to bag the goose in that way than by riddling his solid sides with heavier shot. If you must make long shots only heavy shot will do, double B or anything between that and No. 1. But it is very unreliable. I have shot plenty of buckshot into flocks but never yet secured a bird by it. The trouble is that there are too few pellets in a load with too much space around the birds even in the densest flock. For mid range shooting, say fifty yards, I have found No. 3 shot the surest, though there is a difference in guns which will make one shoot a size larger or smaller better than the other. But where you are getting birds within thirty or forty yards I have had more certain results from No. 6 shot with the head and neck taken as a special target. Inside of those distances there is no question about the superiority of the smaller shot. But in all cases you want a large charge of powder with the shot load light, for deep penetration, as you cannot depend upon the shot touching the more tender parts of the head or neck.

Then you need an extra good gun, not necessarily as large as we used to consider necessary, but a hard and close shooting gun. Such are very common today at very reasonable prices. We used to find them rare and it seemed as if there were some special virtue in the metal of particular guns that could not be duplicated so as to make sure guns for such tough birds as geese. This was all nonsense and it is now little trouble to find the right kind of a gun provided you know what you want.

What do you think of seeing a thousand flocks of geese in one sweep of the eye? It seems like a big story, yet many a man here has seen them. There are points in Orange county where you could look down on the plains of the San Joaquin ranch and adjacent ground and see fully that many at once. They stood by the hundred on every knoll, waddled over every swale, dotted every patch of sunshine, while their melodious notes rung over the miles of rolling green that spread over hill and dale. The same sight was common twenty odd years ago between Los Angeles and Santa Monica and on the mesas around San Pedro. And this, too, at a time of day when every pond of any size far and near was dotted with hundreds and even thousands of them, with thousands more streaming across the sky to alight in the water where they spent the middle of the day.

Flyways were then almost everywhere, while between such places as Elsinore lake and the Laguna at San Jacinto, when it contained water, there was often a steady stream at all times of day and night from one place to the other.

Geese are still found much like this in many parts of Central and Northern California, where they have to hire men on horseback to keep them off the grain fields, which they almost destroy by their great numbers. We never had enough grain here to make "goose cavalry" a necessity, but the birds were here in numbers enough to damage any large field, it being easy to keep them off of small fields such as we have.

One would suppose that when such large birds are so plenty it would be a simple matter to hit at least one with a rifle bullet fired into one of the great flocks. Yet nothing is more surprising than a shot at a hundred geese or more with dark necks and heads looking like dense rows of tenpins through which it would be impossible for a ball to pass without hitting something. Yet the result of a shot fired without aiming at a particular bird is apt to be only a heavy roar of wings and an uproarious medley of silvery honks. No bird makes better sport for the rifle, yet it can be bagged only by very fine shooting at one bird. No matter how dense the flock may appear, the openings through it will be so numerous that you may fire at dozens of flocks without ever hitting a bird.

Twenty years ago geese were so plenty and other game so abundant that I quickly tired of shooting at geese with the shotgun and used only the rifle. Perhaps you think it easy to hit so large a bird on the wing with a single ball. Here again the best rifle shot will be stunned with some new experience if he has never practiced at birds on the wing. He can, of course, hit some if he is a good shot. But the smallness of that compared with the whole range of possibilities is quite astonishing. But that is what always made it attractive for me, while the action of the birds is always a charm.

Nor is it so very easy to hit a single goose even when at rest. At the distance in which you are likely to approach the game a large goose looks very small over the sights of a rifle. And being dark gray he makes no brilliant mark against even the brightest background of green. Still I used to pick up many a one in both ways, but the best still shooting with the rifle was always on the water. At the Laguna above the ranch house of Santa Margarita there was a high bank on one side with cover enough to keep fairly well concealed and into this the geese of all kinds used to stream about 10 or 11 o'clock from almost every quarter of the sky. Over the green rolling hills that bounded the horizon in the southwest they came from the grassy mesa about San Luis Rey and from away in the west, where Las Flores was alive with them. From the higher hills that tumbled away in long, grassy slopes from where Fallbrook lay, they came, as well as from the long, low swells of land that fell away on the southwest into the quiet sea. As fast as one flock would be driven out of the water by the ball from my rifle another would be sliding down the distant air, with more coming in to take the places of those that sheered away if they came within sound of the rifle.

It would seem very easy to kill plenty in such a way. But the distance was generally from one hundred and fifty to two hundred yards, and the largest goose is hardly larger than the regulation bull's eye for that distance. That part I could manage with globe sight and a rest, provided I knew the distance within a few feet. But that few feet made some trouble not wholly overcome by placing sticks in the water about the center where the geese alighted. But I could not use globe sights because I could not shoot birds on the wing with them, they being entirely too fine and slow for cases where quickness is as essential as anything. Nor was there any chance for sighting shots. The instant a ball struck the water, no matter whether it hit a goose or not, every bird in the pond effected a speedy departure for some place miles away. And though the laguna was quite large, even the report of the rifle would start every goose just the same. One could be hit only by a lucky combination of good judging of the distance and by good holding. But in the whole line of rifle shooting I know of little any more interesting or much more satisfactory when you get the combination right.

On such lagunas as this used to be in the days of Don Juan Forster, and before the tenderfoot with his cheap gun and endless amount of ammunition invaded the land and began firing at everything that made a dot in the sky, it was worth spending a morning at any time in winter to see the geese come in. The duck, so prolific in graceful twists and turns when spinning about in air trying to decide whether it is safe to alight or not, comes in at last and settles into the water in a very unceremonious manner.

But the goose puts on a vast amount of style about it and so varies in manner that it is very interesting. Why it should be so different from alighting on land only the goose can tell. But when settling down to feed or on the grass none of the geese differ in their action to any great extent and all of them alight very much as a duck would under the same conditions. But when it is time to alight in the water along the middle of the morning a different air comes over each flock and every member of it seems to feel his importance.

The Canada goose often comes in high up and winds down in a long spiral much like that of the condor when coming down out of the dome of blue to roost.

As they drift down every wing is set along the whole line and they float downward as easily as so many scraps of down, with every trumpet-note now silent, and finally settle in the water with hardly a splash. But sometimes a flock drifts down in the wedgelike ranks in which it came in from the distant feeding grounds, and sometimes this is strung out into a long line coming in low along the ground for a long way. And occasionally the line is turned sideways to its direct flight and moves with the precision of an army. The Hutchins goose also has the same manners and is frequently seen mingled with the larger geese. But however they are flying they at once adopt an air of graceful solemnity which characterizes all their movements until they alight in the water.

The snow goose is still more interesting. They come to the ponds in an irregular mass of various shapes and long before reaching a pond where they intend to alight and before reaching the edge of the pond every bird turns itself a little more than half erect in the air and then setting its wings forward sets to the water in a rigid downward curve. This position is not again changed until the birds reach the water. The whole flock now throws itself into a column that flies forward with a slope about on par with the inclination of the body of the bird. A flock of several hundred geese all white as snow, except the jet black that tips the curving wings, when seen massed in the air and set in this course is a sight that cannot fail to impress the dullest lump of clay that ever was tied for life to the city curbstone.

The soft settling of the stars that sink from the bursting rocket is not as easy and gentle as the way these heavy birds now move forward and downward with every wing motionless. They do not sail like the condor, but float like thistle down on the summer air and down through a thousand feet or more of it they can go, moving forward as far and with a slow and solemn dignity that seems impossible. If any of the Hutchins geese are mingled with such a flock it is amusing to watch their demoralization. Although built about the same, they seem incapable of imitating the descent of the others and drift off to go down alone in their own peculiar way.

This little goose is even more puzzled when he happens among a flock of the white-fronted geese or "brant." Their manner of descent is wholly their own, and in the whole range of natural history there is nothing more remarkable than the antics they can cut. High in the air they come in orderly array until nearly over the point in which they expect to touch water, when all of a sudden the whole is turned into a go as you please race for below. Every bird strikes out on its own hook, tumbling, darting, whirling somersault and everything imaginable. Some are tumbling head down, others stern down, others whirling over like balls, some darting in long curves, away on the sides, no two alike, but all in swift career. All motion of wing is abandoned, the sole reliance is on gravity, and, among hundreds of birds, not a wing will be so set as to make any resistance to the air except among those that go outward on curves. And even with those resistance is very slight. Down sometimes a thousand feet and over the whole flock thus goes, with almost every throat ringing forth their clamorous cackle, until within a few feet of the water when, all at once, every bird catches his wings, stops his clanging pipe, lines up in order and the whole band floats along a few yards in perfect silence and orderly array, and then settles into the water as softly as so many snowflakes.

Protein for the Dairy Cow.

On this subject Professor Otis of the Kansas Agricultural Society says:

Profits in dairying depend very largely upon the ability of the farm and the farmer to produce what is needed by the cows right on the farm. This does not mean quantity alone, but quality as well. Any practical farmer knows that there is a great difference in the feeding value of our different crops. It has been found by repeated trials at the experiment station and by practical feeders of both dairy and beef animals, that this difference in our feeds is largely, if not wholly, due to the differing content of the group of chemical elements known as protein. The experience of both practical dairymen and scientific experts show that the average dairy cow, in order to show her best, needs all the way from two to three pounds of digestible protein per day. A cow fed on corn and corn stover will have just about half the protein she needs, and, as a result, will give some milk, but cannot do her best; and no matter how much corn and stover we may give her, she has nowhere near the capacity to handle enough to furnish the protein she needs, to say nothing of the wear and tear on her system in handling so much extra and unusable material not protein.

We must bear in mind that protein is an absolutely essential ingredient of milk, and must appear in the raw material if there is to be a finished product. Suppose a farmer brings home a wagon load of lumber and five pounds of ten-penny nails and instructs his hired man to take a saw, cut up the lumber into small pieces, and nail the pieces together into boxes. The man would go to work and make boxes as long as the supply of nails held out, but after the nails were used up he could not make any more boxes, no matter how much lumber he had. So it is with the cow; she will manufacture milk as long as her supply of protein holds out, but after that is exhausted she cannot make any more milk, no matter how much of the other ingredients she may have. So the problem that confronts dairymen is not how to procure the maximum production of any one crop, but the maximum production of a variety of crops which, when combined, will furnish the nutrients needed by his cows, without much surplus of any one crop."

Take Better Care of Calves.

It is extremely doubtful if we can improve on the best specimens of beef cattle existing to-day, says the Live Stock World. They have almost reached the point of superlative excellence, both as to build and economy in feed consuming. But unfortunately the cattle of indifferent quality, and those ranking as poor and scrubs are in the great majority, and it is to the task of bringing the grades to a higher plane than we must devote ourselves.

Stinting calves of food after weaning time is one cause of deterioration. The young animal loses its mother's milk at a time when it is most needed, and left to shift for itself on scanty pasture, fails to make the growth needed to make it profitable. A continuous supply of food is imperative. The only way to secure better grade cattle is a distribution of pure-bred sires, and as the average farmer is reluctant to pay fancy prices, breeders must come to his terms if they are to claim him as a customer.

Jersey cattle are now registered up to the number of 219,000 in the Herd Register of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

Strike!—if they don't give you Jackson's Napa Soda.

Stopping Abortion in a Herd.

Some twenty-five years ago I had considerable experience in Lincolnshire, England, with contagious abortion among pure bred Shorthorns in that and neighboring counties. In addition to local disinfection we always used internal antiseptics, principally pure creosote. Afterwards when pure crystallized carbolic acid was put on the market by a large manufacturing concern we tried it with good success. Later on we returned to the use of pure creosote mainly owing to the fact that we found less of it was needed and that it did not cause the same bad effects on the kidneys which the continued use of carbolic acid is likely in some cases to produce.

During my term as state veterinarian of Colorado from 1893 to 1899, I frequently advised the use of internal antiseptics with considerable success where treatment was practicable, always of course with external disinfection, with a weak solution of bichloride of mercury. Acting on my advice printed in the veterinary Field and Farm Eugene Grubb, of Garfield county, completely and quickly eradicated contagious abortion in his purebred Shorthorn herd by this means. I do not write at this time, however, for the purpose of showing that the antiseptic treatment of contagious abortion is new, but to republish some practical pointers on the method of administering carbolic acid or creosote in such cases.

These agents are only partially soluble in water and unless exceedingly well mixed with the feed will blister the mouth or other portions of the digestive tract. In such cases harm may result and there is always a decided aversion on the part of the animal to continue the treatment. As both these agents are readily soluble in glycerine and when so dissolved easily mix with water or damp feed, they cause no local irritation and in addition become much more palatable to the animal. Hence I have found that carbolic acid or creosote given internally should always be first dissolved in twice the bulk of glycerine and the mixture should be well shaken before the addition of water or feed and in all cases both agents should be used absolutely pure. One dram of creosote is equal in potency, as an internal antiseptic, to four drams or one-half ounce of carbolic acid. The external disinfectant, with a weak solution of bichloride of mercury, is equally as important as the internal treatment.

CHAS. CRESSWELL.

Lou's Pfalzer, Chicago, is quoted as saying that out of every 4000 or 5000 head of cattle he buys he does not get ten carloads of really ripe, choice beef no matter what price he may pay or offer. The cattle, he says, are being sent to market about as fast as the feeders dare risk them and when they are dressed they show the results of the skimping policy that has been pursued in feeding them. Mr. Pfalzer further remarks that it costs the big packers eleven cents a pound to lay good beef down in New York and that there they are wholesaling it at 9 to 9½ cents per pound, which he remarks shows what sort of a game the packers are up against. When asked what he thought of the prospects for prices the coming season he said: "Good, ripe, fat finished cattle are bound to sell very high and all hands, butchers, slaughterers, buyers, wholesalers and retailers might just as well make up their minds to face the music now as at any other time."

MAKE YOUR SELECTION.

Any of the following Books will be sent Postpaid for the price named:

THE PRACTICAL HORSE KEEPER

By George Fleming, LL. D., F. R. C. V. S.

A guide to those who have to do with horses, containing chapters on Breeding, Purchasing, Stable and Stabling, Feeding and General Management, Riding, Hunting, Breaking and Training, Harness and Driving, Shoeing and Diseases of the Foot, Injuries, Lameness, Diseases of the Horse, the Ass and Mule, etc. Bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. .90c.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN TROTTER AND PACING HORSE

By Henry T. Coates.

The book, besides treating of Driving Horses, gives a condensed history of the best horses in this country, with mention of their best performances. It is invaluable in its suggestions to horse trainers, and is the latest book on this subject published. Illustrated with 4 fine pictures. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Bound in cloth. .90c.

YOUATT ON THE HORSE

The Horse. By Wm. Youatt.

Together with a General History of the Horse and a Dissertation on the American Trotting Horse and an essay on the Ass and the Mule, by J. S. Skinner. With an engraving on steel and 58 illustrations on wood. Bound in full cloth. Size, 5½ x 8½ inches. $1.15

THE HORSE IN THE STABLE AND IN THE FIELD

His management in health and disease. By J. H. Walsh, F. R. C. S. (Stonehenge). Illustrated with over 80 engravings from photographs. Handsomely bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. $1.15

DISEASES OF THE HORSE AND HOW TO TREAT THEM

By Robert Chawner.

New Edition and Concise Manual of Special Pathology for use of Horsemen, Farmers, Stock Raisers and Students of the Agricultural Colleges. Fully illustrated. Bound in cloth. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Cloth. $1.25

"It is an unpretending treatise free from technicalities, and well adapted for the use of farmers and stock raisers. The object of Dr. Chawner was to make a popular and reliable handbook in that department of veterinary science which treats of the horse and his diseases and in this object he has succeeded and supplied a practical want. There is no extraneous matter. Information is imparted with commendable brevity and in language plain and simple enough to be understood by all. The fallacies of the old school are rejected, and the treatment prescribed is that of modern practitioners."—Turf, Field and Farm.

THE AMERICAN GENTLEMAN'S STABLE GUIDE

The American Gentleman's Stable Guide, containing a description of the American Stable and Method of Feeding, Grooming and the general management of horses, together with the directions for the care of carriages, harness, etc. Fully illustrated. Pocket Edition. Size, 5 x 7 inches. Bound in cloth. $1.15

"The book contains a familiar description of the American stable, the most approved method of feeding, grooming and general management of horses, together with directions for the care of carriages, harness, etc. The whole is founded on the careful study and experience of many years of the author's life, and forms a valuable manual for any one who has charge of the noblest of man's irrational servants. Its low price and great value should give it general circulation among horsemen."—Indiana Farmer.

HORSE BREEDING RECOLLECTIONS

By Count Lehendorff

The Manager of the Government Stud of Germany, who has made a special study of the intricacies of horse breeding, and in the volume before us embodies the result of years of careful study. While all may not agree with his conclusions, none will dispute the value of his observations. Size, 5½ x 8½ inches Bound in full cloth. $1.15

"The recital of his experiences and the suggestions which he furnishes will undoubtedly prove of value to all who are interested in equine matters. Everyone so interested ought to own a copy of this valuable vade mecum."

THE TROTTER HORSE OF AMERICA

How to Train and Drive Him, with Reminiscences of the Trotting Turf.

By Hiram Woodruff.

Edited by Charles J. Foster. Including an Introductory Notice by George Wilkes and a Biographical Sketch by the Editor. With a steel portrait of the author and six engravings on wood of celebrated trotters. 12mo. Size, 5½ x 7½ inches. Cloth, extra. $1.25

"The author was one of the most noted horsemen of this country, and in the work before us has given to the public the best thoughts, founded on years of experience in the feeding, handling, breaking and training of colts with a view to securing their best performances. Besides treating of driving horses, it gives a condensed history of the best horses in this country, with a mention of their best performances. It is invaluable in its suggestions to horse trainers, and its rules laid down and suggestions given are as good as the day they were written."

this alone.

One special danger menaces those who live well, who can use champagne and fine liquors, and that is Bright's Disease. Posted clubmen understand this so well that many have tests made every few months. Others drink nothing but dry wines. But still the deaths reported from Bright's Disease and Diabetes are increasing at a fearful rate. The last census reports show that since 1890 the increase has been nearly fifty per cent and that the deaths in the United States alone from above causes and diseases growing out of them last year reached the enormous number of 132,000.

Hence the importance of every clubman knowing this one fact, viz.: That Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable in about 87% of all cases. The Fulton Compounds are now saving the lives of hundreds, and will, when better known, save the lives of thousands who are now with little hope.

WALTER WINANS

Vice President of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain

makes the following statement in his recent book,
"Art of Revolver Shooting."

The U. M. C. Co., U. S. A., have supplied me with large quantities of .44 gallery ammunition loaded with both round and semi-round bullets.

These have a small charge of black powder, and I should prefer this ammunition for self-defense as well as for competition up to 20 yards, as I find it the most accurate for exhibition shooting.

I think the U. M. C. gives slightly less recoil and fewer "unaccountables" than the English equivalent.

They also load these cartridges with smokeless powder, which I have used and with which I have made my bests on record in the rapid fire competition.

Send for new U. M. C. illustrated catalogues for further information concerning these modern Short Range or Gallery Cartridges, which are coming into wide use among experts and others. Game Laws and Shooting Records Free.

NO BOOKS WILL BE MADE at the California State Fair this year on harness races. This was decided upon by the Board of Directors at its meeting last Saturday and the thanks of every harness horse owner and lover of clean harness racing is due the Directors individually and collectively. They have done more by this one act to re-establish confidence in the sport than any other one thing they could possibly have done, and we hope the owners and trainers who have been praying for this change will now rally to the support of the State association and give it a list of entries for its harness purses that will exceed any list heretofore received and be evidence of the fact that the banishment of the books is appreciated. The State Agricultural Society having taken the lead it is the duty of every district association to follow its example. We hope the district boards will go further and decide to have no bookmaking on any of the speed contests, the only system permitted being auction pools and mutuels. It is becoming more evident every year that the taxpayers and others who patronize the fairs go there for some other purpose than gambling. It would be well if the authorities of the towns where fairs and race meetings are held would permit no gambling games other than those permitted by law to operate during the fair. For years the greatest objection made to the fairs by the farmers and the business men of the communities wherein they are held has been the fact that a horde of touts and tin horn gamblers follow the circuit and make themselves too conspicuous. If the fair managers will cater to the best people, strive to secure exhibits that will be interesting and instructive and ask the aid of the authorities in suppressing the swindling gambling games and the pestiferous touts, district fairs will soon regain their popularity with the public. The advent of bookmaking about six or seven years ago in California brought in its wake a lot of people who have brought racing into disrepute. Touts are without an occupation where bookmaking is not permitted, so that the fair managers have within their power a very easy and effective method of elevating the standard of their annual exhibitions and getting rid of the touts by making auctions and mutuels the only methods of speculation on the speed contests. The State Agricultural Society deserves the thanks of all good citizens for its action in abolishing bookmaking on harness races. Let every district association resolve to do as well.

THE SPECIAL HARNESS STALLION STAKE offered by the California State Agricultural Society will close for the nomination of stallions to-day. The cost to name a stallion in the stake so that his get foaled this year may be eligible, is the amount of his service fee last year providing he stood for public service. Otherwise it is $20. When the entries are all in we hope to be able to chronicle the fact that a large majority of the standard bred stallions on this Coast have been named. If the stallion owners make nominations as they should the stake will be the largest ever contested for by three-year-olds this side of the Mississippi river. Every stallion that is worth advertising or worth printing a card for is worth entering in this stake, and it is due the owners of mares who paid money for service fees last year that the colts obtained from such services should be made eligible to this great stake. This is the last opportunity the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will have to call the attention of stallion owners to the fact that this stake will close to-day, and we hope none will forget it or fail to nominate their horses. It will help the business in every way and lead to more extensive breeding every year.

INGLESIDE TRACK, the most beautiful and best appointed racing plant on the Pacific Coast, must remain closed. The San Francisco Supervisors last Monday, by a vote of 12 to 6, defeated the ordinance introduced for the purpose of permitting the track to be again opened for racing. While a large number of representative business men appealed to the Board to permit betting on races within a race track inclosure, there was a larger opposing representation from other business houses and from the churches, and even the Chamber of Commerce sent in a request that the ordinance be defeated. A sentiment has been worked up in this community against racing which it will be very difficult to change for some time to come. It came through the race track war which began in 1895, and which led to the same result that all race track wars reach. Owing to this state of affairs a property that cost nearly a million dollars to complete is a bill of expense instead of a source of revenue to its owners. It is to be hoped that before long the city's legislative body will consider the racing question with the attention and in the broad minded manner due it, and pass an ordinance that will permit the property to be used during a reasonable period each year.

DEFINITE SHAPE is being assumed by the California circuit of fairs and race meetings for 1902, and there is every prospect that it will be far ahead of anything attempted in years. The district associations that have already claimed dates for their annual fairs are the Napa Agricultural Society, August 11th to 16th; Golden Gate Agricultural Association, Oakland, August 16th to 23d; District No. 40, Woodland, August 25th to 30th; State Fair, September 1st to 13th, and District No. 15, Bakersfield, which claims the week prior to Los Angeles, which will probably be in October. Santa Rosa, Vallejo, Stockton and the Breeders Association have not yet claimed dates, neither have many of the smaller districts, but they will all be in line before many weeks. As it is six associations that will give good purses are already in the field, have selected dates and will soon advertise early closing stakes. The rains of the past week have caused a feeling of confidence in the farming and fruit growing districts and everything points to a year of prosperity in California, in which all those interested in harness horse affairs should have a share.

THE BURNS HANDICAP, the richest stake run for in California, is down for decision to-day at Oakland and will attract a large attendance to the track no matter what the weather may be. The outlook at this writing is for a sloppy track, which will be much more satisfactory and bring out a larger field than would have been the case had the weather cleared and the track become sticky and heavy. The allotment of weights by Mr. Brooks has called forth praise from all sides, and there has not been a single harsh criticism from any of those making original entries in the big event. Nones will probably be the favorite in all the books, with the Smith stable, comprising Articulate and Greyfield next in favor.

NO RACING AT TANFORAN will be held by the New California Jockey Club this season. An announcement was made by the club management early in the present week that racing would be transferred to the Tanforan track about February 22d, but it met with such a storm of objections on the part of horse owners that the decision was reconsidered and it is now announced that the racing season will finish where it began, at Oakland. While the Tanforan track is an ideal one, the transportation facilities are at present insufficient to satisfy horse owners and race-goers.

IF THE STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY can see its way clear to opening two good sized stakes, one for slow class trotters, the other for slow class pacers, it would do much to make harness racing in California more interesting this year. There should be at least two thousand dollars guarantee for each event, and nominations should close not later than the middle of March. By making the first payment a small one it is certain that a big entry list could be obtained, as horse owners could not fail to see that the winner of one such stake would get more money than the winner of several average purses. Three payments of $20, $30 and $50 respectively would be about right, and make up the five per cent entrance. Horses need not be named until the first of August. Such stakes as these would not cost the society a very large amount as the entrance would make up the most of the stake. The principal district associations should aim to have one or two stakes of $1000 or over. One big attraction serves to draw many people that would not otherwise attend, as witness the M. and M. and other leading events over east each year.

ENTRIES for the stakes of the Westchester Racing Association and the Washington Jockey Club close to-day. Full particulars of these stakes will be found in our issue of last week and the week previous.

Another Week of Harness Racing.

Oakland has claimed its dates and the California Circuit begins to look pretty well on paper. As it now stands Napa will open the campaign August 11th for a week of racing ending on the 16th. The Golden Gate District Agricultural Association of Oakland claims the dates August 16th to 23d, Woodland will have the following week ending the 30th, the State Fair will follow with a program extending through the first two weeks in September, and of course Stockton will follow the State Fair. Los Angeles has not yet claimed a date, but will soon do so, and the Kern County District Association has already claimed the week prior to whatever date Los Angeles may select. San Jose has claimed July 3d, 4th and 5th for an early meeting, and the people of Eureka, Humboldt county, have made the P. C. T. H. B. A. an offer to hold a meeting over this track on the same dates. Pleasanton desires to give a meeting, and the Contra Costa County Fair will be held at Concord as usual with a better program and larger purses than ever. Red Bluff has already decided to hold a fair and race meeting and will probably unite with Yreka and Redding in a circuit, in which Colusa, Marysville and Chico may also have dates. Salinas will give a fair and so will Hollister, and there will be fairs and race meetings at Ukiah, Hanford and other points. By the 1st of March associations will begin advertising their early closing stakes and we learn there will be a number of extra good ones this year. The harness horses will have a chance to earn some money this year in California.

Overland Racing Association.

A letter from W. H. Schuckman, secretary, gives the information that an association called the Overland Racing Association has been formed in Colorado, embracing the tracks at Trinidad, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Denver, and that a circuit has been arranged for this year. Trinidad has a good half mile track and work is being done on it now to put it in first class shape; Pueblo has a new half mile track, one of the finest in the United States; Colorado Springs' track is being resoled and greatly benefitted, and the track at Overland Park is having a new coating of soil placed on it and various other improvements made. The Denver people confidently expect to hold the greatest meeting this year ever held there and the chances are very bright for their doing so. The list of purses for trotters and pacers is already out, and we notice that $1000 is offered for 2:20 and 2:12 class pacers, and the same amounts for 2:25 and 2:17 trotters. Besides there are over twenty purses of $500 each for trotters and pacers of other classes. Nominations to the early closing purses will close March 15th and the regular purses May 15th. The Denver meeting will open June 21st and close July 5th.

George W. Leavitt is enthusiastic over the speed which Achille, the son of Blngen, which he sold to Lemuel Hitchcock, proprietor of Marlboro Stock Farm, last fall, has been showing on the road this winter. Achille is a four year old out of Starlight 2:15½, daughter of Electioneer and Sally Benton 2:17½, which in 1884 lowered the four year old trotting record to 2:17½. Sally Benton is out of Sontag Mohawk, dam of eight in 2:30, and is second only to Beautiful Bells among the noted band of broodmares which made Palo Alto Farm famous.

Suggestions About Harness Racing.

ABBOTSFORD INN—LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—As the winter months are almost over and every owner and trainer of a harness horse is beginning to wonder what will his harvest be the coming season, and there is a lot of talk and comment as to what is the best manner to conduct race meetings and county fairs, so as to satisfy both the horseman and the public. Now to look at the horseman side of it, it costs a lot of money to raise, feed, train and equip a race horse; it costs money to pay railroad fares, entrance money, hotel bills, shoeing, labor and the many other incidentals. The thing a horseman wants to race for is good purses, to be paid his earnings after each race, and to receive fair and courteous treatment from the officials of the race track.

When he has shipped his horses into a city on the supposition that he is going to race in certain classes he should be provided with just what the printed conditions on the entry blank calls for, and his mode of doing business will be just as good and just as profitable as any other class of amusement before the public in California.

Now, in order for associations to pay purses, treat horsemen fairly, and for associations to be prosperous, the association must have the confidence of the public, and its looks very plain to the writer that the public confidence can be secured. Large attendance will be assured and sufficient money taken in at each meeting to pay purses and expenses, and leave a balance for the association. Give good purses and be prepared to pay them; let all pool selling and gambling be done outside of the track.

Do not permit the bar in the centre of everything; do not allow the rabble and the tout to predominate. Have the merchant and the farmer, the churchman, the rich man and the public in general understand that the meeting is not held for the benefit of the pool seller and the saloon man. Let the public understand that the meeting is not a gambling place. Every man may bring his family, and his wife and children will not be compelled to sit and see or hear the degrading talk usual in a beer and whisky drinking crowd. Induce the churchman as well as the non-churchman to attend. If anyone thinks it cannot be done, refer to the meeting held at Hamline, Minnesota, last fall.

There are other attractions to please the public which can be had to go with racing and the California public will enjoy them. If any desire pools, let them be sold away from the track. Have good square men officiate.

The writer is neither a temperance man nor a preacher, in fact is engaged in the sale of liquor, and has been for twenty years, yet he believes racing will prosper without pool selling or a bar, unless the latter be in the remote spot on the grounds.

The coming year will be the most prosperous one California has ever had and every merchant, hotel man, farmer and lover of good horses and the best sport on earth should give the county fair their early attention. Yours truly,

C. A. HARRISON.

How Much Hay to Feed.

It is a general among farmers to feed too much hay to their horses during all seasons of the year, and, particularly, during the winter, when the horses are not busy. Too much hay means an abnormal development of the stomach capacity. This is commonly referred to by farmers as "pot-bellied," and is produced by the animals consuming large quantities of hay, so that the whole abdomen is unnaturally expanded, giving the horse a very ungainly appearance. It is neither conducive to good looks or the general health of the animal. Some horses seem to know when they have eaten enough, and will stop; but the average horse eats, seemingly, for the sake of eating until he has gorged himself to ungainly proportions. No animal needs hay in any such quantities. Gradually work the heavy feeding down to a point on which the animal can supply its existent wants and sufficient for what work it has to do. There is no fixed rule more than that a horse should be supplied with about two pounds of provender each day for every 100 pounds of weight. If a small amount of grain is given in connection with good, first-class hay, this will be quite sufficient—better for the animal and far more economical for the owner.

We find the following item in the Santa Cruz Surf of last Monday: "Sandy" Smith was up from Aptos Saturday evening and chaperoned a party of his Santa Cruz lady admirers to the Arion masquerade. Mr. Smith, who is well known in turf circles, is in charge of a string of thoroughbred trotters at the Spreckels ranch." We cannot stand for the term "thoroughbred trotters," as trotters are not thoroughbreds. The Surf scribe probably got his item a little mixed and meant to apply the adjective to the ladies.

No Books on Harness Races at State Fair.

[Record-Union, Feby. 9.]

At a meeting of the State Board of Agricultural Directors yesterday afternoon Adolph B. Spreckels was unanimously re-elected President of the Board. Director Fred Cox placed Mr. Spreckels in nomination, and in seconding the nomination both Grove L. Johnson and A. W. Barrett alluded to the candidate's special adaptation to the position, as evinced by qualifications displayed in the past.

Director Fred Cox was nominated for Vice President by A. W. Barrett, and Frank W. Covey and Benjamin Rush seconded the nomination in neat speeches. Mr. Cox was also elected unanimously. Director Grove L. Johnson was selected as Superintendent of the Pavilion, and John Mackey was elected Superintendent of the Park.

The following members were present; A. B. Spreckels, A. W. Barrett, Grove L. Johnson, John Mackey, Benjamin Rush, Frank W. Covey, C. W. Paine, Fred Cox.

The committee appointed to inquire into the subject of the title of the Park property reported that the society is the owner of the Park, with certain limitations.

Director Johnson said that the title of the property is worth more than the $45,000 which the State proposed to pay for it, as a bona fide offer had been received of $52,000, and the purchaser at that price would undoubtedly double his money on it by parceling in out in building lots. If the Park could be sold for $60,000 it would place the society out of debt.

Director Cox said that as the city is growing in that direction the value of the property is insured. He is not in favor of disposing of the property without an adequate return is received.

The subject of betting was taken up, and it was ordered that there should be no more bookmaking on harness events, but that mutuals would be sold on heats, and auctions and that mutuals would be the result of the races.

The following committees were appointed by the Chair: Executive Committee—Grove L. Johnson, Joseph E. Terry, C. W. Paine, Fred Cox.

Finance—Fred Cox, J. E. Terry, Grove L. Johnson, B. Rush.

Printing and Publication—Grove L. Johnson, F. W. Covey, M. D. Chamberlain.

Library—M. D. Chamberlain, C. W. Paine, B. Rush.

Speed Committee—J. E. Terry, F. W. Covey, C. W. Paine, Assistant Secretary H. Lowden.

Legal—Park Henshaw, Grove L. Johnson, L. Harris.

Two Good Stallions at Mayfield.

The well known horseman, C. C. Crippen, has placed in the stud at Mayfield, Santa Clara county, two stallions that are worthy of patronage by the farmers of that locality who desire to breed good roadsters or horses with speed enough for the trade. The horses are Prince Ansel, two year old record 2:20½, and Alexander Malone. Prince Ansel is by Dexter Prince, sire of Eleata 2:08½ (the greatest money winner on the Grand Circuit last year), James L. 2:09 and 52 more in 2:30, and his dam is Woodflower, great broodmare by Ansel 2:20, son of Electioneer. Prince Ansel's record was made in the second heat of a winning race when a two year old, having trotted the first heat in 2:22½. It is doubtful if a faster young colt was ever bred at Palo Alto, and had he not been retired on account of an injured ankle 2:10 should not have stopped him. He has a wonderful amount of natural speed and is such a splendid type of the trotting horse that he will please the most critical. His first crop of colts are now yearlings and they stamp him as a coming sire.

Alexander Malone is a young horse with great style. He has good bone and substance and excellent trotting action, and though never worked for speed can show a 2:30 clip. Alexander Malone is the best bred son of Alexander Button, sire of Yolo Maid 2:12, Tom Ryder 2:13½, Margaret Worth 2:15, and many other fast ones. The dam of Alexander Malone is Carrie Malone, a full sister to Klatawah 2:05½, Chas. Derby 2:20 (sire of Much Better 2:07½, Derby Princess 2:08½, Diablo 2:09½ and others), being by Steinway out of Katie G. by Electioneer. A full sister to Alexander Malone has worked a mile in 2:13.

The service fee of Prince Ansel has been placed at $40 and of Alexander Malone at $25. Send to Mr. Crippen for cards containing extended pedigrees.

There was a great sensation on the Toledo speedway Monday afternoon, when Geo Ketcham came out entirely unannounced with Cresceus, with his racing harness and felt boots and drove him four times through at speed. The sidewalk brigade went wild with enthusiasm and all the other drivers pulled up to witness the remarkable demonstration.

Oakwood Park Stallions.

Three of the stallions at the celebrated Oakwood Park Stock Farm, Danville, Contra Costa county, will stand for public service this year, viz: Chas. Derby 2:20 and Owyhee 2:11, at $50 each, and the young and untried, but royally bred Arner 31,300, a full brother to Diablo 2:09½, at $25.

Chas. Derby 2:20 is considered by the best posted horsemen in California to be one of the greatest stallions ever bred on the Pacific Coast. He has sired three in the 2:10 list already and better race horses than those three big money winners, Derby Princess 2:08½, Diablo 2:09½ and Owyhee 2:11 are seldom sired by one horse.

The 2:10 performers in close relationship to Chas. Derby make a remarkable showing, and will surprise those who have never given the subject much thought. His sire, Steinway, gained the world's record for three year olds when he trotted a mile in a race at Lexington, August 28, 1879, in 2:25½, lowering the great Elaine's mark by two and a quarter seconds. The fastest three year old pacing gelding at the present time is Agitato 2:09½ by Steinway, and Klatawah, his son, holds the world's record of 2:05½ for three year old pacing colts.

The 2:10 performers descended from Steinway are quite numerous, as the following will show:

Sired by Steinway.

KLATAWAH 2:05½, W. Wood 2:07, Agitato 2:09, Cricket 2:10.

Sired by sons.

CHAS. DERBY 2:20—Much Better 2:07½, Derby Princess 2:08½, Diablo 2:09½.

STRATHWAY 2:19—Toggles 2:08½.

Sired by grandson.

DIABLO 2:09½—Clipper 2:06, Sir Albert S. 2:08½.

Sired by son of daughter.

WM. HAROLD 2:13½—Janice 2:08½.

Steinway's full sister, Siro is the only mare that shares with Beautiful Bells the honor of producing ten standard performers. Among them is C. F. Clay 2:18, that is the sire of Connor 2:03½, Coleridge 2:05½ and Choral 2:06½. Soprano 2:08½ and Nannie Etticoat, is the dam of Split Silk 2:08½ and Red 2:10.

Chas. Derby's sire being such a progenitor of 2:10 speed, let us look at his dam's side of the house. She is the great broodmare Katie G., dam of five in 2:30, one of them Klatawah 2:05½, the champion three year old of the world, and she is by the mighty Electioneer, whose 2:10 trotting descendants exceed in number those of any other horse in the first three generations. Back of this Electioneer blood is some of the best long distance thoroughbred blood in the world. Chas. Derby not only inherits extreme speed and gameness, but he transmits both qualities.

Owyhee 2:11 was one of the best money winners of the Grand Circuit of 1899, since which time he has been in the stud. He is a young horse yet, having been foaled in 1894. He is by Chas. Derby out of a great broodmare by Simmons, second dam by the great Mambrino Patchen 58 and third dam thoroughbred. Owyhee is one of the grandest individuals ever bred at Oakwood Park, and his colts now coming on are very much like him in appearance. There are a number of his three year olds that will take records as soon as they are raced, and some in training now at the farm show great speed.

Arner, the brother to Diablo 2:09½ is a very handsome brown colt that is just four years old this month. He is one of the best of the many good ones that have been produced by the great mare Bertha by Alcantara. At $25 the season he should be extensively patronized.

At the Oakwood Park Farm Superintendent Fred Booth is now directing the training of about twenty head and these and many more of as fine lookers as can be found in California are for sale. More fast horses have been sold from Oakwood Park Stock Farm, considering the number bred, than the majority of the large breeding farms of America.

Boodle Jr. at Watsonville.

Among the young stallions that will be in the stud in California this year is Boodle Jr. He will be located at Watsonville in charge of Mr. F. M. Hammett. Boodle Jr. was bred by Hon. Jesse D. Carr of Salinas and is one of the best proportioned young stallions in California with size, style and action. He is by that good race horse and sire Boodle 2:12½, sire of Ethel Downs 2:10 and several others in the list. The dam of Boodle Jr. is Nina B. by Electioneer, sire of Arion 2:07½, Sunol 2:08½, Palo Alto 2:08½ and 163 more in the list. His second dam is Gabilan Maid by Carr's Mambrino, third dam Ida May Jr. by Owen Dale. No more promising young horse stands for service in California this year than Boodle Jr. During the past two years he has been bred to a number of Mr. Carr's best mares and the colts are well entered in the colt stakes.

Notes and News.

A good circuit is assured.

Dates have been claimed for six meetings.

Golden Gate Fair, August 16th to 23d inclusive.

There will be many changes in the rules this year.

Brighton Beach will be in the Grand Circuit this year.

John Splan thinks of campaigning a stable of horses this year.

Attend the Haywards stallion and horse show, March 8th.

Kingmond 2:09 and Who Is It 2:10½ will both be used on the road.

The Charter Oak $10,000 stake will be for 2:11 or 2:12 class trotters.

According to the Grand Circuit schedule the purses will amount to $40,000.

Lord Derby (2:06½) is being jogged six or eight miles on the road every day.

Let the public know where your stallion is and the amount of his service fee.

One of the fastest green horses in Ed. Geers' string is Dandy Chimes, by Chimes.

Ed Geers has in his stable a half-brother to Nancy Hanks 2:04. The colt was sired by Director 2:17.

Secretary McCully is hopeful of securing the Boralma-Lord Derby match race for the Brighton Beach meeting.

One of the fastest youngsters at the Forbes Farm is a four-year old filly by Bingen 2:06½, dam Vina Belle 2:15½ by Nephew.

The Primate, brother to The Abbot 2:03½ is developing into a fine looking youngster. He is a bay with a white star.

Julia M., a filly by Zombro, won a matinee race at Los Angeles last Saturday in a jog in 2:28. She can about 2:20 right now.

Gold Coin, a Zombro colt out of Leonor, the dam of Dr. Book 2:10 and others, worked a mile in 2:27 at the Los Angeles track last week.

George H. Ketcham has announced that if all goes well, Cresceus 2:02½ will make an effort to beat his record at Memphis next October.

A well known California horseman was offered $1500 the other day for a McKinney mare four years old and declined it. The mare has no record.

The Los Angeles Driving Club will hold a race meeting on Washington's Birthday. Some good events will come off, and a big time is expected.

W. L. Snow who offered $3,500 for Anzella 2:10½, has purchased from A. J. Feek, Syracuse, the bay pacing mare Red Princess, 2:12½. Price, $4,000.

You Bet 2:11½ by McKinney, will be entered through the Grand Circuit in the 2:12 class. His owner, Chauncy Sumner will do his own driving.

An experienced trainer gives it as his opinion that a yearling colt should not be given more than one fast quarter near his limit in his yearling form.

It is not certain that Jack Curry will sit behind Prince Alert 2:00½ again this year. Rumor already places the king of geldings with Mart Demarest.

The pacing mare Whisper 2:08½, now in foal to Chimes, will be bred to Cresceus 2:02½ next spring. She is the dam of a yearling filly by Star Pointer 1:59½.

One of the handsomest photo-engravings of a horse ever printed appeared in the last issue of the Chicago Horseman. It was from a photograph of the great Allerton.

Palo Alto Farm has sold the two year old colt Laurelain by Dexter Prince, dam Laura C. 2:29½, dam of Laurel 2:14½ by Electioneer. The colt will go to Nicaragua, Central America.

Bessie Hal, dam of the fast green pacer Direct Hal that worked a trial mile for Ed. Geers in 2:06½, will be shipped to James Butler's East View Farm to be bred to Direct 2:05½ once more.

Lady Marvin by Don Marvin foaled a colt February 11th by Diawood 2:11. Lady Marvin was named by Sol Loorya of Arbuckle in the Breeders Futurity Stakes for mares bred in 1901.

In the last municipal election at New York, E. E. Smathers, the owner of Lord Derby 2:06½, made and won the largest single wager of the campaign, betting $25,000 on Low against $20,000 on Shepard.

Dolly Bidwell 2:09½ is at the stable of her owner, T. H. Phair, Presque, Me., where she will be jogged during the winter. She will be campaigned again by George Leavitt next season.

Lucille H. 2:12 foaled twin fillies at the Megargee Stock Farm, Coatesville, Pa., on January 28th. They were sired by Be Sure 2:06½, and are bays, one somewhat darker than the other.

Sable Wilkes 2:18 is now at the head of the stud at Stevens Farm, Barre, Mass. This farm has recently sold Young Wildidle, b h by Electioneer-Wildidle, to Caldwell Bros., Bakersfield, Vt.

Motanic, the young stallion by Chehalis that is owned by Mr. John Wise of this city, has been in the care of Chas. Johnson of Woodland since last fall and is in fine shape. He is very fast and may be raced this year.

It is reported that Lita W. 2:13½, and Electric Wilkes 2:17½, who were bought for export work and shipped abroad a few months ago, both died at sea, together, with a green trotter, unnamed, in their company.

Vet Kent is training the fast mare Primrose 2:13 and the mare Sweetheart at Los Angeles. He is also working the gelding Leo by Ed Wilkes out of an A. W. Richmond mare, and expects to have several more in his string before long.

San Telmo 2:16½ by Arion 2:07½, that was raced so successfully over the New England half-mile tracks last season, is being wintered by Barry Bros. at Boston, and will be campaigned again next season, when he is expected to enter the 2:10 list.

William G. Layng, the well known auctioneer, went to Sacramento last Saturday and leased the block on the corner of 20th and F streets, just opposite Agricultural Park, which he will hold the big sale of broodmares, stallions and geldings from the Palo Alto and Vina farms, which will be held during the State Fair in September.

George H. Ketcham, owner of Cresceus 2:02½, has received a letter from W. Cairns, a brewer in Bendigo, Australia, asking him to give his best price on one of Cresceus's colts and inquiring how soon it could be shipped. He writes there is great interest in Cresceus in that country and he desires to own the first Cresceus colt that arrives there.

William G. Layng held another of his successful sales last Monday when he disposed of 84 head of ordinary wagon and express horses from Modoc county at an average of $80.80. He has several more sales in view, and the fine roofed and seated pavilion at 721 Howard street, where these sales are held, make it an ideal place during this rainy weather.

The good pacer Toppy 2:11½, son of Delphi 2:12½, is running out at present, but will be taken up shortly by his owner, Chas. Whitehead, who is at present located at Lodi and put in training for the races. Toppy was one of the best pacers out last season, winning very close to $2000 on the California circuit, getting first money in six races.

The Directors of the Tehama Agricultural Association have decided to hold a district fair at Red Bluff about the end of September or 1st of October. If possible, a racing circuit will be arranged with the associations at Redding and Yreka. The officers of the Tehama association are D. S. Cone, President; John N. Gregg, Vice President, and M. R. Hook, Secretary.

Mr. J. Broliar of Visalia, who has been in this city for a few days, says the handsomest and best looking son of Direct 2:05½ he ever saw is owned by R. O. Newman of Visalia. The colt is a yearling of good size, black as night. His dam is by Robert Basler, son of Antevolo, second dam Pasha 2:039, third dam by A. W. Richmond. Mr. Broliar says he made an offer of $1000 for the colt but Mr. Newman declined it.

Bonnie Direct 2:05½ is getting some royally bred mares this year. He should be one of the greatest sires in the Director family as there is no better bred one, being by Direct 2:05½ out of Bon Bon, the dam also of Bonsilene 2:14½ by Simmons, grandam by Geo. Wilkes. Look at the summary of three of Bonnie Direct's races printed in his advertisement in this paper. It is a record of extreme speed and wonderful gameness.

A match race came off last Thursday at the Los Angeles track between Mr. Fred B. Taylor's mare Primrose 2:13 by Falrose and Mr. E. T. Earl's mare Sweetheart by Butler's Bashaw. Both these mares were purchased by their present owners at the dispersal sale of Milo M. Potter's horses last December, and ever since there has been considerable discussion between the owners as to which owns the faster animal. The race was mile heats, best two in three, and was won easily by Primrose in straight heats. The time of the first heat was 2:15 and of the second 2:17½. About three hundred persons witnessed the race.

Last Monday at Agricultural Park, Los Angeles, there was a match workout between the three mares, Sweet Marie, Sweetheart and Primrose. It was agreed to go three heats, and Primrose was to beat the other mares four seconds to be even. The conditions gave Sweetheart the pole, Sweet Marie next and Primrose on the outside, and to be allowed a prompter. The first heat was won by Primrose in 2:09½, Sweet Marie and Sweetheart coming in about even in 2:21½. The second heat was won by Primrose in 2:12½, Sweet Marie's time being 2:14½ and Sweetheart's 2:16½. In the third heat the finish was very close, Sweet Marie finishing in front in 2:15 flat, Primrose second in 2:15½ and Sweetheart third in 2:15½.

Attorney General Knox, who has been notified by the Humane Society of Washington to lower the check of his horse, has decided to defy the society. He will continue to check his trotters just as high as they have been and challenges the society to bring the matter into court. Mr. Knox asserts that his horses are not checked too high. They are highly bred animals, he says, and naturally hold their heads in the air. Now it is the society's move.

W. W. Estill, in speaking of Adbell, says he thinks him the most remarkable sire of any time. He has just six foals four years old, two of them Futurity winners, Rowellen (3), 2:15½, being the best one by the record. Another one of them has a record of 2:25½, another is in the breeding ranks and the other three have shown speed of the Grand Circuit order. Public appreciation of them is shown in the prices they have brought at the November sale at Madison Square. Two yearlings sold for $1,450, average of $725 each; six weanlings averaged $558 per head, an average never equaled by any sire.

Ben Liebes, the McKinney five year old out of a Robert McGregor mare, was shipped to Los Angeles last week in charge of Mr. Durfee's son Vince, who turned him over to Will Durfee, who will train him and perhaps take him East this year. Ben Liebes worked a mile last year in 2:13½ and is one of the grandest young stallions in California. His size has prevented his being raced much, but he started three times as a three year old, and was second to The Roman in the Stanford Stakes. He has no record. Ben Liebes is 17 hands high, handsomely proportioned and will make one of the greatest stock horses in America. We look to see him enter the 2:10 list this year.

There are quite a number of horses being worked at the Lodi track at present. Charley Whitehead moved his horses from the Stockton track out to Lodi the first of the year. He has Delphi 2:12½, a green pacing mare by Derby Ash that has been worked a mile in 2:18, last half in 1:08; a green trotter by Moses S., belonging to L. Moring, of Stockton, that stepped a mile in 2:25 and an eighth in 16½ seconds, a three year old by Directum 2:05½ out of Albinio 2:21 that can show close to a 2:20 gait pacing, and belongs to R. W. Russell, of Stockton. Mr. Sangster has four head, Tom Holmes, of Sacramento, has four and J. Holbrook, the lessee of the track, has several. The Lodi track is in fine shape, the stalls all in good condition and but 50 cents per month is charged for them.

The Stable and Carriage Owners Association, of San Francisco, has filed with the clerk of the Board of Supervisors a petition "to take immediate action to rectify the reckless and dangerous manner in which automobiles are driven over the principal streets." Several suggestions are made, among them being one that each machine be compelled "to carry a significant number prominently displayed," and that operators of machines be compelled to slacken speed when approaching a horse, and, if a horse should show symptoms of fright, bring their machines to a standstill. The hundreds of signatures to the petition are headed by the Golden Gate Park Driving Association, E. Aigeltinger, President. An ordinance as proposed should be passed at once. If a horse should be driven through the streets at the speed which many of the automobiles run, its owner would be arrested forthwith.

Cyrus Lukens writes as follows to the Trotter and Pacer: "All the talk about 'new blood' among the representatives of the National Trotting Association that are sent to represent the local associations at their annual meetings, or at the coming congress, is simply wide of the mark. Some actual use of that scarce article, 'common sense,' is required. Two important things are necessary, viz.: Abolish heat betting at any and all cost. No amount of percentage returns to any local association can atone for the open-door to rascality that heat betting offers. Close the door. That is the business required. Then a horse not winning a heat in three must go to the stable. There is clean business in a business way. Do not shorten the distance. Enforce the two above, and the distance will take care of itself, while the marked improvement in the business transactions of all trotting meetings will surprise those who make a study of that subject."

Now that Tom Marsh has succeeded Jimmy Gatcomb as trainer and driver of the Lawson horses and it becomes apparent that the Bostonian's talk of not racing any more is not to be taken seriously, there is a good deal of curiosity as to why the change was made. A writer in the Kentucky Farm, who is a personal friend of Mr. Lawson, and whose utterances on the subject of the Lawson horses have, therefore, an ex-cathedra flavor, intimates in the current issue of that publication that Gatcomb did not have Boralma, the Lawson pride, in the pink of condition when he was pulled out to race against Lord Derby at Hartford last summer. Says the Stock Farm: "Boralma wintered well at Hartford one year ago and began his spring work high in flesh. In July he was a marvel, and all who saw him were positive in their belief that a new trotting champion was to be found in the son of Boreal. Whether or not his trainer succeeded in getting rid of the superfluous layers of fat that accumulated during the winter is a mooted question. I have heard more than one trainer of ability say the horse never was fit, and such would seem to have been the case from the fact that in his races with Lord Derby he tired at the finish of the miles, something he was never known to do before, for Boralma, when keyed up to a race for his life, had never stopped in the slightest degree, and, while he seemed last year to have all of his wonderful speed, he failed to come to expectations when it came to living out the race."

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet.

Director Dexter Prince.

Few stallions have a greater speed inheritance than Delphi 2:12½ the fast pacer owned by Chas. Whitehead of Stockton, who has taken that horse to the Lodi track to make the season of 1902. Delphi was sired by Director 2:17 that scion of the great Dictator family that sired Directum 2:05½ and Direct 2:05½, both champion race horses and both sires of extreme speed and wonderful gameness. The dam of Delphi was by Dexter Prince, sire of Eleata 2:08½ biggest money winner of the Grand Circuit last season, the renowned Merchants and Manufacturers stake being among her victories. The second dam of Delphi was by Priam, whose son Frank M. 2:17½ was one of the best race horses ever seen in California, and his third dam was by the thoroughbred horse imported Partisan.

Delphi is one of the fastest and gamest of the Director family. Last year he was faster than ever in his life, but met with an accident and could not be raced owing to lameness. He had a representative on the circuit however in the handsome pacer Toppy that started a green horse and wound up the season with a record of 2:11½, six races and very close to $2,000 to his credit. Toppy is the only one of Delphi's get ever trained or started in a race and this is a pretty good showing for the first one.

At the fee of $25 which Mr. Whitehead has fixed for Delphi's services he is one of the cheapest stallion considering his many qualifications ever in the stud in California.

Seymour Wilkes 2:08 1-2.

"The fastest horse ever bred in California," is the term that used to be applied to Seymour Wilkes when he was racing here, and now that he is in the stud and has a number of three and four year olds, he is being called "the most uniform young sire of size, style and speed." There has never been a trotting bred horse standing for public service in this State that could show as many handsome sixteen hand, 1100 pound three year olds as this son of Guy Wilkes. They all look like him and are bringing him mares from breeders all over this part of California who have seen them. But one of his get ever started in a race—Joe Eviston, and he took a three year old race record of 2:22 and worked miles well below 2:20. Joe Eviston is a very handsome horse and was game as a pebble. Seymour Wilkes was as game a race horse as ever scored for the word. In the holiday issue of this journal were photoengravings of Seymour Wilkes and five of his get. Four were three year olds and one a two year old. None were less than sixteen hands high and none weighed less than 1000 pounds, the majority going to 1100. No finer looking lot of three year olds were ever sired by any horse. Seymour Wilkes will be at the stud at Lakeville, Sonoma county, this year as usual at $40 the season. If any person in San Francisco desires to see what sort of colts Seymour Wilkes produces he will be shown several if he will call at the St. George Stables on Bush street, just above Kearny, and ask for Mr. Gregory, owner of the horse. He has the goods and it is no trouble to show them.

Billy Thornhill 2:24 1-2 at Milpitas.

Down at Milpitas James Boyd will have that well bred producing stallion Billy Thornhill in the stud this year at $25 the season. Billy Thornhill is the sire of Ned Thorne 2:11½, Lady Thornhill 2:17, Briarhill 2:18½, Great Stakes 2:20 and other fast trotters. Great Stakes has already sired a half dozen in the list, and is one of the most promising sires over East, and many of his colts now in training are showing extremespeed. Billy Thornhill is by Beverley Wilkes, a producing son of George Wilkes 2:22, that died when a three year old, and his dam is the great broodmare Emily by Geo. Wilkes; second dam a great broodmare by Ashland 47, son of Mambrino Chief 11. Billy Thornhill is a deep mahogany bay, no white, stands 15.2½ hands high, weighs about 1100 pounds and is a fine individual. Being by a son of George Wilkes and out of a daughter of that horse, he has more of the blood of that great sire in his veins than any horse in California and should be a great cross for mares that do not have that blood. Mr. Boyd will pasture mares at $2 per month and they can be shipped to him at Milpitas. The usual return privileges will be given to mares not proving in foal.

An Eastern horseman who looked Stam B. 2:11½ over at Pleasanton the other day remarked that this son of Stamboul could capture the blue ribbon for stallions at the New York Horse Show over all the horses that have thus far been shown there. This is high praise, but then Stam B. is one of the best looking horses ever seen in any country.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

Stallion and Horse Show at Haywards.

[Haywards Journal.]

Haywards will hold a horse show on Saturday, March 8th, and judging from the representative horsemen behind it, it will be a great success in every particular. A number of our horsemen held a meeting last week and proceeded to effect an organization to hold a horse show here this spring. The officers elected are:

President.....Geo. Gray
Vice President.....Geo. Grindell
Secretary.....Geo. A. Oakes
Treasurer.....J. E. Geary

After a general discussion, Saturday, March 8th, was the date fixed for the exhibition. The chair then appointed the following committees:

Committee of arrangements—A. Ramage, G. S. Langan, M. Henry.

Finance Committee—J. E. Geary, W. J. Ramage, G. S. Langan.

Committee on Printing—G. S. Langan, J. E. Geary, Dr. Downing, M. Henry.

It was decided to request all horsemen to enter their horses for exhibition not later than March 1st so as to have time to prepare a list of all taking part, with pedigree, etc.

It was also decided to have blank forms for owners of horses entering their stock that can be filled out and returned to the secretary. This information will then be very useful on the day of the parade. It was decided to have the Forester's Band for the entire day.

President Gray spoke enthusiastically over the outlook for a fine horse display, and believed it would attract horsemen from all over the State. A good many inquiries had already been made as to the date and he was much pleased to see a good start made, and there was no doubt in his mind that it would be a great success. J. E. Geary was equally enthusiastic over the matter, and from the outside interest already shown, he felt that not only Alameda and Contra Costa counties would be represented, but Santa Clara county also, and that a large number of horsemen from San Francisco, Oakland and San Jose would be present.

This exhibition should be of great benefit to horse breeders, for here will be shown all classes of horses; the stallions, draught horses, thoroughbreds, carriage and driving horses. This will naturally stimulate our farmers to raise the very best stock. These horse shows ought to be great educators.

M. Henry agreed with the remarks of Mr. Geary, and was satisfied that this show would open the eyes of the breeders in this valley. Mr. Henry said that he was already assured of a representation from Livermore, Pleasanton and Contra Costa county and that some of the most famous sires and their colts in the State would be here.

News From the North.

[North Pacific Rural Spirit, Feb. 7.]

E. R. Clark will jog Kittitas Ranger 2:11½, Chehalis Maid 2:25, the green pacer Slyetta and some two year olds over the Olympia track this spring.

John Pender has decided on keeping his stallion Captain Jones in the stud at Irvington track up to April 1st. After that time he will be located at the Fair Grounds, Salem, Or. Parties breeding mares here will have the privilege of the whole season, by sending the mares to Salem, where good pasture will be provided.

A meeting of road drivers was held in this office last Saturday evening for the purpose of taking some steps toward the organization of a gentlemen's driving club. B. F. Hayden was chosen chairman of the meeting and A. M. Cronin secretary. After a general discussion by those present of the great need of a driving club in this city, it was decided to proceed with the organization, and Messrs. Quimby, Mitchell, Lohmire, Craig, Johnson and Wisdom were appointed a committee on permanent organization, with instructions to report Thursday evening at this office.

Samuel Elmore, of Astoria, paid us a visit this week, and talked horse. Mr. Elmore is in the cannery business, and it does him good to lay down the cares of a canneryman and take up the sport of the trotting turf. He has a big black pacer over in Johnny Tilden's stables that does him good to think about. He is by Malheur out of Mamie Harney (dam of Sidmoor 2:17½) by Grand Moor, and with but very little work can show a two-minute clip, which is phenomenal speed for the short time he has been in harness. Mr. Elmore says this is faster than he wants to ride on the Astoria speedway and may conclude to trade him off for something slower.

Waldo T. Pierce, owner of Alcidalia 12:10½, has not lost faith in the little mare, although for the first time in her career, she proved a disappointment last season. Mr. Pierce expects to be on hand when the $5,000 2:11 class is trotted at Readville next fall.

Racing Trotters Under Saddle Would be Popular.

"That part of the public which enjoys harness racing, demands novelties to relieve such races from the monotony which characterizes this branch of sport in a more marked degree than any other. The owners and breeders may be deeply interested in a contest between horses able to trot a mile in harness in 2:20 or 2:25, but to those not thus interested, this class of racing soon becomes exceedingly tiresome and uninteresting. We know of no novelty that could be injected into the sport which would be more popular than to make classes, at each of the prominent race meetings, for horses to trot and pace under saddle. In our early turf history, more trotting races were contested under saddle than in harness, and it is doubtful if any races of modern times have been more exciting and popular than were those participated in by Topgallant, Whalebone, Dread, Collector, Columbus, Dutchman, Ripton, Rattler, Lady Suffolk, O'Brien and other sensational performers, who half a century ago electrified the racing world by their performances under saddle. To the present generation of race followers, trotting races under saddle are practically unknown. In 1836, Dutchman established the world's four mile trotting record under saddle at 10:51. Three years later, he placed the three mile record, at this way of going, at 7:32½. In 1840, Lady Suffolk trotted two miles under saddle in 4:59, which George M. Patchen lowered to 4:56 in 1836. In 1866, Dexter trotted the Buffalo track in 2:18, which was, and continued to be, the world's record until 1877, when Great Eastern lowered this record to 2:15½.

The pacers have not been successful at accumulating fast records under saddle as their diagonal gaited relatives. In 1839, Bowery Boy established the two mile pacing record under saddle at 5:04½. In 1843, Oneida Chief placed the three mile record, at his way of going, at 7:44. In 1868, Billy Boyce paced a mile under saddle in 2:14½, which stood as the world's record for 20 years, when Johnston reduced it to 2:13. Hence, the mile trotting record has stood for 25 years, the two mile for 39 years, the three mile for 63 years, and the four mile for 66 years. The mile pacing record has stood for 14 years, the two mile for 63 years and the three mile for 59 years. The failure to break these records during these long periods, is not because we have not had horses capable of performing the feat, or riders with sufficient expertness to guide and control the performers; but is attributable wholly to the fact that for some unexplainable reason, managers of race courses conceived the idea that trotting and pacing races under saddle would not be popular. Managers of running races have exhibited much more enterprise and incorporated into their races features of novelty in the way of steeplechasing and hurdle racing, which have largely contributed to the enjoyment and success of their meetings.

In the early years of harness racing, Hiram Woodruff, Dan Mace, Ben Mace and Budd Doble demonstrated that it was perfectly practicable for an expert reinsman to be also an expert in the saddle, and we know of no reason why the foremost drivers of the present day could not become proficient in racing trotters under saddle. The fact that novelty in harness racing is popular with the public is well illustrated by the success of the innovation, inaugurated last year at Syracuse and Memphis, of allowing amateur racing in connection with the regular trotting events. It is safe to say that no part of the sport was more enjoyed by the public present on these occasions than were the contests between the amateurs. Public popularity is the goal sought to be reached by the managers of race tracks, and we believe that this object can be attained by the introduction of the nowadays novelty of racing under saddle."—Rider and Driver.

While there is little doubt that trotting and pacing races under saddle, as advocated by our contemporary, would be popular with the public, it is very difficult to arrange such events. Many associations have tried it in recent years, but it has nearly always been impossible to get such races filled.

The Kentucky Futurity for colts of 1902 will be worth $21,000 and will close March 15th. Secretary Wilson says that he looks for a good big list of entries. These big stakes for trotting colts are of great value to the breeding interests, and add much to the selling price of youngsters entered in them. Now that the hard times which followed the "boom days" are over, and breeding has regained very nearly if not quite its old time volume.

Velvet Rose, a bay mare by McKinney 2:11½ out of Etta Wilkes 2:19½, dam of McKenna 2:17½, had been intended for a trotter and trained at that way of going, but in a workout last season she struck a pace, and the way she went down the line was a surprise. She has shown quarters in 30½ seconds, a 2:03 gait, and will be allowed to pace this season. She was taken East last year by C. A. Winship, of Los Angeles, and sold to Mr. J. C. McKinney, of Titusville, Pa.

District Fairs and Races in 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Now that the season of 1902 is fairly launched upon the sea of hope, every farmer, horseman, trainer and driver in the State is anxiously enquiring and trying to evolve in their respective minds the prospects of the coming season. With the bitter experience of the past years the solution of that knotty problem requires careful thought and consideration.

In the management of district fairs and races, as in all lines of commercial or manufacturing business, none should aspire to leadership or places of responsibility except those pre-eminently qualified to fill them, and every position requiring strict integrity combined with a thorough practical knowledge of every detail connected with the successful termination of such enterprise should be filled by the most competent men. When a district or association declares to give a fair or race meeting, its first duty should be to select as secretary or manager one who practically understands the duties of such office in its minutest detail. In his hands should be placed a certain amount of power by which he may be permitted to manage its affairs without being circumscribed in any untoward degree.

The farmer, the manufacturer, the merchant in each district feeling a just and honorable pride in his exhibit will necessarily look to the management of such fair to place their respective products in such juxtaposition as to attract the attention of intending visitors. This is one of the most important features in connection with district fairs, and a successful business manager will see that it is done in a manner to attract public merit.

In selecting such other officers as are required in meetings of this character, the next most important is that of presiding judge, for with him rests the great responsibility of pleasing the general public. He must be a man of sterling personality combined with a practical knowledge of all rules governing the various points, such as the judging of blooded stock, the awarding of prizes where merit is strictly justified, and above all he ought to be the happy possessor of that faculty of catering to the general public.

Unfortunately, too much dependence has been placed in the hands of men wholly unqualified to perform the arduous duties required of them; consequently a general dissatisfaction arises and too frequently merit is awarded where merit is not due. To avoid all these complications, which in a great measure leads to an undesirable conclusion, we again assert that none but those eminently qualified should be called upon to fill those important positions and pass judgment on all exhibits which may come under their charge.

As to the management of harness racing the especial duties of a competent secretary are clearly brought to view. To this officer alone, in a marked degree, success or failure is mainly attributable.

Every district which contemplates giving a harness race meeting should be more than solicitous for the welfare of the patrons of the trotting turf. This being the most important of its various attractions it should be governed by the greatest care and men only placed in responsible positions whose sagacity and energy predominate.

We are impelled to allude to the vital importance of selecting the most competent men in the judge's stand. Having witnessed with painful chagrin the many blunders made by men placed in these responsible positions we unhesitatingly condemn that practice. No matter how prominent the citizen may be, how high he may stand socially or politically, his attainments may be of the highest character, but with all this without he possesses a practical knowledge of the rules he is not or should not be qualified to act. We condemn the motives of placing in these important positions any but the most competent, for it takes a quick eye and a trained, skillful mind to detect fraud or wrong-doing on the part of trainer or driver. And to this latter class, be it said, they have done more than their share to bring harness racing into the unpleasant and unprofitable position it holds to-day. It is, therefore, to avoid these unpleasant complications that we demand the placing of competent men in the judge's stand. When the rules of harness racing are flagrantly violated what may we expect to see? Simply that which unfortunately has made harness racing a mockery and brought upon its head the opprobrium of its oldest and sincerest patrons.

We also take a pardonable pride in advocating the selection of a competent paid starting judge. Here is one of the most important of all harness racing officials—he must be quick of action, fearless in the performance of the duties devolving upon him and in sternly rebuking and punishing the transgressor of the rules. In a marked degree he holds the key to the whole situation for without fair starting and a keen perception in the matter of detecting fraud the most admired of all attractions at the district fair will not be a fair contest, and without this all interest must cease. We can not condemn the various offenses against the rules otherwise than by prompt and adequate punishment compatible with the nature and character of the offense, as it too frequently happens that the offenders of this class are let go unpunished and the inevitable result is a general dissatisfaction. Whereas if an example had been made it would be a solemn warning to others not to violate or transgress the rules again. We allude to these matters in no uncertain terms with a knowledge that if the officials alluded to are competent we have no fear of the successful termination of the harness meetings of this or the years to come.

Having thus outlined that which we think is most desirable to the success of harness racing there still remains one very important factor to be discussed, and that is the system of betting. We have alluded to this subject on previous occasions and never in the past did we condemn in such scathing words as we now reiterate against the abominable system known as bookbetting. This system, like a plague, came upon harness racing on this coast some six or seven years ago and since its first advent we recall the downfall of trotting racing on this coast. Every device known to the corruptionist has been practiced; every scheme whereby the unscrupulous tout could work his nefarious game. Time and again have we referred to this system as the most corruptible ever introduced into the enclosure of a trotting park. It has done more to decrease the value of the trotting horse than aught else we know of; it has entered its poisonous fangs on that truly great national sport and we know of nothing greater for the rehabilitation of harness racing as in years gone by than forever to abolish from the confines of the trotting track this most abominable of all systems of betting on trotting races—bookbetting.

This system has had its alluring specialties: unfortunately the owner, trainer or the driver become susceptible to the entreaties of the tout and here is when the curse of bookbetting begins. Right before our eyes have we seen the dire result but we were powerless to act. The public were clamoring for justice but the incompetent judge in the stand or the association who connived with the bookmaker to beguile the public, succeeded in their wily scheme and hence we witnessed the downfall of trotting horse interest and it cannot be reclaimed except by the total exclusion from every trotting track in the state of this the most debasing of all systems, the bookbetting system.

The State Agricultural Society in its wisdom has seen fit to debar it from the trotting turf. At its last annual meeting, there was not a voice in favor of its retention, that hydra headed monster received its death blow through the instrumentality of the lovers of the trotting horse. It now remains for all the other District Associations of the Pacific Coast to emulate the good example set them by the State Agricultural Society. The P. C. T. H. B. Association being next in line must place themselves on record as being opposed to bookbetting and substituting therefor the old and tried system of Auction and Paris Mutuel pools.

This latter has been tried for upward of forty years and no system in connection with harness racing has been more approved. It is, therefore, to be hoped that every association on the coast which contemplates the giving of a harness race meeting will adopt these and no other, and we would still go farther and advocate the forming of a Horsemen's Protective Association to this end, not to patronize any track or any association where bookbetting was held. This could be made mandatory by an agreement by and between owners and drivers, and no association would dare adopt the system of bookbetting in face of such determined opposition.

It now becomes the duty of owners and drivers to enter liberally in the classes which will be advertized in these columns in the near future. Stakes and purses of such size and proportion as to attract breeders and trainers, will no doubt be given from one end of the state to the other and when the last tap of the bell sounds in November next, every owner and driver in the great State of California will have cause to rejoice that he has witnessed and participated in a successful year.

There remains only the adoption of the suggestion we have made and California will again rejoice in the fact that the fleet sons and daughters of our illustrious sires will again be seen contending for supremacy over the many tracks of our state and the necessity of looking for more lucrative fields will be minimized by the prompt and united action of those in whose power it lies to make those meetings attractive and profitable.

Early Closing Stakes for Brighton Beach.

Charles A. McCully, Secretary of the New York Trotting Association, announces his stakes and has practically purchased the franchise for all time of the Glens Falls Trotting Association in the Grand Circuit. His association has sanctioned his negotiations along that line, and it is as good as assured that the offer made will be accepted. At all events there will be racing at Brighton Beach August 11th to 16th inclusive. It is a fast, safe track.

Five early closing stakes are opened, entries to close on March 1st. The plan of payment is in the horsemen's favor, as McCully makes the first two payments very light and carries the horse two months each time. The final payment, August 1st, is the largest, and by that time the nominator knows whether he can race or not. The stakes are as follows:

$10,000 Bonner Memorial for 2:12 Class, Trotting—Horses to be named August 1st; payments: March 1st, $25; May 1st, $75; July 1st, $150; August 1st, $250.

$5000, The Hiram Woodruff, for 2:20 Class, Trotting—Horses to be named March 1st; payments: March 1st, $15; May 1st, $35; July 1st, $75; August 1st, $125.

$5000, John H. Shults for Four Year Olds, 2:25 Class, Trotting—Horses to be named March 1st; payments: March 1st, $15; May 1st, $35; July 1st, $75; August 1st, $125.

$5000, The Metropolitan for 2:30 Class, Pacing—Horses to be named March 1st; payments: March 1st, $15; May 1st, $35; July 1st, $75; August 1st, $125.

$5000—The Brighton for 2:10 Class, Pacers—Horses to be named August 1st; payments: March 1st, $25; May 1st, $75; July 1st, $150; August 1st, $250.

Five per cent additional will be deducted from winners, and as last season the "Brighton Beach plan," now universally indorsed, will be in vogue, all non-heat winners retiring at the end of the third heat, leaving the actual race among the real contenders. Hopples are not barred in the pacing classes. A favorable clause is to the end that where four start the entire purse is paid out and horses distancing competitors benefit thereby, which is a sportsmanlike condition and appreciated by those who race their horses all season.

Where the Flag Falls.

[The Horseman.]

If the recommendations of the joint committee are approved by both congresses the distance flag in the future will be placed at seventy yards when less than eight horses start and at ninety when fields consist of more than eight horses. In other words, the distance will be thirty feet shorter than previously and many a horse will have the flag fall in his face next season that in previous years under same conditions well saved his distance. The distance as originally fixed was, respectively, 100 and 150 yards. At the meeting of the joint committee four years ago it was recommended that it be reduced to eighty and ninety yards. This the congress of the American Association adopted, but when the question came before the congress of the National Association it was voted down and it was not until the last regular congress, in 1900, that the National adopted the shorter distance. There are many who feel that the distance flag should be still nearer the wire than was recommended by the committee of two weeks ago and if appreciable improvement is noted in this year's racing, and the laying up of heats is not so pronounced as in the past, there will, two years hence, be a strong movement toward making the distance still shorter. If the recommendations are approved one thing, at least, will happen—the distance will be uniform—for as the new rule is framed no association will be allowed to go back to any old distance rules. For half mile track racing, the old rule stands, but associations will not be permitted to go back of the rules of to-day, which provide that the distance shall be respectively 100 and 150 yards. Half-mile tracks may adopt the short distance of seventy and ninety yards. A loophole for all, but one that will hardly be taken advantage of by either owners or associations, is a new section that is recommended to the distance rule and which provides that "in any heat or race distance may be waived by the consent of the member and the starters."

One of the grandest individual stallions ever led into a sale ring was Lord of the Manor. He will be remembered as a full brother of Lady of the Manor 2:04½, but owing to his high temperament he never could be trained successfully, but had speed of the very highest order. John Dickerson says he can trot faster than any stallion he ever drew reign over. He certainly was a bargain at the price—$725.

The broodmares that were offered out of the General Tracy consignment brought high prices. One man from central Illinois was on hand to purchase a few, but went back empty-handed, thinking them too high in price; $500, $600 and even $700 for well-bred mares that had never produced anything were common prices.

THE AMERICAN TROTTER.

A Useful Animal and Not an Extravagant One.

[EVERETT L. SMITH.]

NEW YORK, Feby. 3, 1902.

How many numbered the great "general public" wonder what becomes of our fast trotters and are given to popularly considering possession of a record trotter or pacer the "beginning of the end" in a man's—especially the business man's—life. As a matter of fact, the trotter is really our most useful horse possible to rear and, practically managed, need never become much of an extravagant luxury.

Too true, not a few that have sold in other days at extremely sensational figures, have panned out poorly. And why? Primarily, the purchaser was not practical and went not beyond mere pedigree excellence. Then, as now, although till the panic in trotting horse breeding circles extended over the land back in 1892, individuality was not held to as it ought have been, and because of a few failures the successes were and ever will be, quite overlooked by those always ready to put in what they consider able "clinchers," yet in reality merely idle talk.

There is the matter in a nutshell. When J. Malcolm Forbes paid $125,000 for Arion, the champion of all champions, not to bar Cresceus, he secured the most wonderful colt trotter in the world, one never apt to be duplicated, and so far in advance of his fellows, that, at the time, the price was warranted.

Arion was a stallion, his sire the leader of all sires of trotters, the sire of his dam the leader of living sires and standing at prohibitive stud fee—$1000—insuring to Mr. Forbes practically the only representative aside from a full trotter obtainable. Electioneer, Arion's sire, had died the year before.

Had there been no panic, no introduction of our "bike" sulky, no opening of the Independence, Ia., "Kite" track, whereupon over four hundred horses were "railroaded" into the 2:30 list against time—2:30—Arion would long since—it was 1891—have earned to Mr. Forbes his full purchase cost.

Yet others purchased by the same wealthy, plucky, practical breeder in later years paid their way and are to-day not a dollar in debt to Mr. Forbes in consequence of advanced methods employed in managing his trotting ventures. One swallow never made a summer, and one Arion and his $125,000 sale and failure to earn the full amount to his owner does not class all breeding ventures necessarily as failures.

The trouble with the trotting turf has ever been that the owner becomes lavish in the expenditure of his funds and having decided to purchase a fast horse must ever secure the very highest cost incidentals. In direct consequence what is always charged to the horse itself properly does not come under that caption on his owner's book, but should be charged up to a "needless expense" account. The one hundred dollar blanket, two hundred and fifty dollar harness and costly wagon, sleigh, whip or robe, all is considered chargeable to a horse possibly costing a thousand dollars, as an extravagant limit.

To make a trotter profitable the owner should study to keep all expenses to a minimum. If he wins well and the cost has been kept low a profit is readily to be obtained as buyers are plenty at all times for the best. Ever has it been so and why?

Now that speedways are being constructed everywhere our business men have a chance offered to drive their own trotters at speed and where is the man not imbued with that desire to lead his neighbor when seated behind even the staid family hack? The old deacon and his "One Horse Shay," whom Scott Leighton pictured leading the village dude behind his sleek, high price trotter is an example. In the country many the impromptu skirmish going to meeting to get a favorite, shaded hitchpost for the one driving horse kept for especially Sunday work. At "town meeting" time our ancestors were given to a little brushing for local honors and everywhere you may go you will ever see this comparative spirit evinced. It is there, and bound to assert itself one time or another.

No man ever refused a horse offered him, at his limit as pertains to price, who objected to a little of ready speed. It is the distinctively American feature of our road history. Once a man gets his appetite whetted in any direction he is bound to advance a few steps as a matter of course. So with the merchant starting to drive. He grows to like a fast horse, buys better each time in need and in a few years really owns a trotter.

There is in England a distinct type bred and interbred for a century, known as the hackney. Here in America we can accurately produce any known English product, and with the advance of the hackney soon followed the hackneyized trotter. To-day at the great National Horse Show the highly bred 2:15 equipped American trotter, re-fashioned by the docking irons and trimmed in precise style by the shears, vies for the blue rosette with the bred in the purple English hackney imported here so extensively a few seasons since by a coterie of wealthy men who thought to be quite in a field by themselves.

Not only does he compete with, but he actually defeats the hackney in the road and coaching classes. In only the breeding classes can the simon pure hackney be found successful. The requirements of the Hackney Association Register prohibit the competition for honors; yet even the best posted hackney expert has long since ceased to talk of the hackney "type" by leading dealers with an eye to purely commercial side of it that only the iron was necessary to complete the work of evolution from the 2:15 track performer to the hackney "type."

Of course after this "trimming" has to come a considerable schooling so to secure high "acting," his head is confined by means of the "dumb jockey" so to secure the "perfect crest arch;" he is taught to come to a stand and "sprawl" as does the imported hackney. This "sprawling" is standing with fore feet planted in advance and the hind ones reached beyond the line of the hock. Then he drops his back, pulls in his chin and is the model hackney as concerns the "type."

Nearly or all of the Thomas W. Lawson prize winning string of "Gloriouses" are fast stallion trotters trimmed into the hackney "type," schooled by experts to "act high," and their natural adaptiveness and readyspeed and intelligence does the rest. One or two leading breeders maintain, at great cost, establishments inhabited solely by imported and native-bred, registered, true blue hackneys, but to-day their sales are outnumbered by the dealers in the hackneyized American trotter brand.

Last year several of this latter class sold as high as $5,000, and a few reached to $10,000.

They never can meet the hackneys in the breeding classes, and as a consequence competition in said breeding classes suffers preceptibly. In the harness classes one sees very, very few bred in the purple hackneys. Glorious Red Cloud, Glorious Whirling Cloud and all the Gloriouses are trotters with new names because the wealthy owner would never stand for such turf names as one encounters looking over a trotting programme.

Just stop for a moment and think of the men who have grown wealthy selling and developing our American hackneyized trotters! Several firms employ buyers at high salaries to scour the horse breeding sections searching for horses with crest, massiveness sufficient to warrant the trimming process. It takes years to breed and bring to market the bred hackney; a month to six weeks to trim into hackney form, and then school and perfect the other sort.

Too many trotting horse breeders buy elegantly bred, successful breeding stock, turn it out and simply depend on raising a fast one for returns. Were they to put their mares to some road or light farm work, not only would they be benefited because of the killing-of-two-birds-with-one-stone idea, as they now have to maintain several farm horses at no little cost to run their farms and then again the animals themselves, if properly worked and cared for, would be in the end producers of a hardier race and kept in better bodily condition.

I know owners of $10,000 broodmares would hold up their hands in horror if asked to hitch one to even a hayrake and do a little work. They never did other than draw a 50-pound wagon or sulky. The stallions are kept in idleness all their lives, and few ever did a bit of farm or heavy road work in their lives. So long as their stock sells well all is well, so with the broodmares; if they produce one really fast one their following foals are sure to sell and pay a supposed profit. Average a stud, however, and the profits on the entire band lessen not a little.

I visited a farm at Taunton, Mass., once, where had been bred the fastest four year old trotter of her day—Galatea 2:25½—and other good ones. Asking for the leading sire, I was pointed out a black horse in the decided rough, and hitched to a common farm tipcart. He had in his day trotted to a record of 2:24½, and his owner was convinced that as he could trot well but not keep earning winter oats at that vocation through life, it were better to keep him busy when not in the stud, and how better than working unshod in the fields, never put to excessive strain or in any way injured or overtested.

His legs were never bandaged—where was the need? No blankets hung on blanket poles, no pictures of his genealogical celebrities along the line of descent adorning his big roomy stall, the upper section of the door always open, save in zero weather, yet he was groomed to a nicety, his tail washed out daily, feet kept leveled and cleansed, and he received the very best and most practical care. Good enough for a Peter Stirling, a Boralma or Lord Derby even.

How that horse sired speed and his colts, from mares similarly worked and stable-kept won premiums in the competitions at leading stock shows each fall, seemed more hardy than the progeny of mares kept in approved track manner.

The son of the owner is among the leading trainers of the Bay State, and has marked a pacer at 2:08½, and a trotter won over $20,000 for him, retiring with a record of 2:10½, so he is up-to-date every way viewed. His father before him was, before retiring to the farm, a good speedmaker and understood every detail as concerns "stylish," luxurious care of a trotter. So the keeping of his own stallion showed that after due consideration he did not consider a trotter above farm work. He makes money with his horses and the way is open to all breeders so to do.

But the farm work, the hackneyization, the active participation on track and road and the mere showing for premiums at the big shows here and there are all well in their way, still put the well broken trotter at work in any field of labor and he is at home and at once a leader. He is intelligent, economical in his labors, learns directly the easiest way of accomplishing destinies, and the one most desired and all-important feature to be considered is that one term, "harness-broken."

Too many have passed through colthood to even old age and yet know little more than to check his speed somewhat if commanded to "whoa;" they would not of their own accord "back" at the command nowadays, know nothing of the old "age" or any of that old time rigmarole once indispensable to a horse's perfect education. It is always the case on the stock farms to locate the extremely fast trotters or pacers, get them at once to the races and try and win money at the nearest point with a little bet on the side, so to make the winning a real clean-up.

There are few of the old-time colt "breakers" nowadays, and why? The colts to-day are "educated," as it is termed. At birth they are haltered, led about as a week old suckling, harnessed at four or five months, taken to the miniature track before weaning almost, learn to wear boots before they know what oats are. At yearling form they are harness-broken, given regular track training, and even some racing. Of course the fastest sell high if sensational, as witness the $10,300 obtained here at auction last November for Miss Previous. She had covered a quarter mile in 33½ seconds, a 2:14 gait at that tender age. None like her.

In other days the owner was not in such haste. Goldsmith Maid began her most wonderful campaigning when 11 years old, raced till 21 and trotted to the world's record when 14; duplicated it at 17, and, all told, won 334 heats in or below 2:30. She was a bunch of nerves and hard to control. To-day our horses live as long, but the rapid transit way of bringing them to perfection shortens their days of soundness, and they are too many times cripples when a mere youngster. If they win money all is well; if otherwise, it is actually money thrown away and unwarranted extravagance. Far better to have kept them working till maturity, earning money on the road or farm, and then, if they trotted creditably fast, the market is there awaiting them.

Our present band of road drivers regard a horse of seven or eight as "getting along in years;" they think a horse of ten too old for usage in any practical sphere save as discards at a low figure, and yet I think it will be all different within the next decade.

The breeder who aims at producing highly appearing, sound, perfectly broken and mannered, extremely fast trotters, yes or pacers, has a field open to him that offers much of ready profit if expenses be kept low. If more of attention were paid to the marketing of very handsome, very fast and perfectly gaited trotting pairs, it would, what with the speedway and matinee racing popularity ever on the increase, pay handsomely.

Years ago the veteran millionaire, Frank Work, paid about $35,000 for Dick Swiveler 2:18 and Edward 2:19, as first class a fast pair as has been seen in New York since trotting became a pronounced and popular sport, and wealthy men are left in sufficient numbers to yet pay high prices for our best. We are now enjoying the fruits of past failures, the lessons of the panic, and the state of the market is very promising and altogether healthy.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Please insert this week if possible the breeding of "Lulu F." and oblige one of your subscribers.

A. N. A.

Lulu F. is a bay mare foaled 1889, by Christmas, son of Santa Claus. Her dam is Hayward's Belle by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. Lulu F's record is 2:20½ and was made at Lincoln, Nebraska, October 28, 1895.

A total of 585 horses were sold at the Fasig-Tipton sale for $220,265, or an average of $377 per head.

Golden Gate Gun Club.

Local trap shooters have felt for some time past that a change from the old routine would be beneficial to all concerned. This sentiment gradually gained strength until the belief became general among shooters that an amalgamation of the several gun clubs would be an easy solution of the question, thus placing the sport of local trap shooting in a favorable position for a good following this season and further giving it a healthy impetus for some time to come.

In this respect action was taken at meetings of the Lincoln, Olympic and San Francisco Gun Clubs and committees of three appointed respectively from the above clubs. These committees met on Tuesday evening last at the offices of Mr. A. M. Shields.

Among those present were Dr. S. C. Knowles and A. M. Shields representing the Olympic Gun Club; E. L. Forster and Jules Bruns, Lincoln Gun Club, and Clarence A. Haight, Jos. J. Sweeney and George H. T. Jackson, San Francisco Gun Club. Dr. Knowles presided in the chair, Mr. Shields officiating as secretary. Phil H. Bekeart, of the Lincoln Gun Club, was absent in Portland, Chas. H. Shaw, the third representative of the Olympic Club, was also absent.

The delegates from each club, in short order, declared the sentiment of their organization to be in favor of a consolidation of clubs.

Mr. Shields advocated the adoption of a plan whereby a member of the new club could shoot either blue rocks, live birds, or both, as he should elect, paying monthly dues upon a schedule arranged accordingly. This plan, while it had several adherents, was finally rejected, all the members of the committee present speaking at length upon the subject.

The committee finally unanimously agreed that there should be no distinction in the membership and that members could shoot at either targets or blue rocks, or both, as they chose, paying dues of $1.00 per month throughout the year.

The name selected for the new club, upon motion of Mr. Sweeney, was the Golden Gate Gun Club.

Messrs. Sweeney, chairman, Forster and Haight were appointed a committee to draft a constitution and by-laws, the same to be submitted at a called and general meeting of the three gun clubs last evening.

Such in brief is the outline of what promises to change materially the present status of the sport in this city. Too many clubs and consequently confusion in dates and interests have hampered the game until the time is ripe for radical change. Some shooters have been members in two or three or even more gun clubs; this has been a draft on purse, time and convenience that in some cases has resulted in an abandonment of the sport entirely. Under the new regime, it is proposed to hold a live bird and a target shoot once a month for six months, the outlook now being a very favorable one for the coming season at trap shooting.

California Wing Club.

The California Wing Club meeting on Wednesday evening was well attended, a majority of the club members being present. The officers elected for the year were: President, Dr. S. C. Knowles; Vice-President, Ed Donohoe; Secretary-Treasurer, Clarence Nauman.

The initiation fee for membership in the club was raised to $20. The annual dues were also increased to $20.

The club has a membership at present of between thirty-five and forty members and enjoys the reputation of being the oldest live bird shooting organization in the United States.

A committee composed of Jos. J. Sweeney, L. Gerstle and M. O. Feudner were appointed to draft certain proposed changes in the by-laws.

The program of seven monthly live bird shoots for this season will be announced possibly next week. The shooters will each be given an arbitrary distance handicap to be determined by each individual score made at the first club shoot. This shoot will take place on the first Sunday in March at Ingleside.

Charles Parker.

At the ripe age of ninety-three years, after a long and honorable business career and life of activity and usefulness Charles Parker passed away at Meriden, Conn., on January 31st. Mr. Parker was the founder of the Parker Brothers Gun Company as well as a number of other leading manufacturing interests in the city of Meriden.

In 1877 the several industries which Mr. Parker controlled were to a certain extent combined and the

THE LATE CHARLES PARKER.

Charles Parker company or corporation formed in Meriden so that Mr. Parker might be relieved of some of the arduous duties. Besides the main Parker plant between Elm and High streets, other concerns in which he was the principal owner and which are controlled by the Parker interests are: Parker Brothers, manufacturers of the celebrated Parker gun; the Meriden Curtain Fixture company, the largest manufacturer of shade rollers, curtains and fringes that there is in the United States; the Parker Clock company, with factory situated about two miles west of the railroad depot. The Parker company has manufacturing plants at East Meriden for making cabinet locks, tea, table and basting spoons, and at Yaleville for making piano stools, coffee mills and packing boxes.

For the past few years the burden of management of the diverse industries has rested on William H. Lyon, Mr. Parker's son-in-law, under whose able direction the plant in all departments has been most prosperous.

Mr. Parker's surviving children are Dexter W. Parker and Mrs. W. H. Lyon. The grandchildren are Miss Elsie Lyon, Mrs. J. F. Allen, Alderman Wilbur F. and L. C. Parker, and Chas. F. Breese.

Mr. Parker's success in life was owing to strict economy and close application to business, he often working fifteen hours a day, attending to his large correspondence evenings. He was distinguished for good sense, great industry, method in business, and punctuality in all his engagements. He was the ideal business man in his younger days and for many years after others of less energetic character would have given up all business affairs, he kept in thorough touch with the many lines in which the immense Parker company was engaged. In his death Meriden loses its most distinguished citizen.

Eclipse Blanche is now installed in the Wandee Kennels, Mr. Harley having recently purchased her from E. Courtney Ford.

Eugene L. DuPont.

The passing away of Eugene L. DuPont on January 28th was a sad reminder to a host of friends and acquaintances of the uncertainties of life.

Usually in the best of health, it was but a short time previous that he was around as usual looking after the interests of the company of which he was the president, the E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co. But something over a week before his death he contracted a severe cold, which finally developed into that dread disease, pneumonia, and on Tuesday of last week, after but a brief illness, he succumbed to it.

Mr. DuPont was born in 1840, and came of that old and distinguished family of that name—a family which has figured with much distinction in the judiciary, naval and army circles of our government. Throughout his life he was deeply interested in the powder business, and for the last ten or twelve years had been the president of his company—a company that was first formed by members of his family in 1802. He was a man held in the highest esteem by all his business acquaintances, but he was also of an exceedingly fine and lovable character—a man of tremendous capacity for business, and a man of large affairs, but essentially conservative.

The funeral was held from the old manor house in Wilmington, Del., on January 31st, and was very largely attended, there being representatives of the army and navy, as well as many of those with whom he had dealings in life.

Mr. DuPont is survived by his wife, two sons and three daughters. The children are Alexis I. and Eugene DuPont, Mrs. William C. Peyton, of California, and Misses Amelia and Julia DuPont.

AT THE TRAPS.

The Union Gun Club open their trap shooting season on March 2nd.

The Lincoln Gun Club has been in existence for the past seventeen years.

It is proposed to hold a blue rock tournament at Ingleside on the 22nd and 23rd insts. under the auspices of the Golden Gate Gun Club.

Programs for the Grand American Handicap Tournament at live birds, to be held at Kansas City, Mo., March 31st to April 5th, will be ready for mailing February 20th.

On Monday, March 31st, there will be an 8 bird and a 12-bird event; no handicap.

On Tuesday, April 1st, there will be a 16-bird event, handicaps same as in Grand American Handicap.

On Wednesday, April 2d, the Grand American Handicap itself will be commenced, weather permitting, and will be carried over until finished. Other events will follow.

Birds will be extra in all events, and will not be included in the entry fees. The purses in every event will be divided on the high gun system.

Regular entries for the Grand American Handicap will close Saturday, March 22nd. All entries for Grand American Handicap must be sent to Edward Banks, secretary-treasurer, 318 Broadway, New York, and must also be accompanied by ten dollars forfeit. Entries must be made on regular entry blanks. Each program contains one of such blanks; additional blanks can be had of the secretary-treasurer, or by addressing the manager, Elmer E. Shaner, 111 Fourth Ave., Pittsburg, Pa. The entry fee for the Grand American Handicap is $25, birds extra. Post entries may be made on the morning of Wednesday, April 2nd, up to the time when the last man entered has shot at his first bird. The fee for a post entry is ten dollars extra.

The Interstate Association's trap shooting rules will govern all contests. These rules have been revised, and a copy of them will be mailed with every program. Additional copies may be obtained by applying to either the secretary or the manager.

No gun larger than 12-gauge allowed. No gun heavier than eight pounds allowed. (N. B.—Hand protectors and removable rubber butt plates are not included in the weight of the gun.)

All handicaps are awarded on a 12-gauge basis, and no allowance will be made for 16 or 20 gauge guns.

The handicap committee will meet at the Midland Hotel, Kansas City, Thursday, March 27th, to award handicaps, but the handicaps will not be made public until they appear in the papers issued Sunday morning, March 30th. The handicap committee will also decide the order of shooting by lot.

A sterling silver trophy of the value of $150 will be presented by the Interstate Association to the winner of the Grand American Handicap.

Guns and shells shipped in care of R. S. Elliott & Co., Kansas City, Mo., will be delivered at the grounds free of charge.

Harvey McMurchy has been a familiar figure on Sportsmen's Row this week. The genial representative of the Hunter Arms Company will be here several weeks.

Standard, a cracking good Cocker which was seen here last year at the May show has been sold by Geo. Bell.

Chesapeake Bay Goose Hunting.

Goose hunting is now on in fairly good shape, the methods employed by our hunters are not entirely dissimilar to those in vogue with Eastern sportsmen, save that luckily for the comfort of Coast sportsmen the rigors of winter are not as pronounced as with the Eastern men. Geese are so plentiful here it is rarely indeed that it is found necessary to bait the birds. A noted shooting ground is at Sharps island, Maryland, a spot much frequented by Baltimore goose hunters who prepare for a night's sport with the birds in the following manner:

A blind in the form of a pit is made in the sand on the shore near where the geese and swans are known to rest and feed. White woolen blankets are spread in and around the blind to make it comfortable, and corn is strewn within thirty yards of it. After night-fall the hunters hide themselves in the pit, strapping up in white blankets which cannot be detected by the water fowls from the white sand of the beach. Absolute silence is maintained.

From far out in the bay comes the familiar "honk, honk" of the incoming flock, and the hunters get down low in the pit. The geese alight near the end of the beach, and soon are in shallow feeding water. The "watch goose," which is always a gander, and which never seems to eat or sleep, makes a reconnaissance in advance of the flock and finds the corn. If, after a close inspection of the surroundings, he is satisfied of safety, he calls the flock, and it eagerly responds. The geese, looming up in the night, look as big as ostriches from the blind. When within range the signal to fire is given in pantomime by the leader of the hunters, and something happens when the big No. 8 guns boom.

Some geese are killed outright, others are wounded so they cannot fly, and those unhurt take to instant flight. As they rise another volley is poured into the flock. The dead and wounded birds are retrieved by trained Chesapeake Bay dogs, if the hunters have them; otherwise by the hunters themselves, who rush into the icy water, pursuing first the wounded fowls and afterward picking up the dead ones. This ends the shooting from that blind that night.

At times there is a cold, tiresome, all-night wait with no results. No. 8 guns and the best ammunition are used. The shells are loaded with six or seven drams of powder and with from two to three ounces of B. B. chilled shot.

Pigeons for Trap Shooting.

The methods by which birds intended to be used in trap shooting are converted into strong fliers is given by an Eastern correspondent. With the advent of winter and the prospect of the first fall of snow the trap shooting at live birds begins. Under the crisp air and the strong breezes that usually prevail during the season that Jack Frost is in evidence, the pigeons, selected for the expert gunners, fly faster than in the warmer months. As soon as the autumn winds turn the leaves to russet and gold the cultivation of birds for the traps begins. Strong-flying birds are harder propositions for the marksmen than less swift pigeons, and in many a contest a good, muscular bird has carried a load of shot beyond the boundary and been returned as a "lost bird," where a pigeon with a minimum of speed and endurance would be able to fly but a few feet with a score of shot as an additional weight to carry.

The system of exercising the birds so that they become strong and muscular is ingenious. They are trained to fly fast, the work occupying about a month, and at the end of that time they are as strong as young gulls. The system that is recognized as the best by many trap shooters was introduced by Mr. Elliott, of Kansas City, several years ago, and during the past three seasons has been adopted in the East.

It consists of allowing the birds the freedom of a large cage about 100 feet long.

Each morning and evening two men with long whips, the lash being a strip of red flannel, enter the cage, and by frightening the birds, compel them to fly continuously for an hour each season. This method gives the birds the necessary exercise to make them strong enough to be a baffling mark for the most expert gunner.

Another method for making fast-flying birds that is in vogue in many places on Long Island and in New Jersey is to feed the young pigeons in the morning, and then drive them out into the open. They will fly about until they become hungry, and again return to the place where the morning meal was given them. In this manner the birds are given the benefit of natural flight in the open, and when finally crated and shipped to the various clubs have all the advantages of wild pigeons in the matter of speedy flight.

The popularity of pigeon shooting from the trap is such that great consignments of birds are shipped each week during the height of the season from the West, as well as from the states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland, and from roosts on Long Island.

Slate-colored, or "blue" birds, as they are technically termed, are sought most earnestly and 75 cents a pair is the prevailing price for pigeons of that color that are guaranteed to be fast. Ordinary pigeons are sold at 50 cents a pair, and as it is known that birds that escape without being hit by the marksmen at the traps return home at the earliest possible moment, it can be seen that the breeder is easily ahead of the game, for he is thus sometimes paid a number of times for the same bird.

The more important shooting grounds have as many as 3000 birds on hand at a time in their sheds, or, more properly, cages. The method of capturing them on the day of a tournament is unique. Two or three of the assistants of the principal trapper, armed with a crate and an ordinary "scap" net that is known almost exclusively as a weapon to capture crabs and other denizens of the deep, enter the shed. The pigeons, in alarm, fly from one end of the inclosure to another, and are deftly snared in the net. A few quick twists and the bird is so bewildered that he is plucked from the meshes of the net and thrust in the crate ready to be wheeled out to the firing point before he realizes that he is a prisoner.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

The use of greased shot, to obtain a closer pattern, while giving good results in cylinder bore guns, is not advisable in those that are closely choked. There is a tendency in such charges to ball in the barrel, and it sometimes chances that the choked portion of the muzzle is blown completely off.

There is probably no more bitter controversy waged among big game hunters than the relative merits of large versus small bore ammunition. For many years the .45-calibre cartridge, carrying a bullet of 75 to 90 grains in weight, was considered the rifle ball for large game, such as elk, moose and caribou. The smaller bore cartridge, however, such as the .236, the .303 and .303, which are loaded with smokeless powder, gives to a soft nose bullet a tremendous velocity, causing it to spread on striking the game and has found favor with many shooters on the ground that the velocity not only puts the small bullet on the par of a large one in regard to smashing power, but enables one to make long shots without allowing for distance in sighting. While this is an advantage, it has been claimed by many, with good reason, that the tremendous range of the high power, small calibre rifles is such as to render them dangerous for use in semi-populated districts. The old large calibre would get the game all right and any distance at which it was reasonable to shoot, and the zone of danger is much less.

For shooting purposes for large game there is no comparison between a single shot and a repeater. Not only does the quickness of action of the latter allow one to get in a second or third shot if necessary, but the very fact that one has additional cartridges ready for immediate use, gives the shooter a certain air of confidence, which tends to steady his aim and makes him more sure of being secure at his first attempt, and there is so very little difference in the price between the two that it is by all means advisable to choose the repeater.

Fly-Casting Program, 1902.

The following schedule of fly-casting contests of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club to be held at Stow lake this season, has been announced:

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Newmarket Queen is heavy in whelp to Ch. Woodcote Wonder.

Woodlawn Kennels' Warren Tattle was bred to Dictator on the 12th and 14th insts.

Four Scotties that are said to be record breakers were recently brought over from England by Geo. S. Thomas.

Mr. W. W. Moore's Vina Belle whelped on the 11th inst. the first Coast litter to Niola Daddy, two dogs and four bitches, a good looking lot and mother and puppies all doing well.

May Queen, a handsome St. Bernard bitch owned by Mrs. F. McGinley of Oakland died a week ago from injuries received while swimming in Lake Merritt. Queen was by California Alton out of Tomah and a prize winner at the Oakland bench shows.

Mr. Irving C. Ackerman returned from the East on Wednesday. Besides Humberstone Bristles and Maggie the Maid he also bought two unnamed wire haired Fox Terrier bitches by Banknote. They were left East to be bred to the famous Matchbox.

Mr. J. G. Morgan had the bad luck to lose two Collie puppies last week. This was followed by the killing of a promising little Fox Terrier puppy by Daddy. Daddy has, since his advent at Mr. Morgan's kennels, very much decreased the number of cats in his neighborhood, when it comes to rats he is a veritable little demon.

Legs and Feet, a bitch he purchased from Woodlawn Kennels, was expected to whelp a Daddy litter this week.

Bench Show Notes.

And who says things are not humming—but a bit of good will, an ounce of enthusiasm and that "true blue" fanciers spirit and this Coast will have the largest circuit of bench shows this spring, ever held anywhere and at any time in America.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is to-day in a position to announce that Los Angeles will follow the San Francisco show for which they have claimed the dates of April 30th, May 1st, 2nd and 3rd, while Sacramento will follow with a bench show under the auspices of the State Poultry and Kennel Club of which Mr. Matt Coffey is the secretary and who is to be joined in the management of the show by Wm. Halley, 2517 K street, Sacramento.

The show is to be held in connection with the Street Fair and Electric Carnival and a success seems assured if one takes into consideration that at least 30,000 strangers will visit the Capital City during that week.

As to Los Angeles, matters are in the excellent hands of Messrs. Mitchell, McFay, Eigholz and a score of other gentlemen who formed the new Los Angeles Kennel Club after the last bench show held under the auspices of the 6th District Agricultural Association on October last.

This brings the circuit now to six shows commencing with Victoria the first week in April, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Sacramento. The dates for the latter are claimed for May 13th to 16th, which leaves one open week between the Los Angeles and Sacramento shows; what is the matter with San Jose? Why not take that week and thus close the circuit.

There are any amount of splendid fanciers and good dogs at the Garden City, and a most liberal support of the San Francisco dogmen and a full entry of the dogs on the circuit is certain.

There are now negotiations on foot between the northern shows and San Francisco and Los Angeles to share in the expenses of judges by which the fancy as well as the showgiving clubs will profit.

It is not the intention to have the same men adjudicate the same breeds at any of the shows but rather to have a couple of all round men, divide the classes between them and reverse same at some of the following shows.

If this plan is followed out it will lend additional interest to any one show and materially increase entries.

Work at the offices of the San Francisco Kennel Club at 138 Montgomery Street is in full swing and Mr. Klein in charge is at his desk early and late.

Thousands of letters have already been sent out soliciting the support of fellow fanciers east and west, north and south, and every effort is being made to get as large an array of special prizes as ever was offered at any show.

Every Specialty Club in America has been written to and no doubt they will liberally respond to the appeal of the San Francisco Kennel Club.

Specials from individuals are coming in briskly and everything points to a big success.

Mr. G. M. Carnochan will probably be seen in the ring here, passing on the merits of Fox Terriers. Mr. Carnochan has had quite a circuit experience in the east.

The Victoria and Seattle Kennel Clubs have shown a preference for Mr. James Mortimer to pass on the northern dogs.

Pacific Coast Bulldog Club.

The nucleus of what promises to become a strong specialty club has been started in the temporary formation of a Bulldog Club. Organization has been made with Morgan Sheppard, chairman pro tem, L. A. Klein, secretary pro tem both of this city. The gentlemen who are the projectors of the club are the two above mentioned and James Ewins and J. P. Eickholz of Los Angeles. The number of Bulldog fanciers on the coast and in this city is far larger than ordinarily supposed. Permanent organization of the club will be perfected during show week in this city.

Further and complete information will cheerfully be given to all fanciers interested in this new specialty club by Mr. L. A. Klein whose address is No. 138 Montgomery street this city.

Now that the Bulldog men have started the good example of coming together for the betterment of mutual interests in their particular fancy, why do not the Boston Terrier, English Setter, and other fanciers join hand and organize specialty clubs?

Now is the time for the dormant St. Bernard Club to shake off its lethargy and come to the front. This club was a strong one several years and its exhibit a big feature at our bench shows.

The Pointer Club has now an opportunity to cease hibernating and make a good showing, we have the material here.

The Scottish Terrier.

"Small, rough and whiskery, and of sandy hue
Though sometimes gray, and oft of dusky blue:
Clear, bright, inquisitive, sagacious eye,
Mustachioed lip, with brows deep shaded by;
Brave, hardy, vigilant, and ever gay,
First famed on Scottie's lofty hills they say.
Kills fox and weasel, skunk, racoon and cat,
Rabbit or squirrel, hedgehog, mouse or rat;
Onward he rushes with impetuous ire,
His wiry pelt dares bramble, bush and briar.
Through matted brakes he threads his thorny way,
Digs in the earth or tempts the flood for prey;
Not swift of limb, the fleetest game to trace,
Of noxious vermin rids the house and store,
Inspects each corner, searches every floor;
When cunning Reynard pressed by boisterous hounds
Rushes to earth, and thus the pack confounds,
The valiant Scot assails him in his den;
All gore begrim'd, he drags him forth again:
His coarse exterior some may chance condemn,
Others his blunt expression may condemn,
Yet none his virtues ever dare deny.
His merits, rigid scrutiny defy."

The antecedents of the Scottish Terrier are shrouded in mystery. They are claimed by many to date back to the Romans, a dog answering to their description having been prized by that nation. Others declare them pre-historic, running their genealogy to a time when man is indebted for his history to wandering minstrels and ballad singers. But whether this be true or not, Scotland has always prized her national terrier.

That the Scottish Terrier has taken a new lease on life in the United States is evident to even the most casual observer in dogdom. Indeed, there is a movement in the interest of this old-fashioned breed that approaches a "boom." The name, "Scotch Terrier," has been a synonym for "rat catcher" in America for more than a century. This reputation is due to the unfailing instinct antagonistic to vermin of all kinds, testimony to which is borne in the preceding verse from an old book entitled "Dogs Poetically Described," published in New York over fifty years ago.

A life long breeder of the dog in Scotland, to whom was sent this poetical panegyric, declared that it did not exaggerate the merits of the intrepid little animal.

Of the different varieties of terriers connected with Scotland not one has attained such rapid and apparently permanent popularity as the hard-haired Scottish "diehard," writes "Saint Giles." The author of "Guy Mannerling" has of course secured for the "Dandie Dinmont" an undying fame, but of late years, it must be admitted, this game little "fechtin' dug" has fallen off in numbers, and this may safely be taken as an unfailing sign of its being also out of fashion for the time. The prick-eared and also the drop-eared Skye Terriers are plentiful enough, and still continue to hold a high place in the affections of the fair sex, and this may also be said even to a greater extent of their "silky" prototype, the Clydesdale or Paisley Terrier. Quite recently an attempt was made in fashionable circles in London to revive an old type of Terrier belonging to the west of Scotland. Perhaps it would be more truthful and as near the mark to describe the attempt as one to create a new type of Terrier to be called the Roseneath Terrier. So far, however, the effort has not met with a large measure of success.

The popularity of the hard-haired Scottish Terrier has been unchecked, and probably never was he in greater request than at the present time. It was only a few seasons ago, at the annual show of the Kennel Club held at the Crystal Palace, London, that the record price for a "Scot" was established. This was at the sale of a young dog just a year old, Clydeford Rebel, belonging to Mr. J. N. Reynard, Cambuslang, to Mr. J. F. Smith, Birmingham, for the sum of 150 guineas. While this to many may seem a very large sum to pay for a dog, it is a long way behind the price which several other varieties of dogs have fetched. Thus the champion wire-haired Fox Terrier "Go Bang," the property of Mr. G. Raper of Sheffield, was sold for the trifling consideration of $2500 to Mr. G. M. Carnochan, owner of the Cairnmuir Kennels, Riverdale-on-Hudson. This famous Terrier, we note incidentally, was said by The Asian, published in Calcutta, shortly after the dog left England, as being in the kennels of a notable Hindoo noblewoman who was an enthusiastic Terrier fancier.

Compared with the prices paid for fashionably bred and prize winning Scotch Collies, the "diehard" has yet a lot of lee way to make up—as much as £1000 having been paid for "Ormskirk Emerald" by Mr. A. H. Megson of Manchester. The recent offer of $3000 for the Pointer, King Cyrano, which was refused by Mr. Morton, and the prices for some Bulldogs and St. Bernards in the last two or three years, are also high-water mark prices. These varieties of dogs, however, have been much longer before the public, and are bred as near to perfection as is possible perhaps.

This cannot be claimed on behalf of the Scottish Terrier, for it is only a matter of twenty-five years or so since he was recognized at all as a distant breed. About the year 1875, dog shows began to offer classes for hard haired Scottish Terriers. Many of these earlier exhibits were poor enough specimens, but they proved the beginning of better, and at all events served to set the heather on fire. Little by little the popularity of the hardy little tyke became assured. A club was formed in his interest, and a definite type and standard were fixed upon and bred to with the result that in a few years the better dogs at a leading show were so much alike and so equal, that it required the trained eye of a practical breeder or a skilled specialist to arrange them in the order of merit.

But the Scottish Terrier of fifty years ago was long-legged, shorter-headed, with a coat lighter colored and more inclined to curl than the dog of to-day. The American public of to-day understands by "Scotch Terrier" a dog answering to this description, which is more suggestive of the Irish than the Scottish Terrier. Mr. G. Gordon Murray, in his first edition of "British Dogs," describes three strains of these Terriers according to the location in which they were reared, all bred and famed for their gameness and working qualities, and differing only in minor points. These strains were known as the Mogstads, Drynock and Camusennaries. With the advent of dog shows which have largely developed themselves in the last quarter of a century, this standard of physical points has been established for the Scot, as for all other breeds, and the Scot of to-day is bred now to one distinct type. He has been much improved in appearance, while there has been preserved all the qualities of disposition that have made him, for many years, the most popular Terrier in Scotland, and, excepting one, the most popular all over Great Britain. At every show he is one of the foremost in numbers of all breeds, and for a long time it has seemed strange that a dog so popular across the water should not be more largely represented in this country. Some good ones were brought over about ten years ago, but they never seemed to catch on to any great extent with the professional fanciers.

In former days these dogs were used mostly in the Islands of the Western Highlands by the "tod hunters" or "fox hunters" in their labors in destroying the foxes which abounded and did so much damage to the farmer. These "hunters" as they were termed, each kept a number of Terriers, perhaps a dozen or more, and they worked them in batches of six or eight. Varied and wonderful are the stories and legends still to be heard in the Highlands of the deeds of prowess of some dead hero of a hundred fights. How Shulach found the great dog fox in his cairn and fought a grim battle with him for twelve hours, and when the men dug out the heavy stones found both dead having killed each other. How Bran swam and dived after the otter in the hill burn of Cairn Cen and stood in the water for hours when the snow lay several inches on the plain, and how she eventually slew the otter, getting terribly mangled for her pluck! How Bodach tackled the wild cat away up the lone Glen Uray and lived for years after, the blind victim of his too keen bravery!

But whether these stories are to be wholly believed or are to be taken—some portions of them at least, cum grano salis, there is no reason to doubt the extraordinary gameness of these cairn Terriers. Not only is there nothing of the coward about them, but they are wonderfully tenacious and persevering and take their punishment without unnecessary grumbling. Of course, these heroic and sanguinary avocations are for the most part a thing of the past, and the Scottish Terrier of the present day must content himself with the plebian and somewhat prosaic role of rat killing, unless he is allowed the occasional luxury of going for a neighbor's cat. Yet they have heart enough and the standard of breeding to day combines all the attributes of a working Terrier just as much (and, as a matter of fact, a great deal more) as these were considered by the fox hunter of the Western Highlands thirty or forty years ago. So long as breeders keep in view the right type of Terrier and do not exaggerate one characteristic at the expense of another or sacrifice utility points for those which please the eye, so long may it be expected that the Scottish Terrier will retain its present popular favor.

An illustration of the faithfulness and affection of the Scot for his master occurred not so long ago and has been written up in the British papers. Miss M'Iroy, of Pitlochrie, died and left a Scotch Terrier that was so attached to her that it refused to leave the corpse, meanwhile showing evidence of the most profound grief, of which it died the second day, and was buried with its mistress.

During the last five years a number of new kennel names have been registered with the A. K. C., and it is said that more are projected. This may be attributed to the impetus given the breed by Dr. Fayette C. Ewing, who imported the sensational Edinburgh winner, Champion Romany Ringlet, in whelp to Heather Prince, the greatest producing sire in the world. Later, the Doctor brought over, at great expense, the famous British winner Loyne Ginger, pronounced by several eminent English judges "one of the best Scottish Terrier bitches living." Ginger came over in whelp to Champion Gair, the crack show Scottie of the world. Dr. Ewing knows the merits of the dog whose valor has earned for him among the Scotchmen the sobriquet of "diehard," and he is an enthusiast for his pets. He has labored in their behalf with pen, and spent his money for them. Most of these kennels were established through his influence, and largely from stock imported by him. That he should be willing to build up competitors around him is good evidence of his unselfish interest in the breed. Three of these Scotch Terrier kennels are in Missouri. Dr. Ewing has purchased and imported a crack stud dog and another bitch to add to his already exclusive kennel. Let the good work go on, for the "Sorty Terrier" has but to be known to be appreciated. In the words of the antique poem, "His merits rigid scrutiny defy."

A work issued about four years ago by Mr. James Robertson, of Leeds, entitled "Historical Sketches of the Scottish Terrier," has met the approval of the fancy. The author's main object in writing it has been to popularize his old favorites, and to sketch as clearly as possible their true type and characteristics. That Mr. Robertson knows his subject thoroughly is manifest. He has studied the animals for the past forty years, and has had the benefit of information regarding their points handed down to him for several generations in his own family.

He divides his work into two parts. Part I deals with Præ Dog Show Days, and Part II with Dog Show Days.

In the beginning he describes the Scottish Terrier as he was found in Fifeshire. They were small, about 12 lbs., and were mostly used for killing rats, ferreting rabbits, or hunting the badger or fox. In color they were principally wheaten or sandy; nor were they all hard-haired. Their pluck and stamina were all that could be desired.

Extracts from newspapers and books bearing upon his subject are numerous. A sentence or two from one of these explains the meaning of the word Terrier: "If he could kill rats, draw a badger, and face a cat without flinching he was termed a Terrier; if not, he was a guid-for-nothing, useles brute."

In Part II the author shows the difficulty there was in getting classes for Scottish Terriers, and the still greater difficulty in defining the points of a real "diehard." He claims that the brindle bitch Scalpa laid the foundation of the present race of show dogs, as direct descendants of hers are to be found in the kennels of the principal breeders of this variety. Great size is his pet aversion, nor is he a lover of bat ears. He is also convinced that the modern Scot is the production of British dog shows. His critics are at one with him on these points, as well as when he says that "The so-called Skye, Scotch, Otter, Highland, Cairn, Diehard Aberdeen and Poltalloch Terriers are simply a concentration of the Scottish Terrier."

The standards of the Scottish Terrier Clubs are set forth at length, and form a fitting conclusion to the book.

The numerous fine half-tone photo illustrations of old and modern specimens of the breed, printed on the finest paper, form the outstanding feature of the book, and one which is bound to be highly appreciated by all who become its possessor.

A typical Scot should have a powerful head showing weakness nowhere, but specially strong in jaw, a level mouth and sound, large teeth; dark colored eyes, not round but almond shaped, and set into the skull obliquely; heavy eyebrows; ears small, sharp pointed and carried tight up; neck thick and muscular, well set into shoulders but not arched in any way; shoulders well sloped, chest broad and deep; body compact, of moderate length, not too long nor too short; level back, ribs flat, strong, powerful limbs and hindquarters; legs well boned, forelegs straight or tolerably so, thighs muscular, hocks bent, feet strong, thick and hard, well-covered with hair; toe-nails jet black; tail should be about 7 inches in length, and not carried too gaily but just gay enough. The coat of a Scottish Terrier should be as hard and harsh as possible, never erring in this extreme, but frequently almost disqualifying in the opposite or tendency to softness, and should be dense and plentiful all over. The size, for a dog, should be about 16 to 19 pounds, and for the opposite sex a pound or so less. Color is quite a matter of fancy—black, black and red brindle, steel and wheaten have each admirers. White marks are reckoned objectionable and only a small patch is pardoned. In general appearance a Scottish Terrier should present a sharp, eager, active appearance, with all faculties, a keen Terrier outlook, lissom in muscle, well knit together in body and generally a clean, clever and well-balanced dog. In manners and disposition the Scottish Terrier will be found to make a desirable companion and house dog. He needs little attention and speaking generally is of a hardy constitution. He is game without being quarrelsome, but when occasion requires it he may usually be depended upon to hold his own with most other dogs of his weight. At learning tricks he becomes an apt pupil, and when out for a stroll in town or country he always makes an intelligent and lightsome pal.

Hints on Kenneling.

"Any place is good enough for a dog," is a venerable aphorism easy of quotation, and capable of frequent application by those uninitiated in the management of dogs; but it is nevertheless wholly without foundation in fact, as those who have attempted to kennel valuable stock in unfitting quarters have discovered to their cost. There are many breeds which are totally unadapted for confinement in towns—at all events in numbers exceeding one or two. Dogs are not like poultry and pigeons, pets whose natural tendencies can be rendered subservient to the will and desire of their masters. No amount of artificial feeding and attention can, in the case of many varieties, adequately supply the want of unlimited exercise, which is especially essential in the case of growing puppies, whose eventual success on the show bench or in the field will greatly depend upon the development of bone and muscle, and the symmetry of a clean and well proportioned body.

In all breeds, the more exercise obtained, the better it is for the dog, but in the case of certain varieties, especially ladies' toy dogs, free exercise is not the absolute necessity which renders the successful breeding of the larger varieties an impossibility in crowded neighborhoods. It is not for one moment to be denied or doubted that excellent specimens have been born and bred in the hearts of great cities, but these must be regarded as simply the rare exceptions which make manifest the rule. Nothing but the strictest attention to cleanliness can possibly be looked to as a means of successfully combating the diseases which are for ever lurking in the precincts of crowded kennels, and it is well nigh hopeless to expect dogs to be clean either in person or habits, where a sufficient amount of exercise is denied them. As an instance, one of the largest and most experienced breeders of the larger breeds of dogs in this city, not long since had his entire kennel of puppies and young dogs swept off within the space of a few days. On inquiring into the cause of this calamity, it developed that the disease had the appearance of typhoid fever, which was not surprising to hear to anyone having a recollection of the state of the kennels on a previous visit to them.

All dogs, but more especially puppies, suffer more or less from being chained up. Not only does the collar almost invariably leave an unsightly ring in the hair on the neck, and thereby considerably affect the dog's beauty, but the frequent struggling at the chain drags the shoulders out of all shape, and affects the proper development of that part of the body. Anyone, therefore, who wishes to rear fine animals, but more particularly if he proposes to gain reputation as a successful breeder or exhibitor of canine stock should, before embarking on such an enterprise, well consider the means at his disposal for comfortably, and at the same time economically housing the dogs, by whose instrumentality he trusts to arrive at the desired goal. The word economically in the last sentence is to be used advisedly, for any person who starts by investing a large sum of money in elaborate kennels is doing what all practical people will consider a very rash action. Many a young beginner in dog breeding has retired in disgust from some disappointment or other circumstance, just at the moment when, had he persevered, victory was within his grasp; what use, then, is the elaborate range of kennels which he has erected? The stock can be sold, perhaps, at a profit or without much loss, but the outlay upon the buildings can never be recouped; and the disgust with which the owner contemplates his ill success is heightened by the loss entailed.

BARKS.

In the north of England, where rabbit-coursing is much in vogue, swift, well-trained dogs often win large sums in prizes. It is, therefore, little to be wondered at that the owners of these animals should bestow so much attention upon them.

An old Yorkshire miner, well known for his success in the coursing field, recently surprised all his mates by marrying a very unprepossessing woman. He had always been reckoned a confirmed hater of the other sex.

"Why has ta gone and got spliced, lad, at thy age?" one of his friends asked him.

"Oh, that's not much of a tale," answered the old man, stolidly. "I agree wi' ye at Betsy yonder is no beauty—if she had been I shouldn't have wed her. But there dog o' mine, he was simply pinin' for somebody to look after him while I was away at t' pit. I couldn't bear to leave him in the house by hissen, so I hit on the idea o' marryin' Betsy. She's not hand-some, but she's mighty good company for the dog!"

General Gordon's old dog, Wang, which was brought by him from China just before he proceeded to Khartoum, is still alive. The dog is at present at the Gordon Boys' Orphanage, at Dover, having been placed there by Maj. Seal, to whom it was given by Gordon's relatives. When Gordon was recalled from China to go to Khartoum, about fourteen years ago, he brought three of the rare black Chow puppies back with him, of which Wang is one. Wang is the only one of the three dogs still alive, and is very deaf and lame.

A remarkable instance of the homing instinct of the Terrier is reported by a Lincolnshire correspondent. A Scotch Terrier was sent by rail from Frieston, on the Wash, to Bourne, a distance of forty miles. The animal was taken to a village three miles distant, where it remained over three weeks. On Saturday night it was missed, and on Tuesday information was received that it had reached its old home at Frieston safe and fresh. The animal had traversed the entire breadth of the Lincolnshire Fens, across a maze of dykes and drains.

Kindness should be the unfailing rule in training a dog to do tricks or otherwise. Striking hard and indiscriminately will do no good, and hitting over the head, it must be remembered, has the same effect on a dog as on a boy. The brain is apt to be affected, and ear affections are often traceable to this cause. A gentle tap will do more good, and he will more willingly obey your commands than by lashing, kicking or abusing him, which have only the effect of making him become cowed and unfit for any purpose. Teach him one thing at a time, and be sure that he knows it well before you start him on another. A little piece of meat after he has done your bidding will do a great deal more good than the whip. He will get so he will like to do it for you, and will not start at it as though his life depended upon it. It doesn't look well to see a dog obey a command in a sneaking manner. It takes half the intelligence from a trick. Have your patience, and above all do not lose your temper for a moment, or you may entirely ruin your dog.

Dogs that are called upon to do a lot of road exercise or to work for hours at a stretch in a field, are particularly liable to suffer from sore feet. Whippets, Greyhounds, and all dogs used with the gun, are frequently thus troubled. Usually, however, rest and the application of a simple remedy soon effect a cure, though there are stubborn cases, in which the dog is incapacitated from work for a considerable time. In ordinary cases the feet become inflamed and the pads are very hot and tender to the touch, causing much pain in fact. Bathing the feet in hot water and the application of a bread poultice quickly reduces the inflammation, and then a little witch hazel usually completes the cure. Sometimes, however, pus forms and when this is the case a lancet must be introduced and the feet enveloped in one of the simple poultices above recommended and the wound kept open until all the objectionable matter is discharged. Dogs, however, have a rooted objection to poultices, and if they are not prevented from doing so will soon rid themselves of the bandage.

The Rushing, Roaring "Zig-Zag."

[J. MAYNE BALTIMORE.]

Away up somewhere amidst the wildly tossed mountains which form the western base of Mount Hood, the Cascades in Oregon, a very small stream finds its cradle.

Just where this little water course rises, is unknown. That exact spot is like the ancient grave of Moses—"no man knoweth."

It may be seriously questioned if, indeed, the foot of the white man has ever trod those regions of huge upheavals, which are rent with yawning canyons, thickly studded with vast, beetling cliffs and clothed with dense and solemn forests.

Out from this labyrinth of mountains, rushes the stream mentioned. It is first seen a short distance north of the famous "Government Camp," which is located some eight miles below the summit of the great Cascade Range, on the "old Barlow Emigrant Road."

Of the general character of the stream prior to where it first comes to view, nothing is known. But from that point down to where it plunges headlong into the milky waters of the Sandy river, its course may be compared to a corkscrew, or, still better, to the old rail "worm fence." Crooked! It is one of the most winding, twisting, tortuous stream on the Pacific Coast.

For this reason the early pioneers appropriately called the stream "The Zig-Zag." If ever any water-course deserved its name, that one certainly does. The name has never been changed. Nature had evidently beset this stream in its infancy with all sorts of insurmountable barriers, out from, and around which, it had to literally "wriggle."

From where the famous Zig-Zag burst forth from its mountain environments to where it literally leaps into the Sandy, it never flows in a straight course for one hundred yards. It is not to exceed twelve miles from where first seen, to the point of confluence, yet the actual descent must be nearly 3000 feet. Some idea may be formed of the swiftness of the stream. It is always fittingly known as the "roaring" Zig-Zag. At the widest place the stream does not exceed eighty feet; but at a great many points it narrows down to twenty feet. This is where the base of the overshadowing hills crowd down abruptly upon the banks.

As a general thing the Zig-Zag is not a deep stream. There are points where it is very deep. Swiftness is the one predominating characteristic of the stream; yet that expression does not properly describe the Zig-Zag. From source to mouth it is a wild, mad, furious torrent. Seen at its mildest stages—when low—it seems like an angry, noisy demon; when swollen by melting snows or heavy rain storms, the stream assumes a magnitude and power that is almost appalling. Giant trees and logs are borne along the resistless current or tossed about like mere feathers. Even huge rocks cannot withstand the power of the rushing floods. At such stages, the roar of the Zig-Zag may be heard for a long distance.

The channel is a mass of what were originally rough fragments of volcanic rock. Centuries of exposure to the violent action of the water have rounded and smoothed their ragged surfaces.

Singular as it may appear, there are but very few falls or cascades along the course of the stream; but, the descent is so sharp that there is one continual rapid. The stream goes plunging along over its rugged boulder bed at a pace that makes one's head fairly swim.

And now, the most important question! Is the Zig-Zag a good stream for fish?

Yes, at certain seasons.

Those seasons are very early in the spring before the snows begin to dissolve, and after the high stage subsides. From the first of March to the first of May and from the first of July to the middle of August are the proper times for casting the fly.

There are no deep, circling eddies along the Zig-Zag, like so many other streams. The waters are in too great a hurry for that. There is not a moment for rest—not for an instant does the stream pause for a breath. Nothing but mad rush and ceaseless roar.

The banks are not very thickly beset with timber and brush, so the angler has a good opportunity to work his way up and down, in innumerable rocks just out into the stream, around which the waters boil and foam. Here is where the "Knight of the bamboo" gets in his fine work.

At the proper season the "rainbows" are thick as leaves; and they will snap at a fly on sight. I have seen scores of trout from ten to fourteen inches long pulled out of the Zig-Zag—some of the most beautiful fish I have ever seen.

The Zig-Zag may be fished from the mouth up to a point opposite the famous "Laurel Hill"—a distance of five or six miles. Above Laurel Hill the lofty mountains shut down close upon the stream, and the banks become precipitous bluffs. The waters are crystalline in their purity, and come directly from the eternal glaciers around the base of Mount Hood.

There are several small tributaries to the Zig-Zag. Still creek is the largest, and comes in a short distance above the mouth of the former. As its name implies it is the very opposite of the parent stream. Still creek is about thirty feet wide, and is as quiet and meek as a mouse. It flows silently in unbroken tranquility over a smooth bed of white sand and small pebbles. The waters are ice cold and clear. It affords splendid fishing at certain seasons.

Just opposite the mouth of Still creek is located the Toll House on the old Barlow Road. During the spring and summer months a great many "outers" come up from Portland and other points in the Willamette valley, and spend days at the Toll House, whipping the waters of the Zig-Zag and Still creek.

From the Toll House down to the Sandy is only a short walk. This is a large and very turbulent water course. It heads at the base of a vast glacier on the west side of Mount Hood. For this reason the waters, during the low stage, resemble diluted milk. Many fine trout are caught in the Sandy; though anglers generally prefer the smaller mountain torrents.

Sixteen miles further up the Barlow Road is located the Summit House. Here one finds himself in the heart of the colossal Cascade range—on the very backbone of that vast mountain chain. The elevation is about 5000 feet above sea level. Near the Summit House are situated Summit lakes. They are very deep and have no visible inlet or outlet. At certain seasons these little tarns afford good trouting.

On the way up to Government Camp a magnificent view is obtained of the Zig-Zag. By the way, it is the last glimpse caught of that mad torrent; for, beyond that point, it is lost in the towering mountains. Opposite Laurel Hill the road passes very close to the brink of a dizzy cliff. Looking over the sharp escarpment the Zig-Zag may be seen hundreds of feet below through breaks in the dense forests. It plunges onward and downward with foaming impetuosity, while its sullen roar is as ceaseless as that of Niagara.

Fight Between a Mountain Lion and a Bull Terrier.

A story comes from Santa Barbara that is a splendid testimonial to the game qualities of a handsome and courageous Bull Terrier bitch called Nellie, which was owned by Sheriff Stewart, of Santa Barbara county. The faithful dog was killed in an unequal combat, early one morning last week, with a California lioness, and the contest in which she was killed lasted for over half an hour. The fight took place in Doty canyon, about seventeen miles west of Santa Barbara.

The good bitch was in the care of a Scotchman named Rutherford, a rancher on the Rincon, near Doty canyon. He had gone into the hills after wood and was out over night. The bitch was with him. Early in the morning he heard the noise of a fight above his impromptu camp. Thinking his dog had tackled some sort of wild animal he hurried to the scene and found Nellie in an unequal struggle with the lioness. The dog had chewed one of the big cat's forelegs almost off, but the lioness had worked with savage fury and had torn the dog almost open. Nellie died of her wounds before the lioness could be driven off.

Rutherford has expressed his intention of avenging the dog and started out the next day on a hunt for the lioness back of the canyon. He says the fight lasted fully half an hour before he reached the place of the contest.

The Farm Horse.

My mind has changed very materially on this question. I was educated to think that horses had passed their best usefulness at ten years. I say now that the last half of a horse's life is worth more than the first half. That is, if a horse lives to be twenty years old, his services from ten to twenty will be of more value to the farmer than from birth to ten. I speak from the standpoint of horses that work hard nearly every day and are driven by hired men. Horses in early life are more nerry and active, but they cannot, if they have not previously been innured, stand as much feed and strain as the more mature animals. Then again, farm work is of such a nature that much time is saved if the horses will stand at the door or anywhere for a moment without hitching. We are keeping these horses as long as they will be useful, and then giving them a decent burial. We have one at the present time twenty-two years old, which will be given his long rest before this is printed. He could not be bought—faithful old fellow—he shall not have abuse. I bought a pair of horses a few days ago; one of them has galls and collar bunches. When looking at the collars it was all explained; dirty collars. A few minutes each day will keep them clean, and then with a hard, smooth collar—the harder the better—few breasts will get sore. The cheap "sweats" which are sold and used so generally in our section are a curse to horses. They get wet from rain or perspiration, and then, like a wet glove, make a sore. I have cured sore neck and breasts with a new collar of the best quality without ointments. A noble animal is the horse, but some farm horses are shamefully treated, not only from poor driving and sometimes light feed, but from ill-fitting harness. Have the collar fit close to the neck. If too large, cut it down.—H. E. Cook in Rural New Yorker.

The Grout Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. The House today passed the oleomargarine bill. There was no division on the final passage, the real test of strength having been made on a motion to recommit, which was defeated by a majority of 34.

The provision to require the inspection and branding of renovated butter, which was adopted in committee of the whole yesterday, was retained to-day on an aye and no vote.

As finally passed the bill is somewhat modified from the form in which it was reported from the Committee on Agriculture. It makes oleomargarine or imitation butter or cheese transported into any State or Territory for use, sale or consumption therein subject to the laws of such States or Territories, notwithstanding that it may be introduced in original packages, and imposes a tax of 10 cents per pound on oleomargarine made in imitation of "butter of any shade of yellow." When not made in such imitation the tax is reduced to one-fourth of one cent per pound.

The second section is intended to prevent dealers, hotel proprietors, restaurant and boarding-house keepers from coloring the uncolored article by making any person who colors the product and then sells or furnishes to others a manufacturer within the meaning of the act. Penalties for violations of the act are a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500 and imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than six months. The new section relating to the inspection and branding of renovated butter is as follows:

That the Secretary of Agriculture is hereby authorized and required to cause a rigid sanitary inspection to be made from time to time and at such times as he may deem necessary of all factories and storehouses where butter is renovated; and all butter renovated at such places shall be carefully inspected in the same manner and to the same extent and purpose that meat products are now inspected. The quantity and quality of butter renovated shall be reported monthly. All renovated butter shall be designated as such by marks, brands and labels and the words "renovated butter" shall be printed on all packages thereof, in such manner as may be prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture and shall be sold only as renovated butter. No renovated butter shall be shipped or transported from one State to another or to foreign countries unless inspected as provided in this section.

According to Harper's Weekly title to sixty per cent of the lands in seventeen Western States still lies in the National Government. Theoretically there are yet 600,000,000 acres of land in these States that are subject to entry under the land laws, but it is stated that not more than 1,000,000 of these might possibly be homesteaded with any hope of the family making a living or not being driven out by some powerful interest. Some statistics given show very plainly how completely the owners or controllers of water frontage are in possession of the ground owned by Uncle Sam.

Every farmer ought to have a good grindstone, and keep it in the shade. When a grindstone stands exposed to the sun it hardens on the upper side and soon becomes irregular in shape, making it impossible to do smooth grinding. Allowing the upper side of the stone to stand in water softens it and so causes it to wear faster—keep the stone in the shade and keep it dry.

SEYMOUR WILKES REG. NO. 0232. Race Record 2:08 1-2

The Fastest-Son of Guy Wilkes

Will make the Season of 1902 at

Lakeville, Sonoma Co., Cal.

SEYMOUR WILKES earned his record in a hard fought race and was a game race horse. The oldest of his get are five-year-olds, and no horse in California can show a greater proportion of large, handsome, strongly built and well-boned colts. They all look alike and in nearly every instance are square trotters. The only one that has been trained is Joe Eviston (3-222 in 1901).

SEYMOUR WILKES is by Guy Wilkes his dam Early Bird by Playmail; second dam by Odd Fellow, third dam by a son of Williamson's Belmont, fourth dam by Blackhawk 767. He weighs 1200 pounds, stands 16 hands high and is one of the most symmetrical horses in California. Several of his get are in San Francisco and will be shown to prospective breeders with pleasure.

Terms for the Season, $40. Mares not proving in foal can be returned next year by paying $10 additional. Mares can be shipped direct to ranch, via steamer Gold. Pasturage $3 per month. For further particulars apply to THOS. ROCHE, Lakeville, Sonoma Co., or J. W. GREGORY, St. George Stables, 408 Bush street, San Francisco.

STAM B. 23444

RECORD 2:11 1/4. By STAMBOUL 5101, a trotting and show king; dam, Belle Medium 2:20, a great brood mare by Happy Medium, sire of the great all-round mare, Nancy Hanks 2:04, and other great ones; second dam by the handsome sire Almont Lightning (sire of the dam of Zombro 2:11 and other great all-in-all animals, both on the turf and in the show rings; third dam by that sire of game, sound, handsome animals, Mambrino Patchen 58; fourth dam by that speed producing sire, Mambrino Chief 11; fifth dam by that stylish and long distance racing horse, Mason's Whip.

STAM B. is a true and substantial upstanding bay, 15 1/2 hands tall, weighs 1100 pounds, and now rightly ranks among the most promising young sires of the land. That he is now in public service in California is a fact for which breeders may be grateful. He is already proving a sire of speed and gameness, together with size, superb style and high action, transmitting these qualities to every foal regardless of dam. He is acknowledged by all who have seen him to be very near the real and ideal race horse and all-around sire. His racing qualities were beyond criticism, and all close observers know that in his blood are represented the kings and queens of the trotting turf and show rings.

Terms for the Season, $40.

Payable at the end of June, with return privilege. Reduced rates to any one person breeding over three mares. Pasturage for mares, $4 per month. Freight must be prepaid on all mares. Season commences February 1st and ends August 1, 1902. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes.

Mondesol

Sire McKINNEY 2:11 1/4
Sire of 19 in 2:15 and 28 in 2:20 list

Dam IGO (registered) by Antevolo 2:19. Second dam, Daisy May by Nutwood 600. Third dam, Ralston Mare by Alexander's Abdallah

MONDESOL, 4 years old, stands 15 1/4 hands, weighs about 1100 pounds; is the best bred young McKinney stallion, combining as he does the blood of Electioneer and Nutwood with that of the greatest son of the great Alycane. He is in every respect a splendid individual and should be seen by every owner of a good mare in this State before booking elsewhere.

$40 for the Season, with return privilege.

Young Venture

Sire VENTURE, sire of dam of Directum 2:05 1/4, Adonis 2:11 1/4, Cupid 2:18 (sire of Venus II 2:11 1/4, Payche 2:16 1/4 and Lottie Parks 2:16 1/4) and dam of Sidney Dillon, sire of Dolly Dillon 2:07, etc.

Dam by Davis' Belmont, thoroughbred son of Belmont. Second dam by Talcott's Imp. Flying Morgan, son of Old Flying Morgan. YOUNG VENTURE carries more of that great Herod Eclipse blood than any other trotting stallion in the world. That is the thoroughbred combination which crosses so well with the Hambletonian strains and produces the greatest harness horses on the track.

$25 for the Season, with return privilege.

The above Stallions will stand at ROCKRIDGE FARM, Broadway, near 63d St., Oakland.

ALCYO 7043 { A GREAT SON OF THE Rec. 2:10 } GREAT ALCYONE

Dam, the great brood mare LOUISE (dam of 3 in the list) by Sunshine, out of a daughter of Edwin Forrest 49, sire of the dam of Mambrino King, the sire of Lord Derby 2:06 1/4, Nightingale 2:08, Dora 2:09, Heir-at-Law 2:05 1/4, Lady of the Manor 2:04 1/4, Moonstone 2:09, etc., etc.

ALCYO 2:10 is the sire of Lady Alcyon—yearling record 2:37; 2 y. o. 2:19 1/4; 4 y. o. 2:13 1/4—and 10 more in the 2:30 list. He is not only a great racehorse, getting his record, 2:10, in a fourth heat, but he is a grand individual of rare finish, gentle disposition, best of legs and feet and his get are all of good size, good looks and extreme speed. He is a bay horse 15 1/2 hands, weighs 1050 pounds and is standard by breeding, performance and produce.

PISTOL 28884 { Reg. No. { Sire LANCLOT 2:23, sire of 10 in 2:30, which is more than his half brother Electioneer, had at same age 28884 } Dam PEROMIA by Alcantara.

PISTOL 28884, five years old, solid black 15 1/2 hands, weighs 1075 pounds. One of the hand-somest and best individuals ever brought to California. He is a remarkably well turned horse, gentle disposition, rare intelligence and possesses extreme speed. His colts are universally black, good size, extra good limbs and stylish. He has only one colt that is 2 years old, and they all show great speed.

The above horses will make the Season of 1902 from February 1st, at the RACE TRACK, SAN JOSE.

TERMS $100 for the season, with usual return privileges, or right reserved to return service fee. All bills must be paid before mare is removed.

Best of care taken, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Excellent pasturage at $4 per month (no barbed wire) or kept up and fed grain at reasonable rates.

Both of these horses are sure foal getters. For further particulars address stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

QUINN'S OINTMENT FOR HORSES

Miller & Sibley of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bel Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches it has no equal.

132,000 Deaths from
this alone.

One special danger menaces those who live well, who can use champagne and fine liquors, and that is Bright's Disease. Posted clubmen understand this so well that many have tests made every few months. Others drink nothing but dry wines. But still the deaths reported from Bright's Disease and Diabetes are increasing at a fearful rate. The last census reports show that since 1890 the increase has been nearly fifty per cent and that the deaths in the United States alone from above causes and diseases growing out of them last year reached the enormous number of 132,000.

Hence the importance of every clubman knowing this one fact, viz.: That Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable in about 87% of all cases. The Fulton Compounds are now saving the lives of hundreds, and will, when better known, save the lives of thousands who are now with little hope.

WALTER WINANS

Vice President of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain

makes the following statement in his recent book,
"Art of Revolver Shooting."

The U. M. C. Co., U. S. A., have supplied me with large quantities of .44 gallery ammunition loaded with both round and semi-round bullets.

These have a small charge of black powder, and I should prefer this ammunition for self-defense as well as for competition up to 20 yards, as I find it the most accurate for exhibition shooting.

I think the U. M. C. gives slightly less recoil and fewer "unaccountables" than the English equivalent.

They also load these cartridges with smokeless powder, which I have used and with which I have made my bests on record in the rapid fire competition.

Send for new U. M. C. illustrated catalogues for further information concerning these modern Short Range or Gallery Cartridges, which are coming into wide use among experts and others. Game Laws and Shooting Records Free.

Milroy slipped while boarding a Market street car in front of the Palace Hotel, fracturing one of the bones of the leg and receiving a severe contusion on the back of his head. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital where the fractured bone was set and healed rapidly. So rapid was Mr. Milroy's recovery that on Tuesday last his family decided to remove him to his home, the surgeons consenting to the removal. His injured leg was being placed in a plaster cast to prevent any possible injury on the trip, and while sitting up in bed he suddenly fell back unconscious and expired within a few minutes. His wife and daughter were at his side at the time, and the shock was a severe and sudden one to them. "Bob" Milroy, as he was affectionately called by thousands who had business dealings with him, was born in Logan county, Ohio, and served during the Civil War with the First Ohio Volunteers. He came to California in 1868, and entered the employ of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, resigning a lucrative position with that corporation to engage in the livery business in this city and conducted the well known Nevada Stables on Market street. Twelve years ago he was elected Secretary of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association and when that organization was merged with the California Jockey Club he became the Secretary of the new racing club. Mr. Milroy was one of the best accountants in the city and he filled his position with marked ability. He at one time was interested in harness horses and campaigned several trotters and pacers on the California circuit. He was a painstaking and accurate man of business, and a genial, whole souled friend. His death will be sincerely mourned by thousands who knew him and who will sympathize deeply with his family in their bereavement. Besides the widow, four grown children survive him, Gertrude, Frances, David and William. William Milroy of the Southern Pacific Company is a brother of the deceased and one brother resides in Ohio. His funeral took place Thursday, and on that day the California Jockey Club's track was closed in respect to his memory.

PENNSYLVANIA HORSEMEN are trying to have a bill passed by the legislature of their State that will permit booking on races. If they would unite in an effort to pass a law that would permit auction pools and mutuels to be sold on races and at the same time keep out the books, they would be following a wiser course. The present stringent Pennsylvania law which prohibits all public betting on races was passed to meet a popular demand. It was the result of a crusade against the merry-go-round running tracks where the betting was entirely in the hands of bookmakers, and met with popular approval when it became a law. Now the trotting tracks and county fairs are barred from having any betting and in their endeavor to have the law amended are including bookmaking in the system asked for. Harness horse people should never allow themselves to endorse bookmaking on harness events in any way, shape or form. The system does not fit harness racing, but degrades it wherever followed. The Pennsylvania harness horsemen will rue the day they worked to have bookmaking legalized if they should succeed in getting the new law passed.

THE KINGS COUNTY FAIR, to be held at Seattle, Washington this fall, advertises a list of stakes in our columns this week that will attract a big list of entries. There are two stakes of $1,000 each, one for 2:16 pacers, the other for 2:30 trotters. Two stakes of $500 each are for three year olds, and two of $300 each for two year olds. For the runners there is the Seattle Derby of $1000, one and a quarter miles, the Ladies' Plate, $600 for two year olds, five furlongs, and a selling stake and a handicap for which $600 is offered on each instance. The $1,000 stake for 2:16 pacers is really a $1,300 stake as an additional $300 is to be given as a consolation purse for the horses that fail to win money in the main stake. The Kings County Fair Association will strive to make their meeting this year the best ever held in the northwest and its dates, August 18th to 28th, will open the North Pacific Fair circuit. Mr. A. T. Van DeVanter is Secretary and Manager of this association and is well and favorably known to the horsemen of this coast.

EONIC, one of the light weighted ones, won the $10,000 Burns Handicap last Saturday at the odds of 10 to 1. Before the race the weights were said to be as well allotted as possible; after the race was over losers all over the betting ring were howling that Eonic was "thrown in" and should have carried pounds more. At the weights Eonic was the best horse in the race and the weights seemed fair to all but the losers. It would take about seven such racers as Eonic to bring at auction the sum won by this mare in the Burns. She is by Eon out of Mermaid by St. Blaise and is owned by Cesar Young. It is unfortunate that a rich stake like the Burns should fail to attract a lot of high class horses, but as long as it is run at a time when deep mud will likely be the condition of the track, it will continue to be contested for by a rather ordinary field.

Educator by Director 2:17.

The handsome black stallion Educator, owned by Mr. M. Henry of Haywards is having a number of well bred mares booked to him this year, and it will not be long until his standard list will start and grow fast. But very few mares of standard breeding were ever mated with him until last season, but his get have a reputation for style and beauty that extends all over Alameda county. Whenever a trotting or pacing mare has been mated with him the produce has shown speed as soon as large enough to wear harness and there are some from very ordinary mares that are good prospects. Mr. Henry mated six mares with Educator last year on his own account and all are with foal. They are as follows:

Thera by Albion out of a mare by the thoroughbred horse California Tenbroeck.

Elsie by Silver Bow, dam Addie S. by Steinway.

Julia, (dam of Emma Abbott 2:17½) by Rustic.

Hulda by Guide 2:16, dam Alice R. by Naubuc.

A mare by Pancoast 1439.

A mare by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½.

These mares were either purchased or leased by Mr. Henry that his horse might have an opportunity.

The mare Thera, by Albion, is a very fast mare and showed some remarkable quarters and halves when in training. Mr. Henry owns a very fast colt by his horse out of Julia. The colt is now three years old and will be trained. Hulda, by Guide 2:16½ showed a half mile in one minute at the pace over the Pleasanton track, and the Pancoast mare paced a quarter in 30 seconds after thirty days training. The Nutwood Wilkes mare is a fine individual, very speedy but was never trained.

From these mares the first really well bred crop of Educator's foals will come. Educator was himself very fast, as the late T. E. Keating has testified and there is no reason why he should not be in the Great Table as soon as his get are raced. The oldest of them are coming four. Educator will be in the procession at the Haywards horse show March 8th together with a number of his colts. Those who admire handsome horses should be there to look them over.

Alexander Button 2:26 1-2 is Dead.

The well known trotting stallion and sire, Alexander Button, died at the Woodard Farm, Yolo county, last Sunday. He was twenty-five years old. Alexander Button has made a lot of horse history in California. He was quite a trotter as a colt and took his record of 2:26½ at Santa Rosa in 1881. We believe Chas. Durfee, owner of McKinney, drove him on this occasion by request of the owner. The late Geo. Woodard, of Yolo county, purchased Button and placed him at the head of his stock farm. Although but few mares of choice breeding were mated with the horse, his produce began showing speed, and Yolo Maid 2:12, Tom Ryder 2:13½ and Margaret Worth 2:15 attracted much attention to him. He sired size and good looks and his colts all had great vim and style, and the farmers of Yolo patronized him largely with the idea of securing good roadsters. There are many of his descendants in that part of the State, and the blood is highly valued. The Button mares are producing well for their opportunities, among their produce being Tags 2:11½. A son of Button, Gen. Logan 2:23½, is the sire of Miss Logan 2:06½, that is in turn the dam of Harry Logan 2:12½. Two of his produce, Belle Button and Tom Ryder, in 1892 paced to a team record of 2:16½ at Oakland, which was a world's record at the time and was not lowered until 1900. Alexander Button is the sire of fourteen trotters and eight pacers with standard records and there will be others of his get to enter the list, as he was in the stud up to the close of last year's season, and the majority of the mares bred to him last year are in foal.

A MISUNDERSTANDING has arisen among the stallion owners of the Coast over the date of closing of the Special Harness Stallion Stake offered by the California State Agricultural Society. During the past week Secretary Jackson has received inquiries from several owners asking for the date of closing, saying that the mares bred to their horses will not all foal for several weeks yet. Through some misreading of the conditions of the stake these owners have conceived the idea that entries of stallions could be made at some date in the future, but that all foals dropped after the stallion entry will be void. It is very unfortunate that such a misunderstanding should have arisen, and Secretary Jackson has asked permission of the Board of Directors of the State Agricultural Society to extend the date of closing until March 15th. For the original date of closing, February 15th, there were 36 stallions entered, but owing to the fact that so many have misunderstood the date, and that an extension of the time will make the stake much more valuable and satisfactory, the Secretary thinks there would be no objection to such extension and has asked the permission to make it. Were the plan of this stake not an entirely new one in harness colt stakes, there would be no occasion for the postponement, but as it is a new and novel plan, that has for some reason failed to be thoroughly understood by many of the horsemen, it would be best for all concerned if the time were extended one month that all the entries possible may be secured. The time of advertising was entirely too short for a new stake and it is surprising to some that as many as thirty-six stallions were named. We hope none of those who have named their horses will object to the extension of the date of closing, as the value of the stake will be greatly increased by additional entries and therefore benefit all concerned.

ROBERT B. MILROY, Secretary of the California Jockey Club for so many years, and the best known turfmen on the Pacific Coast, died at St. Luke's Hospital in this city on Tuesday last. His death was unexpected and the announcement a shock to his friends and acquaintances. On February 1st Mr.

Alcyo 2:10 by Alcyone.

On our title page this week is an excellent likeness of Alcyo 2:10, the New England horse that Mr. B. S. Krehe purchased last year at the same time he bought Pistol, son of Lancelot. Alcyo and Pistol are now located at San Jose race track for the stud season of 1902. Mr. Krehe's claim that Alcyo is a wonderful race horse and sire is backed by the following record.

"Alcyo obtained a race record of 2:18½ at four years old, one of 2:13½ at six years, one of 2:11 at eight years; and when ten years old won the fourth heat of a race in 2:10 flat, and at twelve years of age was raced through the Eastern circuit in the 2:10 class. He paced a public trial of 2:06, going the last half in 1:01½ and the last quarter in 28½ seconds. Alcyo has a half mile mark of 1:00 flat, paced on a half mile track, which was made at Willimantic, Conn., in August 1897.

"Alcyo sires early speed. His foals trot, and are the wonder of baby trotters. In 1893 Lady Alcy, a yearling by Alcyo, was a sensational performer, and reduced the record for New England bred foals to 2:37, and is now champion yearling of New England. She started in her first race at Narragansett Park, Providence, September 18th in a field of seven of the fastest yearlings that ever met in the East. Princess Clara was there, fresh from her noted victory at Fleetwood two weeks previous, wearing the laurel figures of 2:34. Boreal, the speedy and elegant son of Bow Bells, had journeyed thither from Nashville to win the 50 per cent of the $1000 yearling purse. Perial was there, credited with seven winnings out of nine starts, and Monturo, the fast son of Edgemark (trial 2:16) Baxter, that had shown trials close to 2:30, and Lanceola, the gazelle like daughter of Lancelot 2:23. This was a hard field to beat but Lady Alcy, by Alcyo, driven by Risk, won the mile dash, and the time, 2:37, lowered the New England record.

"At the New England Breeders meeting the next week, she finished second, but as the winner, Princess Clara, was ineligible, first money again went to Lady Alcy. The next week, at Brockton, Mass., she participated in the closest fought yearling race ever trotted, probably, in this country. It was half-mile heats and it required four heats to decide the race, and although Lady Alcy was beaten she trotted the third heat in 1:17½, which is at the rate of 2:35½, a very merry clip for a yearling over a half mile track, and the time of this heat lowered the half-mile yearling record of New England. The next week at Franklin Park, Langnes, Mass., Lady Alcy won a race of mile heats, best two in three, trotting the third heat in 2:41. During the New England Breeders meeting at Mystic Park, Lady Alcy trotted a half in 1:15, which shows her wonderful flight of speed. In 1894 Lady Alcy obtained a record of 2:19½ and could have trotted faster than any two year old in the world had she been given the chance to do so. She weighed 1010 pounds and stood 15 hands and 3 inches high. Alcy S., another filly by Alcyo, has a similar showing of glory in Germany. From her showing of wonderful speed, the Germans sent out agents the past year and bought all the colts by Alcyo they could get, paying $1500 a span for unbroken colts. I could not learn what they paid for broken colts. For the past two months I have been endeavoring to get a few of his colts to show here; the only price I could obtain was on one two years old, without track work, which was the sum of $1000 in their barn. He has not many colts, as he has always been kept for racing, but from the number he has got, he shows he is a wonderful sire of speed, as he has eleven with records better than 2:30, made on half-mile tracks.

"When Alcyo obtained his record of 2:11 it was the fastest record of any horse ever raised in New England, besides being the sire of the fastest yearling and two year old ever bred in New England. He is credited with serving forty mares last year and from last accounts they are all with foal.

"His stable mate Pistol, who is a wonderfully bred horse, has shown from the speed of his two year old colt, the making of a great sire, and the public should avail themselves of the opportunity to breed to him, as he will be limited to a small number of choice mares, since he will be worked for a record.

"From these few remarks you will notice the greatness of these two horses."

HARNESS HORSEMEN MEET.

National Trotting Association Elects Officers—A Number of Constitutional Amendments Made.

[N. Y. Times, Feb. 13th.]

The Biennial Congress of the National Trotting Association was held at the Murray Hill Hotel yesterday. The Committee on Credentials reported 322 delegates present, many of them by proxy, some of those present holding as many as forty. Among those present were President P. P. Johnson, of Lexington, Ky.; Secretary W. H. Gocher, of Hartford; George M. Archer, of Rochester; Lewis J. Powers, of Springfield; Charles D. Palmer, of Lowell; Frank Bower, of Philadelphia; William R. Allen, of St. Louis; William G. Pollock, of Cleveland; Frank S. Gorton, of Chicago; H. K. Devereaux, of Cleveland; C. A. McCully, A. J. Welch, of Hartford; William Christie, of Portsmouth, N. H.; W. L. Hitchings, of Boston; C. M. Jewett, of Boston; H. W. Wilson, of Lexington; Rensselaer Weston, of Goshen; Scott Locke, of Concord, N. H.; C. A. Willis, of Red Bank; Albert C. Hall, of Stamford; Hamilton Busby, Edward A. Tipton, L. M. Cafferty, of Binghamton; H. N. Bain, of Poughkeepsie; Frank Walker, H. M. Whitehead, T. L. Quimby, of Boston; S. H. Rundle, of Danbury, H. Seeds, I. S. Kaufman, H. M. Kullen, of Philadelphia, and J. Walter Lovett, of Bethlehem.

The meeting was called to order at noon by President Johnson. Besides the election of officers the congress also considered the changes in the rules recommended by the joint committee from the association, the American Trotting Association and the American Trotting Register Association at a meeting held in this city a month ago. The changes in the rules were reported in sections by Secretary McCully, and were passed in order. Many of them were of no special importance.

An amendment was offered by Mr. Willis forbidding betting on heats in races and calling for the expulsion of any member who should disobey the rule. The amendment was lost, 296 votes being cast against it and only four members voting for it. Another change, proposed by Mr. Jewett, the object of which was to make the rules against hoppers more stringent, was also voted down, the present Rule 9, Section 2, remaining in effect. A new Rule 16, Section 2, was adopted, which referred to disqualification. The rule is as follows:

"Owners who start horses, riders or drivers who ride or drive, and all horses started at meetings conducted by persons under penalty by either the National Trotting Association or the American Trotting Association shall, by operation of the rules, be henceforth disqualified from the right to compete on grounds of members, which disqualification may be removed only by order of the Board of Review and upon payment of $100 to go to this association, the fine to apply to the horse or horses disqualified regardless of any change of ownership."

Other changes provide that written or telegraphic notice for the drawing of a horse shall be given in place of the oral notice heretofore required; that no heats shall be called after sunset is another change.

Section 2, Rule 24, was amended so as not to permit any person interested in any horse or race to act "in any official capacity in that race." This is much broader than the recommendation of the conference, which referred only to judges and timers.

The rule regarding distance was not changed, nor was Section 3 of Rule 35, although a long discussion was precipitated over a proposition to allow judges to declare any heat void for pulling or other irregularities. A new section that was favorably acted on allows the waiving of distances by consent, and the fine for allowing suppression of the correct time was increased from $100 to $500. The rule covering sandwiching of heats was changed so as to permit the sandwiching of heats in three races in one day.

By a vote of 272 to 12 an addition in regard to records was made to Rule 44. The addition is that:

"Records cannot be made or bars incurred in trials of speed where there is no pool selling, bookmaking, or other public betting on the event, no money competed for, no entrance charged or collected from competing horses, no admission fee to the gate or grand stand, and no privileges of any kind sold. Such performances shall not be considered public races."

The Committee on Nominations recommended the re-election of the present officers, and added to the Board of Review J. Malcolm Forbes of Boston, John C. Welty of Canton, Ohio, and R. H. Plant of Macon, Ga.

Just before the congress adjourned President Johnson left in order to catch a train. When Mr. Johnson had gone it was explained that during the morning he had received a telegram from Montana informing him of the death of his son. A resolution of sympathy for him was then adopted by a rising vote.

The effort of Mr. Willis just before the adjournment to have passed a motion that when the next congress meets to consider the practice of voting by proxy was lost by a big majority. Another motion, by Mr. Wilson, and one that was adopted, was that Congress be petitioned to allow on application an extension of six months to the period of six months during which a Canadian horse owner may import a horse into the country in bond and free of duty.

The next meeting of the congress will be held in this city at a place to be determined by the President of the association.

By Dexter Prince and Cupid.

Good looks and trotting action are very liberally distributed among the twenty-three head that Sandy Smith is getting in shape at Aptos Stock Farm. Mr. A. B. Spreckels, who bred and raised the horses will consign them to the big Blue Ribbon sale which the Fasig-Tipton company will hold at Cleveland next May, and Sandy is certain that he will have speed of a very high order to show on the Cleveland track before the sale begins. There are several that are related very closely to the fastest trotters Mr. Spreckels has bred. Among them is a bay four-year-old full brother to Venus II 2:11½, being by Cupid out of Lillie S. full sister to Gracie S. 2:22 dam of Dione 2:07½. A five-year-old gelding by Dexter Prince out of Emma S. dam of Psyche 2:16½ is another very promising trotter, and a six-year-old full brother is very much like him. There is a full brother to Czarnia 2:13½ in the consignment. He is five years old and a trotter. His dam Miss Valensin is by Valensin 2:23 out of Hummingbird 2:30, dam of Hummer 2:18½.

A well bred filly is the three-year-old by Dexter Prince out of Neonta by Steinway, second dam by Yosemite 4906, and third dam Phaccola a mare sired by Silver Threads out of the famous mare Minnehaha, dam of Beautiful Bells. One of the choicest in the consignment is a gelding by Cupid 2:18 out of Point Lace, a daughter of Antevolo that was out of Martha, own sister to Crown Point 2:24. This gelding is a trotter for fair, and the person who gets him will own a high class roadster and in all probability a fast race horse. A four year-old filly by Cupid out of Gracie S. 2:22 dam of Dione 2:07½ is another one that looks like a fast trotter. "The best looking bunch I ever worked" said Sandy when asked the other day how he liked them, "and I think I will have a big proportion of fast trotters when I reach Cleveland. They are all by Dexter Prince or Cupid."

If Peter the Great Starts.

Considerable gossip about the return of Peter the Great 2:07½ to the turf is now being printed, and I think that there is no doubt that it depends entirely upon whether he stands training or not, writes Volunteer in the Horse Review. As is well remembered, he went wrong in his preparation early last season. At this time there was some doubt as to the nature of his complaint, it being variously located in a foot and a leg. Evidently it was finally discovered to be in his leg, as his namesake, Peter V. Johnston, who made him famous, tells me that he was fired in the weak limb, and that when he saw him last fall the visible effects of it had already largely disappeared and that it looked as if the leg would soon be as good as new. If Peter the Great does stay sound for the "grand prep" there will be a Richmond in the field whom Lord Derby, Borlma, et al., will find fully worthy of their steel. For there is no doubt that the son of Pilot Medium, at his best estate, is one of the fastest trotters ever foaled. Mr. Johnston told me that he also saw, at Readville, the yearling filly by Peter the Great out of Fanella 2:22½ (the dam of the much touted Todd) by Arion 2:07½. Peter V. says that she is the smoothest and fastest yearling trotter he ever laid eyes on, and as George Leavitt paid $4000 for her, he must think so, too.

Vallejo is in Line.

The Solano County Agricultural Association does not propose to be left out of the circuit this year and claims the week of August 4th to 9th for its fair and race meeting this year. This will give it the week before Napa and the date will conflict with no other meeting, but be just in line. The Vallejo track is in good shape now and will be kept in order for training purposes up to the date of the fair. There is no better track, or healthier spot for horses than the one at Vallejo, while its proximity to San Francisco and all other points makes it very easy to reach by car or boat. Vallejo has always paid its purses promptly. There will be a race program announced in due time, and the Solano County Agricultural Society will not be out done by any district of the same proportions in the State.

California favorite hot weather drink—Jackson's Napa Soda.

Bonnie Direct 2:05 1-4 and His Dam.

There has been in previous issues of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN photo-engravings of that handsome champion Bonnie Direct 2:05½, and we present herewith one of his dam Bon Bon, a mare that is destined to be one of the greatest in the table of Great Broodmares. Bonnie Direct, whose four year old record of 2:05½ is also the world's record for the first season made by any horse, is by Direct 2:05½. His sire is a producer of champions, his grandsire is a producer of champions and his great grandsire founded a line of champions, each producing more speed and race horse qualities than the preceding generation. It is the line of Dictator, Director, Directum, Direct, Directly, Bonnie Direct, etc., etc., one of the greatest of all the great lines of race winning trotters and pacers. But it is Bon Bon, dam of Direct, that we desire to call attention to at this time. Her record is 2:26 and she is by Simmons, one of the best if not the very best and leading broodmare sires of to-day, and himself a great sire of race horses. Bon Bon, before she was bought by Mr. Griffith, who still owns her, had been bred to Stamboul 2:07½. She produced one colt that as a two year old was very promising, showing quarters in 34 seconds, and was sold at auction in the East, Mr. Frank Herdic, the well known poolseller, being the purchaser. In talking of this colt last year to Mr. Griffith, Mr. Herdic said that he considered him one of George Wilkes—Bonnie Wilkes—herself with a standard trotting record. The next dam, Bettie Viley by Bob Johnson, a thoroughbred son of Boston, one of the best thoroughbred crosses for harness horses, the same blood that in Direct Mr. Salisbury said made him what he was. In Bonnie we find the cross on both sides of the house. Bonnie Direct's campaign of 1900 is still fresh in the minds of all horsemen. Starting out a green horse he won a race at Windsor the week before the Detroit meeting, where he went his great race in the Chamber of Commerce, winning the fourth, fifth and sixth heats. His fifth race brought him up against seasoned horses that had raced along in 2:05 and 2:06 the preceding year, hardly a fair proposition for a green youngster. In spite of all he came home sound and is to-day an absolutely sound horse, his legs and feet are as clean as the day he wore his first harness, and is it not good judgment to breed to one who has been through the fire and has the legs and constitution to stand it?

Last season Bonnie Direct had a hurried preparation and struck the hottest of weather, and such bad tracks that he could not be worked. He naturally got "off" and Mr. Griffith after a few trials decided wisely not to take any chances and shipped him home. He did a few things even then that are worthy of note. He paced a mile in 2:04½. He paced a heat in 2:05½, the last half of which was in 0:58½. He paced a quarter in 29 seconds, the last eighth of which he wa

Lawson Buys Dare Devil.

Dare Devil 2:09 has been sold by Harry Hamlin to T. W. Lawson, of Boston, and was shipped from Village Farm to his new home last week. Mr. Hamlin said the price is confidential and would give no information upon the subject. However, it is currently reported that $35,000 is very near the purchase price, for it is well known that Village Farm refused offers from Mr. Lawson within the past week of $30,000.

Dare Devil is by Mambrino King, dam Mercedes. He began his career on the Grand Circuit in 1897, and had a race record at the end of the season of 2:09½. He was not campaigned in 1898, but in 1899 won the great six heat contest at Buffalo. His best race was at Glens Falls, where he forced Cresceus out in 2:07½.

His career as a show horse is of high class, suffering but one defeat in Boston. Mr. Cicero J. Hamlin regarded him as one of the best Village Farm products. The deal was made Tuesday, the 11th, when Mr. Lawson called up Harry Hamlin by telephone and made the offer, which was accepted. Mr. Hamlin says the sale is in line of the policy of Village Farm. He asserts that in Beau Ideal by Dare Devil, dam Nettie King, now at Memphis in Ed Geer's hands, Village Farm has a handsomer and better horse.

Make a Mistake.

Andy Welch said recently that, in his opinion, the parent associations would make a big mistake if they legislated suspended horses out of amateur driving clubs. He said as a track manager he was opposed to such a step. "I recognize," said he, "that these amateur driving clubs are the best recruiting agencies that the professional tracks have. Take, for example: Here is an owner of a horse with a fast record that is outclassed. There may be suspensions against this horse. The owner won't pay those suspensions because he knows that his horse can't win his money back for him. In the first place the horse's value is cheapened by the fact that he is not able to win money in his class, and he is again made cheaper by the fact that suspensions are against him. A young fellow, a member of one of these clubs, who has never raced horses, finds that he can buy this horse cheaply, gets him and races him at matinees, wins some ribbons and gets the fever, and he goes out and buys a fast green horse, putting good money into him, and starts him in purse races. We track managers have got a valuable recruit, and that suspended horse has helped to get him."

Getting the Fever.

Senator Lodge appears to be restless and preoccupied while attending the sessions of the Senate now. He does not remain long in his seat, but moves about the chamber, occasionally stopping to lean over the desks of his associates when engaging them in conversation. Some of his personal friends were becoming anxious about him, and some of them feared that the weight of responsibility as "personal representative of the President in the Senate" might be too heavy for him to carry. They were greatly relieved to-day to ascertain that the seat of the Senator's trouble is not of the mind, but of a less serious nature. The fact is, Senator Lodge has contracted the horseback fever from the President, and two or three times during the past week he has accompanied President Roosevelt and Secretary Root on a slow jog into the adjacent country. The President and Secretary Root are seasoned horsemen and they enjoy a brisk canter or dash.—N. Y. Evening Telegram.

$15,000 for 2:13 Trotters.

Horsemen will be interested to learn that the directors of the New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association have decided to raise the value of the Massachusetts Stake from $10,000 to $15,000. This makes the race the richest class event on the trotting turf. The class is open to 2:13 trotters, and we fancy it will be the special aim of every man who has a likely candidate to fit his horse to win this particular event, for the value of the purse gives it a distinction beyond the ordinary, and the honor of winning it will be correspondingly great.

The directors have also decided to adopt the plan of ruling out a horse that does not win a heat in three in the three-in-five class races, which is, we believe, a step in the right direction, and will meet with the popular favor of the race-going public.—Am. Hor. Breeder.

Neva Simmons 2:11½ brought $13,200 at the Woodward & Shanklin combination sale at Lexington last Monday. She is a brown mare, seven years old and by Simmons 2:28 out of Neva 2:33½ by Squire Talmadge, a representative of the Hambletonian-American Star cross.

BON BON 2:26.

DAM OF BONNIE DIRECT 2:05½ AND BONSILENE 2:14½ (HER ONLY FOALS TRAINED).

Sired by Simmons 2:28, dam Bonnie Wilkes 2:20½ by George Wilkes 2:22.

the greatest young horses he had ever known. He bred him to a few mares, and intended racing him when most unfortunately he died. The next Stamboul—Bon Bon foal was the fast and game trotting mare Bonsilene 2:14½, owned by Pierce Bros. She had a foal last year by McKinney, but is again being trained by Millard Sanders, who expects to give her a very fast mark. Possessing two minute speed as she does, this mark should be a low one, for she is as game as possible and with great staying qualities. The other Stamboul colts have never been trained. Bon Bon has foaled, since owned by Mr. Griffith, a five year old by Rect 2:16½, a four year old by Chas. Derby 2:20, a two year old by Steinway 2:25½ and will soon foal to McKinney 2:11½. Mr. Griffith has rightly decided to allow his colts to mature before starting them on the necessarily hard campaign in the East. The five year old could show quarters close to 30 seconds in his two year old form, and is now getting miles about 2:30 to season him for this year's efforts; his speed is phenomenal. The four year old was converted to pacing last year and in six weeks showed eighths in 16 seconds. The two year old has also, like all good Steinways, shown his preference to paco, and is as fine a two year old as has ever been seen at Pleasanton. And out of such a mare is Bonnie Direct. Two of her get only trained; one with a record of 2:05½, the other 2:14½.

Bonnie's next dam was a producing daughter of asked to step, which he did in 0:13 3-5.

Mr. Griffith says that he worked Bonnie at the trotting gait until February in his three year old form and that during the previous fall as a two year old he trotted quarters in 35 seconds and promised to become as great a trotter as he proved to be a pacer, but in the spring he showed a strong inclination to pace, and not wanting to put more weight on him to keep him trotting he let him take the lateral gait.

Bonnie Direct was allowed 15 outside mares last season—these were booked early—unfortunately some of these mares were not sent until so late that they had only one cover, and could not be bred again, and yet he has about 70 per cent of his mares with foal.

Bonnie Direct has already a good many mares booked, and will be bred only to approved mares. Should any mares bred this season not prove to be in foal, and their owner for any reason should prefer not to breed them another year the service fee will be returned. These are very liberal terms, and if breeders will consider that Bonnie Direct is one of the handsomest representatives of a handsome family, that he is a champion representative of a family of champions, and that his pedigree is as choice as any ever tabulated they will take advantage of the opportunity and breed to him.

Sober up on Jackson's Napa Soda.

JOTTINGS.

AMONG THE VISITORS to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN office this week was Mr. W. P. Murray of Cleveland, Ohio, a prominent member of the celebrated Gentlemen's Driving Club of that city. Mr. Murray has been in California several weeks, making quite a stay in Los Angeles, where he saw Mr. Desmond's mare Italia 2:23½ by Zombro 2:11 and purchased her for $3500. He was very much taken with Zombro and believes him one of the most perfect horses he ever saw. He stopped over at San Jose on the way up, saw the great McKinney 2:11½ and Iran Alto 2:12½, and spoke very highly of both. Then Mr. Murray visited Palo Alto and with his party was the guest of Superintendent F. W. Covey for a day, and while seated under the beautiful oaks Mr. Covey had all the notable horses of the farm led out for inspection. Mr. Murray is one of the most enthusiastic of amateur horsemen, and stated that no more royal entertainment was ever afforded him. On Wednesday, in company with Mr. O. A. Hickok, he visited Pleasanton and was shown all the stallions and horses at that celebrated training and breeding ground. It was his intention to visit Oakwood Park this week, if possible, although business engagements are calling him home. Mr. Murray is a splendid specimen of physical manhood and a gentleman of refinement and culture whom it is a pleasure to meet. He told us much of the Cleveland club and its members, and if there are any more like Mr. Murray among its members it is no wonder that it is the leading club of the kind in the world. He is one that looks upon matinee racing as the greatest of American sports, and believes its strongest and most attractive feature is that the contests are for pure glory and not for money or anything that represents it. In common with his fellow clubmen he looks forward with keen interest and the greatest confidence to the third contest for the Amateur Drivers Challenge Trophy, which has been won twice already by that great horse John A. McKerron 2:06½. He says that after taking into due consideration the fact that Boralma 2:07, Lord Derby 2:06½ and others of the fastest trotters may be entered for the cup race this year, he believes that the California-bred horse will win the race and make the cup the perpetual property of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Cleveland.

"John A. McKerron," said he, "has always done what he has been asked to do since our President, Mr. Devereux, owned him. He trotted the last half of his 2:06½ mile in 1:02½ and the last quarter in 30½ seconds. He always finishes his mile at a faster clip than he shows at any other part of it. He has reserve speed left whenever called upon, and a horse that is a steady square trotter of the very highest class, that has two-minute speed and is so thoroughly en rapport with his driver will be a hard one for any horse, no matter how fast, to defeat. McKerron and Mr. Devereux make an ideal combination. They thoroughly understand one another, and it will be very difficult to get another such driver and another such horse together.

"Our driving club has reached such a stage of development that our members are constantly on the lookout for high class horses with which to win at the matinees and they are willing to pay fair prices for what they want. I believe I will be able to make a good showing with Italia, and although I purchased her on what I was told, I believe she has not been misrepresented in the least."

Mr. Murray went over to Martin Carter's Nutwood Stock Farm while here to take a look at Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, sire of the great Cleveland matinee champion. He likes him very much and said he was not disappointed in the least in the picture he had formed of him. Mr. Murray has a young stallion by Guy Wilkes that he says is the picture of Nutwood Wilkes, and he thinks more of him now than ever. When at Pleasanton he saw a two year old by Nutwood Wilkes being worked by William Cecil, asked Mr. Carter for a price on him and a transfer was made in a few minutes. The colt's dam is by California Nutwood, second dam by Anteeo 2:16½, third dam by Venture 2:27½, as rich breeding as is possessed by any colt ever foaled in California. Mr. Murray immediately turned the youngster over to Orrin Hickok who will give him a few lessons in the speed primer before taking him over to Cleveland. This gelding is hardly broken as yet, but showed an eighth at the trot in 20 seconds. He is a chestnut with a white strip in his face and Mr. Murray selected him on his splendid individuality before asking for his breeding.

Since meeting Mr. Murray and hearing his enthusiastic description of his club, and his words of praise for California, its climate, its horses and its wonderful richness, the thought has come to me many times that if San Francisco had three or four men like him, we too could have a gentlemen's driving club like the one in Cleveland. It would do the moss backs good that we have here (and they are pretty numerous and healthy) if they could run up against such men as he. His vim and enthusiasm and magnetism would very likely spread to them by contagion, and if it did San Francisco would soon have a driving club that would equal any. We have the horses, it would be very easy to get the track, and the greatest of sports would soon have a host of devotees. It is true that there are a very large number of amateur horsemen here who will never believe until it is demonstrated to them that there can be any enjoyment gotten out of a race unless there is a purse or stake to trot for. But once let them get a taste of the amateur sport of winning a race to wagon in the presence of a few hundred friends and acquaintances and they will become converts forthwith. If a San Francisco club could send a horse over East and win one of those interstate amateur cups, the Eastern clubs would have to send their horses out here to recover it. That they would try their best is certain, and thousands would turn out to see the contest and the event would attract one of the greatest crowds ever seen in this State.

Haywards is to have a horse show after the style of the famous Kentucky Court Day shows. It will be held on Saturday, March 8th, and there is going to be a great parade of fine stock. I understand Tom James, of San Jose, will take Barondale 2:11½ there that the people may take a look at this late importation, and that B. S. Krehe, of the same place, will probably exhibit Alcyo 2:10 and Pistol, both recently purchased in the East. These gentlemen are showing good sense and the proper spirit, and I would advise every stallion owner who can possibly take his stallion to Haywards that day to have him there in good shape and be a part of the show. Mr. M. Henry, one of the leading movers in this horse show, has been assured by the President of the Alameda Driving Club that a large delegation from that organization will take part in the parade and entries are being made from all parts of Alameda, Contra Costa and Santa Clara counties of stallions, carriage and saddle horses, teams, etc. It will be a good place to purchase as well as a good place to sell a horse or a pair. There are to be no prizes given, it being simply a show of horses. Livermore has had a very successful show on these lines annually for some years, but the Haywards affair is being managed on a much larger scale.

Chas. E. Clark, of Fresno was in town this week and tells me he expects to go over east again this year with Toggles 2:08½, Sue 2:12½ and Cozad 2:20½. The last named horse he purchased while on the big circuit last year and believes he has a good 2:10 prospect in him. He is by Fred S. Wilkes 2:15, a grandson of Geo. Wilkes. Toggles and Sue are both in fine fettle although the extreme heat in which they had to race last year took a great deal of flesh off them and they were both in the light-weight class when they reached Fresno in the fall. The loss of Listerine 2:13½ was a heavy one for Mr. Clark as she was a 2:07 or better mare sure.

"I have learned," said Mr. Clark, "that it is unwise to start out with a horse unless he is in condition and ready to race for the money no matter how long the heats are drawn out, and I have also come to the conclusion that when one's horses are in that shape the place to go is where the big money is hung up, and that is why I shall go over the mountains." I told Clark that news had just come from Readville that the Massachusetts for 2:13 trotters would be $15,000 this year, an increase of $5,000 over last year's purse. "I must have an entry for that purse," was his quick reply "and I guess Sue will about do for it." There would be congratulations sent to Charley Clark from all parts of California should he win that big purse, as there is not a more popular horseman than he on this side of the continent. He is a very successful trainer and made that good horse Toggles 2:08½ and many other fast ones. Mr. Clark thinks Fresno would be an ideal place to hold a good trotting meeting this year and says the track there is as good as any course in the State. The county owns the property having purchased it for hospital purposes, and if the District Agricultural Association will give a fair and race meeting the people will patronize it liberally.

A Good Man for the Place.

The annual election of the Board of Trustees of the Mechanics Institute will take place next Tuesday, February 25th. The Mechanics Institute is an important organization for the advancement of the useful arts and sciences in this State. Its annual expositions of manufactured articles, machinery and pure food products as well as exhibit of fine arts have always been attended by thousands from all parts of California. The institution is a large and wealthy organization and its membership includes mechanics, business and professional men. The management of its affairs calls for the best men that can be selected from its members. Among the candidates for election on the new Board of Trustees is Prof. E. P. Heald of the Heald's Business College, one of the best known men in the State. He has been closely connected with the educational interests of California ever since he founded the college which bears his name, over 40 years ago, being at the head of that institution, which is the largest school of its kind on this Coast. Prof. Heald has always taken an active interest in the welfare of the Mechanics Institute and has served on the Board of Trustees before, during a most successful administration of the affairs of that organization. His business acumen combined with his large experience and knowledge of educational matters makes him a very desirable man for the position. The main object of the Mechanics Institute is essentially one of practical education. Its library is one of the largest in the west and in connection with it special instruction is afforded its members in many branches of the arts and sciences, and courses of lectures by specialists are given which are very instructive, entertaining and well attended. The particular fitness of Prof. Heald will be appreciated by all who know the man and the requirements of the position. Prof. Heald is a man of exceptional executive ability, as he must be to keep all of his varied interests well in hand. He not only gives his closest personal attention to the management of the Business College with its half a thousand pupils and score of instructors, but in addition is interested in raising vineyards in Fresno, stock and fruit ranches in Napa county, valuable oil lands in several of the best sections of the oil belt, real estate and other property. He is a member of a number of Boards of Directors and takes a special interest in the business of raising harness horses, owning a number of well bred mares and stallions. He is Chairman of the Pacific District Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association and President of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association and is an indefatigable worker at anything he understands. He is progressive yet conservative and will attend to the work of the Institute as though it were his own private business.

Hayward Horse Show.

HAYWARD (Cal.), Feb. 18, 1902.

To Horsemen:—An exhibition of horses of all kinds will be held at Hayward on Saturday, March 8, 1902. All are invited to exhibit stallions and their get, driving horses, trotters and pacers, carriage horses, thoroughbreds and draft horses.

An excellent opportunity is thus offered to display horses of all kinds.

The parade will commence at 1 P. M. sharp, and immediately thereafter the name and pedigree of each animal will be announced, so that the public will be made acquainted with all horses entered.

No charge for exhibiting. Send name of owner, name of horse or horses, pedigree, and if stallion, name of get as well, to the Secretary, Geo. A. Oakes, on or about March 1st, so that the name may appear in the program, which will be printed and distributed free of charge.

Good accommodations for visitors and horses.

For further particulars see the newspapers or address,

GEO. GRAY, President or GEO. A. OAKES, Secretary.

Matinee To-day at Los Angeles.

Among those who have entered horses for the races of the Los Angeles Driving Club to-day are: C. F. Nolin, R. E. Muncey, H. G. Otis, W. H. Stimson, Dr. M. L. Moore, F. K. Wilson, G. W. Ford, E. T. Earl, L. J. Felton, Byron Erkenbrecker, William Garland, Dr. Shorb, W. M. Buddinger, W. L. Vail, D. J. Desmond, Dr. Ralph Hagan, R. B. Morehead, Dr. J. Ferbert, W. A. White, Arthur Gore, Harry Weiss, Dr. O. P. Roller, T. M. Clark, Dr. J. A. Edmunds, Dave Llewellyn, J. A. Densham, J. L. Eigholz and Frederick B. Taylor.

The card arranged for the meet will consist of a riding race, a 2:40 class mixed race, a 2:30 pace, a 2:25 class mixed race, a half-mile dash for colts and fillies, a free-for-all trot, a free-for-all pace and a race against time by Primrose.

Get into the California circuit.

Alex. Button 2:26½ died last Sunday.

The green classes should fill well in California this year.

The Haywards Horse Show will be held Saturday, March 8th.

John R. Gentry 2:00½, weighs 950 pounds in his present form.

Empire City track will again be sold at public auction on February 25th.

Frank Walker will be the starter at the Brighton Grand Circuit meeting.

Early closing purses and stakes should be announced without any further delay.

There will be a $10,000 stake for trotters at the Cincinnati Grand Circuit meeting.

Seattle hangs up $16,000 in purses and stakes. Read the advertisement in this issue.

Ed Geers says the Memphis track is the best and fastest track he ever drove over.

Lucre 2:15½, half brother to Searchlight 2:03½, has been sent to Florida for a stud season.

Barney Demarest believes he can make a race horse out of Worthier, the son of Advertiser out of Surol's dam.

The rains have put all the tracks in good shape for working over. Some of them were pretty dry and hard.

Diablo 2:09½ has already begun his season. The mares bred to him this year will be the best he has ever had.

The rain has put all the country tracks out of business for a short time, but they will be greatly benefitted by the wetting.

About one hundred horses are being worked at the Pleasanton track at the present time, and many more are headed for that horse centre.

The average of the big sale at Chicago was $300 per head and not one sensational price was paid. This shows that horses are worth money.

Frank S. Gorton, owner of Tommy Britton 2:06½, who has been at Los Angeles several weeks this winter, returned home a couple of weeks ago.

Veterinary Pixine is rapidly coming into favor among horsemen. It is the best thing for scratches, grease heels and mud fever ever discovered.

The trotters and pacers will be started up this week at a majority of the California training tracks and the miles will be getting faster and faster from now on.

A wagon to weigh but 45 pounds is being built for John A. McKerron 2:06½. Aluminum will be used where possible and the finish will be in natural wood.

Arner, the full brother to Diablo, worked a mile at the Oakwood Park farm last year as a three year old in 2:17. He has had several excellent mares booked to him this year.

Lee Shaffer thinks the four year old filly Zephyr will prove to be a great race mare, as her trials last fall were entirely satisfactory. She is by Zombro 2:11, dam Gazelle 2:11½.

It is said Norval 2:14½ not long since trotted a quarter on a farm track at Lima, O., in 33½ seconds. Norval is twenty years old, and had not had harness on his back in five years.

J. B. Chandler says Alix 2:03½ appeared to him to be perfectly worthless when she was a yearling, and his impression was not materially modified when she had become a two year old.

C. W. Ames, of Salt Lake, Utah, and R. H. Walsh, of Grand Junction, Colorado, who have been in Nevada recently purchasing horses for the British Government, are now in Northern California on the same mission.

Susie J. 2:10½, roan mare by Jayhawker, dam Millionaire (dam of Seraphina 2:16½) by Norwood 522, son of Hambletonian 10, was purchased by J. Malcolm Forbes at Woodward and Shanklin sale at Lexington last Wednesday for $8025.

Mr. P. R. Isenberg sent to Honolulu on the Olympic which sailed February 18th, a blood bay single footer by Coeur d'Alene, and a chestnut mare, coming four years old, by Diablo 2:09½. The Diablo mare is a beauty and has a great deal of natural speed.

At the annual trotting meeting of the Saratoga Ice Racing Association on Saratoga lake last week, the world's record of 2:18, held by Flirt, was lowered to 2:17 1-5 by the same animal, driven by her owner, T. H. Moore of Plattsburgh, N. Y.

The International Stock Food Company, Minneapolis, is still adding to its stable of fast horses. Not content with Directum and Online, the company recently negotiated the purchase at New York of Directum Jr., a promising two year old.

The government of West Australia has bought the trotting bred stallion Kintore to travel through the best breeding districts of that state at a fee of $15.75 for the purpose of improving the road class of horses. This is a stallion bred of American parents.

"Columbus" very tersely says: "Did you ever consider that while you are standing around waiting for owners to book their mares to your stallion, the man who believes in rustling and spreading printer's ink is securing the very business you have been figuring on?"

Major Mason 2:09½, a bay stallion by Onward out of Rachel Russel by Woodford Abdallah, sold for $900 at the Chicago sale last week. Major Mason is a pacer ten years old and made his record of 2:09½ last year in a race. His dam is also the dam of Nellie Mason 2:15.

None of the get of Mr. M. Henry's stallion Educator by Director have been trained prior to this year, but J. M. Alviso, of Pleasanton, is now handling a black four year old by Educator out of a mare by Almont Patchen that will attract lots of attention to his sire.

James L. 2:09½ by Dexter Prince is to be shifted to the pace this year and raced again. He got his record in a six-heat race at Columbus in 1896 when he was nine years old. He won two heats and second money in this race and was the contending horse in every heat.

The Blue Ribbon sale at Cleveland next May will be the place to sell a good horse that can show speed. This is the great "show me" sale of the year, and buyers looking for horses to race are there with their check books ready to pay well for the real trotters and pacers.

Senator Mark Hanna is credited by his friends and enemies alike as being one of the brightest of business men and a clear headed money maker who takes advantage of opportunities when offered. He has booked several mares to Cresceus 2:02½ this year, and they are all handsome and well bred.

B. A. Chilson has sent his handsome thoroughbred racemare Blanche Sheppard by imported Friar Tuck to Haywards to be bred to M. Henry's Director stallion Educator. He hopes to get a roadster by this mating that will not only be a handsome individual, but one that will find the roads none too long.

The report comes from Dover that Hon. Frank Jones is considering an offer from E. E. Smathers, for Eleata 2:08½, the phenomenal green trotter of 1901. It is said that the New York horseman has offered $10,000 for the daughter of Dexter Prince, and that she may be a stable mate of Lord Derby 2:06½ the coming season.

Anna Belle 2:27½ (dam of La Belle 2:16) by Dawn 2:18½, son of Nutwood, has been booked to Mr. B. S. Krehe's stallion Alcyo 2:10 by Alcyone. Angie Wilkes by Guy Wilkes has also been booked to the same horse. Mr. Krehe's stallions Alcyo and Pistol are much admired by horsemen who have seen them at the San Jose track.

The great broodmare Prelacy by Lord Russell recently lost her foal by Ponce de Leon 2:13. Prelacy is one of the mares consigned to the Fasig-Tipton sale by the estate of Marcus Daly, and purchased by T. W. Lawson. She is the dam of Prelatess, the fastest two year old of 1901, and Miss Previous, the yearling filly which brought $10,000 at the sale.

More dates have been claimed for trotting meetings over East this year than ever before. While the climate of the eastern country is such that training can not be started for two or three months after California trainers have begun work, it seems to favor early speed in secretaries and fair directors that is entirely unknown out here on the Pacific Coast.

J. B. Stetson, of Boise, Idaho, writes to the Portland Rural Spirit that the citizens of Boise have subscribed $27,000 to build a new race track at that city, and that work will be begun as soon as the weather permits. Mr. Stetson states that he is the market for a trotter eligible to the 2:20 class, and a good green pacer that can go the route and come back.

Orrin A. Hickok is giving Col J. C. Kirkpatrick's four year old stallion Thornway his work at Pleasanton and jogs him miles around 2:30 twice a week. Mr. Hickok has just had sent to him a two year old gelding by Nutwood Wilkes that is very promising and was purchased this week by Mr. W. P. Murray an iron merchant of Cleveland who has been visiting this coast.

The Western Horseman, always an excellent horse journal, has just issued a souvenir number with a handsome cover in colors. There are nearly a hundred pages of interesting reading, with valuable statistical tables, interspersed with photo engravings of some of the leading sires and other prominent horses of the past year. A fine half tone engraving of Directum 2:05½ occupies the front page of the cover.

The Golden Gate Park Driving Association will hold several meetings this year, the first of which will probably be on Decoration Day. The officers of the club recently elected are Ed Aigeltinger, President; I. B. Dalziel, First Vice-President; F. G. O'Kane, Second Vice-President; E. Stewart, Treasurer; F. W. Thompson, Secretary. Finance Committee—F. G. O'Kane, G. L. Swett and M. M. Donnelly.

The trotters eligible to the 2:11 and 2:12 classes will be able to engage in no less than $72,000 worth of stakes and purses this year. The Bonner Memorial at New York, the Massachusetts at Readville, and no doubt the Charter Oak at Hartford are $10,000 stakes that will be for 2:12 trotters. The Transylvania of $6000 will probably be for horses of the same class, and at Memphis there will be a $5000 purse for 2:11 class trotters.

Mr. Walter Randall of Santa Rosa is the proud possessor of the first foal sired by Washington McKinney since that stallion was purchased by the Rose Dale Stock Farm last spring. The new arrival is a filly that looks very much like her handsome sire and is one of the largest and lustiest fillies ever seen in that section. Her dam is a mare by Hambrino. Washington McKinney's services will be in demand this year as he is not only a large and very handsome stallion but is a member of the most fashionable family in California.

The sad news comes just before we go to press that William B. Fasig, senior member of the great auction firm known as the Fasig-Tipton Company, died at his home Bennyscliff, near Brewston, New York, February 19th. Mr. Fasig was the best known horseman in America, and has been identified with the horse business of this country since the Civil War. He was a genial, whole-souled, broad-minded, honorable man and his death is a loss to the entire horse world. Particulars of his life and death must be reserved until our next issue.

Mr. L. M. Lasell, one of the leading merchants of Contra Costa county, was the purchaser of the royally bred mare Clarionette at the recent Palo Alto sale in this city. Clarionette is due to foal in April, having been bred to Mendocino last year. Clarionette is but six years old and is by Dexter Prince, dam Clarion 2:25½ by Ansel 2:20, second dam Consolation (dam of Utility 2:13) by Dictator, third dam by Norman 25, fourth dam by Mambrino Chief 11, and from there on her pedigree runs into high class thoroughbred lines. Mr. Lasell has booked this mare to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ and has made no mistake, as he will get a combination of blood in the foal that will be as certain to show extreme speed as any that could be made.

Two Percheron stallions recently fought a duel to the death on a fast stock train running over the Union Pacific at the rate of forty miles an hour. One was killed, the palace car was smashed into splinters and Edgar Boise, the owner of the animals, loses $1500, the value of the imported victims. Two keepers in charge of the animals had to climb outside to escape the steel-shod hoofs and glistening teeth of the infuriated animals. When they succeeded in apprising the trainmen of the battle, a side track at Cheyenne was reached and every effort made to separate the brutes, but finally the victor severed the jugular of his rival, which bled to death. The car had to be cut out before the train could proceed.

It always pays to breed for good looks and size. The Rose Dale Stock Farm bred a stallion called Digitalis that was an extra good looking, but not a horse of remarkable speed as speed goes in these days, although he had a record of 2:25½ at the trot and was faster than his mark. An Australian who came to California a year or so ago, saw Digitalis and bought him on his good looks, size and soundness and took him to the antipodes. At the first big horse-show held after his arrival there he walked off with the first prize easily and then won races in 2:26 without having to go to his speed limit. His owner now has a very large patronage for his horse and is much pleased with his investment. Being by Daly 2:15 out of Cygnet by Steinway, second dam by Woodford Mambrino, he is fashionably bred, and there is no doubt at all but he will be a sire of speed in Australia. It was his good looks, good legs and feet and all around soundness, however, that first attracted the attention of the Australian buyer as those qualities invariably do all horsemen. Rose Dale Farm has always had these qualities in view and has found it pays to produce them.

There is a chance for some good man who knows how to care for a stallion and is a good hustler, to get a horse that will make him some money this year. We refer to the horse Secretary, son of Director out of a mare by Volunteer. "Secretary," says Monroe Salisbury, "had more natural speed than any colt I ever saw," which is saying a good deal for this horse, as the "king maker" saw many fast ones when he was in the business. All horsemen in California, however, have some knowledge of Secretary's speed and the reasons why he was not raced. He is a black horse, 16 hands, weighs 1200 pounds, with high quality and fineness and beautiful symmetry. He has had no opportunities to speak of, yet he has two with records better than 2:15, and twelve in the standard list. He is by Director, sire of Directum 2:05½, Direct 2:05½ and fifty more in 2:30. His dam was by Volunteer 55, sire of St. Julien 2:11½ and thirty-three more in the list. He gets size, style and speed, and with opportunity will yet distinguish himself as a sire of extreme speed and gameness. Hans Frelson, who handled him last year, states that Secretary was bred to 36 mares in 1901, and thirty of them are with foal or have already foaled. If some responsible man wants a stallion at a low price, or to lease on reasonable terms, this is an opportunity not offered every day. Further information can be had of the editor of this paper.

Enoch Wishard on the Scale of Weights.

The proposition set forth by the California Jockey Club to raise the scale of weights to the English standard has created a great deal of discussion among turfmen who, so far, appear to be divided in opinion. Enoch Wishard, the former trainer of Richard Croker's horses, who will look after the interests of John A. Drake's stable this season, believes that it is unnecessary to raise the scale and expresses his views as follows:

"I believe in heavier weights than are now carried, out I do not mean that it is necessary to raise the scale. In the East, at least, it is heavy enough. Simply hold strictly to the prevailing scale and we would get better racing. I know it is said that one cannot convince the horsemen of this, but it is nevertheless true. In England the weights carried are greater than here and our American bred horses can carry their imposts over there as well as the English horses. I wish I knew one good reason for carrying light weights. On the other hand, I know several very good reasons for carrying heavier burdens.

"Why do all the American jockeys, or, at least, why do so many good ones go abroad? Because they can get mounts there. Why don't they ride here? Because they are too heavy for that. You take and train a good jockey! Teach him the business, spend a few thousands of dollars on him and at the end of three or four years he will begin to be a good jockey. Then what becomes of him? He is of no use to the man who developed him, because he has grown too heavy to ride at the scale that prevails. It does not hurt horses one bit to carry heavier weights and it often does them good, in my opinion. If we could get a better scale or rather stick to the one we have so that a boy who was maturing both in mind and body could ride, we would find that the jockeyship would be better and the horses would run much truer to form.

"A light boy who is down to about 90 pounds cannot manage some of the horses yet the horse has to be ridden at that weight. More weight could easily be put on him but it would handicap him over the others beyond what his record would compel him to take up. On the other hand, if the boy was heavier and more matured he would know better how to manage such a horse. The light boy may be just a little off his feed and not feel exactly right—everyone gets that way now and then. If he rides a poor race, when in that condition, he is blamed for it and is often charged with pulling the horse. As a matter of fact the real fault of the race is in the fact that the weight of the boy may have been too light for him to have the strength and judgment to manage his mount.

"Personally I have never seen all these races in which the horse has been pulled. I have seen many races where it was said that there was pulling, but I did not see it, and for that matter I know that there was nothing wrong. Either the horse or the boy might have been a little off color. Maybe it was the boy's fault, because he had been riding too much at the light weight and had become weakened. That is the case nine times out of ten. In England they have good racing at the scale of weights, but their horses are no better than ours. Where the English excel is in the breeding.

"Speaking of breeding reminds me of the work the German Government is doing with the thoroughbred. Each year it buys a certain number of broodmares and stallions in England or France and ships them to Germany. The Imperial Government will pay any price for them, often as high as $10,000, but will sell them to the German breeders at the highest bidder's figures. I know of one broodmare for which the German Government paid $10,000, and sold at auction to a German breeder for $300. One stipulation is made—that the horse and the get therefrom must remain in Germany for a certain number of years. Work like that is doing a whole lot for the thoroughbred in Germany.

Farmers After Horses.

Farmers from all over the corn belt surround the auction ring at the Dexter Park horse market daily. They are here to purchase equine motive power for spring seeding operations. There is a moral in this: The country is not raising enough horses. Not only are farmers coming to Chicago to make purchases, but dealers are shipping large numbers to various points to supply country needs. The farmer who kept right along raising a few colts when the market was depressed is enjoying what is popularly known as a good thing just now.—Live Stock World.

A dispatch from London says: Mr. Richard Croker has paid Lord Clonmel $25,000 for two yearling colts by St. Simon and Florizel. The colts were shipped to Wantage and are the best yearling specimens of thoroughbreds in the kingdom. It is apparent that Croker will not spare money to obtain a future Derby winner.

Corrigan's Horses.

Thirty horses belonging to Edward Corrigan arrived at New York from England last week. The consignment comprised all the horses he took over to that country, except a few he sold there, and seventeen thoroughbreds that he purchased in England. The list is as follows:

ENGLISH-BRED HORSES.

Marta Santa, b. h., 6, by Martley (son of Doncaster), out of Luxette.
Scintillant, b. h., 6, by Sheen-Saltire.
Monsieur de l'Orme, b. c., 3 by Orme-Lily Asphodel.
Layia, ch. m., 4, by Friar's Balsam-Lady Paramount.
Judicious, b. m. 3, by Hawkeye-Discreet, by Wisdom.
Proclaim, b. m., 3, by St. Hilaire-Procida, by Petronel.
L'Estrenne, b. m., 4, by Enthusiast-Vanquish.
Semper Vigilans, b. m., 5, by Carbine-Sempronia.
Rose Tree, b. m., by Bona Vista-Fannie Relph, by Minting.
Cactus II, ch. h., 4, by St. Angelo (son of St. Simon), out of Prickly Pear, by Pellegrino.
Ormicant, ch. h., 5, by Orme-Cant, by Dutch Skater.
Fancy Man, b. h., 4, by Best Man-Tights.
Western Duke, br. h., h. by Grand Duke-Devonia.
Planudes, b. h. 5, by St. Simon-Lowly (winner of the Oaks), by Hermit.
Sir Hercules, ch. h., 6, by Sir Hugo (winner of the Derby), out of a mare by Galopin.
Bay colt, 2, by Ravensbury-Rakesdale.
Knightly, b. c., 2, by White Knight-Remorse, by Hermit.
Tarbolton, b. h., aged, by Ayrshire-Radiancy.

AMERICAN-BRED HORSES.

Sardonic II, b. m., 6, by Morello-Sardonyx.
Allyar, b. h., 5, by Himyar-Aileen Aroon.
Brown colt, 3, by Bassetlaw-Daniella.

Temper, b. c., 3, by Indio-Tpmpest.
Innian, ch. c., 3, by Indio-Lucerne.
Mackay, ch. c., 3, by Golden Dawn-Wihena.
Jed, b. c., 3, by Indio-Jannie S.

Haggin's New York Stables.

James B. Haggin, whose Watercress colt, Watercolor, finished last season with a better record than any three year old in America, has completed arrangements to construct a fine stable with training quarters of the most modern kind on the tract of ground he recently purchased near Gravesend track. The stable will be one of the best equipped establishments on Long Island, William C. Whitney's establishment at Sheepshead Bay not excepted, and directly it is finished Charlie Littlefield will move in with Mr. Haggin's big string of horses. Littlefield will train for Mr. Haggin permanently.

The Kentucky-California millionaire railroad magnate, stock operator and horse breeder has taken a warm fancy to Littlefield's methods and swears by him.

It took him several years to awaken to the realization that Littlefield was a horseman of unusual capacity. The reason of this was that the New Jersey turfman went into Mr. Haggin's employ as a clerk in the old days when he had the strongest racing stable in America.

Being an old-fashioned man, he was not in the habit of adopting sudden changes. He could not at first be brought to believe that a first class clerk might, with careful instruction, in a few years become a first class trainer.

Littlefield took charge of a portion of the Haggin stable tentatively in 1900 and achieved only a fair measure of success, but not enough to convince Mr. Haggin of his abilities. His astonishing clever work with Watercolor last season, however, did the business. Now it would be impossible for any man to shake Mr. Haggin's confidence in him. Men who take their time about arriving at conclusions are invariably obstinate in clinging to them.—Daily America.

About as handsome a two-year-old filly as ever graduated from the maiden class is Gaviota that won the three and a half furlong race for maiden two-year-olds at Oakland last Monday. She is by the horse-show prize winner imported Crighton, and her dam is Nellie Bell by Prince of Norfolk so that her good looks are inherited from both sides. Gaviota was bred and is owned by Mr. A. B. Spreckels, proprietor of the Napa Stock Farm.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

Volodyovski and Conroy Weighted Alike.

Those who have for some time been asserting that there is no real difference between the best horses of the respective countries now claim to be justified in their belief, for the three handicappers who officiate in the English race, the City and Suburban (Messrs. Dawkins, Keyser and Lee), have declared that Volodyovski, the Derby winner, should have the same weight—and no more—as Conroy, the winner of the Brooklyn handicap, i. e., 122 each. Both colts are four year olds.

Conroy at the time he won the Brooklyn Handicap was not considered by the public as the best of his age, his stable companion, Commando, being generally thought to be his superior, although some shrewd trainers were of opinion that the two colts were not really far apart in the matter of form.

Epsom Lad, at 126 pounds, is top weight in the race, which is a stake, value $10,000. The French horse Codoman is allotted 122 pounds. Mr. Keene's Disguise II. has been given the same weight, as also have the Derby winner, Volodyovski, and Mr. Keene's Conroy, winner of the Brooklyn Handicap. Thus an interesting question has been settled, as far as the official handicapper is concerned, as to the comparative merits of high class horses of either country.

Sale of Thoroughbreds.

There was a sale of thoroughbred stallions and horses in training at the Occidental Horse Exchange last Monday evening, at which the following prices were realized:

PROPERTY OF A. B. SPRECKELS.
Trappeau, b. c., 1893, by imp. Inverness-imp. La Trappe; C. C. Ricks.....	125
Purveyor D, b. s. 1890, by imp. Deceiver-Ada D.; J. H. Smith.....	75

Montoya, ch. g., 1899, by Amigo-Paola; Dr. Rowell.....	300

In support of his statement that he would race at Latonia, Edward Corrigan has made forty-two entries to the various events to be decided at the Latonia Spring meeting. Mr. Corrigan has named something in every one of the stake and handicap events. In the two year old events he has nominated what are reported to be his best youngsters, and eight of the nine which he has named for the stakes and handicaps are imported horses.

Continued Evidence.

Mr. L. Waters, of Waynesburg, O., writes: 'I have a very nice road horse which had two puffs on hind leg called "phlebitis," which are very difficult to remove. After trying every known remedy for several months I removed them with Quinn's Ointment as sick as a pin. Consider it very valuable and would not be without it in my stable.' For curbs, splints, sprains, windpuffs and all enlargements on horses or cattle, use Quinn's Ointment. Price $1.00 delivered. Address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y., unless you can obtain from your druggist.

One of the records of the Chicago horse market for the year of 1901 was the sale of a milk white coach horse for $800. The color and prices seldom go together.

Horse Owners Should Use

GOMBAULT'S

CAUSTIC BALSAM

The Great French Veterinary Remedy.
A SAFE, SPEEDY & POSITIVE CURE.

Prepared exclusively by J. E. Gombault, ex-Veterinary Surgeon to the French Government Stud.

SUPERSEDES ALL CAUTERY OR FIRING.

Impossible to produce any scar or bluish. The safest best blister ever used. Takes the place of all liniments for mild or severe action. Removes all Bunches or Hemorrhoids from Horses or Cattle.

As a HUMAN REMEDY for Rheumatism, Sprains, Sore Throat, etc., it is invaluable.

WE GUARANTEE that one table-spoonful of Caustic Balsam will produce more actual results than a whole bottle of any liniment or ointment ever made.

Every bottle of Caustic Balsam sold is warranted to give satisfaction. Price $1.50 per bottle. Sold by druggists, or sent by express, charges paid, with full directions for its use. Send for descriptive circulars, testimonials, etc. Address:

Some Points on Stable Management.

[Chicago Horseman.]

The term stable management includes a variety of subjects connected with the management of horses, to discuss all of which in a detailed manner would be impossible within the space of an article. It is not intended to do so here, but merely to discuss a few of the points of good stable management in a brief and general manner.

The most important part of stable management consists in the proper feeding and watering of horses. In fixing the rations for the horse the quantity and kind of work must be considered. It will not do to feed all horses alike; a difference in the feeding must be made between horses doing slow work and those which have to perform work at fast paces. Again, a horse doing hard work must be fed differently to one doing but little work. It may seem almost superfluous to mention this, but mistakes are so frequently made in feeding horses that it may be of use to draw attention to it. Grooms may sometimes be unable of themselves to apportion the rations in regard to quantity and quality according to the manner of work the horses in their charge are required to do. Unless in such cases the owner himself sees to this and supervises in some degree the feeding of his horses, they will not be as useful and in such good condition as they might be. It must also be borne in mind that wrong feeding is frequently the cause of disease and illness.

Especially attention must be paid to the feeding of horses which do irregular work and get but little exercise. This is frequently the case with carriage horses in towns and with hacks. Too high feeding in such instances is often the cause of filled legs. Beans, in particular, which some grooms are fond of using, are not at all suitable for horses doing little work, as they are far too rich a food. The use of beans is only admissible in feeding horses doing hard and regular work, and even in such cases one may do without them if good sound oats are given in sufficient quantities. Where the work is not hard, and irregular, beans should on no account be used.

The giving of some laxative food occasionally must not be omitted. This may be provided in the form of a bran mash, or of carrots or of green food, according to which is most easy to obtain. Carrots or green stuff are to be preferred, but the latter will, of course, have to be dispensed with in winter. A small quantity of green food, such as clover, lucerne, sainfoin, etc., is not detrimental to good condition; it only becomes so if fed in appreciable quantities. Some horse-men are much addicted to the giving of balls and physicizing if the horse is constipated or out of order. Now this practice is entirely harmful, and the dosing of horses on the part of the groom should not be allowed. The state of the bowels should, as far as possible, be regulated by harmless methods, such as the giving of laxative food. By employing this at the right time the use of stronger measures will in many cases be obviated. A regular examination of the condition of the dung should not be omitted, as this tells us a great deal as to whether a horse is in perfect health or not. If it is hard or not of normal appearance, measures should be taken accordingly to correct this. In any case, a horse should never be stinted in his water supply, and always have as much as he wants, too, unless he is under the care of a vet., who may have given orders to the contrary. Too many people still cling to that old and cruel and senseless practice of keeping a horse short in his water supply, as they think it is beneficial to hard condition. It is, of course, true that an untrained horse drinks considerably more water than one that is in hard condition and more or less in training, when both do an equal amount of work. The reason for this is that a horse in hard condition and used to work requires less water, as he does not get so tired and perspires and sweats less than a horse which is not in training. But this is no reason why a horse should be allowed less water than he requires to drink.

The obtaining of a good gloss on the coat of a horse is one of the chief cares of the stable. The means employed for this purpose are frequently objectionable, and even harmful to the health and usefulness of the horse. A glossy and short coat in horses doing work, and particularly fast work, are of course, greatly to be desired, and greatly increases the capacity of a horse for work if it has been obtained by legitimate means. The principal factor in producing a gloss on the coat is plenty of grooming. To insure glossy and short coats by keeping the temperature of the stable at too high a point is eminently bad, and must be severely condemned. Yet some are addicted to this practice. Too much clothing has also a prejudicial effect on horses, though a sufficiency of it is to be recommended. It is much better to insure the horse being properly warm by allowing them an adequate amount of clothing than by keeping the stable too warm. In many cases the temperature of the stable is not only too high, but the clothing is too heavy. In deciding as to the amount of clothing necessary, the warmth of the stable will, of course, have to be taken into consideration. If the temperature is rather high, less clothing will do, and vice versa. It must be remembered that the proper amount of clothing is not a fixed quantity, but depends upon circumstances. Two thin rugs are warmer than one thick one of equal weight to the thin ones together. A rug made of porous wool is best, and it is to be preferred to any other kind.

Some food stuffs have a beneficial effect on the gloss of the coat of a horse, especially those containing much oil or fats, such as linseed and linseed cake. Maize also increases the gloss. With proper grooming and clothing nothing more is required to ensure a good glossy coat. Keeping the coat short depends on having the horse sufficiently clothed and on grooming him properly, while an adequate supply of food is also necessary. It would be wrong, however, to attempt to obtain shortness of coat by too high a temperature of the stable. Too warm a stable is in all cases an evil, leading to horses catching cold and coughs and worse evils. The effects of a hot stable are most to be apprehended in carriage horses, which are left standing out in the cold for a longer or shorter period, when, of course, they are most liable to catch cold. It would be advisable to throw a rug over them in such cases, though with harness horses in towns this is not possible in many cases.

It would require too much space to go into the question of clipping here. It will suffice to say that it is necessary to remove the coat if it is long and the horse has to do fast work. Clipping is not an unmixed blessing, however, and when it is possible to keep the coat short by legitimate means it is advisable to do so and to dispense with the clipping. To some extent the question of the thickness of the coat depends on the individual horse; some horses have heavier coats than others. Blood and well bred horses have a shorter coat as a rule than underbred horses, and young ones than old horses.

Very frequently horses are found to rub their tails, and which practice makes them more or less unsightly. This can in most cases be remedied by keeping the anus and the region around it in a clear state. A practice should always be made of having this part thoroughly cleaned with a cloth or damp sponge at grooming time. Where this is attended to, cases of horses rubbing their tails will be of rare occurrence. Care should be taken to keep the litter in a dry and clean state. Wet litter is frequently the cause of thrush. The application of Stockholm tar to the cleft of the frog in the foot is recommended, say, once or twice a week, according to whether the horse is liable to thrush or not.

A sloping floor is injurious to horses, as it throws an unnatural strain on the limbs. In stables which have stalls with sloping floors care should be taken to see that the litter is so distributed as to remedy the evil as much as possible. A sufficient supply of straw for bedding purposes should always be provided. Careful grooms can be very economical with the litter, and with some little management an excessive waste may be avoided.

If possible, the dung should be removed directly after the horse has dunged. It is not, however, the dung that dirties the litter and pollutes the air with noxious gases so much as the urine. These evils may to some extent be avoided by having a sufficient supply of dry straw, which will absorb the urine, or, better still, to use peat-moss litter for this purpose. Peat-moss litter possesses much better water-absorbing properties than does straw. Many geldings do not like to stale on the hard floor on account of the urine splashing against their legs, and in such cases it will be found that they stale more readily when standing on litter.

Reverting once more to the question of whether straw or peat-moss is preferable, this is difficult to say, as both have their advantages if compared with one another. In the country straw will be the cheaper material for bedding purposes, while in the towns peat-moss litter may be more economical. Where expense is an object, considerations of economy will influence the choice of the one or the other material. Straw undoubtedly looks best and most comfortable. As already pointed out, peat-moss ranks first in regard to absorptive power. A combination of it and straw, putting the latter on top, of course, would answer all requirements very satisfactorily.

In some instances, sawdust is used for litter, and serves the purpose of absorbing moisture very well, provided it is dry. As a rule, it is not as useful as straw or peat-moss, and its use is not advisable except where it is at hand, and for horses on whose outward appearance little stress is laid.

A supply of salt should be found in all stables. This is best provided in the shape of a lump of rock salt, to which every horse should have access. Horses doing little work are more in need of salt or—to put it more accurately—require a larger amount of it than do horses doing hard work. It is well to bear this in mind.

The Outlook for Trotters.

The result of our last two sales at Madison Square Garden proves we believe the stability of the market, and should be a source of gratification to every breeder and owner, and to all connected with the trotting horse industry.

Four great breeding studs have passed out of existence, and were readily absorbed at excellent prices. Altogether 1,500 horses have gone under the hammer for $721,400 or an average of over $481 per head. The "Old Glory" average for 920 head was $541, a "record-breaker" considering the number sold.

The horse of promise was never in better demand. At these two sales 132 of the best offerings sold for $313,655 an average of over $2,385 per head. Three stallions averaged $12,600. Six stallions averaged over $9,100. Two geldings averaged $9,850. The yearling trotting filly, Miss Previous, sold for $10,300, the auction record for that age, and this was the only sensational price in either sale. The top figure of the "Old Glory" was $12,100 for Directum 2:05½; that of the "Midwinter" auction was $15,700 for Oakland Baron 2:09½. These figures show the demand there is for first class trotters, and make the outlook most encouraging.

Under these conditions, it is specially gratifying for us to call attention to our next great sale, "The Blue Ribbon," at Cleveland, Ohio, May 12th to 24th. The fascinating feature of this sale is the opportunity given to horses to show their speed over the fast and well kept Cleveland track. A fast quarter or eighth under the watch is convincing evidence which buyers appreciate, and which is not furnished at any other auction.

The earning capacity of the trotter and pacer is increasing each year, because more rich stakes and purses are annually being offered. Racing men are keenly on the alert for likely winners, and ready to pay the top price for the "real thing." The matinee and speedway demand opens up a constantly widening field of usefulness for the fast and well mannered horse; attracting to the industry men of wealth. These are reasons why ready-to-use speed brings more money to-day than formerly, and both buyers and sellers appreciate the special advantages of the annual Blue Ribbon event.

Our sale mart, opposite the entrance of the Cleveland Driving Park, is most conveniently located for the shipment of horses and the attendance of buyers.

If you have something that is high class and attractive, shall be pleased to hear from you. Address Madison Square Garden, New York City.

FASIG-TIPTON CO.

New York, Feby. 17, 1902.

Malcolm Forbes' Success.

Mr. J. Malcolm Forbes thinks well of the colt Admiral Dewey, three year old record 2:14½, by Bingen from Nancy Hanks, a colt which those who have seen him at speed predict should train to the very lowest notch, says an exchange. But lameness checked him after one stake victory last season, and very doubtful it is if he will again be raced or even tested until he reaches maturity, as it has invariably been Mr. Forbes' policy to wait till they are perfectly equipped to train for their very best efforts. Mr. Forbes planned to become a limited breeder of the very highest class animals, and in ten or twelve years has succeeded wonderfully well as a breeder and manager. Nico 2:08½ was destined to be a 2:03 or 2:04 trotter, but death cut short his career as a four year old and the turf lost a star of the highest calibre. Now it is said that a sister of Nico is faster at the age than was he. We may see her at races in 1902, and if she were to equal or lower Eleata's fast record of 2:08½ it would be gratifying to Mr. Forbes' extensive circle of friends. A brother of Nico named Capt. Haff took a record last season, and was selected by the astute trainer James Golden as a stake prospect for the season to come, so he will have full opportunity to distinguish himself.

Intestinal Worms.

In the horse there are many kinds of worms found besides the bot worms. The lumbricoids belong to the genus ascaris and are known as the round worm, which dwells in the intestines, but sometimes, however, ascend into the stomach and creep out at the mouth and nostril. Oxyures vermiculari—the threadworm, which lives almost exclusively in the rectum. The round worm is 4 to 10 inches long and resembles the common earthworm, differing, however, in color, which is a dirty white. The threadworm is very much smaller and resembles in size and color a piece of white thread, three-quarters of an inch and a trifle longer. These are found, at times, by the thousand; they are a great worry to the animal, causing him to paw and rub his hind quarters incessantly. The strongylus is from five inches to three feet long. The oxyures also occur; they are blunted at one end, with a head like a sucker. The trichocephalus, or long threadworm; the tapeworm is also, sometimes, found in the horse, besides a variety of other worms, such as the bot worm, etc. To prevent such vermin from destroying your stock it is necessary to allow them a liberal supply of salt and some tonic food containing a bitter principle. The Manhattan Stock Food, Red Ball Brand, is such a tonic food. We guarantee it to prevent worms from generating and to positively expel them, if present. Manhattan Food cures colic, hide-bound and all stomach troubles of the horse.

Bench Show Notes.

An innovation in bench show affairs is promised at the April bench show by the appearance at that exhibition of what may confidently be classed as a showing of at least 100 blue-blooded greyhounds, which will be an aggregation of the best specimens of the breed in the United States and second to none in the world.

The demands of the sport of coursing in this State have been of such a strenuous nature that we have in this city and on the Coast at present a collection of these graceful and speedy dogs that cannot be excelled anywhere. Veritably, an illustration of the axiom, "survival of the fittest," for a dog that cannot earn his keep or does not give promise of doing so; a dog who, by virtue of past performances on the sward, is not of utility in the stud or a bitch of requisite coursing renown who cannot maintain her fame as a brood dam, has no standing in the practical lexicon of the leshman.

Heretofore, for divers reasons, the coursing men have seen fit to hold back in exhibiting their high-class running dogs, not that they were unaware of the benefits arising to owners and breeders, and also for the best interests of "man's best friend," in giving a more substantial support to bench shows, but there seemed to be a missing link in the efforts of past bench show managers in inducing the coursing devotees to come to the front.

Under the gentle mantle of charity has been found a potent motive for a change in the routine of past indifference, and in response to overtures from the San Francisco Kennel Club, Mr. L. A. Klein, the honorary manager of the coming bench show, was introduced by the secretary of the California Coursing Committee, Mr. George McE. Malcolm, to the California Coursing Committee at a meeting held on Thursday of last week.

Mr. Klein pointed out to the committee the advisability, to coursing men, of showing the magnificent and perfect specimens of the breed owned by local kennels, thus interesting a wider circle of sportsmen in coursing affairs and also in the breeding of thoroughbred Greyhounds, further popularizing the sport by introducing to the notice of many, who are but little familiar with the sport, some of the grand dogs who have not only made history in coursing annals, but have also won purses and trophies of greater value than have many turf celebrities. The result of this meeting was a tacit understanding that the dog show management will set aside a space at the bench show for a Greyhound exhibition, which in itself will be one of the greatest expositions of high class coursing dogs that has yet been placed before an audience. A committee, of which Mr. Rossiter will probably act as chairman, was appointed by the coursing board to perfect arrangements for this special feature of the coming dog show.

The coursing men will offer a purse of not less than $500 for distribution among Greyhound classes only. The committee of arrangements will erect their own benching, which is promised to be most elaborate. The dogs will be under the personal care of their respective trainers.

The Greyhound section will have a reception parlor and several other convenient appurtenances for the leshmen, their lady friends and visitors, making the exhibit an enjoyable and novel feature of the bench show.

The bench show committee appointed by the California Coursing Committee will consist of J. H. Rosseter, H. A. Deckelman, E. E. Shotwell and George McE. Malcolm.

The classification of the Greyhound exhibit will most likely be open classes for dogs, also bitches; a stake class for dogs, also bitches; a class to winners of more than four courses; a mixed class for dogs and bitches not eligible for the stake class, a class for dogs and bitches under eighteen months of age.

An encouraging augury for the April show management is the liberal spirit shown by organizations and individual fanciers in offering special prizes.

The California Cocker Club offers the President's trophy. Other specials for Cocker classes are given by Mrs. W. C. Ralston, J. H. Dorian, owner of the Nairood Kennels; E. C. Plume, of the Plumeria Kennels; Miss Ethel H. Tompkins, of the Pine Hill Kennels.

The regular club medals offered are for the best Cocker dogs, best bitch; best for other than black dog; best for other than black bitch. A silver medal will be offered for each class. A silver medal each will be offered for the best dog and best bitch owned on the Pacific Coast; the competition for these two medals is open to all.

Mr. E. C. Plume, the secretary of the California Cocker Club has issued a circular to the club members, in which he states among other things, as follows:

"We cannot afford to belike warm in our support of the present effort of the San Francisco Kennel Club to develop a heartier spirit of goodfellowship and co-operation, and we very earnestly urge our members to respond promptly, heartily and liberally to the call of the Honorable Manager of the club, Mr. L. A. Klein, for support in the form of specials and otherwise. Let us join enthusiastically as a club, and as individuals in the effort to make the coming show a monumental success. Put aside personal prejudices and jealousies in the interest of man's most loyal friend and companion."

The Cocker Club will, pursuant to action taken at the committee meeting this week, furnish a reception parlor for the members, friends and guests somewhat on the same lines as the Greyhound fanciers have decided.

The San Francisco Kennel Club bench show committee have allotted to the Cocker Club a separate section for their exhibit.

The California Collie Club have announced that all of the usual club specials will be offered, the Pacific Bull Terrier Club have expressed a similar intention.

The recently organized Bulldog Club will have in competition, for members only, a handsome and valuable trophy, worth, it is estimated, at least $150. The Bulldog Club of America has offered the club medal for the best dog whelped and bred in the United States, the sire and dam of which dog, when mated, were owned by a resident or residents of the United States. A club medal, under similar conditions, is also offered for the best bitch.

A special of more than little importance is offered by George H. Ketcham, Esq., the owner of the celebrated trotting horse Cresceus. This cup is offered in a measure as a testimonial from the donor in recognition of the many courtesies he received, during his recent visit to this city, at the hands of A. B. Spreckels, Esq., the president of the San Francisco Kennel Club.

Julius Redelsheimer, Esq., president of the Seattle Kennel Club, will donate a handsome cup.

Irving C. Ackerman, Esq., has signified his intention of giving an elegant cup, which is to be awarded to the best pair of St. Bernards.

Charles K. Harley, N. H. Hickman and L. A. Klein have each offered a cup for the three Northern shows. Mr. Harley's cup will go to Victoria, Mr. Hickman's cup to Seattle and Mr. Klein's cup to Portland.

A novel feature of the coming show will be the exhibition of Beagles, a breed in high repute among fox and rabbit hunters in the East. But few Beagles have ever been seen at our local bench shows, in fact there are but a small number of the breed on the Coast.

An opportunity to get a good line on Beagles will be had in April as the Middle Essex pack from South Lincoln, Mass., J. A. Higginson, master, and several other private packs will be entered in the race for the cup offered by Mr. Ketcham.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The Philadelphia show will be a two point show.

Griffon Bruxellois is a breed that has recently taken the fancy across the water.

Gabilan Kennels, at Hollister, will soon have another crack English Setter from the East.

The Boston Terrier Lord Derby, owned by Dr. Mott, won the Treasurer's cup for the most popular dog in the Providence show. Dr. Lougest's Wandle Warrior ran second.

J. McCormick's English Setter bitch Luzon Maid (Ruby's Lad-Daisy Opal) whelped on December 16th nine puppies to Gabilan Kennels' Danstone's Pride (Count Danstone-Fairland Queen).

We are extremely sorry to note the death of one of the most promising of the young dogs that ran at the Pacific Coast Field Trials last month, Diana's Rodfield, who was the property of F. J. Stone, of Fresno. Thus goes another good dog to increase the death roll that commenced with distemper which made its appearance among the strings of dogs taken to Santa Maria.

The full list of judges for Chicago show is as follows: Dudley Waters, Grand Kapids, Mich., St. Bernards; John H. Naylor, Mount Forest, Ill., Mastiffs, Newfoundland, Great Danes, Bloodhounds, Bulldogs, Scottish, Skye, Dandie Dinmont and Black and Tan (Manchester) Terriers, Yorkshire Terriers, Toy Terriers (other than Yorkshire), Italian Greyhounds, King Charles, Blenheim, Prince Charles, Ruby and Japanese Spaniels, Pugs and Chihuahuas; John Davidson, Monroe, Mich., English, Irish and Gordon Setters, Pointers, Russian Wolfhounds, Deerhounds, Greyhounds, Foxhounds, Beagles, all Spaniels except Toys, Chesapeake Bay dogs, Whippets and other sporting breeds not enumerated; T. S. Bellin, Minneapolis, Minn., Bull, Airedale, Welsh, Bedlington, Irish, Boston and Maltese Terriers, Dachshunds, Griffons, Dalmatians (coach dogs), all Poodles, French Bulldogs and Pomeranians; G. M. Carnochan, Riverdale-on-Hudson, New York City, Fox Terriers; H. B. Hungerford, St. Paul, Minn., Collies and Old English Sheep dogs. Miscellaneous classes, John Davidson, John H. Naylor, T. S. Bellin. Entries close March 1st. Fee, $3, prizes are $3 and $5, puppy and novice; $10, $5 and medal in limit and open.

AT THE TRAPS.

The initial shoot of the Golden Gate Gun Club will commence to-day and be continued to-morrow at Ingleside. The tournament is open to all, the program for both days is the following:

Saturday, February 22—Live birds.

Event No. 1—6 birds; entrance $2.50, birds included; 60 to 40 per cent, high guns to win.

Event No. 2—10 birds; entrance $5, birds included; 50, 30 and 20 per cent, high guns to win.

Event No. 3—Miss and out; entrance $2.50, birds extra.

Event No. 4—12 birds; entrance $5, birds extra; 40, 30, 20 and 10 per cent, high guns.

Other events will be arranged if time permits.

Gold and silver bars will be awarded for those making 12 and 15 straight.

Sunday, February 23—Blue rocks.

Event No. 1—15 birds; entrance $1; 3 moneys, class shooting.

Event No. 2—15 birds; entrance $1; 3 moneys, class shooting.

Event No. 3—20 birds; entrance $1.25; 4 moneys, class shooting.

Event No. 4—Re-entry, miss and out, four entries allowed. First entry 50 cts., each entry thereafter 25 cts.; first money $5, second $3, third $2.

Event No. 5—Merchandise shoot; 20 birds; entrance $1, 7 classes.

Event No. 6—15 birds; entrance $1, 3 moneys, class shooting.

Gold and silver bars will be given for 25 and 35 straight breaks.

Shooting will commence at 10 A. M. each day.

The names of the gentlemen selected for the Handicapping Committee for the Great American Handicap at live birds for 1902 are the Messrs. John M. Lilly, Indianapolis, Ind., chairman; C. W. Budd, Des Moines, Ia.; Chris. Gottlieb, Kansas City, Mo.; Arthur Gambell, Cincinnati, O., and Elmer E. Shaner, Pittsburgh, Pa., as secretary to the committee. Great care has been taken in the selection of the committee. Inasmuch as the majority of the shooters at the Grand American Handicap this year will undoubtedly be from the Western and Southern States, all of the members of the committee are taken from among the shooters of that section, and as all of them are men of wide experience in shooting affairs, and of extended acquaintance among the shooters, as well as undoubted integrity, the handicapping should be done to the satisfaction of all.

B. Leroy Wordard, or "Leroy," as he is more familiarly known, is this season traveling for the Dupont Powder Company, and shooting a Parker gun. Last year Leroy accompanied the American team to England and Scotland, where he participated in some of the matches, and acquitted himself very well in each in which he took part. Recently (January 18th) he shot at Providence, R. I., in the contest for the championship of the State, and although he was not eligible for the honors, he had the satisfaction of being high gun, with the score of 84 out of the 100. E. C. Griffith, of Pascoag, R. I., the winner of last year's Grand American Handicap at live birds and also at targets, being the next high gun with the score of 82, and therefore the winner of the championship. The conditions of this shoot were very difficult, being 25 targets at known angles; 25, at unknown; 25, expert rules, and 13 pairs of doubles, but the conditions this day were more than ordinarily difficult, for with the twenty participants, it was late when the doubles were shot, the targets could hardly be seen on account of the darkness.

Elmer E. Shaner, manager of the Interstate Association, announces that it has been decided to hold interstate tournaments during the coming season as follows: Charleston, S. C., May 14, 15 and 16. Memphis, Tenn., June 4, 5 and 6. Raleigh, N. C., June 25 and 26. Titusville, Pa., July 16, 17 and 18. Brunswick, Me., August 13 and 14. And also at Marietta, Ohio; Nappanee, Ind.; Lewiston, Ill., and Haverhill, Mass., but the dates for these latter places have not been decided upon as yet.

The trophies won and owned by the Olympic Gun Club will be shot for by members of the old club in good standing at the time of joining the new gun club. This competition, we believe, will be among those members of the teams who shot for the trophies and helped to win them. Messrs. Will Golcher, Jackson and Forster were appointed a committee to arrange the program for an early date.

A. M. Shields has offered two valuable cups to be shot for this season by the Golden Gate and Union Gun Clubs respectively.

The Golden Gate Club trophy will be contested for at a live bird shoot.

The Union Club prize will go to the winner of a 100-target race to come off on April 20th.

The exact program for each event will be announced next week.

The Golden Gate Gun Club will award gold and silver bars at its regular shoots for both live bird and blue rock scores.

At any of the regular club live bird events, a straight run of fifteen birds will entitle the shooter to a gold bar. A score of twelve straight will be rewarded with a silver bar.

At the regular blue rock shoots in the club events a run of twenty-five straight will produce a gold bar for the shooter and a run of fifteen consecutive breaks will receive a silver bar decoration.

Golden Gate Gun Club.

The consolidation of the Olympic, Lincoln and San Francisco Gun Clubs was consummated at a joint meeting on the 14th inst. of members of the three gun clubs above mentioned.

Preliminary business was transacted, H. B. Hosmer acting as chairman pro tem and Stanley G. Scovern secretary pro tem.

The report of the consolidation committee was read and accepted. A constitution and by-laws submitted by Messrs. Sweeney, Forster and Haight was read and adopted after certain changes.

Permanent organization was effected and the following officers elected by acclamation for the ensuing year: H. B. Hosmer, President; George H. T. Jackson, Vice-President; Stanley G. Scovern, Recording Secretary; M. O. Feudner, Treasurer; Ed. Wands, Charles H. Shaw and Edgar L. Forster, Directors.

The club charter will remain open until April 1st, as an inducement for the enrollment of new members, who would otherwise have to pay the initiation fee of $5.00. The dues for membership in the new club will be $12.00 annually, payable at the rate of $2.00 monthly during the trap shooting season.

The Olympic Gun Club, before merging with the new club, announced its intention of turning over to the treasury of the amalgamated club its funds, a sum amounting to over $200, which will be applied pro rata in the payment of dues for about thirty members.

Clarence C. Nauman, E. E. Drake, of San Francisco, and Joseph A. Chanslor, of Los Angeles, were elected to membership.

The name, Golden Gate Gun Club, was adopted for the new trap shooting club as suggested by the consolidation committee.

The Board of Directors were empowered by the constitution and by-laws to arrange the season's shooting program. The club will probably shoot live birds at Ingleside on the second Sunday of the month and blue rocks on the fourth Sunday. The initial club shoots will take place to-day and to-morrow as announced in another column.

California Wing Club.

The following schedule of distance handicaps has been prepared for the club members for this season's shooting at live birds. This program is subject to an arbitrary handicap as follows: A straight score in the club race at 12 birds will place a shooter back one yard, a miss on the following shoot will keep the shooter at that particular yard mark. The shooter will go forward one yard on two misses. The limit of distances are 26 to 33 yards inclusive.

The club program for the season will be arranged so that each member who shoots through the monthly races will shoot at just 100 birds. At each monthly shoot $50 in cash will be distributed, $20, $15, $10 and $5 to high guns and also a $25 silver cup. The high average gun for the season will win a $75 silver cup.

The initial shooting handicaps are: Ed. Donohoe 28 yards, A. R. Jackson 28, Dr. A. M. Barker, 30, H. Kullman 26, A. Hamilton 28, C. H. Shaw 30, C. C. Nauman 31, Ed. Fay 28, H. C. Golcher 29, Dr. S. C. Knowles 28, A. Roos 27, C. A. Haight 31, H. Wagner 28, J. V. Coleman 27, Prince Poniatowski 27, F. R. Webster 28, L. D. Owens 28, John B. Coleman 27, P. McRae 29, A. M. Shields 28, F. Vernon 26, C. M. Fisher 26, W. H. Williamson 29, H. Justins 28, P. Walsh 29, W. Gerstle 26, N. H. Neustadter 28, Dr. E. McConnell 27, W. J. Golcher 29, M. O. Feudner 31, J. J. Sweeney 29, E. L. Forster 28, Phil B. Bekeart 29, G. H. T. Jackson 30, Dr. Birdsall 27.

The club dues and initiation fee were both recently increased to $20 per annum and $20 for each new member.

Empire Gun Club.

The officers elected by the Empire Gun Club for the ensuing year are the following: James P. Sweeney, President; W. D. Cullen, Vice-President; J. B. Hauer, Secretary-Treasurer; J. Peltier, Manager; John H. Durst, Captain; A. J. Webb, Lieutenant; C. A. Bennett, Sergeant-at-Arms.

The club will open the blue rock season at Alameda Point on Sunday, March 2d. The club grounds have been re-arranged and several changes adopted. The bulkheads will be taken down and the traps placed in a deeper trench. The targets will be sprung from an unbroken ground live apparently, thus making the light appear as near as possible like the rise of a live bird from the ground. This new system is now in vogue at the principal trap shooting resorts East.

The Sweeney record medal contest, the club championship medal race and the re-entry classification money match, both at 25 targets, will be continued this year, as well as several other trophy events yet to be announced.

Union Gun Club.

At a club meeting last Friday night the Union Gun Club decided to shoot this season on the Ingleside trap shooting grounds. The regular club blue rock shoots will take place on the third Sunday of each month.

A live bird shoot will be held on July 29th. The first club shoot at blue rocks will take place on March 16th.

Eight new members were elected. The annual election of officers will take place on the 26th inst. The club trap shooting program for this season will be announced in a week or two.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Immediately at the close of the recent Hamilton, Ont., tournament, John S. Fanning returned to New York. Inasmuch as this is rather an off season of the year for trap shooting, it is not likely that he will start out again until about the time of the Great American Handicap at Kansas City, Mo., the latter part of next March. In the meantime, he is a frequent visitor at Interstate park, as well as some of the private clubs, where he shoots sufficiently to keep his hand in at both live birds and targets.

During the hunting season, which closed February 1st, the members of the Colusa Gun Club killed a total of 4117 birds. October was the best month for birds, when 1226 ducks and geese were bagged. November netted them 1172; December 1096; in January the sport dropped off and only 623 were killed.

Five of the members succeeded in killing their limit of fifty birds in one day's shoot, the lucky ones being M. E. Phillips, C. W. Tuttle, George Tibbetts, John Haugh and E. T. Crane.

C. W. Tuttle carried off the honors for the greatest number of birds killed for the season with a record of 449. M. E. Phillips comes next with 373; Adolph Ahlf, 339; H. M. Albery, 313; Bud Welch, 246; Morris Jones, 205.

This season far exceeds last as to quantity of birds and total number killed. Swans have been more plentiful than for years. The above was taken from the record book kept by the game keeper, William A. Sweetland.

Captain A. W. Money, the president of the American "E. C." and "Shultze" Gunpowder Company, has never professed to be very much of a target shot, but of late he has been doing some remarkable work. At one of the recent club shoots of the Crescent Athletic Club, the Captain broke 121 out of 125, the last few targets being shot when the light was so dim the referees had to get down on their knees to be able to see if a target was broken or not. On January 15th last, he shot a match with George H. Piercy for the target championship of New Jersey, and defeated that well known good target shot by the score of 44 to 36 out of 50, and on Thursday of last week at John Wright's shoot at the Brooklyn Gun Club, he was the high gun in a field of fourteen, with a score of 95 in the 100-target event. The Captain is well known as a hard man to beat in a live bird race, and it is very doubtful if, with the way he is shooting targets at present, there is not another man of his age (63 years) who could win from him in a match at both live birds and targets—at any rate, if there is any one who would care to try the game with him, it certainly would not take very long to get on a match.

Striped Bass Notes.

That San Francisco and San Pablo bays and tributary sloughs and waters are full of striped bass is fully borne in evidence by the plentiful supply of fish seen daily on the stalls of the local fish markets. Fish weighing as much as thirty pounds and over are fairly numerous. Nearly all the fish taken by rod and line or in the nets are fat male fish in splendid condition and of beautiful coloring—the dark hues of the back and stripes ranging from deep blue black to a lighter shade of blue on the lower side stripes, the silver and white of the sides and belly each being bright and sheeny. All of the male fish are ripe to bursting with milt. Where the females are and what they are doing is a mystery for the present.

Many salt water fishermen have been out trolling for bass recently; but success has not been of an enthusiastic nature. Along the Marin shores a few fish have been taken, one a nineteen pounder was hooked near California City this week. Some big fellows have been netted in Tiburon cove. Observation has proven that there are plenty of big fish in Raccoon straits.

In San Antonio slough quite a few fish have been caught by a limited number of anglers. Captain Walker of the Petaluma Gun Club landed ten large fish one day last week.

On Tuesday last A. M. Cumming and a friend caught four fine fish, a ten and a half, a nine, five and a half and a four pound fish. These bass did not make a very strong fight, the fact of their being full of milt possibly accounted for it. The fish were caught on the outgoing tide, about an hour after slack water. The slough was muddy and roily, the water being in very bad condition for fishing. A visit to the same parts of the slough the following day, the tide being an hour later in falling, was fruitless. The water was muddier, if anything, and a brisk wind against the tide kicked up quite a sea.

Fly-Casting at Stow Lake.

The first meeting at the lakeside of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club for the year took place last Sunday. Sixteen members took part in the different events. The gathering of the rod wielders was composed of familiar faces, less one, which was noted in the absence of a congenial comrade, Horace Smyth. In long distance eight casters put out their silk lines over the 100 foot mark. H. C. Golcher was in good fettle with a score of 129 feet, T. W. Brotherton and J. B. Kenniff were second and third high men respectively in this event.

The accuracy percentages as a rule were excellent, considering the several months during which the rods had been laid by. Carlos G. Young led off with the splendid record of 96%, Brotherton and J. S. Turner being next in line in the order named. K. Charles, a new member, made the creditable initial score of 76.8-12 in this event.

In the delicacy event, considering the unfavorable weather conditions, a fair showing was made. Walter D. Mansfield led the register, closely followed by Brotherton and H. F. Muller.

Six competitors made up the bait casting squad. The high cast, 97.1-5, was made by C. R. Kenniff.

The weather was cloudy and a west wind prevailed during the day. The inclement weather of Saturday last necessitated the postponement of the first contest for one week.

The scores made on Sunday morning were as follows:

SUNDAY CONTEST No. 1—Stow Lake, February 16, 1902. Wind, west. Weather, cloudy.

Judges—Messrs. Mansfield and Daverkosen. Referee, Mr. Turner. Clerk, Mr. Wilson.

NOTE: Event 1—Distance Casting, feet. Event 2—Accuracy percentage. Event 3—Delicacy, (a) accuracy percentage; (b) delicacy percentage; (c) net percentage. Event 4—Lure casting, percentage.

The fractions in lure casting are 15ths.

Weather permitting, the postponed Saturday Contest No. 1 will take place to-day, commencing at 2:30 P. M.

A special meeting and banquet of the Fly-Casting Club will be held on Tuesday evening at the California Hotel. The principal business to be transacted at the meeting will be the consideration of amendments to the constitution and by-laws.

A Glenn County Wild Goose Shoot.

Sportsmen have solace in goose hunting these days when ducks are plentiful and the season closed a month earlier than usual. A district where geese, in several varieties, are found in countless thousands is the hard adobe pasturage lands, which in a far extending, wide and level plain can be found in Glenn county surrounding Norman, a way station on the railroad, here the houses, barns and outbuildings are few and far between and the game and wary birds find plenty of grass and sprouting vegetation upon which to feed.

At this place a number of city sportsmen have found conditions for a day or a week's goose hunting to be most favorable. Taking the train from the city, for instance, at 8:30 A. M., the sportsman arrives at Norman about 1 P. M. Then taking lunch and arraying himself in hunting suit and gum boots, he will find a wagon ready to convey him to the selected spot for the day. The locality in which the hunter will shoot is determined by the wind and weather conditions—the guides are men who understand the habits of the birds thoroughly and know where to find them. In the wagon is placed the guns and shells, twelve bores and No. 6 shot propelled by smokeless powder is effective enough, although some shooters fancy ten and eight-gauge guns with correspondingly larger loads and heavier shot. With the wagon also goes another essential factor in the sport—nothing less than coops containing as many as forty or more live geese. These birds were wild and free in their day, but by reason of slight or disabling wounds they have been captured from time to time and now, wingtipped and incapable of escape, they are used as living decoys for their congeners. And in this respect they are of more effect than just so many ordinary stalking about or feeding live birds, as they have been carefully trained to call to flying geese and seduce them into range of the shooter's deadly hammerless breech-loader.

The plain is dotted here and there with puddles and ponds, in and about which the geese find vegetable sustenance. Close to these feeding spots pits have been dug. These holes are circular and generally three feet in diameter and three and a half or four feet deep, the consistency of the hard pan soil making it an exceedingly laborious task to make the excavations larger and more comfortable for the gunner. The holes are, however, made wider at the bottom circumference than at the top, being in shape somewhat like an inverted old-fashioned pot. In one of these retreats the hunter is ensconced. If there happens to be a puddle of water in the bottom of his blind his gum boots will keep him dry whilst he is kneeling, and to overcome the effects of a chill from the moisture he possibly will have in his pocket a proper embrocation, which is of potency when applied internally.

Whilst the shooter has been getting ready the guide and wagon driver have not been idling. Stout pens, made of netting, the meshes of which are fine and strong linen twine, such as is used for salmon gill nets, are put up on iron standards. These pens, generally four in number, are disposed advantageously around the shooting holes, into them are quickly placed the live geese decoys. The nets, secure and strong, are of so gauzy a character that they are indistinguishable at no great distance, even to so wary a bird as the goose.

The shooting location may be a mile or eight miles from the guides' house near the station, as in their discretion they are led to believe a successful shoot can be had. Pits for this purpose, in that particular country, have been excavated at any number of places.

At all events a particular spot has been selected and reached in proper time for the evening flight of geese, which there begins at 4 or 4:30 o'clock. When everything is ready, and the hunters in these holes, the guide will plump into his own particular pit, and giving final instruction to the shooter to fire when he gives the signal words "punch 'em," the hunters await the arrival of the birds within range.

Soon the keen eye of the guide discerns a flight of geese in the distance, then his practiced throat gives out call after call; this is taken up by a cadence of goose talk from the trained live geese in the net pounds and ere long, on swift and graceful wing comes a flock, larger or smaller, as the case may be, of geese, answering back in melodious mingled chorus, the feather'd traitor's seductive notes, until gradually swinging around in gyrating circles and long sweeps the birds come within fifteen or twenty yards. The concealed shooters are crouched down and out of sight in their respective pits, the only evidence of occupancy is shown by the muzzles of the death dealing shotguns pointing skywards as they are held in readiness by the hunter—when "punch 'em" cries the guide, up bobs a hunter's head, a quick aim and both barrels belch forth a leaden welcome to the flock of geese in range, the wary leaders of which could not discern the presence of man and his cunning artifices for their destruction until too late. But not always too late, it takes a sure shot and a good judge of flight and distance to land the birds effectively, their speed is deceptive at times to many an old hunter.

When a bird or more than one goose falls, for the experienced hunter singles out a particular bird and does not attempt a flock shot, the guide is out and after the goose, which is quickly set up on a wire frame and is then used as a decoy. The larger the flock of birds displayed around the shooting pit the more attractive is that particular spot to the aerial caravans of geese. The shooting is kept up until dark, or if the hunters start out for the morning flight the hunt is continued until the flight ceases. In all of the large flocks of geese there is a commingling of several varieties, the Canada or honker goose, gray geese, brant and the voluble clyng-clyng flying along amicably together. In the smaller flocks the birds are generally of one kind. All of them, however, have, unless well centered, a remarkable faculty of shedding shot from their feathered sides.

The hunter in his somewhat cramped position must remain absolutely quiet, any effort of observation or preliminary curiosity in peeping is entirely out of place. The slightest movement or, in fact, any suspicious placement of matter foreign to that locality is enough to cause the geese to visit other and more congenial territory in quick order.

"Even at this, it is marvelous how quickly so large a bird can sheer out of range of the best gun, just at the moment when he seems within certain reach. He gets away so gracefully and gently that one cannot figure how much he has increased the distance until the gun rings out in vain thunder across the plain and the frightened flock drifts away on the side with not so much as a feather gently whiffing to earth."

As for calling, this is an art and unless practiced by an expert, is unavailing and the novice will find it simply time lost. Three hunters who have the reputation of being the best callers in the State are Doc Stewart, Abe Crump and Claude Kagee, under whose auspices Clarence C. Naumann recently enjoyed a goose hunt at Norman after the fashion detailed above; the total bag for an afternoon shoot counted up 110 geese, white and brant, principally the latter.

This method of shooting the largest and wariest of our game birds has the distinction of being practiced at no other locality in this State. Live decoys are used by hunters in Oregon and Washington, the method of conducting a hunt while it may differ in local details is however pretty much the same. The fascination of this particular game has attracted the attention of many local sportsmen, some of whom have enjoyed the sport at Norman for a week at a time.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

Enchanted, or Haunted Lake.

[J. MAYNE BALTIMORE]

Snugly nestled amidst towering, rugged mountains, away up in the wildest regions of British Columbia, remote from the international boundary line, lies a little lake. But, to the comparative few who are aware of its existence, it is known as "Enchanted" or "Haunted" lake. From time immemorial the lake has borne these appellations among the Indian tribes and early trappers and traders.

The stream which constitutes the lake's only outlet flows southward and, after devious meanderings, pours its clear waters into the great Columbia river. This lake lies remote from the haunts of even sparse civilization, and is reached by a long, narrow, serpentine trail, which leads over and through a very rough, mountainous country. On the way up to the lake magnificent forests are traversed. The sheet is completely hemmed in except to the south. To the east and north tower Lookout Mountain; to the west Lake Mountain lowers and scoops down on the modest little lake. Over the water, forests and mountains hangs an atmosphere of gloom. The entire region seems invested with a touch of mysterious loneliness. About the lake itself there seems to be a suggestion of the weird and uncanny. Not that it lacks any of the elements of romantic picturesqueness. It is beautiful, and its rugged environments are grand and inspiring. But there is, nevertheless, something chilling and repellant in the very spirit that broods over the scene.

In length Haunted is about one and a quarter miles. In no place is it wider than one-fourth of a mile. On all sides it is surrounded with timber, coming down in many places clear to the lake's margin. The waters are clear and cold, abounding in fish. About the center of the lake the water is very deep, almost fathomless. Five or six hundred feet of line may be run out without touching bottom. Evidently the source of supply must come from numerous and large springs. Quite a stream pours from the lower end of the lake and goes dashing down the mountains. During the winter, and also in early summer when the snows melt, Haunted Lake is several yards higher than at other seasons.

No human being lives about this lake. An old, tumble down and decayed log cabin stands near the eastern shores. But, for long, long years it has been tenantless. The former occupant is unknown.

For a great many years this lake had been held in superstitious fear and awe by all the Indian tribes. They claimed that it was haunted by demons, or evil spirits. Different legends are connected with this body of water. Some of the Indians assert that a great many years ago—probably centuries—a vast avalanche came down into the lake. At the time a number of Indian hunters were encamped on the lake's shore. Success had crowned their hunt, and the red men came down to the lake laden with the spoils of the chase. They camped near the water, and when night came on they built great fires. Then they feasted, sang their wild, weird songs and danced in mad joy. But, while they thus caroused, suddenly the face of the full moon was darkened by a huge black cloud. Deep, rumbling sounds like muffled peals of thunder came from the bosom of the lake. The waters seemed greatly perturbed, and from the forests upon the mountains were wafted strange, mingled voices. In superstitious terror the Indians paused and trembled, thinking they had angered the Great Spirit. While they thus stood a vast avalanche came swiftly down the mountain side and swept them all into the lake. All perished and no trace of the bodies were ever found.

Another legend asserts that the daughter of a famous chief was murdered by a jealous lover and her body cast into the lake. Then the murderer flung himself into the water and perished. A horrible fish-dragon that inhabited the lake devoured the two bodies. There are other ghastly legends, but these two will suffice.

From the time the whites first came into the country, Haunted lake has ever been avoided by the Indians. They will not eat fish caught in the lake; nor drink of the water, nor bathe in it. It is rare that an Indian can be persuaded to even approach the lake. Under no circumstances can he be prevailed upon to camp near the shores, or, remain over night there.

They claim that, during the night lights may be seen whisking over the surface of the water; that ghostly forms move over the lake's tranquil bosom; that groans and wailings come from the deep waters, and, that unearthly voices seem to be wafted from the forests. These they claim are the lamentations of the spirits of those who were lost in the lake.

Haunted lake, notwithstanding its isolation is often visited by white men. Hunting and prospecting parties frequently camp on its shores.

The lake is located in the heart of a country abounding in big game. In the deep, yawning canyons, under the shadow of the solemn forests, and along the sides and summits of the lofty mountains, the caribou, silver tip, black and brown bear, deer, cougar and the big grey and black wolf make their home.

The various streams in that region abound in trout as do the crystalline waters of the lake. To the hunter of big game, the ardent angler and the general lover of Nature in all its wild phases, these regions are a veritable paradise.

Just what great convulsion of nature originally created the lake is a mystery. In the center, the lake is very deep—almost fathomless but the waters are exceedingly clear. Objects may be seen to a great depth with startling vividness. About the middle of this lake is a submerged island.

Persons in crossing the sheet assert that large trees and rocks can be seen at a great depth. These trees are standing upright in the water and the tops are a long distance below the surface of the lake. How long this submerged forest has thus stood, is a mystery. Certainly, for a great many years.

The bark has long since slipped away from the trunks and branches of the trees. Both the trunks and branches are white, probably caused by the action of the water. Through the watery medium, the forest looks weird and distorted—ghostly.

Many persons are inclined to think that this "subterranean island" was caused by a vast landslide. For this reason, they are inclined to attach credence to the Indian legend.

However, much of the story must be received with grave doubt. Those who camp along the glistening shores of this beautiful lake, bathe and fish in its pellucid waters, and they who hunt in those regions see no nocturnal lights, or, ghostly forms floating over the lake's glossy surface.

But, it is claimed by some who have passed the night by the lake, that there are strange rumbling sounds coming from the deep waters, and peculiar cadences from the forest-clad mountains. At intervals, the waters are disturbed.

However, the superstitious theories of the redman are laughed at. The noises from the lake, and the occasional agitation are attributed to some subterranean inlet or outlet, and the supposed mountain voices are due to the winds sweeping through the forests and producing a weird, dirge-like melody.

There are rich mineral deposits in the mountains around Haunted lake, and recently some important discoveries have been made.

WHERE BIG GAME ABOUNDS.

Mountains and Plains of New Mexico are a Paradise for Hunters.

Some of the principal game authorities of this country claim that the wild mountainous region—north and south of the Santa Fe railroad for miles and miles, all the way from Williams, A. T., to Las Vegas, N. M.—is at this time the most satisfactory game preserve left in the whole west. Mr. Henry G. Tinsley writing from Gallup, N. M., last October, gives the following account of what sportsmen were doing in that vicinity last autumn and incidentally adds some natural history data of interest:

All the topographical and climatic conditions of this region are particularly adapted to the preservation and increase of wild animal and bird life. The enormous canyons that seam the great Rocky range abound in vegetable life and furnish food and solitary homes for a vast variety of animals and birds. The pine forests, untouched by man until thirty or forty years ago, on the upper mountain sides are exactly the localities for big, furry game. The pine pinons and the mast, so dear to bruin's palate, are all there. The green valleys, where water runs among the mountains, are ideal spots for elk and deer. The lonely crags and solitary caverns are the very homes for lynx and cougars. The valleys of Mexican grass, with steep walls of granite all about, are the favorite abodes of Rocky mountain sheep, and the lower mountain sides, where the wild honey bee flourishes, and where berries and succulent herbs grow abundantly, is a region where the black bear and coyote find existence according to their liking.

From Raton, N. M., to Flagstaff, A. T., in the mountains that rise above one another and sprawl over thousands of square miles, one may find in marvelous abundance seventeen varieties of furry game, ranging from 1500-pound grizzly bears and 1200-pound wapiti down to jackrabbits and gray squirrels. Besides, there are almost as many varieties of feathered game, from sixteen-pound turkeys to delicious mountain quail. The mountain streams, seldom fished in by the people of this region, overwhelmed as they are by a superabundance of shooting, are alive with trout of varieties most highly prized by anglers. The drivers on the stages to the lumber and mining camps say that they have pointed out to the passengers several deer, a catamount, a mountain goat, besides dozens of varieties of game birds, on every trip this season. Last September a young man tourist on his way to the Grand canyon stood in the seat of the covered stage wagon and shot a deer a quarter of a mile away. He postponed further journey to the canyon and went back to Flagstaff, rejoicing in his first capture of game bigger than a squirrel.

Further away to the west, over among the foothills that fringe the base of the San Francisco mountains, the cowboys frequently see black and brown bears—once in a long while a grizzly. A few weeks prior the locomotive of an overland express ran into two black bears near Williams, and once in a while a deer is thrown from the track by a locomotive cowcatcher. The very sparse population in the thousands of square miles of northern Arizona have not killed off in any year more than a small part of the natural increase of game of this region. The comparatively inaccessible mountain canyons, the rugged mountain sides and the pretty little valleys away off, sixty and seventy miles from any habitation, are all conducive to keeping this part of the territory a most prolific game preserve for many years to come.

While there is never a day in the whole year that game worthy of any hunter's ambition cannot be had in almost any locality in northern Arizona, the season from about the middle of October to the middle of January is by long odds the best for all-round shooting. There is then a light fall of snow in the higher mountains. The grass is greener on the lower mountain sides than at any time. The atmosphere is clear, keen and frosty, and one can discern objects forty miles away as easily as in one-tenth that distance in the Eastern States. The feathered and furry game are at their best, and he must be most dextrous and quick witted who goes a-hunting successfully at this season. The light, dry air of the mountains, spiced with the odor of great areas of pine and hemlock forests, begets an astonishing appetite for every one. Dyspeptics forget that they have stomachs. Then, too, there is an abundance of good forage grass, and springs bubbling with water at this season. These are essential to the hunting parties that must travel about in wagons and on horseback after they quit the railroad.

Lord of all the brute creation—the grizzly bear, the ursus ferox—may be hunted in the southern spurs of the Rockies almost as successfully as in the Klamaths and Modocs of northern California. He is slightly smaller than his California prototype, but he lacks nothing of his famous cousin's ferocity and strength. Here in New Mexico there probably now remain as many chances to hunt grizzly bears as anywhere in the world. Indeed, the man who comes to try his hand at shooting grizzlies is warmly welcomed by the stockmen, who lose heads of beef every year from predatory bears. The hunter who wants to shoot a grizzly must go into the higher mountain ranges, and must expect to do some hard work before finding his game. Bands of sheep are driven into the mountains to graze, and the bears frequently raid the sheep camps at night. By following the sheep and watching near the huddled band at night one can be moderately sure of getting a shot at one of the big beasts. One day last September two cowboys were coming over the Santa Maria mountains in San Bernalillo county, and they saw seven grizzly bears lying asleep in the chaparral, where they had feasted on a steer's carcass. But the danger of shooting into such a bunch of bears was too much for the cowboys, who dug their spurs into their broncos and rode swiftly away down the trail from the scene.

The vitality of the grizzly must be taken into account by the hunter, for by ignoring or underestimating that he may get himself into a bad scrape. A shot through the beast's body, not touching the heart or spinal cord, will only arouse his anger and not disable him at all, and unless the hunter has steady nerves and confidence in his ability to put a bullet exactly where he wants it to go, he should not tackle a grizzly alone upon anything like even terms. Let him especially beware of shooting at a bear that is above him upon a hillside. His best plan is to get up a tree and do his shooting from a safe perch. It is next to useless to attempt to still-hunt bears of any sort, as their sense of hearing and smell are very acute and they have no indiscreet curiosity. A cool, steady rifleman, who does not get rattled in a hot corner, can get the best of a grizzly with a good repeating rifle of heavy caliber. The 45-90 is an effective weapon at all ranges, and the 50-110 express is good at short range. The best place for a bullet is just at the butt of the grizzly's ear, and that is about the only head shot that can be relied upon to reach the brain. A line shot accurately planted in the spine will drop Caleb in his tracks, and, if he is charging, a bullet in what a butcher calls the "sticking place" will stop him. A shot behind the shoulder, if planted low enough to reach the heart, may do the work, but it is not sure to kill instantly. With a ball through the lungs a grizzly can make a long and ugly fight, and a shot through his stomach is worse than no shot at all.

Many sportsmen who come out to the territories for big game are satisfied with hunting black bears that are many times more numerous than grizzlies. Over in the Raton mountains one week last August a party of Chicago hunters got nine black bears, besides deer and a lot of feathered game. The driver of the San Mateo stage out of Santa Fe shot three black bears in one trip last year, and he made every shot from the seat of the stage. The cowboys say that bullets and strychnine have made the black bear unusually wary of human beings, but that away back in the canyons and gulches where there are berries and honey the Ursus Americanus is as numerous in Northern Mexico and Arizona as he ever was. The best record of bear killing in this region during the last dozen years was that made by a party of Santa Fe railroad and professional men who were out here from St. Louis and Kansas City in 1897. They had fine guides and rare luck. In five days they got eleven bears and over twenty antelope. The black bear is a timid animal and formidable only at close quarters, when he has been wounded and can't get away. When he is hurt he hides in the thickest patch of brush he can find, and if the hunter has no dogs, but has as much sense as a clam, he will let the bear stay in the brush and lick his wounds in peace. Wounded, bruised is not likely to leave much choice to the man who hurt him. It is a case of fight or get up a tree, and it is better to fight and settle it one way or the other, for if you tree he will be up after you if he can.

The timidity and wariness of the black bear make it very difficult to stalk or still-hunt him, although at times he becomes so much preoccupied in his search for ants and grubs that he does not observe the approach of a man from the leeward quarter. Being a lazy brute, he dislikes rough traveling, and is much addicted to walking in roads and trails, where he is more likely to be met by chance than he is among the rocks and thickets. Last summer while a hunter was riding over the trail from Fort Castle to Rincon, he counted the tracks of thirteen bears in the road in a stretch of twenty miles, and none of the tracks were more than three days old.

Black bears can be found almost anywhere in the mountains, and in the winter they come down to the lower line of the snow belt and prow about near the ranches. In the very heavy timber it is difficult to still-hunt the bear successfully, and a pack of dogs is almost indispensable. Where the country is comparatively open and free from underbrush the careful still-hunter may sometimes get a shot at a bear. In the fall of the year the black bear feasts on acorns and berries, and may be found in manzanita thickets or under oak trees on the hillsides fattening himself for the winter. In the sugar-pine forests he frequents the sunny points and spurs of ridges in the afternoon when the sun is low, and tears apart the big cones that strew the ground to get the toothsome pine nuts within, and if approached cautiously and with due regard to the direction of the wind he may be surprised at his feast.

There are few spots where elk may be hunted nowadays in the United States, and the mountains fifty miles northward from Las Vegas comprise one of the spots. Last fall seven elk were shot in the San Geronio mountains, and the mountain trappers and guides say there are a dozen elk born over that way every year. The comparative inaccessibility of the locality where the elk range is the reason of the preservation of the mighty animals. There is good reason to believe that Arizona and New Mexico will have elk left many years after their tribe has been wiped from the face of the earth in other parts of the Union. No nobler animal ever roamed the American continent for the sportsman than the mountain elk. It requires days of hard climbing, and the hunter will have aching arms and legs, for the journey to the ranges of the elk cannot be made all the way in a wagon. In the coldest winter weather on the mountains the elk go in small droves into the lower and warmer mountains. The cowboys and Indians find the greatest hunting excitement in shooting elk, and they have made sad inroads into the herds that once numbered 2000 and 3000 each. When former Senator Don Cameron of Pennsylvania and a party of friends were out here in 1887 they got a dozen elk apiece in a few days' hunting. In those days it was no trick at all for a quick-witted man with a 45-calibre repeating rifle to rise suddenly from concealment in a clump of cedars and pump lead into five or six elk before the band could get out of range.

The abundance of deer in all the mountains of New Mexico and Arizona is a notable fact. Many hunters of large experience say that the deer of the southern Rocky mountains are the finest game of the deer family in America. There are three varieties in this region—the Cervus Macrotus, or mule deer; Cervus Columbianus, or Columbia black-tailed deer, and Cervus Virginianus, or common Virginia deer. The mule deer gets its name from its enormous ears. It is larger than the common deer and of coarser build. The summer coat is pale yellow in color and this is replaced in the fall by a short black coat which rapidly fades to gray. In the forehead is usually a dark line in the shape of a horseshoe, toe downward. The tail is short, round, white, terminating with a tuft of long black hairs. The under side of the tail is naked, a peculiarity found in no other species of deer. The gait of the mule deer is not graceful. It is neither a run nor a leap, but a series of bounds, all the feet leaving and striking the ground together, like those of a bucking mule.

The mule deer is found in all parts of the territory, in the high mountains and in the valleys, and where seldom hunted is not very shy. To hunt mule deer successfully one must be a careful stalker and a good snap shot, for where they are much pursued they become very wary, and when they are jumped they run out of hearing and sight without stopping. The mule deer is not as gregarious as some other species, and is seldom found in bands. He feeds at the first dawn of day and then retires to some higher ground and lies down in some secluded thicket. To get a standing shot the hunter should go to the feeding ground before daylight and hide where the deer can neither see nor scent him. After the feeding hour he may follow the deer to their lairs in the brush, but he will not see them lying down. Let him walk slowly along, listening intently for the sound of any movement in the brush. Just after passing a dense thicket he hears a thump and a crash, and, wheeling around with rifle ready, he catches sight of a deer bounding through the brush. Up goes the rifle and almost instantly the shot is fired. Perhaps the deer's heels go over his head and the hunter has venison for dinner, but it is singularly easy to miss a jumping deer.

The Columbia deer is found in the northern and cooler localities. It is smaller than the mule deer, more trim and graceful of build, but plenty large to afford the best of sport. Its ears are not so abnormally large, its head and nose more delicate. Pictures of this deer in action show none of the horse action of the artists' deer copied from the old pictures of the English deer. They also wear deer horns instead of elk horns, which point backward, and they actually have the horns starting from the forehead in front of the ears instead of from the back of the neck behind them.

The Virginia deer is about the size of the Columbia deer, with longer legs and body, head lean and slim, nose pointed and naked, ear small, neck long and slender, eyes large and lustrous, tail long, lanceolate and edged with white. The antlers project backward and outward from the head, and then curve sharply forward, the tines projecting from the rear side of the beam. The antlers of this species cannot be mistaken for any other. The summer coat varies from red to buff yellow, and the winter coat is leaden gray, greatly variant in shade, and called "the blue" by hunters.

The Virginia deer is equally at home on mountain or plain, in the forest or on the prairie, in swamp or on the desert, and is found in every state and territory. The man who circumvents a wise old Virginia buck on a still hunt earns his venison, but after fairly earning the meat he is not always sure of getting it, for this deer will run further and faster with a mortal wound than any other. If wounded, a Virginia deer drops his flag and carries it pendant, and if badly hurt he switches it from side to side.

Sportsmen who wish to know the thrilling experiences of panther hunting may have their fill and with comparatively little hard work or much travel in these territories. Panthers like those one reads about in the thrilling tales of the frontier hunter's experiences in the early days of the Republic are still in this region in their pristine ugliness and strength. The man who wishes to know how true are the legends of the courage of his panther-fighting forefathers should spend a few weeks in the canyons and forests remote from any community out here. Before the days of herds of cattle and flocks of sheep the panthers lived off deer, squirrels and antelope. Now they feast on an occasional calf and frequently a sheep.

The panthers are rarely aggressive, but when wounded, treed or cornered they are the fiercest of American beasts. The Arizona and New Mexican panthers are large, heavy animals. Even the dare-devil cowboys, who love to pump lead into a panther, are always wary about going beneath trees and in the shadow of a boulder when searching for a panther's lair. Many stories are current in the territories about panthers leaping on hunters from an elevated place and tearing their faces and chests into gory shreds. Nearly every cowboy has had a lively experience with panthers and wildcats at night on the range, and the skins of both these varieties of animals are as common about the log-cabins and cowboy ranch homes as cow skins were in Indiana forty years ago.

Closely allied to the panther is the cougar, or Puma concolor. There are thousands of them in the territories. Puma is the name given to the animal in South America, and mountain lion, American lion and California lion are commonly accepted names in the United States, west of the Mississippi. Cougar is of Louisiana-French origin, and is given preference by naturalists because it is distinctive and does not cause confusion of meaning, as do the names "panther" and "lion" when applied to an animal that is not a panther and does not resemble a lion. In color only does the cougar bear any resemblance to the lion. The body is long and slender, legs short and stout, the head small and cat-like, and tail very long. The body color is tawny, shading almost to white on the belly and inside the legs. The cougar is a very powerful, active creature, and if his belligerency equaled his strength he would be a most dangerous animal to encounter. But, as a rule, the cougar is not disposed to make unprovoked attacks upon man, and will slink out of the way when anybody approaches his lair. The female, however, will fight fiercely for her young, and a cougar disturbed at a meal will stubbornly maintain his right to his prey.

The cougar hunts by day or by night, and he has a disquieting habit of following lonely travelers in the dark along mountain trails and roads, although no one ever heard of an attack upon a man by night by one of these animals. The ignorant Mexicans believe that the cougar likes human company at night and trots along near the man just for sociability. Although able to whip a dog with ease, the cougar fears dogs, and can be treed by any yapping kiocole that has the audacity to run after him. At sight of a man, however, the cougar forgets the lesser danger and will leap from a tree into the middle of a pack of hounds and scatter them with blows from his awful paws. If a hunter wants to save his dogs he will shoot at a treed cougar as soon as he is within range.

With the coming of autumn the sportsman who has no liking for startling experiences and the excitement of bagging big game finds a deal of satisfaction in this region in hunting such small, furry game as rabbits and squirrels. These animals are then at their best. A dozen years ago rabbits were so plentiful all over this region that they were not considered game. There are thousands left. The man who is a quick and moderately sure shot can have much sport in the fall days with a gun or rifle and several Greyhounds out among the foothills of northern New Mexico. There are two varieties of rabbits, the jackrabbit or the common hare of the Eastern States, and the cottontail, a little fellow with much more toothsome flesh. The jackrabbit is a wonder in locomotion. It is shod with the wind. It goes over a plain in leaps of eight and even twenty feet. Too cunning he has become for the shotgun, unless you catch him in the brush taking his siesta, when he may be a little careless, but when one tries a favorite rifle on him and sees bullet after bullet send the dust aloft in a shower behind his fleeting form, one will think even the rifle too slow.

If the camp of sportsmen is pitched among the pine trees on a lofty mountain side out here, it will be easy to wander forth almost anywhere to find squirrel game. The gray squirrel of the west is one of the finest of his race. He has almost disappeared from the Eastern States, and he is as saucy, suspicious and tricky as his Eastern cousins used to be. He makes a fine stew and a delicate fricassee, although he lives in the west more on pine cones and acorns than on nuts that are supposed to improve his flavor. Fine shooting for the rifle he makes in the big pines, where his head is one of the best of marks.

By no means least in the list of game in the territories, to the mind of a hungry sportsman, is the wild turkey. Time was when the wild turkey was to be found all over the East, and it was not so long ago but some middle-aged readers of this story will remember when they invariably went out in November to kill a wild turkey for the Thanksgiving dinner. It is hardly worth the while to come to New Mexico to kill wild turkeys, but the sportsman who seeks other game will be glad to see the flocks that occasionally come down the mountain side at sunset for a drink in the brook beside which he has camped.

The rivers of this region are small affairs compared with the water-courses of the eastern states, but they are the stopping places of many ducks in the migrating season. The blue-winged teal is said to be most abundant of all, but the gorgeous wood duck and the loud-voiced mallard will be found in the bag after a day's hunt in October or later, nor will geese be missing. Duck shooting in a region like this, on a desert so to speak, is sport of a most enjoyable novelty, especially to men who have done their wild fowling about the great South bay, the Delaware, the Albemarle or the regions of the Great Lakes where wide-open waters are found. To look for ducks on a desert seems as out of place as looking for partridges on snipe ground.

Two varieties of geese are known here, the honker and the brant. They come in countless numbers and stop for days at a time in their migration southward. The cowboys find more delight in wild goose shooting than in any other sport except wildcat shooting. The cattlemen say they plan to have the branding season over and the hard work of the year finished before November sets in, because of the general demoralization of the business on the ranges when the "Honk! Honk!" of the wild flocks of geese is heard coming over the mountain peaks. About all the Sunday feasts and especially the Thanksgiving dinner in the cattle camps is made off wild geese and turkeys.—Los Angeles Herald.

Line Breeding.

The process of breeding within the members of one family or of a limited number of families possessed of similar types, is called line breeding. It gives uniformity of type, but must not be carried too far. It is desirable to intensify good qualities, but not defects. We quote Professor Thomas Shaw:

"Illustrations of long-continued line breeding are furnished in the various herds of wild cattle sheltered by certain parks in Great Britain during the past century. While at the beginning of the century there were at least seven herds, now more than half the number are gone, and their total extinction in the not distant future is by no means impossible. It would seem peculiarly fortunate that illustrations of this question are furnished by herds which cover so long a period. Some of them have been kept within the inclosed grounds of certain noblemen for more than 500 years. The most famous of these herds, viz., that of Chillingham park, has been line bred for more than 700 years. These wild or semi-wild cattle have been bred under circumstances the most favorable to successful line breeding that could be imagined. The continuity of sameness in blood lines has not been disturbed by outcrosses. The breeding has been from the most vigorous sires, as each in turn secured the mastery of the herd. The exemption from the enervating influences of domestication was most complete, since they were not confined. They were also supplied with food when necessary in winter. And yet, from natural causes, these herds are gradually waning in numbers, inasmuch that it is feared that the extinction of those that yet survive is only a question of time."

The line breeder of to-day may well contend that he is not looking five centuries forward, and yet the results of long continued inbreeding will not be disregarded by the intelligent. When weakness begins to develop in the herd, a vigorous outcross must be sought. Unto unity is desirable, but not at the expense of robust qualities.

Successful Beet Raising.

The last load of beets for the season arrived at the Spreckels factory at 5:00 o'clock P. M., Monday, January 6th, having come over the narrow gauge railroad from the Moro Cojo ranch, says a Salinas paper. The slicing was finished at 12 o'clock last night, and four or five days more will be consumed in manufacturing the sugar from the juice and syrup on hand.

This closes what is supposed to be the most successful beet growing and sugar making campaign ever known in this or any other State. They commenced receiving beets at the factory on the 26th of August and slicing began September 15th, from which date the big mill has been running almost without interruption down to the present time—125 days.

The total number of tons of beets sliced is 251,322 tons, received from the following localities: From Salinas Valley, 141,280 tons; Pajaro Valley, 85,910 tons; San Benito county (principally San Juan Valley), 27,620 tons; Santa Clara Valley, 16,512 tons. Sixty-five thousand tons were raised on land in the immediate vicinity of the factory.

The grand total of 271,322 tons at $4.50 per ton, the price paid for the beets delivered at the factory, amounts to one million three hundred and ten thousand nine hundred and forty-nine dollars ($1,310,949), which has been distributed among the beet growers tributary to the Spreckels factory this season, those of the Salinas Valley receiving over half the total amount, or $635,760.

The total output of sugar for the season is about 60,000,000 pounds, which, at the present quoted wholesale price of 3½ cents a pound, amounts to $2,175,000.

About 300 men have been employed at the factory during the run, and 100 will be kept busy cleaning and putting the machinery in order for the next campaign.

Animal Industry Course by Mail.

A reading course on animal and dairy husbandry is planned for the benefit of California farmers by Instructor Leroy Anderson, of the College of Agriculture, and Dr. Archibald R. Ward, the University's veterinarian. The course is to be carried on by mail, and if funds become available special lessons will be prepared treating of all the topics from the peculiar standpoint of California conditions. For the present the basis of the course will be the textbooks and bulletins of the agricultural experiment stations. The textbooks will have to be purchased, but the bulletins will be sent free to all who enroll. Four lines of study are proposed: Cattle, breeds and breeding; feeding farm animals; dairying and dairy bacteriology, comprising the study of milk and milk testing and the manufacture of milk products; infectious diseases of farm animals. On the completion of the course the student is to notify Instructor Anderson that he is ready for the examination, when a list of questions will be sent him to be answered. Students are expected to finish one course before beginning another. Any person interested can enroll by addressing Instructor Anderson, Berkeley, and from him lists of the books and bulletins to be used can be obtained.

Farmers make a big mistake when they send small mares to a ton draft horse with the expectation of the produce being large enough for draft purposes.

More large horses result from breeding small stallions to big mares than in crossing the other way. There are some small mares and some small horses that "breed big" but they are exceptions to the general rule. When sending mares to a draft stallion pick out your large ones and those that have come from ancestors that have size.

American Merinos.

The present season promises much for the wool owner and for the grower, too, if he does not sacrifice his product to the marketmen. Wool is in good demand, and prices are likely to be well maintained. Once more it will be demonstrated that the American Merino sheep is one of the most profitable breeds that can be raised in this country. The American Merino for wool cannot be surpassed for the American farmer, provided he uses care and intelligence in breeding and handling his flock. There is a great difference in this breed. The individuals run all the way from the poor scrubs up to the finest pedigreed animals. Consequently it is more necessary than usual in selecting stock to see that the individuals represent the highest of breed. The ideal, well-bred American Merino is of approved pedigree, with strong individuality, with the body will set and strong, and with all parts covered with a thick, heavy, even fleece of good length of staple. The under fleece should particularly show fine quality and uniform growth. The animal which has very oily fleece is apt to be less robust and sturdy than another, for the oil is produced in quantities at the animal's expense of general health.

American Merinos with these qualities well emphasized should form the foundation for a good flock. Then with them one has but to show fair intelligence in feeding and in keeping up the breed by the selection of good rams. The ewes of this breed when raised for wool should not average more than 100 to 125 pounds apiece. Heavier ewes are not apt to produce as good a supply of wool. The rams should not average more than 150 to 175 pounds. High feeding of rich food may fatten either up, so that they will run heavier, but a good deal of the food will go to producing extra quantities of unnecessary oil. This is undesirable from any point of view. When it happens, reduce the richness of the food, and in selecting ewes for future breeding, discriminate against these which show this inclination.

With such sheep on hand and properly kept, the yield of wool should average from eighteen to twenty-four pounds for the ewes, and from twenty-eight to thirty-five pounds for the rams. This average can easily be kept up from year to year, and if the wool is good, long staple it will net a good profit from each animal. Good wool is always the most profitable and particularly so in Merino wool. Prices for this are very irregular, showing a wide range in valuation. The poorest brings such small returns that there is very little profit but the highest makes success inevitable.

E. P. SMITH.

A smooth farmer went to Chicago the other day with two jags of farm-raised steers that fooled the wisest of them because he had used an Angus sire in his herd of Jerseys. They averaged 700 pounds and brought five cents. All but one were polled and betrayed no evidence of Jersey ancestry. After the sale he astounded the buyer by disclosing the secret and at first could not secure credence for his statement. Similar tests with Shorthorn sires have so far failed to remove the brown muzzle of the Jersey and buyers never fail to discriminate against cattle showing the milk strain. On this account the black-beef breeds may have a wide sphere of usefulness among dairy stockmen who would like to steer their calves.

Sugar-beet pulp may be valuable as a beef ration and if it has any particular merits in this line we want to know it. A certain bunch of cows running on beet fields and stalk field gained 220 pounds in ninety days. In another instance ninety-three head of heifers which were given the beet and stalk fields for two months and eight days gained 218 pounds weighed in and out.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonade and be refreshed.

Removing Odors From Milk.

Many of the odors that affect milk and cream are exceedingly volatile or evaporate quickly if the milk is quickly cooled and is exposed to the air in a thin sheet, as it is in the aerator, where it runs out over cold pipes or through a cold air in a slow flow of thin stream or drops, says American Cultivator. This includes the odors from weeds, even the wild garlic, which is more powerfully scented than the onion, the odors from cabbage and turnips and the stable odors, which cannot always well be avoided, when the cattle are milked in the barn. We say they cannot be avoided, because in many barns there is a cellar filled with decomposing manure and in those of older construction a deposit of liquids below the floor, so that it is almost if not quite impossible to prevent the air from having some part of the odor from below. In such cases the only remedy is the aerator, so placed that it will permit these odors to pass off and not allow it to acquire new ones. We say the only way, although a new stable with cement floor, kept clean by brushing and washing each day, might prove more effective if every farmer could afford to take such a radical measure.

SEYMOUR WILKES REG. NO. 0232. Race Record 2:08 1-2

The Fastest Son of Guy Wilkes

Will make the Season of 1902 at

Lakeville, Sonoma Co., Cal.

SEYMOUR WILKES earned his record in a hard fought race and was a game race horse. The oldest of his get are five-year-olds, and no horse in California can show a greater proportion of large, handsome, strongly built and well-boned colts. They all look alike and in nearly every instance are square trotters. The only one that has been trained is Joe Eviston (3-222 in 1901).

SEYMOUR WILKES is by Guy Wilkes his dam Early Bird by Playmail; second dam by Odd Fellow, third dam by a son of Williamson's Belmont, fourth dam by Blackhawk 767. He weighs 1300 pounds, stands 16 hands high and is one of the most symmetrical horses in California. Several of his get are in San Francisco and will be shown to prospective breeders with pleasure.

Terms for the Season, $40. Mares not proving in foal can be returned next year by paying $10 additional. Mares can be shipped direct to ranch, via steamer Gold. Pasturage $3 per month. For further particulars apply to THOS. ROCHE, Lakeville, Sonoma Co., or J. W. GREGORY, St. George Stables, 408 Bush street, San Francisco.

NEIL W. 30371

By GUY WILKES, dam VERONICA 2:29 by Alcona 730; second dam, Fontana (dam of Silas Skinner 2:17, Flora Belle 2:25, etc.) by Almont 33; next dam Fanny Williams by Abdallah 15; next dam by Denmark, thoroughbred.

STAM B. 23444

RECORD 2:11. By STAMBOUL 5101, a trotting and show king; dam, Belle Medium 2:20, a great brood mare by Happy Medium, sire of the great all-round mare, Nancy Hanks 2:04, and other great ones; second dam by the handsome sire Almont Lightning (sire of the dam of Zombro 2:11 and other great all-in-all animals, both on the turf and in the show rings; third dam by that sire of game, sound, handsome animals, Mambrino Patchen 58; fourth dam by that speed producing sire, Mambrino Chief 11; fifth dam by that stylish and long distance racing horse, Mason's Whip.

STAM B. is a fine and substantial upstanding bay, 15.3 hands tall, weighs 1100 pounds, and now rightly ranks among the most promising young sires of the land. That he is now in public service in California is a fact for which breeders may be grateful. He is already proving a sire of speed and gameness, together with size, superb style and high action, transmitting these qualities to every foal regardless of dam. He is acknowledged by all who have seen him to be very near the real and ideal race horse and all-around sire. His racing qualities were beyond criticism, and all close observers know that in his blood are represented the kings and queens of the trotting turf and show rings.

Terms for the Season, $40.

Mares. Pasturage for mares, $4 per month. Reduced rates to any one person breeding over three mares. Freight must be prepaid on all mares. Season commences February 1st and ends August 1, 1902. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes.

Mondesol

Sire McKINNEY 2:11
Sire of 19 in 2:15 and 28 in 2:20 list

Dam IGO (registered) by Antevolo 2:19. Second dam, Daisy May by Nutwood 600. Third dam, Ralston Mare by Alexander's Abdallah.

MONDESOL, 4 years old, stands 15 1/2 hands, weighs about 1100 pounds; is the best bred young McKinney stallion, combining as he does the blood of Electioneer and Nutwood with that of the greatest son of the great Alcyone. He is in every respect a splendid individual and should be seen by every owner of a good mare in this State before booking elsewhere.

$40 for the Season, with return privilege.

Young Venture

Sire VENTURE, sire of dam of Directum 2:05, Adonis 2:11, Cupid 2:18 (sire of Venus II 2:11, Psyche 2:16, and Lottie Parks 2:16) and dam of Sidney Dillon, sire of Dolly Dillon 2:07, etc.

Dam by Davis' Belmont, thoroughbred son of Belmont. Second dam by Talcott's imp. Flying Morgan, son of Old Flying Morgan. YOUNG VENTURE carries more of that great Herod Eclipse blood than any other trotting stallion in the world. That is the thoroughbred combination which crosses so well with the Hambletonian strains and produces the greatest harness horses on the track.

$25 for the Season, with return privilege.

The above Stallions will stand at ROCKRIDGE FARM, Broadway, near 63d St., Oakland.

ALCYO 7043 { A GREAT SON OF THE Rec. 2:10 { GREAT ALCYONE

Dam, the great brood mare LOUISE (dam of 3 in the list) by Sunshine, out of a daughter of Edwin Forrest 49, sire of the dam of Mambrino King, the sire of Lord Derby 2:06, Nightingale 2:08, Dare Devil 2:08, Heir-at-Law 2:05, Lady of the Manor 2:04, Moonstone 2:09, etc., etc.

ALCYO 2:10 is the sire of Lady Alcy—yearling record 2:37; 2 y. o., 2:19; 4 y. o., 2:13—and 10 more in the 2:30 list. He is not only a great racehorse, getting his record, 2:10, in a fourth heat, but he is a grand individual of rare finish, gentle disposition, best of legs and feet and his get are all of good size, good looks and extreme speed. He is a bay horse 15 1/2 hands, weighs 1050 pounds and is standard by breeding, performance and produce.

PISTOL Reg. No. 28884

Sire LANCELOT 2:23, sire of 10 in 2:30, which is more than his half brother Electioneer had at same age. Dam PEPEROMIA by Alcantara.

PISTOL 28884, five years old, solid black 15 1/2 hands, weighs 1075 pounds. One of the handsomest and best individuals ever brought to California. He is a remarkably well turned horse, gentle disposition, rare intelligence and possesses extreme speed. His colts are universally black, good size, extra good limbs and stylish. He has only one colt that is 2 years old, and they all show great speed.

The above horses will make the Season of 1902 from February 1st, at the RACE TRACK, SAN JOSE.

TERMS $100 for the season, with usual return privileges, or right reserved to return service fee. All bills must be paid before mare is removed.

Best of care taken, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Excellent pasturage at $4 per month (no barbed wire) or kept up and fed grain at reasonable rates. Both of these horses are sure foal getters. For further particulars address

AMATEURS BALLISTITE

who wish to improve their average at the trap, or increase their bag of game, are advised to try as it gives the Lightest Recoil with the Highest Velocity and Lowest Breech and Barrel Pressure of all Powders. BALLISTITE'S extreme high velocity does away with the vexing question of "Lead." "Just hold on and you score," writes our enthusiast. BALLISTITE is Absolutely Smokeless, Odorless, Non-Fouling, Leaves No Residue and Never Pits nor Corrodes the Barrel.

Cartridges loaded with BALLISTITE can be obtained from the leading Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or the Sole Agents.

132,000 Deaths from this alone.

One special danger menaces those who live well, who can use champagne and fine liquors, and that is Bright's Disease. Posted clubmen understand this so well that many have tests made every few months. Others drink nothing but dry wines. But still the deaths reported from Bright's Disease and Diabetes are increasing at a fearful rate. The last census reports show that since 1890 the increase has been nearly fifty per cent and that the deaths in the United States alone from above causes and diseases growing out of them last year reached the enormous number of 132,000.

Hence the importance of every clubman knowing this one fact, viz.: That Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable in about 87% of all cases. The Fulton Compounds are now saving the lives of hundreds, and will, when better known, save the lives of thousands who are now with little hope.

WALTER WINANS

Vice President of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain

makes the following statement in his recent book,
"Art of Revolver Shooting."

The U. M. C. Co., U. S. A., have supplied me with large quantities of .44 gallery ammunition loaded with both round and semi-round bullets.

These have a small charge of black powder, and I should prefer this ammunition for self-defense as well as for competition up to 20 yards, as I find it the most accurate for exhibition shooting.

I think the U. M. C. gives slightly less recoil and fewer "unaccountables" than the English equivalent.

They also load these cartridges with smokeless powder, which I have used and with which I have made my bests on record in the rapid fire competition.

Send for new U. M. C. illustrated catalogues for further information concerning these modern Short Range or Gallery Cartridges, which are coming into wide use among experts and others. Game Laws and Shooting Records Free.

THE DIRECTORS of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association met on Thursday of this week and decided not to accept the proposition of the Eureka, Humboldt county, people to hold a meeting there during the week of July 4th, this year. The San Jose people District Fair association have already claimed that week, and then the Board considered the time too early in the year to get any number of first class horses to make the trip by ocean to Eureka. The Eureka citizens made a very generous offer to the P. C. T. H. B. A., which was appreciated by that organization, but owing to the conflict in dates and the objections to the ocean trip necessary to land horses at Eureka, it was deemed best to decline the offer with thanks and select some other date for the Breeders meeting. Many members of the Breeders association incline to the opinion that this organization should hold its principal meeting each year after the State Fair, rather than so early. They think it would suit owners and trainers better, as the P. C. T. H. B. A. always gives large purses and they believe the interest would be greater were they trotted and paced for later instead at the opening of the racing season, as has been the custom for several years.

COLORADO'S RACING CIRCUIT comprises four meetings this year and there is an aggregate of $60,900 hung up for horses to compete for. The circuit will open at Trinidad May 27th, thence to Pueblo June 3d, thence to Colorado Springs the following week and the wind up will be at Overland Park, Denver, beginning June 21st and closing July 5th. The purses range from $150 to $500 at Trinidad, are the same at Pueblo, Colorado Springs gives purses from $250 to $600, and at Denver the purses are from $500 to $1000. All the particulars in regard to this circuit, dates of closing, etc. will be found in a big display advertisement which appears in our columns today. Every horse owner and trainer that goes east should take in this circuit as there is an opportunity to earn money and get the horses accustomed to racing before meeting the fast ones beyond the mountains. The tracks on this circuit have all been put in good shape for this years racing, especially those at Colorado Springs and Denver which have been re-soiled. The Denver grounds have had a large amount of money spent on them in improvements and Overland Park is now thoroughly up-to-date in every respect. A good feature of the Colorado circuit advertisement is that the program of each week is given as it will be held and those making entries can tell just what days their classes will come on. There will be several California strings go east this year and we hope they will all make entries in the Colorado circuit.

SEVERAL RICH STAKES will be run off at the New California Jockey Club's track at Oakland this month, the Derby being set down for to-day, the Thornton Stakes, four miles for the 15th inst., and the Western Produce Stakes for the 28th. The last named is for two year olds and is the richest stake for horses of that age that has ever been given in California. It was originated by the Western Turf Association before that organization sold out to the C. J. C. The distance is five furlongs. The first payment, which was $5, had 136 nominations, or $680; second payment of $25 had 69, or $1725, and 18 made the final payment of $75 each, or $1350; making the gross value of the stake $8755; thus ranking second to the Burns Handicap itself. There is to be $125 additional paid by each starter and it is probable that ten or a dozen colts will go to the post. If ten starters face the flag, the stake will be worth $5 over $10,000 which is the amount of the Burns Handicap, the richest stake on the coast to date. Of the 18 that have made final payment and are eligible, E. J. Baldwin has three; Elmwood Stock Farm, two; W. O'B. Macdonough, two; A. B. Spreckels, two; Burns and Waterhouse, 4 (including Altanan and Thaddeus); Barney Schreiber, two (including Sylvia Talbot and Deutschland). W. B. Sink is represented by The Fog; Dr. Rowell by The Phantom, and the Montana Stable by Chiffonier. All four of the Burns and Waterhouse entries are by the stallion Altamax. Horsemen and racegoers generally will certainly look forward with interest to the decision of this rich stake.

READVILLE, that famous track near Boston, has a great attraction for horsemen. When Readville is mentioned, big purses, great contests and champion trotters and pacers are brought to mind. The New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association, one of the mainstays of the harness horse business holds its meetings there and each year presents a program that is a sensational one even on the Grand Circuit. The piece de resistance this year is a purse of $15,000 for trotters of the 2:12 class. The horse that wins it will have a big profit to his credit if he wins no other race during the year. It is such purses that make harness horses valuable, and keeps the breeding and training of horses going. Readville does not stop at one big stake however. It advertises $5000 for 2:30 class trotters, $3000 for 2:16 class trotters and $2000 for three year old trotters of the 2:25 class. The pacers are provided for also. The 2:24 class has a purse of $5000 to go for, and the 2:10 class has one of $3000. These six early closing purses are only a starter. There will be a big program of purses for smaller amounts opened later on. These early purses will close on March 10th, which is just a week from next Monday. There should be several California entries for them.

A LESSON that is being taught by the salesrings this year is that there is a demand which cannot be supplied for horses that have a stallion conformation and dealers are advising breeders to allow more of their colts to run as stallions until they are three years old. It is not proposed that they be sold entire, but that castration be delayed until the colts are fully developed. Stags that are good lookers and well mannered are in demand at good prices all the time, while stallions of good manners that are thoroughly broken are eagerly snapped up by dealers. In Europe stallions are seen at work on the streets in all sorts of vehicles and the majority of entire horses will give no more trouble than a gelding if broken to work and kept at it. There is no doubt but more size, style and weight can be produced by permitting colts to grow to maturity before being unsexed.

THAT BILL introduced in this Congress providing for the establishment of a commission of army officers and expert horse breeders to inspect stallions and mares with a view to securing proper types for the production of cavalry and artillery horses, is a very good bill to kill. It was probably designed originally for the purpose of reducing the surplus, and as such a measure it would doubtless be a great success, but otherwise is certain to be a magnificent failure. If the United States or any other government desires to secure a certain type of horse for its use, all it will have to do is to enact a law by which the breeder of such an animal will be paid a good price for it. If the men who have bred the best horses now in use in the army had received a fair price for them they would be anxious to breed more and the army types would very soon be established. This government, however, like all others, fixes a price it will allow a contractor for a large number, he sublets to other contractors and horse sharps, and by the time the breeder is reached the price of about $50 is made for a horse that the government has to pay $125 for. This is the reason the army type is difficult to secure in large numbers. The man who breeds this type, if he has any business abilities, can get twice or three times the money for his horse from an express or freight company than the government contractor will pay. American breeders have the brains and the willingness to breed a type of horse that will be ideal for army purposes. All they require is an assurance that they will not have to divide the money paid by the government with a contractor who wants from a half to two-thirds as his share.

MR. W. O'B. MACDONOUGH, owner of Ormonde, has nominated several mares in the Futurity that have been bred to his young stallions Ossary and Orsini, sons of Ormonde. Neither Mr. Haggin nor Mr. Macdonough has named a mare bred to Ormonde, which is evidence that this great horse is not meeting with success in the stud. While Ormonde's owner has been greatly disappointed in his $150,000 purchase, it is to be hoped that in Ossary and Orsini he has two stallions that will bring fame to his farm. Ossary is one of the grandest individuals in the world, and is nearer like his sire in appearance than any of the horse's get. He is a sure foal getter and but for an accident would have been a great race horse, as he has marvelous speed.

BECAUSE some of the district associations cannot afford to give large purses the directors imagine that it is better to give no meeting at all. This is a wrong conclusion, as a meeting with small purses is better than permitting the fair and races to go by default. Some of the best attended and most successful fairs have been held in districts where the largest purse was $200. If each district will give a fair this year and hang up only the money it can afford to give, it will benefit all concerned. There will be plenty to race for the small purses and if the bookmakers and touts are barred, the people will attend the races and enjoy them.

SECRETARY W. F. BENTLEY, of the Northern New York Trotting Horse Breeders Association at Glens Falls, writes us that his association has been assigned the week of September 15th by President Campau as its date in the Grand Circuit, directly following Syracuse and preceding the Breeders meeting to be held in Boston, September 22d, and that an advertisement for the early closing events will be sent the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN as soon as classes are decided upon.

DOCTORS ARE ADVISING their patients to beware of too much bicycle riding and telling them to take their outings and exercise on the back of a horse. Those who ride and drive horses always have their health benefitted by the exercise, while wheelmen are becoming afflicted with all sorts of ailments from poor eyesight to lame backs and bad kidneys. The horse is the thing, and is man's greatest aid in fighting men or microbes.

THE THORNTON STAKES at four miles is set down for decision at Oakland two weeks from to-day. $3000 is the amount of the stake and it closed last November with thirty-two nominations, but as expressed in the conditions it will be reopened for entries fifteen days before its decision. Horsemen should make a note of this.

Captain N. G. Smith of Everett, Washington, who campaigned the mare Mary L. owned by Mr. E. J. Lane of Everett, on the California circuit in 1900, writes us that she has a fine filly foal by McKinney 2:11 1/4. The filly is now six months old.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

JOTTINGS.

PROSPECTS WERE NEVER BRIGHTER for a year of prosperity among the farmers, fruit growers and stock raisers of California, the heavy rains of the past two weeks having soaked the soil with moisture from Siskiyou to San Diego. The dry year prophets have been compelled to "go way back and sit down" and their pessimistic wailings will not be heard for many months. Bountiful crops and plenty of feed in the pastures are now almost a certainty in all parts of the State, and there is general good humor among our citizens. It is a good time for the directors of District Associations to begin work in earnest for the fairs of 1902. This is to be a red letter year in California. The railroad officials predict a great tide of immigration that will set in during the next month and continue until late in the fall. This is the opportune year for the counties that desire immigration, to set forth their advantages as sections for home building. The best way to do this is by means of a first class district fair. The visitor who views a splendid display of products that he can be assured are produced at a profit to the grower, will be more impressed with the advantages of the district than he will by a lot of pamphlets and circulars which announce that nearly every other farm and home in the county are for sale. It is a trait of human nature to desire a share of the good things of this world, and the district that can show its land is being cultivated and its live stock produced at a profit can secure as much immigration as it wants, provided always of course that its climate, schools, etc., are first class. There are few sections of California that are not thus favored, but outside a few of the boom counties their lights have been hidden and the outside world does not know much about them.

There has been considerable talk during the past few months in San Francisco over the proposed organization of a Gentlemen's Driving Club formed on the lines of the now celebrated club at Cleveland, Ohio. It has been proposed to secure a membership of wealthy gentlemen who are lovers of the light harness horse and incorporate with enough paid up shares to purchase grounds and build a track. It is to be hoped that such a venture may eventually succeed, as there could be nothing that would do as much for the American sport of road riding and amateur racing. The Cleveland club has a distinct advantage in the possession of a track that costs it nothing but the expense of keeping it in order. San Francisco has no trotting track and the expenses of making one with the necessary appointments will be very large. I have often thought that the Ingleside track, owned by the New California Jockey Club, and which it is prevented by an absurd ordinance from using, would be an ideal place for a driving club to establish its headquarters. If the present rather sandy surface of the track could be covered with a coating of loam, no finer place for matinee contests could be found. As a matinee club would not charge admission fee, permit betting, sell privileges or race for purses, its meetings would not be interfered with, but on the contrary would have the support and endorsement of everybody and if the club were properly managed, it would soon be one of the most popular and fashionable recreation organizations in the State. I would suggest to the gentlemen who have been agitating the formation of a driving club that they make an effort to secure beautiful Ingleside. It is on one of San Francisco's most popular drives, is within easy reach by steam and trolley lines of the heart of the city and is the best appointed race course in America.

The announcement is made that a meeting was held at Redding on Washington's birthday, at which a racing circuit was formed, which comprises the tracks in Shasta, Trinity, Siskiyou, Del Norte, Modoc, Lassen and Tehama counties in California, and those in Jackson, Klamath and Lake counties Oregon. The principal race meetings of this circuit would be held at Yreka, Redding and Red Bluff, beginning at the first named place September 16th, which falls on the Tuesday following the California State Fair at Sacramento. The circuit is to be called the Northern California and Southern Oregon Circuit and purses ranging from $100 to $500 are to be given. The program will be arranged very shortly and there is no doubt but the circuit will be a successful one. Twelve or fifteen years ago these circuits of the smaller tracks were very popular on this coast, and many horsemen from the larger towns took in the "brush" meetings as they were called. It often happens that a pile of money goes into the pool box on a race in these outside districts especially if there is a local horse starting that has shown well in his work and is a home favorite. On such an occasion the wise man from the city who imagines he is a bloated aristocrat in comparison with the "Rubes" will be bet to a standstill and have all kinds of money shaken in his face after he has bet his limit.

A friend writes and wants to know of the breeding on the dam's side of the mare Sweet Marie, that has trotted the Los Angeles track several times better than 2:15, making a heat once I believe in 2:13½ and winning two successive heats in 2:14 flat. These are all matinee performances it is true, but so far as racing is concerned those Los Angelenos of the Driving Club are as hard racers as can be found at any regular Grand Circuit meeting and drive from wire to wire. Sweet Marie is by McKinney 2:11½ and her dam is Lady Rivers by Carr's Mambrino, the only son of Mambrino Patchen ever brought to this Coast I believe. Her grandam was Susie by Vermont 322, a grandson of Black Hawk 5 that was brought to this State in 1859 and sired Ella Lewis 2:27 and a couple more with standard records. The third dam of Sweet Marie was by Highlander, a horse whose breeding I do not know, her fourth dam was by Owen Dale, son of Williamson's Belmont, and her fifth dam by Black Hawk Comet. Sweet Marie is bred well enough to be a stayer from Stayville, and I believe she will prove to be if she is ever raced on the regular circuit. It was stated by Mr. Potter at the time of the sale of his stock in Los Angeles that Sweet Marie worked four consecutive heats last year over the Los Angeles track in 2:14, 2:13½, 2:12½ and 2:12½, and that is good enough to prove any horse a stayer.

Those web-footed fellows up in Oregon have found going that just suits them and are getting to the front with programs and purses and stakes at a pace that would make some of our California association directors dizzy. The speed committee of the Oregon State Board of Agriculture has announced a $2000 stake for pacers of the 2:18 class, the money being subscribed by the citizens of Salem. To this the State Board will add $500 as a consolation purse for horses that win no money in the main event. A two thousand dollar race for pacers is a new thing on this coast and it need not surprise anyone if California is represented by a half dozen side wheelers when the bell calls the horses out for this stake. The Oregon State Fair will begin September 15th, which is the week following the California State Fair. Now there is one thing certain. The California State and district associations will have to offer good purses to keep the horses at home this year. There are so many attractions over east and up north that the California trainers and owners are already figuring on the cost of railroad fares, etc., necessary to start for the money at some of these far distant tracks. The risk of being compelled to trot or pace races in the rain or mud does not deter many when there is a big sum of money in sight, and each trainer figures that he has just as good a chance in the heavy going as the other fellow has, and that fast records are not earned on the muddy tracks. The Oregon and Washington associations are doing much for the horsemen this year and I hope they will be rewarded with big entry lists and heavy gate receipts.

J. Le Baron Smith, of this city, purchased from the Santa Rosa Stock Farm the other day a two year old colt by McKinney 2:11½ out of By By by Nutwood, second dam Rapidan by Dictator, third dam by Stanhope's Edwin Forrest, fourth dam by Mambrino Chief 11. This is one of the grandest bred young stallions in California. Mr. Smith intends purchasing a few well bred mares to mate with this colt and will breed solely for the market, selling the young stock untrained and as soon as grown.

Horses don't sell quite as well down in Kentucky as they do in New York. In selling horses as in racing them one must go where the money is to get it, and there is more money in New York than in any other place in America. The Woodard & Shanklin sale, which closed at Lexington February 21st, lasted five days and during that time 419 head of trotting bred horses were sold for $99,665, an average of $237 per head. This can be considered a most successful sale, but the prices would doubtless have been larger in New York for the same animals.

Why is it that none of the California associations can be induced to make early announcements of stakes and purses for harness horses? It does not take any more work to get out a program in February than it does in May or June and the one that is advertised early will get the most entries. Every Secretary should be engaged now in sending out blanks and writing letters soliciting entries, but the majority will not be able to begin this work for months yet, simply because the directors of their associations will not have their programs arranged until then. If the reader will look over the eastern harness horse journals and the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of this week, he will find that eastern associations and some up north in Washington are already in the field with stakes and purses. The early bird gets the worm in the horse business as in any other line, but for some reason the California birds never get started until rather late in the spring. Why is it? It cannot be because they are too well fed, can it? They all draw aid from the State, which is more than they do elsewhere. It might be a wise thing to amend the district fair appropriation bill so that to make the money available, fair programs would have to be announced by February of the year in which they are drawn.

William B. Fasig.

The death of William B. Fasig, briefly announced in these columns last week was read with surprise and deep regret by every person in California who had acquaintance with him. There are horsemen here who have been his life long friends and many others whose acquaintance with the deceased was only casual, but one and all without exception consider his death a personal loss.

Mr. Fasig was born on a farm near Cleveland, Ohio, in 1846, and when seventeen years old enlisted in James A. Garfield's regiment and fought through the Civil War. Returning home at the close of hostilities he was elected Secretary of the Cleveland Driving Club, and soon became the most popular and best known Secretary in America. If ever a man was especially fitted for the arduous and multifarious duties of this position it was Mr. Fasig, and he had the most intimate knowledge of horses and horsemen as well as a clear and concise knowledge of trotting rules.

He was a natural leader and director of men, and had that happy faculty of showing a personal interest in each and every one with whom he transacted business. He had a love for the sport of harness racing when it was clean, and he insisted that it be such whenever he had the management. By his own enthusiasm and personal magnetism he drew people to him, and the Cleveland meetings were largely attended by the best people of the city and the grand stands and boxes were filled with the elite of the community whenever the association held meetings. It was Mr. Fasig's work that made Cleveland the leading harness horse city of the country. Sometime in the '80's Mr. Fasig began the combination sale business which grew to such proportions that he finally moved to New York and in 1896 began his famous sales at Madison Square Garden, now the leading horse auction mart in the world. In 1898 he associated with him Mr. Ed. Tipton, one of the best posted horsemen in the country and an untiring worker, and the new firm soon added thoroughbred sales to their already large business. During the past few years the sales of this firm have amounted to over $2,500,000 a year. A few years ago Mr. Fasig purchased the beautiful country place Benniscliff near Brewster, New York; and since his health failed has spent the most of his time there.

No man had a bigger heart than William B. Fasig, and he wore it on his sleeve. He was always ready to help a friend and an appeal to him was never made in vain by anyone. Generous, wholesouled, and enthusiastic with everything he undertook, and at the same time possessed of the keenest business faculties he was a man to achieve success where others would fail. His loss is a most severe one to all who are interested in horse affairs.

Kentucky Futurity.

In this issue we announce the twelfth annual renewal of the great Kentucky Futurity, value $21,000, for foals of 1902, which closes March 15th with H. W. Wilson, Secretary, Lexington, Ky., at the nominal fee of $5 per mare. The Kentucky Futurity is America's pioneer and model colt stake. Worth twice as much as the others, yet calling for but $15 in two payments, to keep colts eligible to within four months of race, which is the same or less than in the smaller stakes, and enables nominators to either sell or thoroughly try their colts out before any more payments are due. It is this feature which makes the Futurity the fairest as well as the richest colt stake in the world.

As an instance of the value of the Futurity engagements, look at Prelatess, champion two year old of 1901, and a phenomenal filly, sold by auction for $4600, without engagements. Her yearling sister, very promising and heavily engaged, was sold in the same auction for $10,300. Fifteen dollars paid on Prelatess and her dam in the Kentucky Futurity would have been worth ten thousand dollars to the Daly estate.

A Futurity engagement, by itself, isn't worth a cent, but tacked onto a good colt, it is worth a whole lot. Remember the date, March 15th, and name every mare that can be accused of being with foal in the Kentucky Futurity.

Notes and News.

Cleveland offers five $3000 stakes this year.

Vol. XVII of the Year Book will be out March 10th.

$40,000 is the amount hung up by the Denver association.

The Northern California and Southern Oregon racing circuit has been formed.

This will be the greatest year for harness horse^s ever seen in the United States.

The congress of the American Trotting Association will be held May 6th at Chicago.

Don't forget the date of the Haywards Horse Show. Saturday, March 8th, is the time.

Levi Turner says he expects to see Edith W. 2:05 pace in 2:03 or better the coming season.

There will be no three in five races at Memphis this year, but the entries will be numerous as ever.

Over two and a half million dollars were won by trotters and pacers in the United States last year.

The tracks are pretty wet just now, but there are good roads to jog on in most sections in California.

The new owners of Advertiser 2:15½, say that they have refused a bona-fide offer of $10,000 for the horse.

San Jose proposes to give a first class meeting on July 3d, 4th and 5th and will soon make announcement of purses.

The Brook, the twenty-five acre farm near Lexington, owned by Brook Curry, was sold last week to Smith Gentry for $18,000.

It will cost the persons who suppress time hereafter $500 if they are caught which it is thought will be considered a little too expensive a luxury.

Miss Whitney 2:11½, has been entered in the 2:12 $10,000 stake at Brighton Beach. She will also be entered in the $15,000 Massachusetts.

Kittitas Ranger 2:11½; Chehalis Maid 2:25 and some very promising youngsters are being jogged over the Olympia, Wash. track by E. R. Clark.

Thos. W. Lawson has purchased from Hon. Frank Jones, the Palo Alto bred mare Juntorio by Altivo 2:18½, dam Jenny Benton by Gen. Benton.

After not having a harness on his back for five years Norval 2:14½, trotted a quarter in 33½ seconds recently on the farm track. He is now twenty years old.

Sunbeam 2:12½, son of the Green Meadow Stock Farm stallion Hambletonian Wilkes, was sold to a Beloit Wisconsin horseman two weeks ago for $1200.

If you want several thousand people to know what a handsome horse you own, take him to Haywards on Saturday, March 8th, and enter him in the Horse Show.

As soon as the Governor appoints Directors to fill the vacancies on the Napa Agricultural Society's board, a program for the fair of this year will be announced.

Big money is to be earned at the New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association this year. Read about the $15,000 purse for 2:12 trotters in our advertising columns.

Sylvan Maid, dam of Onward Silver 2:08, foaled a colt last year by Electric Bell, and was bred to Oratorio 2:13. She will probably be mated with Ad-bell 2:23 this year.

The Los Angeles Driving Club had to postpone its Washington's Birthday matinee last Saturday on account of the rain, and the downpour was so welcome that there was general rejoicing.

The Iowa State Fair managers have arranged their racing program for the coming season. The schedules include four stakes of $1,000 each, and an entrance fee of three per cent will be charged.

E. E. Smathers sent his crack trotter Lord Derby 2:06½ and thirteen other horses to the Memphis track last week. The Abbot is already at Memphis and the two great trotters will be started in training for their match with Boralma.

W. J. White's Two Minute Stock Farm near Cleveland, Ohio, is to be turned into a fruit farm and garden. Mr. White succeeded in getting the first two-minute horse by purchase, but his desire to breed one with that speed has thus far failed to materialize.

Mr. J. S. Bransford, of Salt Lake City, who purchased Claudius 2:13½, Hobo 2:14½ and McNally 2:15 last fall, is driving Claudius on the road at present and finds him a splendid roadster and business horse. McNally is turned out to be taken up later on. Hobo has been sold.

Enter in the Hartford Futurity. It only costs a single big American dollar to get into this stake. This is the cheapest real good thing on the market. Mares must be named on or before March 17, 1902.

Belle Medium 2:20, the dam of Stam B. 2:11½, has been sent to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ again this year. She has a two year old by this horse that is considered one of the handsomest and most promising young trotters in this country.

P. W. Hodges is up from Los Angeles on a short visit. He has five horses working at the Los Angeles track and will probably ship two or three youngsters south to add to his string, among them a three year old that is entered in this year's Occident stake.

Welcome 2:10½ will be among the horses paraded at the Haywards horse show and we advise breeders who admire a handsome large horse to be there to look him over. The colts by this horse are as handsome as the get of any horse in the country, and they all show speed.

Sweet Alice, half-sister to Onward Silver 2:08, will be trained the coming season, and her breeder, Colonel Colier of Memphis, in a letter to the Kentucky Stock Farm, expresses the opinion that she will trot herself into the 2:10 list. Sweet Alice is by Sultan, and is nine years old.

A correspondent writes us from Sacramento that the storm has stopped work at Agricultural Park track, but that when the weather clears there will be busy times. Hi Hogoboom has some extra good ones, it is said, and will be right in the front this year when the races begin.

Thos. Shouse, of Vallejo, has leased from H. B. Goecken, of this city, the stallion Chief of Kneiphusen, one of the best specimens of the Percheron family in this state. Mr. Shouse has leased the horse for two years with the privilege of purchasing him. He will be kept in Solano county.

Hart Boswell, the stallion by Onward out of Nancy Lee, dam of Nancy Hanks 2:04, is attracting much attention from breeders who have seen his advertisement in this journal, and those who have looked the horse over at Pleasanton are much taken with his appearance. He will have a full book by another month.

Mr. J. D. Carr, of Salinas, has a six year old full sister to Sibyl S. 2:16½ that was bred to his handsome stallion Boodle Jr. last year, and is now heavy with foal. She was trained some as a filly, showed considerable speed, and is one of the most gentle and nicest dispositioned mares on the Carr farm. A child can drive her. Mr. Carr will sell her for $300 if she is taken in the next thirty days.

That little mare Primrose by Falrose is a great piece of horseflesh. Her mile in 2:09½ the other day over the Los Angeles track, driven by her new owner, Mr. Fred B. Taylor, was something to make the eyes of old horsemen pop open as they thought she had reached her limit when Mr. M. M. Potter drove her in 2:10. It is now thought that Mr. Taylor can drive the mare a mile in 2:08 or better with a good day and track.

Mart Demarest will have Director Joe, the black stallion by Director 2:17 out of Joe Patchen's dam, and will race him for Mr. A. C. Maynard, his new owner, this season. Director Joe showed 2:17 on a half-mile track, quarters in 30 seconds, last season at the Penn Valley Farm in his training, and is bred for a top notch performer. He cost Mr. Maynard $2500 at the recent New York auction, and that is considered an exceptionally favorable figure.

Country Jay 2:10½, one of the good ones on the Grand Circuit last year, was sold at the Lexington sale for $2000 last week. The most persistent bidder was James Gatecomb, the noted driver, who stopped a little short of $2000 when his request to have the horse trotted to halter was refused. The sale of a two year old roan filly, full sister to Country Jay, by W. L. Spears to J. R. Worden, of Boston, for $4000 was consummated shortly afterwards at private sale.

The following incident is given out by the Denver Field and Farm: Last week a colt was released from a prospect hole near Newcastle, Wyo. The animal fell into the hole thirty days previously. Passing ranchmen made several attempts to release the animal but failed. Heavy snows had furnished an abundance of water for the colt, but it is a mystery how it survived so long without food. When dragged to the surface the animal kicked up its heels and dashed off across the prairie.

T. W. Barstow, of San Jose, has registered his good stallion, full brother to John A. McKerron 2:06½ as Nearest 35,562. This horse obtained a record of 2:22½ under the name of Wilkes Direct, but when it came to registering that name would not be accepted, as the rules say that "no more Hambletonians," nor "Mambrinos" nor "Wilkes" nor "Pilots," etc., will be accepted in any form. So Mr. Barstow chose the name "Nearest" for his handsome horse and as such he will be known in the future.

It is said that Louise Mac 2:09½ will be back in Scott Hudson's racing stable this season. Mr. Gwathmey repurchased her from John Maguire at an advance after the New York midwinter sale, and Mr. Hudson believes there is a race or two to her credit yet on the Grand and Western Circuits. One very windy day in 1900 Charles A. Thompson drove Louise Mac a mile at Empire City track right at her record in the teeth of a homestretch gale, too, showing that she was as good as ever. She is too good a performer to remain idle.

There is $60,900 for the trotters and pacers to contest for on the Colorado Racing Circuit. The circuit opens at Trinidad May 27th, where four days racing will be held. From there the horses will move to Pueblo for four days, thence to Colorado Springs for five days and thence to Denver for two weeks. All the purses are advertised in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

In Russia every person who owns a horse is obliged to furnish a certificate of ownership. If a horse is sold this certificate must be produced and transferred to the name of the purchaser. The one who sells a horse must be responsible for its good condition and age, and must return the purchase money and pay a fine if he deceives the buyer in his representations of its health or age.

Three handsomer stallions than those pictured on our front page to-day would be hard to find in one State. McKinney 2:11½, Stam B. 2:11½ and Rey Direct 2:10 are entirely dissimilar in appearance, yet each is a model horse. McKinney was a great race horse, is the leading sire of the Pacific Coast, and as a sire of extreme speed leads all stallions at his age. Stam B. and Rey Direct made great reputations on the track, and from their breeding and individuality can be expected to transmit both speed and endurance and good looks to their progeny.

Dark Night, sire of Searchlight, died in Austria, February 3d. He was twenty years old and his standard performers number 24, of which four are in the 2:10 list, viz.: Searchlight 2:03½, Brightlight 2:08½, Dark Wilkes 2:09 and Valpa 2:09½. Dark Night was in excellent health the day before his death, which resulted from an impaction of the bowels. He was sired by Alcyone, and his dam Noonday (dam of Pastime 2:27½) was by St. Elmo 275, a son of Abdallah 15. His grand-dam was the famous old mare Midnight, dam of Jay Eye See 2:06½, Noontide 2:20½, Electricity 2:17½ and of several producing sons and daughters.

The Hartford Futurity for foals of 1902 (mares bred in 1901 to be named on or before March 17th) is more liberal than the first. The purse has been increased to $11,000, and $2500 of this sum is set apart for the pacers. The total cost of entrance remains the same, less than one-third of one per cent. One dollar is the initial payment. This is the most liberal proposition ever made to the trotting horse breeder, for $1 is all that is required to enter in this rich stake. The cost is so small, and the benefits that may accrue are so large, that every trotting bred foal should be entered. Read the Hartford Futurity announcement for foals of 1902, which appears in our advertising columns, and don't fail to make your entry in time.

It was generally expected that when Hal B. 2:04½ was thrown out of training last summer the handsome bay stallion had been retired permanently, but such was not the case. He has been sent to W. L. Snow to get ready for another campaign, and both his owner and Snow expect him to train into form to race with other 2:05 pacers. Early last season Hal B. showed so much speed at Syracuse that Snow let the horse's owner persuade him to let the stallion step a quarter up to his limit, and he covered the distance in 28½ seconds. Whether it was that effort that caused him to go back in form or an attack of distemper that seized him a little later is difficult to say, but just now he is going as sound and looks as rugged as he ever did.

William Hendrickson, who brought Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 2:27 to this State, has booked a mare by Almonition 2:24½ to Tom James' horse Barondale 2:11½. This mare is an extra well bred one, her dam being by Waldstein 2:22½, second dam Lady Blanchard 2:26½ by Whipple's Hambletonian 725, third dam the famous old mare Lady Livingston, dam of Whippleton and Western, by Gen. Taylor. This mating will effect a combination of the Wilkes, Director, Electioneer and Almont blood that should be successful in every way, as the mare is a good individual and there are no better bred or better looking stallions anywhere than Barondale. Mr. Hendrickson, who is one of the best posted horsemen in California was greatly taken with Barondale when he looked him over at San Jose recently.

That fast stallion Silver Bow Jr., owned by Isaac Morehouse, has been on the latter's farm near Warm Springs since last summer. This horse has shown as much speed at the trot as any horse ever foaled in California. He worked miles in 2:14 and better and Billy Donathan is credited with having driven him a quarter in a little less than 30 seconds last spring, but a slight lameness prevented him being raced. Mr. Morehouse intends breeding Silver Bow Jr. to ten or twelve mares this year and will then put him in training for the races. The dam of Silver Bow Jr. is Magenta, a mare by Tempest. As a two and three year old Magenta won nearly all the stake races in Montana for colts and fillies of her age and placed $6000 to her credit. Her dam is by Commodore Belmont.

Among fourteen head of horses that Jere Tarlton is wintering at Lexington are three promising California bred mares, which a correspondent of the Chicago Horseman speaks of as follows: "The star of the lot is the chestnut mare Laurette by Norris, dam Laura C. 2:29½ by Electioneer. This mare has shown a mile in 2:12 and trainer Everett Middleton thinks she will do to go after the money about the middle of July. Another good mare in the stable is Rubato by Steinway, dam Tone by Ferguson, hence a full sister to Agitato 2:09. This mare has shown a mile in 2:14. She was taken sick last summer and did not round to till late in the fall or she would have shown a mile close to 2:10. Lorette by Dexter Prince, dam Loraneer 2:26½ by Electioneer, has shown a mile in 2:15 at the trot, and she looks like pretty fair Grand Circuit material."

The N. T. A. Officials.

The Turf, Field and Farm in a recent issue pays the following tribute to the officials of that sterling organization, the National Trotting Association:

The present officers of the National Trotting Association have long been identified with the movement to improve the breed of light harness horses. President P. P. Johnston has a farm of over 1000 acres in Kentucky, on which he breeds both trotters and runners, and for many years was president of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association. First Vice-President George W. Arthur breeds in a small way, and drives trotters on the road, and was president of the Rochester Driving Park when this track was a member of the Grand Circuit, which began at Cleveland, took in the old Buffalo Driving Park and ended at Springfield. N. T. Smith, the second vice-president, loves the horse, was one of the closest friends of ex-Governor Leland Stanford, and is treasurer of the Southern Pacific Railway. Charles Dana Palmer, member of the Board of Review, Eastern District, is ex-mayor of Lowell, ex-president of the Driving Park, breeds in a moderate way, drives on the road and is frequently seen in the judges' stand. M. G. Bulkeley is ex-governor of Connecticut, ex-president of Charter Oak Driving Park, is fond of the horse and drives on the road. J. Malcolm Forbes owns Arion, for whom he paid $125,000; Bingen 2:06½, Peter the Great 2:07½, Nancy Hanks 2:04 and conducts a great breeding farm in Massachusetts. He is vice-president of the New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association and campaigns a stable every year. J. C. Sibley, of the Atlantic District, is a member of Congress and candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. At Franklin is Prospect Hill Farm, on which hundreds of thousands of dollars were spent to make it the Palo Alto of the East, and Charles Marvin was for many years his superintendent and trainer. Frank Bower is a prominent merchant of Philadelphia and has been closely identified with trotting movements there for more than a score of years. He has been president of Belmont Park, is a skillful driver on the road and track and breeds when the fancy strikes him.

John H. Shults has spent close on to $1,000,000 on the trotting horse, and his great breeding farm is at Portchester. He has more mares with fast records than any other breeder, and season after season sends out a stable to represent Shultshurst. William Russell Allen, of the Central District, owns Krem'in 2:07½, and has been almost as lavish in his expenditures as Mr. Shults. Allen Farm, at Pittsfield, is one of the show places of New England. Season after season his horses compete for the prizes of the trotting turf. John C. Welty is one of the foremost men of Ohio, and has bred and trotted horses. Pilot Boy 2:09½, now owned by Mr. Frank Work, was formerly a member of his campaign stable. Mr. Welty resides at Canton, was a friend of ex-President William McKinley, and is prominent in the political movements of the Buckeye State. R. H. Plant is a banker at Macon, Ga., owns Grattan Boy 2:08, breeds on a large scale, and season after season is represented by a powerful stable on the tracks of the country. U. C. Blake, of the Western District, is a lawyer, owns horses, has been president of a track, and has often officiated as a judge in the stand. F. S. Gorton has a stock farm at Wheaton, Ill., owns Tommy Britton 2:06½, and campaigns a stable every year. J. W. Bailey represents Texas in the United States Senate, carries on breeding in Kentucky and Texas, and trots his horses for glory and expenses. E. P. Heald, A. B. Spreckels, and John C. Kirkpatrick, of the Pacific District, are prominent men, and thoroughly representative of the breeding and training industry of that section of the country. All of the officials of the National Trotting Association have practical knowledge of breeding and development, are in touch with current affairs, are men of sound judgment, and will keep the wheels turning in an effective way.

The stallion whose owner believes in him sufficiently to spend money in training and showing his get will get to the front if he has any merit at all. Thos. W. Lawson, who recently purchased Dare Devil 2:09 at a price known to be in excess of $30,000, the largest price paid for a trotting bred horse since Stamboul 2:07½ was sold, is now advertising for four of his get that have show ring qualities. Mr. Lawson wants to exhibit Dare Devil's produce in the show ring and having none himself, and knowing the horse stood for public service for several years, he believes he can get what he wants by using the columns of the eastern turf journals. In his characteristic way Mr. Lawson says: "Those having good individuals and out of good mares, which they will sell reasonably—I am not paying fancy prices—can make quick trade by giving full description of the individual and dam and naming price. As time is limited no attention will be paid to those who start in to dicker. Simply write me the facts about the individual and his breeding, and if the price is right I will at once send man. If individual tallies with description he will give check and take it." Mr. Lawson purchased Ponce de Leon at the Daly sale and makes the same offer in regard to four of that stallion's get. If he gets what he wants, and wins with them at the Boston Horse Show, he will give his two stallions a boom that he could start in no other way that would be so effective.

The principal changes made in the rules by the Congress of the National Trotting Association are as follows: Matinee horses can now compete for ribbons and trophies without incurring the penalty of a record or bar when no financial benefit is to be derived from the matinees. No trotting will be permitted after sunset, and this will mean the hour set by the calendar instead of the sun setting behind some nearby hill. Three races can now be sandwiched in an afternoon in place of two, as heretofore, giving horses a longer time to rest and at the same time expediting the program. The penalty for the suppression of time has been raised from $100 to $500, which it is hoped will have a deterring effect on the guilty violators. The moving up of the distance stand was voted down, as well as an amendment to prohibit heat betting on races. An amendment to restore, in substance, the old rule allowing judges to declare the deciding heat of a race void, was also defeated. The proposition not to permit hobbled horses without records to compete on National tracks was snowed under, and the proposition that the president of the National Trotting

[Redding Free Press, February 24.]

A county fair will be held in Redding this year, on September 23d, 24th, 25th and 26th Saturday afternoon the directors of the Twenty-seventh Agricultural District met in this city and decided to arrange for a fair on those dates. The directors elected the following officers: W. J. Gillespie, President; Wm. Hawes, Vice-President; A. M. Irwin, Secretary; C. C. Bush, Jr., Treasurer.

This district comprises Shasta and Trinity counties. As no fair was held last year, the full State appropriation for two years, $1800, is now available.

The directors believe that conditions will be such that the fair in every respect will be far more successful than any previous exhibition. It is proposed to make the premiums larger and the special features will be many and new and novel.

The Northern California Racing Circuit is now an organized fixture and in September and October the races in the various towns on the circuit will be held.

Saturday representatives of Tehama, Siskiyou and Shasta counties met at the Depot Hotel and agreed on dates that will not conflict with each other. A season of five days' racing will be held in Yreka, Redding and Red Bluff. The season opens at Yreka with dates fixed on September 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20. Redding, September 23, 24, 25, 26 and 27. Red Bluff, September 30, October 1, 2, 3 and 4.

The racing district is to comprise the counties of Trinity, Siskiyou, Del Norte, Modoc, Lassen, Shasta

Association, the American Trotting Association and the American Trotting Register Association shall constitute a board to determine the validity of all records disputed by the American Trotting Register Association went through without a dissenting vote.

Early closing events enables each association to advertise its meeting and feel of the pulse of the racing world. There is no better way to get your meeting before the public than by giving a few early closing stakes. Each association in making up its program should be governed by its environments, offering as much money for purses as it can possibly afford, but not more than it can surely pay. The larger the purse the more attractive it will be to the better class of horses. The primary object of any association should be improvement. To accomplish this the financial end should not be lost sight of. To insure this you must get the people, and to get them you must furnish the entertainment that gives them the greatest enjoyment and satisfaction. People have been accustomed to a higher class of amusement and now demand it, and will not be satisfied with an inferior performance of any kind. That the speed ring is the drawing attraction at fairs, when properly conducted, is attested by the crowds of people leaving every other department and filling the grand stand to overflowing by the time races are called. This is no detriment to the other departments, for they have most likely spent an hour or so looking over the other fine displays, but shows that people like to be entertained and enjoy better than any thing else a good "hoss race."—Rural Spirit and Tehama in California, and Jackson, Klamath and Lake in Oregon. All horses entered must be owned and in the district prior to July 1st.

The following program was decided upon, the list of races to be the same in each of the towns named:

First day—Trotting race, 3:00 class, 1 mile, best two in three; running, five-eighths mile dash; running, 1 mile dash.

Second day—Pacing, 2:23 class, best three in five; running, half-mile dash; running, seven-eighths mile dash.

Third day—Trotting, 2:20 class, best three in five; running, three-quarter mile dash; running, one mile dash.

Fourth day—Trotting, 2:40 class, best three in five; running, five-eighths mile dash; running, seven-eighths mile dash.

Fifth day—Trotting and pacing, two year old, best two in three; trotting and pacing, free for all, best three in five; running, one-half mile, for defeated horses; running, three-quarter mile dash, for defeated horses.

Entries for trotting and pacing races close on September 1st. It is already known some speedy horses will be entered for these races.

Sulky vs. Wagon.

[H. K. Devereux in American Sportsman.]

Much argument has been had over the question of the difference between the modern bike sulky and the "bike" wagon. Many horsemen believe that there is no difference between the two and there are a few that say they believe the wagon faster than the sulky. The arguments on both sides are numerous—as must necessarily be the case in a question where the difference is so slight—but after seven years of close observation and much practical use of the two vehicles I am of the firm belief that measured in point of time for extremely fast performances the difference is largely in favor of the sulky. What this difference amounts to is perhaps impossible to prove, but I believe an approximately fair average can be determined and I have, after much calculation, placed this at about two seconds—providing the element of wind resistance is eliminated. To anybody who has ever ridden a bicycle, the importance and effect of wind resistance is well understood, and in the case of a wagon this resistance is a marked factor when speed is at stake. The reason is obvious—there is so much more for the wind to get in its power on. It has been stated that the seat of the ordinary racing bike wagon is lower than the sulky seat. This is not only untrue, but the driver in the wagon besides being higher up is much further back of his horse which puts him in a position to offer much more resistance to the wind than if seated close behind his horse as in a sulky. The late Tom Keating was the only horseman I ever heard suggest the advisability of a driver leaning well forward over his horse as a bicycle racer conclusion as to what horse motion means and what it amounts to.

The old saw, that the proof of the pudding is in the eating, is most applicable in this most abstruse argument, wherein there is so much that must at least approach guess work. The performance of any one horse, or even a dozen selected cases, cannot be proof—though they be evidence—but the proof to me is had in the different kind and under all sorts of conditions for the past seven years. At times I was ready to admit that the wagon was at least as fast as the sulky, notably the day I timed The Abbot at Lexington a mile to wagon in 2:03½, but after events only served to strengthen me in my opinion. Hundreds of watches were held on The Abbot when he trotted that mile and of all of them I saw or have heard of only two that had the mile as fast as 2:03½. The watches that I saw were from 2:03½ to 2:03¾. Mine was 2:03 3-5, and I saw or heard of a large number, for I was deeply interested. This perhaps means little, but when trying to determine an average fractions count. Until I talked with Mr. Geers I was ready to agree with Mr. Welch and a number of others who timed the mile, that the wagon was here proven to be at least as fast as the sulky. Mr. Geers' reply to my question as to what he thought about it was characteristic. "I am greatly disappointed," said he, "that I did not arrange to start the horse to beat his record this afternoon. This is his day and his track. He never was in better condition than now and he would certainly have trotted a mile in harness in as good as 2:02, and I honestly think in 2:01½ or better." Knowing the conservatism and astuteness of this master of his profession, and realizing at his best, taken away at the pole, paced by a runner, and everything fixed for his showing his real speed, this horse when turned in a field of horses and raced a few heats seems to have lost seconds in ability.

As has been said, "One swallow does not make a spring," nor is it fair to select even a dozen subjects as proving the case, and yet it might be interesting to select a few of the most prominent wagon performances and see what they may prove. We have already discussed the Abbot's performance as the greatest by a trotter. For the pacers, Little Boy's mile in 2:01½ stands out so far and above all others that it becomes most interesting. This mile was about 5 seconds faster than his record made to harness over one-half mile track, and would seem to prove that in this case at least the wagon was as fast as the sulky. People who know Little Boy well, however, will think a few times 'ere they admit this. No trotter or pacer ever lived that had a higher flight of speed, if as much, and his ability to carry it is marvelous. In this he excels any horse I ever saw. It is certain conviction in my mind that Little Boy is the fastest pacer that ever lived, and those who know him best firmly believe that only opportunity is needed for him to beat Star Pointer's great performance of a mile in 1:59½. In speaking of Star Pointer, it might be pertinent to consider what his wagon record is and also what Joe Patchen's is. They were tried to wagon often, and their record so hitched are seconds slower than their harness records. Indeed the more one considers their performances, the remarkable one of Little Boy grows to assume wonderful proportions. Coney paced a trial mile wagon in 2:02½, but is there does over his handle bar. He claimed that he had demonstrated to his satisfaction that there was much benefit to be derived from this practice, and he always in later years drove in this manner when his horse was not pulling on the bit. Were the horse pulling it is obvious little or no gain could be made by this method. I have tried Mr. Keating's receipt and am sure in a wagon, particularly when facing a wind, much may be gained by adopting the low crouching attitude. It is not pretty or graceful but it is certainly productive of good in making time. Returning to the statement as to the relative height of the seats of wagons and sulkies, I have measured a number and the facts are that the seats of the sulkies are some inches lower than the wagon seats, while the driver in the wagon is not alone higher but on the average about five feet further back of his horse. What this means one can not realize until finishing a mile with a tired horse. The adherents to the argument that the wagon is the faster also claim that with four wheels there is less friction because the weight is more evenly distributed and carried by four wheels instead of two. This is a most fallacious argument, for given bearings of like kind it is a fact beyond argument that the weight is carried on the two with no increase in friction over the four—and that if there were any increase it would be against the four wheels. The argument as to horse motion in the sulky is more fairly open to debate, and I am free to say that this one thing is, I believe, the condition that fairly brings the two vehicles close together in the argument of relative speed. This is a condition that varies so with the gait and the position of the horse, kind of sulky, method of hitching and driving, that it is impossible to come to any decided that he had worked and driven this horse fast miles to both sulky and wagon for four seasons, what better evidence could be had of the difference in this case except the actual performance. The Abbot was not started again that year, and ill luck and sickness put him out last season. He may never train to this high standard again, but I shall always believe I saw him in a performance that proved his ability to trot a mile closer to two minutes than any horse that ever lived. Again, those who argue that the wagon is as fast as the sulky usually make much of the fact that so many horses lower their turf record when driven by amateurs to wagon. At first thought this seems an unanswerable argument, but is very easy of explanation. On the face of it the comparison is invidious, the conditions governing the two sorts of performances are not at all analogous and no comparison can be fair. Every horseman knows what it means to condition a horse to trot races of mile heats, three in five. They know what drains are put upon a horse racing in big fields with all the attendant scoring. This is certainly done at the sacrifice of some speed. Take any horse so conditioned and raced, shipped from town to town, put him in a stable of matinee horses, freshen him up, train him only for short races and few of them, where the scoring is at a minimum and the starters few, and where interference and ill luck is almost eliminated, and what is the very natural result? Why, he is able to utilize all his speed and at once becomes like a horse conditioned, driven, paced and hurried into a virtual trial against time. How many horses acquire records near their ability for trotting one mile? Very few indeed. Many of us know this to our sorrow, as when a horse has shown us a fast mile, started when he seemed any man who knows this horse who does not believe there have been days that this rather erratic gentle man could pace a mile in two minutes? Bumps, after a couple years let-up, and after just the right kind of work to make speed, paced a mile to wagon in 2:03½, or three-quarters of a second faster than his turf record, and yet Mr. Snow told me he believed he could have driven him a mile to harness that day very near, if not quite, in two minutes. Lucille went a mile to wagon in 2:07, or two and a quarter seconds faster than her turf record. Yet is there a sane horseman that thinks Lucille's turf record of 2:09½ was the limit of her ability? This little mare has trotted a quarter in 29½ seconds and is great in ability to carry her speed, so a mile in 2:05 should not stop her. I cannot believe, under all circumstances, that a mile has yet been trotted or paced that would not have been faster had the horse been hooked to a sulky. If this is not true why do not some who believe the wagon as fast or faster, try to race to them? If Mr. Ketcham had elected to have driven Cresceus to wagon when he started to beat the world's record, would not every horseman have considered him crazy? If Cresceus had been hooked to wagon when he raced The Abbot at Brighton Beach, would he have been made favorite? Would Mr. Lawson be considered the man of ability he is now were he to try and beat Lord Derby with Boralmu hooked to wagon? When Jack Curry starts Prince Alert to beat 2:00, do you think he will hook him to wagon? Were you ever in a wagon trying to help and keep a tired horse first to the wire? Did you ever drive a struggling horse to wagon against a strong head wind? Try it! When anybody tells you there is no difference between wagon and sulky, put him down as one that either has not used his thinker or has had only a few trials at it.

Returns on Horse Investments.

Arion cost $125,000, Bingen, a faster horse, only $8000, and that, too, after having trotted a mile publicly in 2:12½ as a two year old at Rigby Park, Maine, early in that season, says an exchange. There was a "boom" on in Arion's days; a panic extended over the light harness horse world when Bingen's star seemed in the ascendancy; the difference in conditions balanced nicely in favor of the Massachusetts breeder, inasmuch as no horse at a cost of $125,000 has reasonable chance of earning out that sum. Bingen undoubtedly has or will repay the full cost and Peter the Great has every chance to prove an investment. Nancy Hanks cost $38,000 or $40,000—Mr. Forbes and Budd Doble alone know the exact amount—but earned a sum net nearly equalling that purchase figure in her exhibition tours. Add to her earnings the stake money earned by her son and his value in the competitive market, and old Nancy has proved a valuable investment, viewed in any light. Mr. Forbes has four from her to date and but one year has she failed to produce. All of her produce have lived, and the oldest, a filly by imp. Meddler, is producing each season to the Forbes farm stallions. Were the Nancy Hanks family to be dispersed by auction there would be an aggregate well toward $25,000 bid for the lot beyond a reasonable doubt, leaving the old queen but little below original cost to her owner.

Just the amount earned by Arion when his fee was $2500 is not known, but approximated in all likelihood $25,000. His get at public sale have aggregated possibly $10,000 and his last season, made in Kentucky, was decidedly profitable. He will continue at Mr. Witherspoon's farm, Versailles, Ky., the present season and is already well engaged at a fee of $100. Arion should in the end earn possibly a third of the extraordinary figure paid for him. Chimes cost C. J. Hamlin only $12,500. He never lowered his three year old record, 2:30½, although he could have taken a record of 2:25 at almost any moment if retired for a portion of a season. His progeny have sold for a large figure in the aggregate. The Abbot 2:03½ alone fetching $26,500. On the turf Chimes' get have won over $100,000, and his earnings at the stud must approximate that high figure. Were he sold to-day he would be in demand at $15,000 to $25,000 even though now an old horse. Mr. Lawson has purchased Dare Devil 2:09½ for probably $35,000 or more, the produce of a daughter of Chimes, so it is readily to be seen that no horse ever proved a better earning factor than he.

Primarily, Mr. Hamlin's idea was to race the Chimeses early, but after allowing Fantasy the world's three year old race record of 2:08½ and the world's filly record of 2:06 as a four year old, Midnight Chimes a three year old race record of 2:16½, Princess Royal a two year old race record of 2:20 and American Belle—by Rex Americus, however—a race record of 2:12½ at three, the sage of the Village Farm declared against juvenile training for all time. It is to-day the "little" breeder who is helped by bringing out juveniles of the highest class, and the leading breeders do not strive for supremacy as of old. Borlma and Peter Stirling were bred by men having less than 100 head probably on their farms, and in late years only Bitter Root Farm and Walnut Hall have "made" the two year old futurities from among the representative establishments. At Forbes Farm a similar inclination exists to allow the youngsters their first three years to develop. Admiral Dewey was "brushed" as a two year old, and report had it, showed a mile in 2:20½, but it was not a "rated" mile, merely the result of two intermediate brushes at a sensational clip, with parts of it little faster than a 2:40 gait. He was not raced that season, Mr. Hamlin has also abandoned the mating of two year old fillies, believing after a trial that the produce are frail and undersized as a rule, and consequently not so well fortified to be raced as the produce of matured young mares. He is ever alive to the importance of pushing his sires to the front in every practical way, but believes that the track and show ring are the places for competition and gaining of lasting renown.

No handsomer broodmares or stallions in America could possibly be found in such numbers as at the Village Farm. Years ago Mambrino King was heralded by a commission of French horsemen visiting America "the handsomest horse in the world." His sale for $10,000 to Mr. Hamlin followed and his subsequent ring victories are history. In his day he was defeated only by the trotters, Alcyone and Alcantara, and many regarded the latter's defeat of him as prejudicial judging and not a "true" class result. Mambrino King sired Lord Derby 2:06½ and Lady of the Manor 2:04½, from daughters of Chimes, the former to-day one of the most talked-of trotters of the hour, and the latter sharing the world's pacing mare record with Mr. Billings' handsome Mazette.

Death of W. H. Schuckman.

On the Monday morning's mail from Denver, Colorado came an announcement of the death of William Schuckman, Secretary of the Overland Racing Association, in the shape of the following letter from Mr. John B. Williams of that city

DENVER, COLO., FEBY. 20, 1902.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: W. H. Schuckman of Denver is dead. Strong men will shed tears for the loss of "Billy" from among them.

"A fond and loving son, husband, brother, friend. He died where manhood's morning almost touched to noon and while the shadows were still falling toward the west." For eighteen years he was express messenger for the Adams Express Co. during which time he built for himself a monument that will outlive those who knew him. He it was, who as messenger, went East and returned with thousands and thousands of dollars in gold for the banks of Denver during the panic of 1893. Many of us remember the stacks of gold at the teller's window in those stormy days. Billy was the trusted man with all of it.

Three years ago Mr. Edwin Gaylord of Denver leased Overland Park and organized the Overland Racing Association with Billy as secretary. Those who attended the races will remember how well he performed the various duties incident thereto. Courteous, obliging and firm, with a quick perception of justice to all.

"He spoke and it was done; He commanded and it stood fast." Thus he helped to raise the Overland Racing Association to that high standard of excellence for which it is so justly renowned.

Where could such combination as Gaylord and Schuckman be found? Yet Billy is no more. Dead at the age of thirty eight years.

As a horseman he was enthusiastic from childhood and there probably was not another man in the West his equal in the knowledge of harness and running horses. "He loved righteousness and justice" doing at all times what he believed and saw to be right. Though a poor man, yet was he rich, in that no hungry one ever left his presence without a division of his purse with a word and a smile of encouragement.

JOHN B. WILLIAMS.

Mr. Schuckman died from pericarditis, after an illness of four weeks. His death occurred about four hours after an operation to remove the water pressing on the heart.

Why No 2:05 Pacing Class?

The statement that the stewards of the Grand Circuit for 1902 will not have a 2:05 pacing class, for fear that Dan Patch will scare off all other entries, is rather premature, and will, if carried out, spoil the most sensational racing of the coming season. Look at the eligibles for the class and compare their performances of last year, and it shows the 'real crack-a-jacks' will be in the 2:05 classes at all the circuit meetings. Mazette 2:04½, by Tennessee Wilkes, started at Buffalo and won third money and a heat in 2:07½; won first money at Glen's Falls in 2:06½, 2:07½, 2:06½; third at Readville to Riley B., in 2:07½, 2:08½, 2:10; second at Providence to Dan Patch in 2:04½, 2:07, 2:06½; second at Hartford to Edith W. in 2:08½, 2:05, 2:07½; won at Memphis in 2:04½, 2:04½. Dan Patch 2:04½ by Joe Patchen, won every race in which he started, his best average race time being at Providence in 2:04½, 2:07, 2:06½. Royal R. Sheldon 2:04½, by Constantine, paced three winning races on the Grand Circuit: at Glen's Falls in 2:04½, 2:06½; Readville, in 2:05, 2:07, 2:06½; at Providence, in 2:05½, 2:06½, 2:06½. Edith W. 2:05, by Ben Lomond, Jr., made nine starts. Her winning races were at Columbus, in 2:05½, 2:07½, 2:07½; at Hartford, in 2:08½, 2:05, 2:07½; and at Cincinnati, in 2:05½. Alcyon, was the winner of eleven track and four state records last season, Hetty G. 2:05½, by Egg Hot, started at Detroit by winning the 2:06 class race in 2:05½, 2:06½; she was second at Columbus, with a heat in 2:05½, but did not come to the front again down the line. Audubon Boy 2:06; Little Squaw 2:06; Will Leyburn 2:06; Harry D. 2:06; The Maid 2:05½; and Bonnie Direct, are the others eligible to the class. Of the twelve named seven are likely to come together. It will be racing in earnest, and the time will average 2:06 or better.—Spirit of the West.

Dan Morgan, a horse shoer of Marysville and a horse owner well known in this State, died suddenly at his home on Tuesday of last week. The deceased, after doing a hard day's work, repaired to his home and ate a hearty evening meal about 5 o'clock; shortly after which he complained of a headache and soon sank into unconsciousness, in which condition he remained until shortly after 5 o'clock next morning, when he breathed his last. His death is attributed to the rupture of a blood vessel of the brain.

The Horse Industry.

Some striking figures are about to be published by the Department of Agriculture in a bulletin by Dr. George Russel, an expert in the Bureau of Animal Industry.

After reviewing the past and present conditions of the horse market, he states the causes of the depression in 1890, first resulting from the abolition of horse cars, followed by the business depression of 1893, and this followed closely by the advent of the bicycle and automobile. The last two features, however, it seems do not affect the horse market so much as one would think, for those who ride the bicycle cannot afford to own a horse or are temporary patrons of livery stables. As to the automobile, Dr. Russel states this is a mechanical age, when one wishes everything to be of a mechanical nature; but the combination of motors and wheels is not in a perfect state and the fascination of inventions can never supplant permanently the exhilaration of companionship or the inspiration of power that comes from a pull on the ribbons, or the grip of the knees in the saddle.

He then reviews the causes of the present excellent condition of the market, primarily caused by the depression when horse breeders, becoming discouraged by the state of the market at that time, discontinued the breeding of high class horses so that now there is a scarcity of fine animals. Another reason is the immense growth of the export trade for while in 1890 only 3,501 horses were sent abroad, in 1901 the figure have steadily grown to 82,250 head. The following table of exports shows this growth: 1890, 3,501; 1891, 3,110; 1892, 2,226; 1893, 2,967; 1894, 5,246; 1895, 13,984; 1896, 25,126; 1897, 39,532; 1898, 51,150; 1899, 45,778; 1900, 64,722; 1901, 82,250.

The shipments to Africa are largely responsible for the great increase in 1901 when 27,465 head were shipped to that country.

It would seem, therefore, estimating that an animal is marketed at five years of age, an export demand of 80,000 annually requires nearly 400,000 horses to keep up this supply.

Another important reason is the increase of population, with a growing love of a good horse, and the wonderful growth of business, calling for many more horses than were needed for such purposes in the early 90's.

Will the market hold out? As already stated, the reasons for the present good market are, on the one hand, a diminished supply of the best grades to draw upon, and, on the other hand, a brisk demand with a widened field to supply. So long as these conditions continue prices will rise.

Jasper Ayers on the Speedway.

Since David Lamar, of New York, bought the ten year old California gelding Jasper Ayers 2:09 at New York a few weeks ago he has been having considerable sport with him on the speedways, as will be seen from the following from the New York Sun of February 17th: "The lower stretch at Speedway Park presented a narrow strip of hard, smooth footing for the fast fleet yesterday morning, but, as 'Old Sol' mounted into the skies, the top surface thawed into a mortar-like bed too heavy to admit of pleasurable driving in the afternoon. David Lamar elected to drive his recent purchase, Jasper Ayers 2:09, first, and was a central figure, not losing a heat. First he warmed the California-bred trotter alone, sending him twice at speed over the stretch to limber him up and work off the wire edge; then selecting David Goodman's fast gelding Freeland 2:17½, as a competitor he turned at Aqueduct Bridge for his first spin in company, the first that he ever drove the handsome bay, as Trainer Curry has given him all of his workouts so far. Elmer Stevens behind Woodsboy 2:24½, joined them and it was a pretty brush even though Jasper Ayers had seconds the best of his fellows and finished in a mere jog. John Timmins with Harry Davis 2:26½, next tried the Lamar trotter and he likewise was beaten off. It was evident that the son of Iris was on his mettle and all hands now sought to check his rush to victory. Fred Spear behind Queen Wilkes, George O. Coleman, in a heavy runabout with the veteran Kingwood 2:17½, and one or two others turned with Mr. Lamar and they were away at speed like a flash. As they swung along a third of the way down Moe Levy joined in with the big resolute-going Ed Locke 2:12½, but was out in front several lengths with clear sailing in the choicest of the footing. Nothing daunted, however, Lamar drove for him with Jasper Ayers closing fast. At the finish Ed Locke led by a half length and Jasper beat out the original starters decisively. As between Kingwood and the Wilkes mare it looked to belong to Kingwood by a head, although it was so close both drivers inquired as to the popular verdict."

HIDALGO'S GOSSIP.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Well, I see that Mr. Spreckels has been purchasing some first class stallions for the Napa Farm and, as his mares were already far above the average, I see no good reason why he should not breed stake-horses hereafter. Solitaire is a beautifully bred horse and I can conceive of nothing better than his female tail line, tracing back to Brown Duchess and Espoir. Of Ayrshire I was never so much an admirer as I was of Sheen, whom I must place at the head of Hampton's sons, with Ayrshire next, Ladas third and Merry Hampton pretty well back. Hampton was never credited with the merit he really possessed, for he raced five seasons and won some very important races, besides which he is the only stallion since Stockwell to get three Derby winners. I saw a good many Ayrshire horses in England, last year, and can say that they are over the average for three cardinal requisites—good legs, good feet and, what is never to be overlooked at this day, good temper. Ladas was far ahead of Ayrshire in 1891, in the matter of moneys won by his get, but it is really all through the winnings of one horse, Epsom Lad. My objection to the Ladas horses is that they are all on the light order and exceedingly nervous, hence I would rather have one good horse by Ayrshire than five by Ladas. And as Feronia, the dam of St. Serf (who has had winners of £10,000 for three seasons and been once second to his illustrious sire), is also the second dam of Ayrshire, I don't think that Mr. Spreckels has made any great mistake in the purchase of Solitaire. Then take his dam's side and he is out of Solesky by Thunder, who won the City and Suburban of 1876 with 130 lbs. up, he being by Thunderbolt, the fastest of all of Stockwell's sons. Thunderbolt was sold to Hungary where he got Krakatoa, sire of Dolma Batsghks, who won the Grand Prix de Paris, beating the $60,000 Matchbox. Next comes Utopia by Rataplan, brother to Stockwell; and we all know that he not only got Kettledrum, the Derby winner but also got the dams of Cremorne, Derby, Grand Prix and Ascot cup and Kisber, winner of the Derby and Grand Prix; Apology winner of the Oaks and St. Leger; and Wenlock, St. Leger winner and sire of imp Martenhurst. Visionary the next dam was by Loup Garou, son of Lanercost and sire of that great filly Fairwater. Next comes Brown Duchess, one of the greatest three year old fillies ever saddled. She won the Oaks of 1861 in a canter, with Lady Ripon second and Fairwater third. Her next appearance was in the Coronation Stakes at Ascot, which she won in a canter. Next comes the Grand Duke Michael Stakes in which she literally smothered Knight of St. Patrick, Walloon and four others. Next came Doncaster at which she ran a dead heat for the cup and divided the stakes with Kettledrum; and it was this race that cost her the St. Leger, in my belief, for she broke down in the latter race while running ahead of C ller On and Kettledrum who finished first and second, noses apart. Her full sister, Hopeful Duchess, was the second dam of imported Maxim, as good a horse as Australia ever sent to America; and Brown Duchess herself was the third dam of imported Galore, a very prominent sire, whose son Doctor McBride got that great filly Leonora Loring. Solitaire's fifth dam was Espoir, dam of that great horse Ethelbert who won the City and Suburban at Epsom. So that Solitaire's breeding is gilt edged, look at it as you will.

The other horse, Marius II, is in bred to Galopin, the fastest horse ever foaled in England, bar Ormonde; and the only stallion in history to head the sires' list at 25 years of age. Look at some of these returns for stallions:

1896	1897	1900
St. Simon.....£50,734	Kendal.....£28,845	Galopin.....£21,700
St. Serf.....15,052	St. Simon.....22,541	St. Simon.....15,210
Galopin.....12,862	Donovan.....12,818	Donovan.....14,308
Donovan.....9,870	Galopin.....12,370	St. Serf.....11,868
£98,518	£76,572	£63,174

Donovan and St. Simon were both by Galopin and St. Serf by St. Simon. Last year St. Simon headed the list without a single classic winner to his credit; and second on the list was his son Florizel II, who got the winners of both the Derby and St. Leger (as well as the second horse in the latter) in his very first season. It is always an open question at first whether the blood of any horse will inbreed well, but Flying Fox settled that some time ago, as far as Galopin is concerned, and numerous other instances have since occurred. So Mr. Spreckels need not be anxious on that account. The next dam is Sunny Locks by Newminster. Now I am aware that there was always some prejudice against Newminster's daughters, but I find that both Carbine, the greatest two-miler ever foaled, and the Australian Newminster, also, had Newminster mares for their grandams. The latter horse was the best two year old ever foaled in that country and headed the sire list twice, in addition to being one of the first ten for seven years. Next comes Bess Lyon by Longbow, and she dropped the Oaks winner Gamos by Saunterer. Next came Daughter of Toscar and she produced imp. Hercules, the handsomest of all the early importations to this State. He had all the quality of Belmont and was at least one hundred pounds the heavier horse. He died the property of Mr. William Boots of Milpitas.

And so Eonic won the Burns Handicap, quite a big winning for a mare sold for $1000 less than a year ago. She was "bred right to go the route" beyond all question, her sire being one of the most consistent performers ever foaled, while her dam was by a Derby winner. Eonic comes from the No. 4 family in the Bruce Lowe system, a family that has produced as follows:

Derby Winners	Oaks Winners	St. Leger Winners
Sir Harry.....1798	Nightshade.....1788	Stately.....1805
Blucher.....1814	Medora.....1814	The Duchess.....1815
Thormanby.....1860	Gulnare.....1834	St. Patrick.....1830
Kisber.....1876	Our Nell.....1832	Chorister.....1831
Iroquois.....1881	Brigantine.....1890	Wenlock.....1872
Common.....1891	Gamos.....1870	Sea Breeze.....1888
Sir Visto.....1895	Apology.....1874	Common.....1891
	Thebais.....1881	Throstle.....1894
	Reve d'Or.....1887	Sir Visto.....1895
	Sea Breeze.....1888

This shows 7 winners of the Derby, 10 of the Oaks and 9 of the St. Leger, 26 classical winners in all. This makes a better showing for the Magnolia family than I was at first aware of, for to this Layton Barb mare also trace Matchem, the premier sire of his day; Oulston, winner of the Queen's Vase at Ascot; Lord of the Isle, 2000 Guineas of 1855. In this country we find Day Star, winner of the Kentucky Derby; imported Albert, premier sire of 1899; Belvidere and brother Sir Dixon, the premier sire of 1901; Charaxus, sire of Charade, a great winner; Falsetto, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Kenner Stakes at Saratoga; imported Kingston by Hampton; Pontiac, first winner of the Suburban at Coney Island; Parole, who won both the City and Suburban and Great Metropolitan Handicaps in England on the same day; Vocalic, a good son of Virgil; Requit, winner of the Futurity and the Realization Stakes; George Kinney, one of the three best sons of good old Bonnie Scotland; Rhadamanthus, the old black horse that laid the foundation of the Dwyer fortunes, and a dozen or more horses that have won distinction on the American turf.

Another great horse from this line of mares was the famous black stallion Doctor Syntax. He won 20 races out of 32, including the Preston Cup four times, for which event he was twice second also. He got Ralph, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas at three years old and the Ascot Gold Cup at four. He also got that greatest of all race mares, the incomparable Beeswing, who won 52 races out of 63 starts, including four Doncaster Cups. Lanercost beat her twice and she beat him five times. Beeswing was afterwards famous as the dam of Newminster, the best son of Touchstone. Another good horse from this line was The Provost, who got that good mare Hybla. She dropped Kettledrum, Derby winner in 1861, and Mincemeat, Oaks winner of 1854, as well as Clove, imported into Australia, where she became the ancestors of Abercorn, the best horse ever foaled on the South Continent. Another good horse from this line was Annandale, that ran second to Merry Monarch in the Derby of 1845 and got that good little horse Balrownie, that was buried alive in Massachusetts. Had Bairownie been sent to Kentucky or Tennessee on his arrival, he would have done fully as well as Bonnie Scotland, his half-brother, for none of the earlier Bonnie Scotlands were as good as Fleetwing, who was about the only horse to make Kentucky extend himself at five years old. I must say the No. 4 family makes a better showing than most turf writers are aware of. My belief is that, if ever we breed a great sire on this Coast, it will be from Eonic or one of her daughters, as some of the stallions included in the above list of Derby and St. Leger winners have done very well in England; and we all know what Iroquois, Powhattan and Sir Dixon have achieved in America.

HIDALGO.

Senator Joe Bailey of Texas is not only a statesman of considerable renown, but he has some very well defined ideas and positive convictions concerning the trotters. Senator Bailey is now in Lexington, where he has branched out in the deft business, along with Brook Curry and other gentlemen of the blue grass region. He offers to show his faith in his great stallion Prodigal by matching his get against that of Silent Brook in a more substantial way than has been suggested by the latter's owner. Senator Bailey declined to enter the Representative Stallion Sweepstake upon the conditions named by Brook Curry, saying: "They made too cheap an affair out of the proposed race," but he hurled his deft at the trotting stallion owners of the country to day when he announced that he was willing to race the get of Prodigal against the get of Silent Brook or any other stallion in a sweepstake upon the following conditions: The sum of $500 to be paid when the stallion is named, and an additional $500 for every colt entered in the race. He says: "Any-where and any track will suit me."

The Rules for Registration.

Surprise is very often expressed by owners and breeders who come to this office to seek assistance in getting their horses registered, when they find the animals are not eligible. These owners are generally men who have paid little attention to such matters for several years and are unacquainted with the fact that the rules were radically changed in 1898 and the requirements for registration are more difficult to fulfill than in former years. For the benefit of those who have no copy of the present rules, we again publish them.

THE TROTTING STANDARD.

When an animal meets these requirements and is duly registered it shall be accepted as a standard-bred trotter:

1. The progeny of a registered standard trotting horse and a registered standard trotting mare.
2. A stallion sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard trotting horses, and he himself has a trotting record of 2:30 and is the sire of three trotters with records of 2:30, from different mares.
3. A mare whose sire is a registered standard trotting horse, and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered standard trotting horses, provided she herself has a trotting record of 2:30 or is the dam of one trotter with a record of 2:30.
4. A mare sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided she is the dam of two trotters with records of 2:30.
5. A mare sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided her first, second and third dams are each sired by a registered standard trotting horse.

THE PACING STANDARD.

When an animal meets these requirements and is duly registered, it shall be accepted as a standard-bred pacer:

1. The progeny of a registered standard pacing horse and a registered standard pacing mare.
2. A stallion sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard pacing horses, and he himself has a pacing record of 2:25 and is the sire of three pacers with records of 2:25, from different mares.
3. A mare whose sire is a registered standard pacing horse and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered standard pacing horses, provided she herself has a pacing record of 2:25, or is the dam of one pacer with a record of 2:25.
4. A mare sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided she is the dam of two pacers with records of 2:25.
5. A mare sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided her first, second and third dams are each sired by a registered standard pacing horse.
6. The progeny of a registered standard trotting horse out of a registered standard pacing mare, or of a registered standard pacing horse out of a registered standard trotting mare.

Louis Newman, known on nearly every race track on the Pacific Coast as "Professor" Newman, died at St. Mary's Hospital, in this city, last Tuesday. Newman was a native of New York and came from a good family. He was a good accountant, quite a student of thoroughbred pedigrees and during recent years had eked out a living by making tabulations and doing odd jobs in that line.

Fly-Casting at Stow Lake.

The postponed Saturday contest scheduled for February 16th took place at Stow Lake, Golden Gate Park, last Saturday. Eighteen club members were in attendance, their work during the afternoon being observed by a large and interested audience of holiday outing seekers. The weather conditions seemed to have placed a ban on top records in long distance work, the west wind interfering somewhat with the back cast.

A meeting and banquet of the club will be held at the California Hotel on next Tuesday evening. The scores for last Saturday were the following:

SATURDAY CONTEST NO. 1—Stow Lake, February 22, 1901. Wind light, west. Weather, fair.
 Judges—Messrs. Mansfield and Muller. Referee, Mr. Grant. Clerk, Mr. Wilson.

The Fly-Casting Club members will meet at Stow Lake this afternoon at two o'clock and also to-morrow morning at ten o'clock.

Mr. E. R. Letterman, the secretary-treasurer of the club, announces that at the annual meeting of the Chicago Fly-Casting Club, held Monday evening, February 10th, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: H. C. Hascall, President; A. G. Smith, Vice-President; E. R. Letterman, Secretary-Treasurer; George A. Murrell, Captain; member of the executive committee, for a three years' term, William T. Church. The matter of sending delegates to California to attend the tournament to be given during the coming summer was discussed and referred to the executive committee for action, and a decision will be made at the next meeting of that committee.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

What Luck?

Like incense drifting in white clouds through some cathedral dim,
 And scenting all the air with perfume from the censer's brim,
 The fragrant early sunshine filters through the deep green leaves,
 Makes golden figures on the moss—a brilliant carpet weaves.

Through turfy bank, past willows dank,
 The stream goes gliding laughingly:
 O'er pebbly shoal—the sea its goal.
 All checks it leaps o'er, chaffingly.

With all the care that skillful man could take with rod and tackle
 I twirl my reel and through the air I launch my favorite hackle
 It lights just like the honey bee on top of clover flower,
 As soft as raindrop on the grass in sudden summer shower.

Ah! trout, good-by! I hope you'll die
 For some more lucky brother angler:
 No fish for me! The task I'll try
 To soothe my wife—she's such a wrangler!
 Some fish I'll buy—they don't come high!
 And if she asks "What luck?" I'll lie
 Like any other angler.

In a recent letter to Professor James Markland, "Bittern Bill," who is now in New York city, recounted the following story:

"The other day several brokers received telephone orders to buy a certain stock, and notify Mr. Fish at a given telephone number. Calling up that number the response was invariably, 'Which one is wanted?' Then followed this conversation:

'How many of them are there?'
 'Several hundred, large and small.'
 'I want the head of the firm.'
 'Oh, then, you want Col. Jones.'
 'Col. Jones? No, I want Mr. Fish. Who in thunder are you?'
 'The Aquarium!'"

Bench Show Notes.

Judging from the continued generous responses in the nature of specials, interest in the April show is increasing. Among prizes reported this week we will enumerate as follows:

From the American Fox Terrier Club for best American bred novice smooth, wire novice and wire-haired puppy.

Thomas Cogan, Esq., of Boston, a "Blue Ribbon" collar for best Boston Terrier.

Mrs. E. Colwell, a silver and cut glass trophy for best Red Cocker.

Pacific Fox Terrier Club, Produce Stakes for 1902, $5 each, for best puppy, novice, limit and open, for dogs and bitches.

Mrs. K. Bradley-Dyne of Sidney, B. C., for best Terrier (Boston excluded) owned and exhibited by a lady.

Ed F. Haberlein, for best English Setter puppy. Mr. Haberlein is a prominent Eastern handler and trainer and is the author of the "Amateur Trainer," an authority.

J. P. Norman, silver cup for best wire-haired Fox Terrier owned in California.

E. C. Plume, for best Cocker sired by one of Plumeria Kennels' stud dogs. Donor not to compete.

J. P. Brown, $5 for best smooth Fox Terrier puppy bred and owned by exhibitor residing west of the Rocky mountains.

A number of specials, silver cups, are offered, to be awarded at the discretion of the Bench Show Committee, among the donors are Livingston Jenks, Charles K. Harley and Lester K. Wells.

The premium list will be issued in about two weeks; already, at this early date, inquiries for entry blanks, etc., are being received daily at the office of the club, No. 138 Montgomery street, in a most encouraging manner.

The inducements offered by the management of the northern shows to California handlers are very inviting. Seattle and Portland will offer $20 for a string of ten dogs, $50 for twenty-five dogs, $75 for forty dogs, $100 for fifty dogs. If more than one handler from California will go north, a premium of $10 extra will be given to the handler of the largest string of dogs. Victoria, while not expected to offer so much, will certainly come forward handsomely with handlers' prizes. These offers, it would seem, will surely be an object for one or two men to take a good string of dogs to the northern circuit.

The San Francisco Kennel Club will not be backward in making special inducements to northern handlers—these offers will be supplemented by offers from one or the other California shows.

Mr. J. P. McConnell, the secretary of the Victoria show, writes that the April show will have possibly fifteen or twenty dogs from Victoria.

Another new specialty organization, a Pacific Boston Terrier Club, it is confidently expected will soon be formed. We have the material here in such formidable kennels as are owned by Albert Joseph, of this city, Graham E. Babcock, of Coronado, and several other prominent fanciers and owners. The prospects of a strong organization look bright. Fanciers interested in the breed should communicate with L. A. Klein, No. 138 Montgomery street, San Francisco. Mr. Klein has consented, in the interim, to do the preliminary work for the formation of the club. A meeting of those interested will be held during the San Francisco Kennel Club show in April.

Among the local fanciers who have expressed their intention of sending a kennel of four dogs, at least, to the northern shows, are N. H. Hickman, J. G. Morgan, Charles R. Harley and Irving C. Ackerman.

Wm. Halley writes from Sacramento that the capitol city club will show under P. K. L. rules. They will dispense with the poultry exhibit and have accordingly changed the title of their organization to California State Kennel Show. The bench show project is receiving much encouragement from Sacramentans as well as from the local fancy.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

One of the latest novelties in the boot and shoe line are rubber boots for dogs, which are sold by several dealers in leather goods in New York. They cost about $4.75 for a set of four. The idea comes from Paris.

An all whitelitter of handsome strong puppies, eight of them, now demands the motherly attention of Woodlawn Kennels' Newmarket Queen. The whole batch of youngsters favor Woodcote Wonder to a remarkable degree. John Bradshaw believes the "nick" is a great one.

A notable English Setter breeding was the recent visit of Ben J. Baum's Rod's Sylvia (Rodfield-Countess Diana), bred by H. L. Betton, to Thos. J. Watson's Starlight (Dan Gladstone-Miss Alice). Starlight will be remembered as a field trial winner and the sire of some good field dogs, this will be the first time in several years since he has been in the stud.

Cruft's show had 2898 entries. This number seems huge and even dwarfs our W. K. C., but it must be remembered in comparing the two shows, that the W. K. C. entry is the entry in the regular classes, while the English show numbers the team entries, braces and so on. At this show Fox Terriers take the lead with 316 entries, Bulldogs come next with 224; the others over 100 are, Collies 103, Pomeranians 130, Retrievers 108, Spaniels 180, Scottish Terriers 130. Taking out Fox Terriers, Scottish Terriers and Pomeranians, we find the American show compares more than favorably, even running ahead in many materially popular breeds.

WHELPES.

Woodlawn Kennels' Bull Terrier bitch Newmarket Queen (Ch. Newmarket Marvel Newmarket Duchess) whelped February 23, 1902, eight puppies (6 dogs) to L. A. Klein's Ch. Woodcote Wonder (Dulverton-Fan).

Golden Gate Gun Club.

The Golden Gate Gun Club announces the following trap shooting schedule for the season of 1902. The regular blue rock monthly shoots will take place on the second Sunday of each month commencing on March 9th, the last shoot taking place August 10th. The club live bird shoots will be held on the fourth Sunday of each month, beginning March 23d and ending August 24th. Constituting a double series of six monthly shoots.

The regular monthly club shoot at blue rocks will be at 25 targets, distance handicap, $20 added; five moneys, 30, 25, 20 and 10% to high guns. The first shoot will be under an arbitrary handicap, after which the following handicap will prevail: Shooters breaking 25 or 24 targets will stand at 22 yards; 23 or 22 targets, 20 yards; 21 or 20 targets, 18 yards; 19, 18 or 17 targets, 16 yards; 16 targets or less, 14 yards.

Extra events, following the club shoot, will be announced monthly. The schedule for March comprises three extra events. A re-entry miss and out, open to all, $10 added money, $5, $3 and $2 to high guns, first entrance 50 cts., four entries allowed, each subsequent entry 25 cts. No shooter will be allowed to win more than one money. The second event will be at doubles, 10 pair, distance handicap from 12 to 18 yards, entrance 50 cts. A "couple" shoot, entrance 50 cts., for merchandise prizes will conclude the program.

The high average gun for the six shoots will win the W. J. Golcher cup.

Gold bars will be awarded to shooters making straight strings of 25 targets and silver bars will be the prize for scores of 15 straight.

Members will be charged two cents for targets. Non-members competing for bars will pay three cents per target. Bars must be won in one event announcement for that purpose being made by the shooter.

The distance handicaps announced for the initial blue rock shoot are the following:

C. A. Haight, M. O. Feudner, C. C. Nauman, W. H. Seaver, P. McRae, A. J. Webb, 20 yards; W. J. Golcher, Phil B. Bekeart, E. L. Forster, D. Daniels, F. Feudner, J. A. Karney, W. A. Robertson, Ed Schultz, 18 yards; C. H. Shaw, H. C. Golcher, J. J. Sweeney, "Slade," L. D. Owens, A. M. Shields, H. Justins, N. H. Neustadter, Dr. A. T. Derby, J. P. Sweeney, E. Kerrison, W. R. Murdock, W. Price, S. G. Scovern, 16 yards; Ed Donohoe, A. Roos, A. Hamilton, John B. Coleman, J. V. Coleman, H. Kullman, G. Andress, B. J. Baum, P. Delmas, E. E. Drake, G. G. Gauld, H. Hopke, H. B. Hosmer, J. Kullman, T. L. Lewis, C. C. McMahon, D. Ostrander, E. F. Preston, W. S. Street, A. L. Wiel, E. A. Wands, 14 yards.

The live bird program will embrace six monthly shoots at 15 birds each, distance handicap, $20 added, three moneys, $10, $6 and $4 to high guns. The first handicap is based upon the schedule given below. At succeeding shoots the handicap will be determined by a shooter's score.

Following the club shoot extra events, open to all, will be announced monthly; the card for March is as follows: Event No. 1, miss and out, $1 entrance, distance handicap, high guns. Event No. 2, six birds, $2.50 entrance, birds extra, distance handicap.

Gold bars will be given on straight scores of 15 and silver bars for 12 straight kills.

The A. M. Shields' cup will be awarded to the high gun for the season.

The handicap distances for the March club shoot are: C. A. Haight, M. O. Feudner, C. C. Nauman, 31 yards; C. H. Shaw, G. H. T. Jackson, J. A. Karney, 30 yards; H. C. Golcher, P. McRae, W. J. Golcher, J. J. Sweeney, Phil B. Bekeart, D. Daniels, Fred Feudner, W. R. Murdock, A. J. Webb, 29 yards; "Slade," L. D. Owens, A. M. Shields, Ed Donohoe, A. Hamilton, H. Justins, N. H. Neustadter, E. L. Forster, Paul Delmas, Dr. A. T. Derby, W. A. Robertson, Stanley G. Scovern, Ed Schultz, W. H. Seaver, 28 yards; A. Roos, J. B. Coleman, James V. Coleman, B. J. Baum, H. B. Hosmer, J. P. Sweeney, E. Kerrison, W. Price, E. A. Wands, 27 yards; H. Kullman, G. Andress, E. E. Drake, G. G. Gauld, H. Hopke, J. Kullman, T. L. Lewis, C. C. McMahon, D. Ostrander, E. F. Preston, W. J. Street, A. L. Weil, 26 yards.

All club shoots will commence at 10 A. M. sharp. E. L. Forster, E. A. Wands and G. H. T. Jackson composed the committee on program and handicaps.

California Wing Club.

The club will hold a series of seven monthly shoots during the season of 1902. The regular club shoots will be held on the first Sunday of each month; commencing on Sunday March 2nd and closing on Sunday September 7th. At each meeting the shooting will commence promptly at 10 A. M.

The club program will consist of six monthly shoots at twelve birds and a closing shoot at twenty-five pigeons, thus making a total of 97 birds for the season.

The handicaps for each member and the distance handicap system under which the members will shoot and also the list of club prizes were published in this journal last week.

In all the club shoots high guns will win, ties will be shot off miss and out. No member will be allowed to miss more than two consecutive shoots, all back scores must be shot up before the conclusion of the day's events. Handicaps for each monthly shoot will be posted at the shooting grounds, in the club house, for the inspection of members.

The minimum shooting distance will be twenty-four yards and the maximum distance thirty-three yards.

AT THE TRAPS.

If the meeting of sportsmen last Tuesday at Ingle-side is any criterion, trap shooting is destined to have a lively local boom this year. Weather conditions were almost ideal, the birds supplied were more than a fair lot, some of them being too speedy for experts who have faced the traps for years past. Besides a strong attendance of members of the Golden Gate Gun Club there was a number of visiting sportsmen. Among them were Harvey McMurchy of Syracuse, a shotgun manipulator of national reputation; Captain Ed Taylor, one of the leading experts on powders and loads in the United States; H. H. Buehne of Eureka, W. H. Varlen of Capitola, Dr. W. G. Russell of Spokane, J. B. McCutchan of Santa Rosa, J. H. Hull of Colorado Springs, G. Gibson of Colusa, W. A. Robertson, John K. Orr of Oakland and others.

An innovation was introduced at this pigeon shoot by Clarence Nauman and Otto Feudner, who both used hammer shotguns instead of the hammerless make of breech-loaders, which latter style of gun is almost universally used out here. Many Eastern and all the continental experts use hammer guns, alleging that they are handier and not so apt to get out of order as the more complicated mechanism of the hammerless gun.

The initial live bird shoot for this season was under the auspices of the Golden Gate Gun Club and was started with a six bird race. Five men—Otto Feudner, H. H. Buehne, George H. T. Jackson, Dr. A. T. Derby, and C. C. Nauman—killed straight and divided the purse.

Nine shooters faced the traps in the second match at ten pigeons, $5 entrance; the high guns who divided the purse were Otto Feudner and Clarence Nauman, who killed straight. McMurchy, who scored nine pigeons, took third money.

The third event was a "miss and out" race; three shooters, Haight, McMurchy and Feudner, stayed in the contest until each had tied on nine birds apiece, when they agreed to divide the purse. In this event Nauman and Sweeney dropped out on their first birds, Dr. Derby fell out on his second pigeon. Buehne and Dr. Russell on the third bird and Ed Donohoe on his eighth pigeon.

The fourth event was a race at twelve birds, $5 entrance, four moneys to high guns; the winners were Haight, Nauman, Dr. Derby, Dr. Russell and "Slade," who each scored clean and divided the purse.

Following the regular events came a number of open, six-bird pool shoots, at $2.50 entrance. In the first pool race, McMurchy, Nauman, Feudner and Sweeney, with six birds grassed apiece divided the pot. J. B. McCutchan also scored straight, but was not entered in the side pool.

In another six-bird pool the winners on clean scores, who split the purse, were: McMurchy, Feudner, Nauman and A. M. Shields. McCutchan also scored the limit in this race. Henry Wicker made his first appearance at the traps for some time past.

But two straight scores were made in the next six-pigeon pool. Nauman and Sweeney divided the pot. McCutchan again scored clean, shooting for birds only. The last race of the day and the purse was won by Donohoe on a straight string. Silver bars for straight strings of twelve pigeons were won by Haight, Nauman, Dr. Derby, Dr. Russell and "Slade."

During the shoot Captain Ed Taylor presented McMurchy with a flag in honor of the day. "Prince Mac" evinced his patriotism by carrying the flag for some minutes, hanging on one of the back buttons of his coat.

W. C. Wattle and Henry Wicker liked the game so well that they have joined the club.

After the pigeon shoot a squad of shooters adjourned to the blue rock section of the grounds, and smashed "clay pigeons." C. C. Nauman won a silver bar on a straight of fifteen breaks.

The second day of the meeting, Sunday, was selected for blue rock shooting and a program of six events prepared. An incessant downpour of rain and a heavy wind prevented the carrying out of the program. A few enthusiasts, however, were at the trap grounds and managed, despite the weather, to smash about 3000 targets. But two of the program events were shot. In the first race at fifteen targets, first money went to E. L. Forster on a straight, Will Golcher won second money with fourteen breaks and Otto Feudner and Clarence Nauman split third money. In the second event, also at fifteen targets, Nauman won first money, "Slade" second and the two Feudners divided third money.

In practice shooting at twenty-five and fifteen targets, Nauman won a gold bar and six silver bars, besides winning a silver bar in the second event, on scores of twenty-five and fifteen straight. Silver bars were also won by Otto Feudner and Edgar Forster. The blue rock scores follow:

The merchandise shoot held on the 25th inst. by the Pomona Gun Club was well attended. Luncheon was served on the grounds and the shelter provided kept the shooters from getting wet.

Eight events of ten single birds each were run off. J. A. Vaughn of Santa Ana, one of the crack shots, was the high gun in all events in class A, with a score of 74 out of 80. McDonald of Prescott, Ariz., came second with 72. Gus Knight of San Bernardino was third with 67.

In class B, C. G. George of Pomona was first with 50; A. W. Sanborn, second, with 49.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

The chairman of the Chalkville delegations stated last week, "we don't like goose shooting at $15 per." We believe that statement and give full credit for sincerity and truth in the utterance.

A certain correspondent took occasion to give the "ha ha" to the man who would spend that amount for a day's goose shooting in Glenn county, if as the chairman asserts the correspondent has "farmed, hunted and killed wild geese in" every county in Sacramento valley for so many years we don't see where he would have the price or the zest left for a day's indulgence in the sport.

We have not read for a year or two in the official organ of this, that and the other, complimentary notices of the splendid sport afforded at any one of the professional goose hunters' resorts; we also have failed to peruse a fullsome account of any member of the Chalkville delegation indulging in a day's goose hunting in Glenn or Colusa counties. A few geese may have been bagged nearer home however, but this is mere speculation.

We don't know how handy Judge Hughes is in "loosening up," but if we should ever hear of the sudden demise of the esteemed chairman, we would be inclined to attribute it to heart failure induced by a lacerated wound of the pocket.

The correspondent insists that $15 per day is a devil of a price to pay, we know several sportsmen who believe differently because they had a — of a lot of sport.

The price of $15 per day, at Norman for instance, pays for meals, lodgings, wagon, guide's services, some incidental creature comforts, and a number of things that go to make a shooting trip comfortable. The price may be prohibitive for some individuals and is too high to allow of a chalk mark, but for those who can afford it and who care to pay the score a day's good shooting can be had.

The handicaps of the California Wing Club which were prepared for the initial shoot to-morrow were arranged by a committee appointed at a general meeting of the club. The gentlemen selected to fix the handicap distances are experienced trap shooters and personally acquainted with the shooting abilities of the club members. The handicap was prepared, submitted and accepted; the same eliciting remarks of general satisfaction from the club members, a proof that the confidence of the club in the committee's intelligence had not been overestimated.

The comment of a weekly paper criticising the initial shooting marks given Messrs. Williamson, Sweeney, Donohoe, Neustadter, Forster and Vernon is not founded on logic or a fair knowledge of the shooters' abilities. We take this comment more in the nature of an insidious flattery, for which the managerial "pregnant hinges of the knee is crooked that thrift may follow fawning." An occasional appearance at a trap shoot, the persistent buttonholing of shooters for the discussion of abstruse problems on game protection and incessant importunity for subscriptions does not qualify anyone as an authority on distance handicaps for pigeon shooters. The schedule of handicaps for the first shoot are not absolutely permanent, should any of the shooters be over or under handicapped, the marks will be changed accordingly and as provided for. We do not believe there will be many changes, until several shoots are had at least.

W. E. Newbert and W. H. Young of Sacramento recently enjoyed a trip to Norman, in Glenn county, in quest of wild geese, and report a fine day's shooting, despite the fact that it rained heavily and there was such a strong wind blowing that the geese could hardly fly against it. However, 173 brant fell to their guns, and they enjoyed the trip greatly. While there, they were informed that the farmers of that locality were employing gangs of men to herd the mallard ducks off their sprouting grain and were slaughtering vast numbers of the birds, which were allowed to stay on the ground where they fell.

We regret to note that R. A. Lau, of J. H. Lau & Co., (United States agents for Ballistite), 75 Chambers street, New York, had his hand quite severely injured by the premature explosion of some fuse which he was testing. The accident confined him to his home for two weeks, but the injury was not of a nature to make amputation necessary, and Mr. Lau is now fully recovered and attending to business as usual, apparently none the worse for his unpleasant experience.

The hunting preserves heretofore held by the Gridley Gun Club under a lease from Reymann & Evans, were released by J. H. Jones, C. A. Moore and J. L. Porter, for the gun club, the original lease of the club having expired on the 10th inst. The land leased embraces nearly 7000 acres of some of the finest hunting grounds on the Pacific Coast.

The Grand American Handicap for 1902.

The Grand American Handicap at live birds has become so well known, and its prominence so generally conceded, that an extended introductory notice is unnecessary. However, The Interstate Association does assure their patrons and sportsmen at large that the tenth annual event will, like its predecessors, be a success. The same standards followed in the past—the securing of the greatest benefit to the greatest number—will be adhered to. They have heretofore given satisfaction, and will undoubtedly do so in the future.

The Grand American Handicap Live Bird Tournament for the year 1902 will be held at Blue River Shooting Park, Kansas City, Mo., March 31st to April 5th. This is the first time since its inception that it was arranged to be held in western territory. This change of place for holding the Grand American Handicap, the greatest trap shooting event in the world, has been urged for years past by some of the most staunch supporters of the Interstate Association, and as the western people are cosmopolitan in their views, the management has decided that they were entitled to recognition on account of their energy, public spirit and loyalty—essentials which have largely made the Grand American Handicap at live birds a success in past years—and has therefore yielded to their wishes. An impression has been formed in some quarters that the Interstate Association is an eastern enterprise. Such is not the case. It is guided and governed by purely business considerations and justice to its patrons. The program as announced for the meeting is the following:

First day—Monday, March 31—Blue River Park Introductory.—Eight birds; $5 entrance, birds extra; 30 yards rise; four moneys, 40, 30, 20 and 10% high guns, not class shooting. Ties will not be shot off, and they must divide.

Kansas City Sweepstakes.—Twelve birds; $7 entrance, birds extra; 30 yards rise. Number of moneys determined by number of entries. High guns, not class shooting. This event must be finished at the close of the shooting on this day; therefore the Interstate Association reserves the authority to change the three misses out rule and drop all who have missed one or more birds, and also to close the event at the end of the eighth round if, in the judgement of the management, it is deemed advisable to do so. Ties will not be shot off, and they must divide.

Second day—Tuesday, April 1—Nitro Powder Handicap.—Sixteen birds; $10 entrance, birds extra; handicaps, 25 to 33 yards; number of moneys determined by number of entries received. The handicaps contestants receive for the Grand American Handicap will govern in this event. High guns, not class shooting. This event must be finished at the close of the shooting on this day; therefore the Interstate Association reserves the authority to change the three misses out rule and drop all who have missed one or more birds, and also to close the event at the end of the twelfth round if, in the judgment of the management, it is deemed advisable to do so. Ties will not be shot off, and they must divide.

Time permitting, miss and out events will be arranged to suit contestants.

Third and fourth days—Wednesday and Thursday, April 2 and 3—The Grand American Handicap.—Twenty-five birds; $25 entrance, birds extra; high guns, not class shooting; handicaps 25 to 33 yards; forty (40) yards boundary with a dead line at the 33 yard mark; $1500 guaranteed by the Interstate Association, and all surplus added. Sterling silver trophy and $600 to first high gun, $500 to second high gun and $400 to third high gun. All money in the purse in excess of the $1500 will be divided in accordance with the number of entries received. Regular entries close Saturday, March 22d, and must be accompanied by $10 forfeit. The remaining $15 may be paid up to the time the last man fires at his first bird. Entries mailed in envelopes bearing postmarks dated March 22d will be accepted as regular entries. Penalty entries may be made after March 22d, up to the time the last man fires at his first bird, by paying $35. All entries must be made on application blanks, and they will be received at the New York office, Edward Banks, Secretary-Treasurer, 318 Broadway, New York, N. Y. The division of moneys is too voluminous for reprinting here, but copies of the program, containing full particulars, can be obtained from Secretary Banks.

Fifth day—Friday, April 4—The Grand American Handicap.—If not finished the previous day.

Consolation Handicap.—Sixteen birds; $10 entrance, birds extra; handicaps 25 to 33 yards; number of moneys determined by number of entries received. Winners of money in the Grand American Handicap will have one yard added to their handicap. High guns, not class shooting.

Jackson County Sweepstakes.—Twelve birds; $7 entrance, birds extra; 30 yards rise; number of moneys determined by number of entries. High guns, not class shooting.

Miss and out events will be arranged to suit contestants.

Sixth day—Saturday, April 5.—Two sets of traps only will be used. Events as follows:

Missouri Sweepstakes.—Eight birds; $5 entrance, birds extra; 30 yards rise; four moneys, 40, 30, 20 and 10%. High guns, not class shooting.

Western Sweepstakes.—Twelve birds; $7 entrance, birds extra; 30 yards rise; number of moneys determined by number of entries. High guns, not class shooting.

Auld Lang Syne Sweepstakes.—Sixteen birds; $10 entrance, birds extra; 30 yards rise; number of moneys determined by number of entries. High guns, not class shooting.

NOTES.

The division of moneys for the Grand American Handicap event, in excess of the $1500 purse guaranteed, is graded on a sliding scale conditional with the number of entries. By this division three (3) places are created for each ten (10) entries over sixty (60). It is not possible for fourth money to exceed third, and the moneys would seem divided in such manner as to be just to all. For instance: If there are 70 entries, fourth high gun would receive $85, and the sixth high gun $82.50. If 100 entries, fourth high gun would receive $100, and the fifteenth high gun $70. If 222 entries (the number last year), fourth high gun would receive $283.50, and the fifty-fourth high gun $40.50. Should there be more than 260 entries, all money in excess of $6500 (that is, 260 entries at $25 each) will be divided into sixty-three equal parts and added to the different amounts due the sixty-three (63) high guns.

In the 12 and 16-bird events, a system will prevail somewhat similar to that adopted for the Grand American Handicap—the total amount of the purse being divided in accordance with the number of entries received. In the 8-bird events it will be high guns pure and simple, the total amount of the purse being divided into four moneys.

Shooting will commence at 9 o'clock A. M. sharp each day.

The Interstate Association trap shooting rules will govern all points not otherwise provided for. The rules have been revised, and contestants are requested to familiarize themselves with them. Four sets of Fulford automatic traps, underground system, will be used.

No guns larger than 12 gauge allowed; weight of guns limited to 8 pounds. The standard bore of the gun is No. 12, and all contestants will be handicapped on that basis. Contestants using guns of smaller bore must stand on the mark allotted to them.

In order to expedite the shooting, a contestant missing three birds in any event (except the Grand American Handicap) will be dropped out, but will be called up to shoot in case he has a chance to win any portion of the purse.

To prevent delays at Nos. 2, 3 and 4 sets of traps, a contestant who happens to score his third miss on either No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 set of traps must finish that round of four birds irrespective of the fact of his having three misses to his credit. If a contestant drops out after starting in on a round, the unfinished shots will be scored as misses, and the birds will be charged to him.

Contestants calling, "no bird," before seven balls have been thrown at birds slow to start will be charged for same; after seven balls have been thrown it is no bird at the expense of the management.

Contestants must supply themselves with no bird tickets, which can be obtained at the cashier's office. These tickets are also good for byes or for tie birds. Unused no bird tickets are redeemable for cash at the cashier's office.

Winners of money in any event must apply to the compiler of scores for orders on the cashier for the money due them. No money will be paid out by the cashier except on receipt of such an order. Contestants who have rebates coming to them for birds not shot at must apply to the compiler of scores for rebate tickets, which will be redeemed for cash at the cashier's office.

Contestants will not be permitted to gather their birds, nor to appoint someone to gather for them. All birds will be gathered, in a manner designated by the association, the moment the bird touches the ground.

All ties that are shot off will be miss and out, and the original distances contestants stood at will govern.

Birds will be extra in all events. When entering for any event, the contestant must pay for all birds called for in that event, in addition to the entrance fee. Money will be refunded for all birds not shot at on application to the compiler of scores, who will furnish rebate tickets which will be redeemed for cash at the cashier's office.

The association reserves the authority to postpone the Grand American Handicap on account of bad weather or other important cause if, in the judgment of the management, such postponement is necessary. The order of shooting in the Grand American Handicap is determined by lot by the handicap committee.

The manner of shooting the Grand American Handicap this year (and, in fact, all events scheduled for the tournament), is as follows: Contestants will be called to the firing point in turn, shooting their first bird at No. 1 set of traps; as soon as a contestant has shot at his first bird, he passes on to No. 2 set and shoots at his second bird on that set; he then passes on to No. 3 set and shoots at his third bird on that set; he then shoots at another bird on No. 4 set and retires until it is time for him to go out and shoot at his fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth birds; and so on.

The official score will be kept on a score sheet in view of the contestant. After shooting at a bird it will be the duty of the contestant to look at the score sheet and see to it that the right result is recorded. In case of error it must be corrected at once, as no appeal will be allowed after the contestant has left and passed on to the next set of traps.

A contestant missing five birds will be dropped out, but he will be called up to shoot in case he has a chance to win any portion of the purse. To facilitate shooting, and to prevent delays at Nos. 2, 3, and 4 sets of traps, a contestant who happens to score his miss on either No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 set of traps must finish that round of four birds, irrespective of the fact of his having five misses to his credit. If a contestant drops out after starting in a round, the unfinished shots will be scored as misses, and the birds will be charged to him.

Every contestant will be numbered, each entry being known by his number when called to the firing point. A small tag will be affixed to each contestant's back, giving his number on the shooting list, and also his handicap in yards. This will enable the referee to see at a glance if the contestant is at his right mark; and will also enable contestants, spectators and scorers to tell who is at the firing point by merely referring to the list of entries numbered in shooting order.

Each contestant must supply himself with five no bird tickets.

In case the Grand American Handicap entries are so numerous that it is impossible to finish in good light on April 2d, the management reserves the authority to stop the shooting at any time it may deem it necessary. In this case the shooting will commence at 9 A. M. sharp April 3d. Positively no entry will be taken, nor shooting up allowed, after the last man has shot at his first bird. The association reserves the right to refuse any entry.

Regular entries must be made on or before March 22d. Entries mailed in envelopes bearing postmarks dated March 22d will be accepted as regular entries. All entries must be made on application blanks, and they will be received by Edward Banks, secretary-treasurer, at the New York office, 318 Broadway, New York, N. Y. It is requested that entries for the Grand American Handicap be made in ample time to permit the sending of receipt and admission ticket, and for same to reach the maker of entry prior to his departure for Kansas City. All entries must be accompanied by the maker's full name and address, which will be withheld from publication if desired, and shooting name only will be used. When making an entry by mail, remittances covering amount of forfeit ($10) should be made by bank check, draft, postoffice money order, express money order or registered letter. Make all checks, drafts, postoffice money orders or express money orders payable to the Interstate Association. Bank checks, drafts or bills of exchange will not be received at the cashier's office in payment for balance due on entries; nor will any check, draft or bill of exchange be cashed during the tournament. This rule will be strictly enforced.

An official record will be made of the make of gun, kind of powder, shot and shell used by each contestant. This record will be compiled by an official appointed for the purpose, and contestants will be required to furnish such information as is necessary. The association reserves the right to select two cartridges from contestant (to test the same for proper loading), the selection to be made at any time, when a contestant is at the firing point.

Contestants are requested to make sure that their guns are not over eight pounds in weight, as all guns will be weighed at the firing point. Guns will be weighed without hand hold, and without recoil pad that can be readily detached from the gun. Silver's recoil pad, or pads of that nature, are considered part of the gun.

There will not be any lockers. Clothing and ammunition will be checked, but guns will not be received or checked. The shooting box will contain a sufficient number of gun racks to meet all requirements. The association will not be responsible for guns under any circumstances. The checking of ammunition and clothing will be done gratis, and the management of Blue River Shooting Park has courteously consented to provide a check room similar to those in use at hotels, but the system will not include guns. Contestants desiring to leave guns at the cloak room over night may do so at their own risk. This announcement is made thus explicit in order that contestants may know just what to expect, and that they may avoid any possible misunderstanding and disappointment.

The comfort and convenience of the contestants as well as the spectators has been looked after carefully, inasmuch as the entire shooting box is closed in and heated throughout. A warm and substantial lunch will be served each day in the club house for 50 cents.

An admission fee to the park will not be charged, but, in order to keep out any undesirable element, admittance to the shooting grounds will be by card of admission, which can be obtained, free of charge, by applying to any of the subscribers to the Interstate Association, the secretary-treasurer, the manager, or R. S. Elliott & Co. To reach Blue River Park—from the hotels in Kansas City—take Ninth, Twelfth or Fifteenth street cable cars, and ask for transfer (at the time of paying fare) to the Independence electric line, which passes Blue River Park. The fare is five cents, and each of the cable lines issues transfers to the electric line. Guns, ammunition, etc., forwarded by express must be prepaid and sent to R. S. Elliott & Co., 807 Delaware street, Kansas City, Mo.

The handicapping committee is composed of John M. Lilly, Indianapolis, Ind., chairman; C. W. Budd, Des Moines, Iowa; Chris Gottlieb, Kansas City; Louis Erhardt, Atchinson, Kan.; Arthur Gambell, Cincinnati. Edward Banks will be compiler of scores. Elmer E. Shaner will be secretary to the committee, but will have no vote in the handicapping of contestants. The handicap committee will meet at the Midland Hotel, Kansas City, at 9:30 A. M., March 27th, five days after the closing of regular entries (March 22d), but handicaps will not be announced until March 30th.

The official corps of referees will be Messrs. W. V. Rieger, of Kansas City, Mo.; E. P. Frisbee, Des Moines, Iowa; J. G. Smith, of Algona, Iowa, and Henry S. McDonald, of Omaha, Neb. They are all familiar with the rules, have had extensive experience in this particular line, are well known to trap shooters generally and fully capable in every respect to fill the position satisfactorily. Further, the tournament being held in the West, the association deemed it eminently fit that the referees should come from that section.

At a meeting of the Interstate Association, held at Madison Square Garden, January 17, 1898, the following resolution was introduced:

"That all paid representatives, whether paid in shells, guns, money or otherwise, and all those connected in any way with companies manufacturing guns, shot, shell, powder, targets and traps, shall be barred from participating in sweepstakes and purses, but will be perfectly welcome to shoot for targets only and display their goods. The decision as to who such paid men are to be left at all times to the manager, whose decision shall be final."

Resolved, "That the foregoing does not apply in any way to the Grand American Handicap Live Bird Tournament."

The Grand Prix du Casino at Monte Carlo.

The thirty-first contest for the Grand Prix du Casino was brought to a conclusion on Saturday afternoon, February 1st., after three days' continuous shooting. Nothing could not have been more agreeable than the start, for Thursday was an ideal Riviera day, the sun shining brightly, with a pleasant breeze, which had a very invigorating effect upon the birds; but rain commenced to fall in the night, and it continued as though likely to last. The Grand Prix had, for some reason or other, evoked much more interest than usual, and it was quite certain that the competitors would be far more numerous than last year, when only eighty-three shot. But this was quite exceptional, and the great drop in numbers was owing to the collective abstention of the English, who agreed not to shoot, owing to the death of Queen Victoria on the eve of the contest. There were then about thirty English entered, but this total has been largely exceeded on the present occasion, as the 137 competitors (so far as it is possible to make out with so many assumed names) about forty-three British shooters, while the Italians mustered in about equal force, the French and Belgians making up nearly as many. Germany, Austria, Russia and Holland also had a few representatives, but the only Spaniard shooting was Count O'Brien, who won two years ago. M. Guyot, the young Frenchman who won last year, was not in the field this time, and among other noted shots missing were M. Dreyon, M. de Dorledot, Count L. Gajoli, Count Voss, and Mr. Walters. However, there were quite enough competitors to cover the three days allowed for the shooting, and it was as much as ever could be done to get through two rounds on the first day, and as many more on the second, so that the prospect of finishing that evening was not a very rosy one, as three misses only put the competitor out, although the stewards wisely decided at the close of the fifth round not to call up those who had missed two, as their chances were practically hopeless. There were 37 misses in the first round, which was led off by Signor Guidicini, the triple winner being among those who failed.

The birds were not at all good at this stage, and in the second round on Thursday only 31 missed. The third and fourth rounds were shot Friday, and the former was very fatal to the shooter, half of whom, 68 out of 137, missed. The birds were again good in the fourth round, as of the 133 who shot in it, no fewer than 61 missed, and the state of the poll at the end of the day was that 19 had killed all 4, and that 39 had killed 3 out of 4. It was necessary, therefore, to make an early start Saturday morning, despite the rain, and the first shot in the fifth round was fired on the stroke of noon, 28 misses being registered to 115 kills. It was at this juncture that the stewards decided not to call up those who had missed twice, so that only 58 were left to shoot in the sixth round, and of these, 18 missed. There were only 44 left to shoot in the seventh round, and of these, 28 killed and 16 missed, while the eighth round effected a still greater clearance, as out of 34 who shot 15 missed, and there were only 21 left to take part in the ninth round. Fourteen only were qualified to compete in the tenth round, and the only two who missed were Signor Miola and Signor Lainoti, but when this round had been completed, only three had killed all their birds, these being the Italians G. Grasselli and Schiannini, and Mr. Wood. But nine others had made one miss, so that they were entitled to shoot, as in the event of the three others missing they would be on the same line. Mr. Radclyffe and Lord Rosslyn led off with kills from the right and second traps, but Signor Marconcini was put out by a clean miss from the second trap, while Signor Schiannini had bad luck, as a strong bird from the right trap fell dead just outside the boundary. The same fate befell Signor Catenacci, and then Count O'Brien put in a good second barrel, which stopped a bird from the fourth trap, Mr. Kennedy also killing with his second barrel. Mr. Wood and Signor Grasselli both maintained their unbeaten scores, but Mr. W. Blake and Mr. Roberts were both put out, the former's bird escaping, whereas Mr. Roberts killed his, but it dropped on the wrong side of the railing.

This round concluded with Signor Anselmi's failure, and thus seven were left to shoot in the twelfth round—two who had killed 11 (Signor Grasselli and Mr. Wood) and five who had missed only once. It was evident, therefore, that if one or both of the two first-named killed, the contest would be over, so far as first place was concerned. Mr. Radclyffe started with a miss from the fourth trap, but Lord Rosslyn killed his from the same trap, Signor Schiannini following suit with a bird from the right trap. Signor Grasselli then stopped a not very difficult bird from the centre trap, so that he was sure of being either first or second. Count O'Brien again killed from the right trap, but Mr. Kennedy destroyed all chance of coming in for the place money, and last of all, Mr. Wood came forward to finish the round. It was rather a nervous moment for him, knowing, as he did, that if he missed, the first place was gained by Signor Grasselli, and that the best he could hope for was to take the money for second, third or fourth, and he betrayed his precipitation by taking the wrong gun. But this error was soon rectified, and there was a silence as he came forward to shoot. He got a very smart bird from the right trap, and quite failed to stop it, so that the contest was over, so far as the first place was concerned, Signor Grasselli being the only one of the 137 competitors who had killed his 12. He has been shooting at Monte Carlo for many seasons, and killed last year 110 out of 151, while a younger brother won the Grand Prix upon the last occasion of its falling to the share of an Italian.

The winner's countrymen were jubilant at the result, and Signor Grasselli shot so steadily that he well deserved his victory. Lord Rosslyn, Signor Schiannini, Count O'Brien and Mr. Wood were left to shoot off the ties for second, third and fourth moneys, as each of the four had killed 11 out of 12. In the first round of the ties Lord Rosslyn and Signor Schiannini both killed from the fourth trap, while Count O'Brien brought his bird down with the second barrel from the second, Mr. Wood dropping his from the center trap. The four competitors all killed again in the next two rounds, but in the fourth Lord Rosslyn missed a fast bird from the fourth trap, Count O'Brien from the right and Mr. Wood from the left. The three men left did not agree upon a division and the next round settled the matter, as Signor Schiannini's bird from the fourth trap fell dead outside, while Count O'Brien missed his from the center trap. Mr. Wood, who was the last of the three to shoot, brought his bird down, but it was a very near thing, as the pigeon, badly hit, flew toward the stand and fell just inside the railing. Mr. Wood, who had shot there four years ago, thus became entitled to the £434 second money, the two others agreeing to divide the £558 for third and fourth. Scores:

Grand Prix du Casino of £800 and trophy, added to a sweepstakes of £8 each; second received £160 and 25 per cent; third, £80 and 25 per cent; fourth, £40 and 15 per cent; 3 birds at 26 meters, 9 birds at 27 meters; the winner of this prize in 1901 to stand back 2 meters; previous winners, 1 meter; 137 subscriptions:

California favorite hot weather drink—Jackson's Napa Soda.

A Sportsman's Wardrobe.

The latter day sportsman as he sits in a smoking room, hung around with plates, plain and colored, representing hunting, racing, shooting, fishing and base ball heroes of a bygone era, may almost thank his luck he was born so late. We certainly hear of the superiority of sport in former days over that now enjoyed; of long runs, the pleasure of shooting in cover knee high and various other things, but all this sport must have been enjoyed amid no little discomfort as to the garments worn.

The gunners of old took to the field in high hats, tightly buttoned green coats and leather leggings reaching up to the hip, while the shoulders were burdened and arms confined by the weight of shot belt or pouch. When the pendulum began to swing the old-fashioned costume was discarded; and by all except the owners of large shootings, and old clothes were considered good enough for shooting in, and the shooting jacket was only differentiated from other lounge coats from the fact of its having large pockets on the inside of the skirt. Within the last quarter of a century, however, a great change has come over the sportsman's wardrobe, and, perhaps, it is not untrue to say that the supply has, to a great extent, created the demand.

Arrangements have been planned whereby cartridges can be carried with the least inconvenience and the designers of coats have set to work to devise garments which shall allow of the arms being extended without a feeling of constraint being at any time experienced. Some makers have given their customers elastic pleats, which yield when the gun is brought to the shoulder. One firm has at least adopted the plan of using a loosely woven material cut on the cross at the back, which allows the material to expand to the utmost without the use of any elastic, which must give way after a time, and various other dodges have been adopted in the hope that the gunner may be comfortably clothed. In connection with the nether garments, too, the same bid for popularity has been made. In lieu of the old light tweed, or sometimes leather breeches worn by our ancestors during the season, we have light, easy-fitting knickerbockers, seamless here and seamless there, and stockings with stout legs and thin feet, and 'tis not till we come to put these thin-footed stockings into boots that we remember how much is left to be desired.

In olden days the cut of breeches was a matter of comparatively little moment; they were generally worn very tight, and being decidedly short from hip to knee, riders must have suffered much discomfort therefrom, but now a few firms have taken the matter in hand, and now the old tightness has given way to a comfortable laxity in garments, but as in the case of top boots it is not every one who can turn out a proper pair of hunting breeches. There is a proper size for button at the knee, and a certain number must be shown above the boot, yet of the details none but the specialist takes any note. In the matter of coats, save so far as has been already mentioned, it is chiefly cut and fit that has been changed. Hunting men are not now content with a sort of sack, while a coat too long or too short is at once conspicuous. The all-round sportsman needs a tolerably extensive wardrobe.

Prices for sportsmen's clothing, especially heavy or waterproof shooting jackets, seem to be about the same in Germany as those that obtain in this country. But one thing is noticed in the German article—namely, the closer fit and neater form. This is also noticed in the shooting jackets worn by Englishmen. In both these countries a snugly fitting blouse-like garment is generally seen, while in America the loose and baggy shooting coat with its numerous pockets seems to be preferred. The German and the English articles have ample pockets for cartridges and other things likely to be needed in a day's hunt, but in those countries game is not carried in the coat so much as in America, a game bag or strap being used for the purpose. The most popular thing in Germany for this purpose seems to be a sort of haversack, with capacious pockets, which is carried on the back, strapped over the shoulders, being convenient and not in the way.

A unique hunting shoe is made by a German firm. The upper consists of only two pieces, one around the heel, coming to the middle of the foot, and the other piece forming the front part of the shoe, the seam being on the side as in a cavalry boot. It fastens with a clasp above and behind the ankle, thus leaving no seams through which water could enter. These shoes are made with cork and leather or rubber soles, and should prove a valuable article to hunters.

Smokeless vs. Black Powders.

The representative of a manufacturer of nitro powders was speaking recently to several friends on Sportsmen's Row, of the boom that the work of smokeless powder in the late war with Spain had given to the products of the firm he represented. Inquiries in regard to the use of nitro powders were coming in from all sides from people who had never shot a load of anything except black powder in the whole of their shooting career. Some of the inquiries, he said, were very amusing, as they showed an absolute lack of even the slightest knowledge of the use of smokeless powders in shotguns. Complaints, too, were often received from parties who had "tried your powder and found it no good." In nearly every such instance it was found that attempts had been made to load the powder in shells intended for the use of black powder only, or else in brass shells, without a crimp to confine the powder and shot! Black powder will give good results without the shells being crimped or turned down; but nitro powders require a firm crimp, i. e., close confinement, in order to bring out the best results.

According to Secretary Chas. F. Martin the legislation, to obtain the passage of which the National Live Stock Association will devote its energies in Washington this winter, includes the following: "Extension of the hide-tax to every hide imported, dry, pickled or green; giving the Inter-State Commerce Commission the powers of the United States District Courts; permitting limited grazing on forest reserves; enforcing the stamping of shoddy-made goods with some distinctive mark; irrigation of arid lands; securing the taking of an annual live stock census, the returns to be published within sixty days of the enumeration; providing for government assistance in the production of cavalry horses."

Meet Your Friends at the Palace Hotel

Tourists and Travelers who make the Palace their headquarters are surrounded with conveniences and comforts such as are not obtainable in any other hotel in the West. Off the court are the grill rooms, telegraph and telephone offices, writing rooms, barber shop, billiard parlor, carriage office, book stand and typewriter offices.

On one side of this immense hotel—the largest in the world—is the wholesale and manufacturing district; on the other theatres, retail stores, clubs, railroad offices, banks and newspaper buildings.

Street cars to all parts of the city—depots, ferries, Cliff House and parks—pass the entrance.

American Plan. European Plan

The man who believes that the sheep business has been overdone should have his attention directed to the fact that in the United States, not including Alaska, there is one sheep to each 45 acres of land. In Great Britain they have one sheep to each three acres, in France one to nine acres and in Germany one to eleven acres. If the United States had as many sheep in proportion as Great Britain there would be little need of importing wool.

SEYMOUR WILKES REG. NO. 0232.

Race Record 2:08 1-2

The Fastest Son of Guy Wilkes

Will make the Season of 1902 at

Lakeville, Sonoma Co., Cal.

SEYMOUR WILKES earned his record in a hard fought race and was a game race horse. The oldest of his get are five-year-olds, and no horse in California can show a greater proportion of large, handsome, strongly built and well-boned colts. They all look alike and in nearly every instance are square trotters. The only one that has been trained is Joe Eviston (3:22 in 1901).

SEYMOUR WILKES is by Guy Wilkes his dam Early Bird by Playmail; second dam by Odd Fellow, third dam by a son of Williamson's Belmont, fourth dam by Blackhawk 767. He weighs 1200 pounds, stands 16 hands high and is one of the most symmetrical horses in California. Several of his get are in San Francisco and will be shown to prospective breeders with pleasure.

Terms for the Season, $40. Mares not proving in foal can be returned next year by paying steamer Gold. Pasturage $3 per month. For further particulars apply to THOS. ROCHE, Lakeville, Sonoma Co., or J. W. GREGORY, St. George Stables, 408 Bush Street, San Francisco.

NEIL W. 30371

By GUY WILKES, dam VERONICA 2:29 by Alcoa 730; second dam, Fontana (dam of Silas Skinner 2:17, Flora Belle 2:25, etc.) by Almont 33; next dam Fanny Williams by Abdallah 15; next dam by Denmark, thoroughbred.

STAM B. 23444

RECORD 2:11 1/4. By STAMBOUL 5101, a trotting and show king; dam, Belle Medium 2:20, a great brood mare by Happy Medium, sire of the great all-around mare, Nancy Hanks 2:04, and other great ones; second dam by the handsome sire Almont Lightning (sire of the dam of Zombro 2:11 and other great all-in-all animals, both on the turf and in the show rings; third dam by that sire of game, sound, handsome animals, Mambrino Patchen 58, fourth dam by that speed producing sire, Mambrino Chief 11; fifth dam by that stylish and long distance racing horse, Mason's Whip.

STAM B. is a fine and substantial upstanding bay, 15.3 hands tall, weighs 1100 pounds, and now rightly ranks among the most promising young sires of the land. That he is now in public service in California is a fact for which breeders may be grateful. He is already proving a sire of speed and gameness, together with size, superb style and high action, transmitting these qualities to every foal regardless of dam. He is acknowledged by all who have seen him to be very near the real and ideal race horse and all-around sire. His racing qualities were beyond criticism, and all close observers know that in his blood are represented the kings and queens of the trotting turf and show rings.

Terms for the Season, $40.

Payable at the end of June, with return privilege. Reduced rates to any one person breeding over three mares. Pasturage for mares, $4 per month. Freight must be prepaid on all mares. Season commences February 1st and ends August 1, 1902. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes.

Dam IGO (registered) by Antevolo 2:19. Second dam, Daisy May by Nutwood 600. Third dam, Ralston Mare by Alexander's Abdallah.

MONDESOL, 4 years old, stands 15 1/4 hands, weighs about 1100 pounds; is the best bred young McKinney stallion, combining as he does the blood of Electioneer and Nutwood with that of the greatest son of the great Alycane. He is in every respect a splendid individual and should be seen by every owner of a good mare in this State before booking elsewhere.

$40 for the Season, with return privilege.

Young Venture

Sire VENTURE, sire of dam of Directum 2:05 1/4, Adonis 2:11 1/4, Cupid 2:18 (sire of Venus II 2:11 1/4, Psyche 2:16 1/4 and Lottie Parks 2:16 1/4) and dam of Sidney Dillon, sire of Dolly Dillon 2:07, etc.

Dam by Davis' Belmont, thoroughbred son of Belmont. Second dam by Talcott's imp. Flying Morgan, son of Old Flying Morgan. YOUNG VENTURE carries more of that great Herod Eclipse blood than any other trotting stallion in the world. That is the thoroughbred combination which crosses so well with the Hambletonian strains and produces the greatest harness horses on the track.

$25 for the Season, with return privilege.

The above Stallions will stand at ROCKRIDGE FARM, Broadway, near 63d St., Oakland.

Dam PEPEROMIA by Alcantara.

PISTOL 28884, five years old, solid black 15 1/4 hands, weighs 1075 pounds. One of the hand-somest and best individuals ever brought to California. He is a remarkably well turned horse, gentle disposition, rare intelligence and possesses extreme speed. His colts are universally black, good size, extra good limbs and stylish. He has only one colt that is 2 years old, and they all show great speed.

The above horses will make the Season of 1902 from February 1st, at the RACE TRACK, SAN JOSE.

TERMS $100 for the season, with usual return privileges, or right reserved to return service fee. All bills must be paid before mare is removed.

Best of care taken, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Excellent pasturage at $4 per month (no barbed wire) or kept up and fed grain at reasonable rates.

132,000 Deaths from this alone.

One special danger menaces those who live well, who can use champagne and fine liquors, and that is Bright's Disease. Posted clubmen understand this so well that many have tests made every few months. Others drink nothing but dry wines. But still the deaths reported from Bright's Disease and Diabetes are increasing at a fearful rate. The last census reports show that since 1890 the increase has been nearly fifty per cent and that the deaths in the United States alone from above causes and diseases growing out of them last year reached the enormous number of 132,000.

Hence the importance of every clubman knowing this one fact, viz.: That Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable in about 87% of all cases. The Fulton Compounds are now saving the lives of hundreds, and will, when better known, save the lives of thousands who are now with little hope.

Mention this paper.

Also, as the official records show, 54 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers; 37.5 per cent of all the guns winning money were Parkers; and 34.6 per cent of all guns entered were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world.

THE LOS ANGELES ASSOCIATION has fallen in line and will have no books on the trotting and pacing races this year. Los Angeles wants to hold its meeting October 4th to 11th, beginning on Saturday and ending on the Saturday following. If Bakersfield will take the week beginning September 29th, and the Breeders can get the Fresno track for the preceding week, what a grand wind-up the California circuit of 1902 could have. Los Angeles will give a big lot of very liberal purses for trotters and pacers and will close entries on July 1st. Bakersfield does not propose to be outdone by any district in the State and will soon announce purses that will meet the approbation of horse men. The Breeders will give their usual program of big purses with two or three sensational events. Stockton, the State Fair, Woodland, Vallejo, Napa, Oakland and San Jose are all in line this year, so that there will be a California Grand Circuit of at least eleven weeks. There are more green trotters and pacers at work than last year at this time and many more are getting ready, while all the sound record horses are being jogged while their owners are waiting for announcement. Let every horseman and association in California go to work immediately to boost and boom harness racing this year. A general pull together will result in the largest purses and the best races seen here since the good old days, while the barring of the books will restore the confidence of the public and all will turn out to see the races.

RACING AT SARATOGA is as near ideal as at any place in the world and this year Saratoga will be the Mecca of the owners of thoroughbred racing strings. At no place is the racing of higher class and the aim of the new association managing it is to keep it so. There are nineteen very attractive stakes advertised for the Saratoga meeting, nominations for which will close March 10th. The schedule for three year olds and upwards includes the Saratoga Handicap of $10,000 at a mile and three-sixteenths; the Saratoga Cup of $5000, at a mile and six furlongs; the Champlain of $3000, a handicap at a mile and a furlong; the Merchants and Citizens Handicap with $3000 added, at a mile and a furlong; the Delaware, a $1000 added handicap, at a mile; the Amsterdam Selling, with $1000 added, at a mile, and the Catskill Selling, with $1000 added, at seven furlongs. For three year olds is the Saranac, a handicap of $5000, at a mile and a furlong; the Huron, a handicap with $1000 added, at a mile and a sixteenth; the Seneca Selling, with $1000 added, at six furlongs, and the Mohawk, a selling race with $1000 added, at a mile and a furlong. Two year olds have the Saratoga Special, which will be worth $7000 to the winner; this is an exceptional race, $1000 entrance, subscribers to name three horses by May 1st and start one. There is also the Adirondack of $5000, a handicap at six furlongs; the Kentucky, a selling filly race, $1000 added, five and a half furlongs; the Albany, a handicap, $1000 added, at six furlongs; the Troy, a selling track with $1000 added, at five and a half furlongs. In the steeplechases, there is the Ballston Cup, a hunters' steeplechase, with $800 in cash and $150 in plate, over the full course of two miles and a half; the Beverwyck, a steeplechase of $1500, over the full course, and the Trouble, $1000, at about two miles. Entries should be made to H. K. Knapp, Secretary, Windsor Arcade, Forty-sixth street and Fifth avenue, New York, N. Y.

BOSTON'S BIG MEETING is the biggest thing yet announced for 1902. The New England Trotting Horse Breeders' Association has hung up the largest purses so far for its meeting at Readville that have been offered for years. The Massachusetts, that great race for trotters of the 2:12 class is for $15,000, a small fortune in itself. There are two other purses of $5000 each, two of $3000 and one of $2000. This makes $33,000 simply as a starter. Entries to these purses close next Monday, March 10th. Make out your entries to-night and mail them

SEATTLE'S PROGRAM pleases the horsemen and there will be a number of California breeders who will make entries up there this year. Those who go north should remember that entries to these races will close April 1st, and not be left out. The 2:16 pacers have a purse of $1000 offered and the 2:30 trotters one of the same amount. Some good stakes are hung up for runners, but these close later.

KENTUCKY FUTURITY, $21,000, at an entrance fee of $5 per mare. This is the great three year old trotting event of the world, and to win it the desire of nearly every man who breeds a trotting colt. The money is divided into three purses. The three year old trotters start for $14,000 guaranteed. The two year old trotters have $5000 to go for, while the sum of $2000 is set aside for the two year olds that pace. Entries close next Saturday, one week from to-day. Read the conditions in the advertisement to-day.

THE HARTFORD FUTURITY for foals of 1902 is the best and cheapest stake for trotters and pacers in America. It only costs $1 to nominate a mare in this stake. There is $8500 for the trotters and $2500 for the pacers and they are to race as three year olds. Read the advertisement in this issue. There is no such stake in the world where one can make an entry for a dollar. Entries close one week from Monday next.

COLORADO'S RACING CIRCUIT will be better than ever this year. Acting Secretary Williams writes us that horses are coming in from all parts of the country to be trained on the Colorado tracks and that the outlook is most pleasing. See the announcement in this issue. Entries close March 15th to many of the purses, which date is just one week from to-day. All trainers going East should make a note of this. There is good money hung up in Colorado and especially at Denver.

THE AMERICAN SPORTSMAN of Cleveland, Ohio, issued a matinee anniversary number February 20th, which is most beautifully illustrated and as full of good things as an egg is of meat.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

How About a Free-for-All Pace?

It might be that if some of the leading associations of California, such as the P. C. T. H. B. A., the State Agricultural Society and one or two more would offer good, liberal purses for free-for-all pacers this year they would be able to fill them and have some sensational racing.

Down at San Jose the fast mare, Miss Logan 2:06, is in training and looks and acts better than she ever did in her life. She has been off the turf two years, during the first of which she raised a colt by the great Onward pacer, Colbert 2:07. She was bred to McKinney 2:11 last year, but is not with foal and has been put to work again. Her disposition is wonderfully improved, and if she stands training will be able to meet anything in the pacing ranks.

Joe Wheeler 2:07 is another of the fast side-wheelers that has been in retirement for some time, but we have no doubt his owner, C. A. Owens, will take him up if there is any chance of purses being offered for his class.

Clipper 2:06, Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick's whirlwind by Diablo 2:09, is being given road work regularly by Budd Doble, and will start in any races for his class that may be arranged.

Much Better 2:07 by Chas. Derby is in Farmer Bunch's string and will be ready to race this year unless maternal duties keep her from being trained.

Bonnie Direct 2:05 is in the stud and will probably go East, but might be induced to stay in California if a few big purses and opportunities to race for them were offered.

Kelly Briggs 2:10, one of the fastest and gamest of the side-wheelers, will be ready to score down for the word by July. He may go to the Eastern tracks, but like all other Californians his owner would rather race at home if there is any money in sight, and a free-for-all class would catch him all right.

Rey Direct 2:10 is in the stud at Los Angeles, but can be made ready for summer races, and is in the free-for-all class when speed is considered.

Myrtha Whips 2:10 is in Oregon, but would probably come back if big purses were in sight, while that fast little black rascal, Freddie C. 2:14, would also head this way to try conclusions with the free-for-all gang.

El Diablo 2:12 was one of the contending horses in all the fastest pacing races in California last season, and would probably be started again this year.

Sir Albert S. 2:08, the unbeaten champion of 1901, is still in the State. Mr. Layng informed us some time since that the son of Diablo would probably be raced over East this year, that a party was negotiating for him; but should the negotiations fall through it is more than probable that Mr. Layng would be willing to enter him in any big purses that might be offered for his class here at home. Miss Logan, Clipper, Much Better, Bonnie Direct and Kelly Briggs would be almost certain to enter against him, and could such races be assured some of the old-time crowds would be out to see them.

The association that will hang up a purse of $2000 for pacers of the free-for-all class, and secure the entries of five or six of these fast ones, will be able to pay the entire purse out of the gate receipts.

Good Money at Napa.

The Napa Agricultural Society will soon announce its program of races for its fair this year. A meeting of the Board of Directors will be held next week, at which time the program and conditions will be arranged. Secretary Bell was in the city this week and informs us that four purses to close May 1st have already been decided upon as follows:

2:40 Class, Trotting.....$800
2:30 Class, Trotting..... 700
Green Class, Pacing..... 700
2:25 Class, Pacing..... 600

In addition to these early closing purses, there will be eight more purses for trotters and pacers, all for generous amounts and all to be announced early although the date of closing will be much later than the others.

There have been many improvements made on the Napa track by Mr. Arthur Brown, the lessee, all the buildings and stalls being now in first class condition. There is no better track to train on, and as Napa will hold one of the early meetings of the circuit it offers every inducement to trainers as a place to train and make speed.

Breeding of King of the Ring.

A correspondent asks for the breeding and record of the trotter, King of the Ring. He is a chestnut gelding, foaled 1889, by Silver King 3622 (son of Whipple's Hambletonian and Harvest Queen 2:29) by Hambletonian 10, dam Night Hawk by Brigadier 797, grandam Nellie McCracken (dam of Balance All 2:29) by Billy McCracken. King of the Ring was bred by the late D. E. Knight, of Marysville, and made his record of 2:21 at Nevada City, September 26, 1896.

SAN JOSE TRACK NOTES.

SAN JOSE, March 1, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—As our track is now in splendid shape, the stables almost all filled with good material and things are moving at a good, square gait, reminding one of good old times, I thought I'd drop you a few items of general interest.

The Directors had a general meeting on Wednesday last and among other things elected several new members. They have also completed all arrangements for this year's fair and have claimed July 3d, 4th and 5th for their meetings, which, by the way, will open the California circuit.

The Vendome Stock Farm with "Farmer" Bunch in the lead has Thomas R. 2:15, who is looking good and strong and has been jogged all winter; Nora McKinney 2:16½, you would hardly recognize, she looks twice as big as she did last year when she was at Sacramento; Doctor Frasse 2:12½ is the same stout little bulldog that he always was. Boodle Boy 2:29½ is out of Nellie Bly, the dam of Vic Schiller 2:15, Our Boy 2:12½ and Our Boy's Sister 2:15; his sire is Boodle 2:12½ and "the Farmer" expects great things of him. He certainly looks it. Robert I. is a five year old now by Hambletonian Wilkes. He started as a three year old at Tanforan and drove "Tags" out in 2:15. His full sister, now three years old, also green, will start in the Occident stake and looks as if she could win it now, and another full sister, Rosy, a two year old, is going through light preparatory work for next year. She is entered both in the Stanford and Occident stakes. Then comes Spry Ruth by Boodle 2:12½, dam Nina B. by Electioneer. She went wrong as a two year old and was bred to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ and produced Col. Carter who was sold last year to Senator Jones, owner of Eleata 2:08½, for $1000. But the greatest looker in "the Farmer's" string is his colt Marconi by Boodle 2:12½ out of Much Better 2:07½. For a yearling he is the best developed youngster we ever saw, besides, his very looks go far to point towards a glorious career for this truly great colt. Iran Alto 2:12½ will also be prepared to race and especially to lower his mark.

Chas. Durfee is about as busy as anyone here, and, as usual, is never too tired to work on his McKinneys. The old horse looks as well and strong as ever and will have a large season. His three year old, Cuato, out of Miss Jessie 2:13½, is entered both in the Stanford and Occident stakes. He trotted a mile as a two year old in 2:32, a half in 1:13, and is strong and well. Charlie is just delighted with him. Miss Jessie 2:13½ was sold to a gentleman in Kansas City. Mr. Doble drove her a quarter in 31 seconds at the sale and she will be used on that city's speedway. There are also three very promising fillies, all by McKinney, two of them out of the dam of Directum 2:05½, the other being also out of a Venture mare. Mr. Durfee expects to perpetuate forever the name of his horse through these grandly bred mares. He has also another two year old colt, bought last fall from the Vendome Stock Farm for $800. His dam is Twenty-third by Director 2:17, second dam Nettie Nutwood, the dam of Hillsdale 2:15. Several flattering offers have been made for him but declined. Tommy Keating, a yearling by Direct 2:05½ out of a McKinney mare, is a great looker, as is also a two-year-old colt by McKinney out of an Anteco mare. Charlie has three men hustling for him and is very busy.

Van Bokkelen has six trotters: Vic Schiller 2:15 by Hambletonian Wilkes, Thomas Smith by McKinney; Moffat by Oro Wilkes worked very fast last year; then two fillies, two and three years old respectively. The two year old is by Owyhee 2:11, the three year old by Chas. Derby 2:20, and are entered in the Occident and Stanford stakes. Van thinks the hardest work in winning these events will be to spend the money, for this filly is bound to win. Van has also purchased for Senator White, of Syracuse, N. Y., the bay filly Maud Maxine Maxwell by Boodle 2:12½ out of Maud 2:20, Harry Agnews' great race mare, dam of To Order 2:12½ and Boswell Jr. 2:19. Farmer Bunch thinks that she will be as good a mare as the immortal Ethel Downs 2:10. Mr. Van Bokkelen expects several more horses during the month.

John Gordon is at his old stand yet and as conscientious as ever in his endeavors to bring out something good this year. A bay stallion, Yukon, of medium size, but of the Simon-pure quality and six years old, by Bay Bird, is all right. Something scaring him the other day he paced through the stretch with heavy road shoes in 32 seconds to a Chicago cart.

Johnny is well supplied with pacers. A mare also by Bay Bird is very fast; a bay gelding, big and rangy with a good head, by Almont Patchen 2:15 out of a dam is a full sister to Lady Thornhill 2:15; but the cream of his string seems to be a black gelding by C. W. S. In him the good and staunch blood of Woodford Mambrino shows pretty plain. He refused $1500 for him last year. His stallion, standing at public service, Silver Arrow by Silver Bow, son of the monarch of the homestretch, out of Nutwood Weeks, dam of Ethel Downs 2:10, should not be overlooked by people who have mares, for the blood of Robert McGregor is very scarce in these parts and should be well patronized, in view of Cresceus' great performances.

Doctor Boucher is also among us with the renowned Miss Logan 2:06½, who looks ready money this moment and will start through the Eastern circuit. The Doctor has also a colt, a two year old by Colbert 2:07½, son of the mighty Onward, out of Miss Logan 2:06½. He is hardly broken, but has already shown wonderful speed.

Mr. Williams of Montana, who had Ratatat and Shake out last year, has a very promising mare, five year old by Wild Boy, who will be campaigned this year. He has also purchased a four year old by McKinney out of a McKinney mare, which is surely close enough bred and yet is level headed, good gaited, with lots of speed. She is intended for our races. Another one is a four year old colt by Roy Sid 2:24, who has just the right way of going and is expected to gather purses on the California circuit. Mr. Williams also expects to get Motanic by Chehalis 2:04½ on the first of the month. He will be a good one for the green classes.

Harry Hellman left with eight head for Portland, Ore., where he intends to train and stand his stallion Boodle 2:12½.

T. W. Barstow has in training six youngsters by his horse Nearest, full brother to the only John A. McKerron, 2:06½ to wagon, and also a four year old filly by the same horse who has wonderful speed and will safely go into the 2:10 list this year. Gentlemen, have a care!

Thad Hobson, with Joe Gabriel for trainer, is working six, among them Wild Nutting 2:11½. A four year old filly by Dictatus 2:17½ out of Hazel H. 2:12½ is sure to beat her dam's record. Joe is also handling a four year old by Brown Jug out of a thoroughbred mare that looks like the real thing.

Captain Scott can be seen every day behind his horse Scott McKinney and a two year old filly by Nutwood Wilkes out of the dam of Scott McKinney. She is a trotter and has the right way to put down her feet.

Henry T. Walsh has quite a string of green ones by his splendid Director stallion and employs an Eastern man to drive them. As a whole they are very hopeful propositions.

These notes would be hardly complete if we should not mention the new arrivals, our three great Eastern stallions. Mr. B. S. Krehe, the proud owner, and justly so, of Pistol and Alcyo, has shown great foresight in purchasing two mares with the intent to breed two stake winners. One is Annabelle 2:27½, dam of La Belle 2:16 (two year old); will be mated with Alcyo 2:10. This horse is the peer of his family in so far as he is the fastest son of Alcyo 2:27 and also the sire of a mare who, by her performances, has positively asserted her right to be, like her sire, the gamest of the game. We refer to Lady Alcyo, with a yearling record of 2:37; two year old mark of 2:19½ and four year old brackets of 2:13½. She is the only yearling ever "trained on." And Alcyo 2:10 was certainly the greatest horse in New England. Annabelle is the dam also of Robert I., Rosy and Maggie in Farmer Bunch's string and of Florence M., a four year old mare that Millard Sanders has at Pleasanton. She is also the dam of Maud Murray by Hambletonian Wilkes, which was sold two years ago for $5000 and went to Berlin, where she trotted in 2:12 and is now rated one of the greatest race mares in Europe. Such mating can but point to eventual success, because the qualities of Annabelle, both as a race mare and broodmare, are of the first order.

Angie Wilkes by Guy Wilkes 2:15½ is to be mated with Pistol. This surely is a commendable enterprise and is bound to enhance the value of both stallion and dam.

For Mr. Krehe's stallions we have nothing but words of highest praise. In blood lines they are both representatives of our staunchest, speediest and most fashionable trotting families in America, though in looks and conformation they differ widely. And this is something to be commended, as it increases the latitude of choice by owners of prospective broodmares. The infusion of this new blood among California horses can only benefit the state and we have no doubt that our breeders will take advantage of this rare opportunity.

And now we come to the stable of Mr. Tom James. Barondale 2:11½ is led out and, having in mind his description which we read in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, we are not disappointed. Grand and noble in looks he is as gentle and kind as a kitten. The aristocratic breeding that he comes to represent is stamped all over him. His large eye beams on us with a fire and intelligence that is fascinating to the lover of a horse. The broad forehead, small, erect ears, clear throat, arched neck, sloping shoulders well let down and tremendous muscled quarters and forearms all point to his royal lineage which is lustrous with bright stars of our trotting world. This horse must be a great one. As he has proved himself successful on the race track so he surely will be in the stud. In fact he has proven himself so already, for a sample of his get was led out, Fashoda, a two year old filly by Barondale. We had met her "hooked up" earlier in the morning and watched her gait, which is that of a pure-gaited line trotter. Thinking of the generous space allotted to this letter, we are compelled to cut her description down to one designation—she is a peach! a combination of the gazelle with that of the power of the horse modified naturally in the sex. But we must add that Mr. James has also a four year old mare by Ellerslie Wilkes, dam by Wilkes Boy who is also an exceptionally handsome mare and showing as much speed as anything here. The unusual thing about her is that she has not been broken until just now when a four year old, consequently has the advantage of those drilled as yearlings, and is as sound as the proverbial dollar.

Thanking you for your patience, kind attention and good will, Mr. Editor, I remain, etc.

AN OBSERVER.

The Green Meadow Farm.

Within a half-mile of the Santa Clara R. R. depot and one hundred yards of the town limits, unbroken by any hills or mountains, fenced off by substantial high board fences, whose glimmering whiteness streak the beautiful fields of grass and alfalfa, making the green stretch appear like a vast checkerboard, is the stock farm of R. I. Moorhead, the home of Hambletonian Wilkes 1679 and his aristocratic colts. It is a place of peace and quiet, neatness and sumptuous hospitality, fitly presided over by the genial proprietor.

The residence is a two-story substantial building of nine rooms and all modern improvements, including a system of sewerage which connects with and is a part of the town of Santa Clara. It nestles cosily among a clump of stately trees and ever-blooming vines that are trellised on the verandahs, affording pleasant shade to the occupants. The nearness of the town of Santa Clara and a twenty minute drive to the Garden City, beautiful San Jose, will be much improved by the new electric car line from Alviso, which is the terminal of the bay line from San Francisco. When built an electric road will be constructed from Santa Clara to Alviso, via Brokaw road, passing Green Meadow Farm.

The stables, barns, granaries, chicken houses, etc., are all built more substantial than we have seen anywhere else in California and this is accounted for by the fact that the proprietor is an Eastern gentleman with Eastern ideas. The stable contains 50 spacious box stalls with plenty of ventilation and excellent conveniences for bedding, cleaning and light.

Pasturage is abundant and keeps green the year around. In the paddocks one may notice the highly bred colts gamboling and feeding, while in some others the stately broodmares are browsing in peaceful contentment.

With delight we contemplated this scene when "the monarch of the farm" was led out for inspection. Twenty years old he does not look nor act it. The fire in his large and intelligent eyes bespeaks a vitality and prepotency peculiar to the family of the great George Wilkes. With nostrils extended, erected tail, he kept prancing around as if conscious of his royal lineage and proud of his own achievements. A horse who has produced a daughter like Phoebe Wilkes 2:08½, that was one of the greatest race mares the Eastern circuit ever saw when she took her record at Nashville in 1894, beating Nightingale 2:08 and trotted three heats in 2:08½, 2:09½ and 2:09½; also Rocker 2:11, Tommy Mac 2:11½, Arlena Wilkes 2:11½, Sunbeam 2:12½, New Era 2:13 ought to be just such a looking horse. Dissecting his conformation we can arrive only at one conclusion: he is a superb specimen of our modern trotting stallion. And his bloodlines are unequalled. Being twenty years old he cannot carry the latest champion blood in his own veins—in his own pedigree—but in a reverse way his blood is invariably found in all of the best ones we have produced so far, proving the prepotency of the cross of Geo. Wilkes 2:22 and an American Star mare. The question is sometimes asked why Hambletonian Wilkes has not produced more performers. It is easily answered. A business can only thrive when there is given to it an undivided attention and the moment we consign the breeding of trotting horses to a secondary consideration, at that moment this business above all others will not thrive, nor can it. But this year there will be several Hambletonian Wilkes' heard from that will make people remember their short-sightedness for having overlooked a stallion like Hambletonian Wilkes. His blood is surely the best for a foundation. This is beyond cavil or doubt. For we see now before us and by our very records that the Wilkes family has more than three times the number of representatives of any other. And there is no better proof.

Hope comes with the glorious sunshine of the Santa Clara valley where the perpetual bloom of flowers and trees instills new life into everything, and thus we predict that once more this valley will become the Hub of the trotting world from which the champions of our turf radiate as they radiated before. Palo Alto is passing, but long live the Green Meadow Farm and Hambletonian Wilkes!

VISITOR

An Arizona Matinee.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 26, 1902.

The Phoenix Driving Club held a matinee at the Driving Park on Washington's Birthday. The day was somewhat cold but good time was made, in fact ahead of anything seen here before. The horses were well matched and time good enough for Grand Circuit performance.

The first event was a half mile dash for two year olds, between Pointer Star, owned by John Norton and driven by J. K. Wheat, and Jayello, owned by W. C. Green and driven by Geo. V. Klotzbach, the former winning by a neck in 1:16.

The second event was a free-for-all pace with three starters—Packard and Greene's Cobre Grande, driven by G. V. Klotzbach; Woodell's Black Paddy, driven by Wheat, and Lossing's Sirius Mark, driven by owner. When the word was given for the first heat all were on even terms and when they rounded into the stretch Cobre Grande and Black Paddy were racing neck and neck slightly in the lead of Sirius Mark, Cobre Grande winning by half a length, Paddy second and Sirius Mark third. Time 1:05. The last quarter was covered in 0:31½.

In second heat the pacers went away like old campaigners, Cobre Grande slightly in the lead but made a break at the five-eighths post which cost him some time to make up, but Mr. Klotzbach got him settled to business he came with a terrible burst of speed that surprised the natives, for Klotzbach made the drive of his life and came within an eyelash of nibbling the heat from Paddy at the wire. In this heat the tire became detached from Paddy's bike but he won in 1:11½. Cobre Grande, separately timed, paced the last quarter in 0:31½. Sirius Mark finished third. Third heat was a horse race from wire to wire, Cobre Grande and Paddy racing neck to neck to within a few feet of the wire, when Cobre drew away and won by a neck in 1:05½, the last quarter in 32 seconds, Sirius Mark finishing third. Fourth heat was another race from wire to wire and won by Cobre in 1:06, Paddy second, Sirius Mark third.

The third event on the card was three-eighths of a mile dash for runners with two entries, Belladonna owned by Jack Gibson and rode by Com. Passy and Evelyn owned by Bellinger of Montana and ridden by the Yellow Kid. Belladonna won very easily in 37½ seconds.

The fourth event was a mile running with four starters, Windy Jim owned by John Gibson and ridden by Passy, Tom Tongue owned by Mr. Bellinger of Montana, Wild Oats owned by Mr. Leiner of El Paso, Texas, Josie Allen owned by R. B. Allen of Phoenix. When the word was given, Windy Jim from the outside position went out and took the lead taking the pole on first turn and kept the lead winning hands down in 1:47 Tom Tongue second, Josie Allen third and Wild Oats fourth.

Cobre Grande, the winner of the pacing race is a Salt river valley product being raised by Mr. Barkley of Glendale, Arizona. Mr. G. V. Klotzbach has had this horse but a few weeks which says quite a good deal for him as a trainer. Mr. Klotzbach is from Iowa and is training here for Mr. W. C. Greene of Cobre Grande Mine and has a stable of fifteen horses working at the race track including Boydello 2:14½.

Black Paddy is a California horse while Sirius Mark a horse of very commanding appearance is from Minnesota and has made the season here for the last three years.

The judges of the day were Alex H. Davidson, starting judge and Walter Bennit, W. N. Tiffany and Mr. Richardson were judges and timers. Their decisions were satisfactory in every respect and they were tendered the thanks of all the horsemen interested.

The purses were good for all the races. Free for all pace $100.00. One mile dash $100.00. Three-eighths dash $75.00. There was quite a bit of betting done and lots of money changed hands, the attendance was good and the occasion was one of special pleasure to those who were lucky enough to be there.

Packard & Greene, owners of Cobre Grande, have offered to match their horse against Woodell's Black Paddy, Billy Cooke's grey mare Surprise and Dr. Hughes' Billy Baker for $1000.00 a side for a race. As there is quite a good deal said about the merits of these four horses it would make quite an interesting race. Billy Baker by Silkwood being so far the best liked horse. We hope also to see a match race between Jack Gibson's bay mare Belladonna and Al Smoot's sorrel mare Lottie Shark, for a one-quarter or three-eighths for $2000.00, but so far they have not come to any terms. Yours truly, Balancing.

[A. L. Camp in Horse Review.]

I do not believe that there is a very large percentage of people, who make use of the above word in connection with horses, who understand the meaning in its real light. I know that in talking with farriers and drivers they use it in the majority of instances, with, it seems to me, a variety of meanings, and a certain vagueness in its application, which leaves a large territory that the word "balancing" could be construed to cover.

Below I will endeavor to give the definition, as I understand it, but will say that I am not so egotistical as to claim that it is the proper construction, but that it is simply one person's idea, probably not any too lucidly expressed, and with full knowledge that if I am wrong, or thought to be so, some good man will take issue with me and put me right.

I would call a harness horse balanced if his stride is regular when at speed; when he does not "leave his feet," except accidentally, and does not pull on the bit more than enough to give the driver perfect control of him with the lines.

Now, my reason for saying he is "balanced" is because his head is secured at exactly the proper height, in connection with the carrying of the necessary amount of weight on each foot, and each and all of his feet shaped to angle that conforms to the peculiar conformation of each particular angle and leg, and enables the feet to reach and leave the ground at the right time for the horse to preserve his equilibrium or "balance." In other words, he must stride a certain distance, in a certain period of time, to enable his feet and legs to be at a certain place to receive and dispose of the weight of the body.

A horse may be carrying the required weight of shoes and yet be unbalanced, because his head may be too high or too low, or because one or more of the feet being shaped to the wrong angle, say too long or too short, or the heels being too high, or the reverse. Or the feet may be shaped right, the weight correct, and the horse perfectly balanced with his head at a certain height. Yet raise or lower the head, and he goes wrong. For by so doing the weight of the animal is changed forward or backward, and the stride of the front or hind legs is lengthened or shortened. Again, the horse may be right when hitched to a thirty-five pound sulky, and wrong to a jogging cart or speedwagon, or the closer or longer hitch to the same sulky may "queer" him. Or even the position of the driver in the sulky. And again, he may be going ever so good, with a certain hold on the bit, and increase or diminish the pull, and he will become unbalanced, owing to the position it causes him to assume. So it is not strange that so small a percentage of horses which are worked for speed ever make extremely fast time, when we consider the number of things to be taken in their relationship, and all working harmoniously, which are necessary to the proper balancing of the race horse.

To make the matter more perplexing, there are scarcely two horses that could be successfully balanced with identically the same treatment. Individuality seems to make each one a complete puzzle in itself. For instance, I owned a mare which would trot perfectly square up to a 2:30 gait. Faster than that she would singlefoot. I tried shoes of different weights and at last balanced her by shoeing very light in front and heavy behind. An old trainer told me he had never heard of such a thing, but was successful by shoeing just the opposite, but there were other differences to be considered, such as disposition, conformation, etc. One of this mare's sons, when shod as she was to square him, immediately adopted the pace and was a beautifully gaited and reliable pacer. Aelse 2:10½, to whom I gave a record of 2:20½ as a three year old, was perfectly balanced with a 12-oz. toe-weight shoe in front and running plates behind. His own brother, also a pacer, was equally well balanced with 10 ozs. in front and 12 behind. Another pacer did not square away until she carried a rolled toe 16-oz. front shoe and an 18-oz. with extended heels behind.

One of the principal features of keeping a horse balanced is in knowing when to make the necessary changes, for it is undeniably a fact that, with colts especially, a very small per cent continue right with the same weight used to start them. And the trainer is lucky who can, intuitively or otherwise, make the proper changes as they become necessary without unbalancing.

I shall endeavor now to take the different constituents which compose the principles of balancing and treat them in their respective order, and will class them as I think their importance demands. Checking or reining I will place first because I believe it to be the most vital. My reason for thinking so is because some horses—they are very few in number—are as well balanced, when checked right, barefooted and as nature made them, as they can ever be with any weight of shoe or foot shaped at any angle, while I have never seen a horse which was reined without a check rein. Consequently I experiment with the head at different heights until I have found a check position best suits the horse's own particular way of going, and also enables me the better to control him. Before deciding positively I try both overdraw and side check, and if the horse has not been spoiled I usually expect to find the thing which suits him among the simpler devices. The simpler the better, provided it does the work.

The next step in importance is booting. Cover him at every place, where there is the least possibility of his touching. The boots are essential. First, they prevent or lessen the pain if the horse touches; second, they enable one to locate where he touches, even if it be merely a brush, instead of a blow. Third, as your horse will have to wear more or less boots, and they have an effect upon his gait, owing to weight, etc., it is better to shape and shoe the feet, subject to his way of going, while booting.

And now comes the matter which I consider third in importance, i. e., shaping or angling the feet. I shall not go into details here, but will merely say, that what is to be considered relates to the gait of the horse, regarding the length of toe and height of heel, according to whether you wish to quicken him in front, or slow him behind or vice versa, or cause him to go wider or closer.

The angle of the foot has also a great deal to do with the height to which the feet are lifted when speeding, and governs almost entirely the rhythm of the stride, as also its length and rapidity, and enables the foot to be at the proper place, at the time to receive the weight of the animal without the strain of throwing the body forward with an extra effort to preserve the balance, which, as an extra effort, tires the horse in proportion to the amount he lacks of being balanced.

One of the principal causes of hopped pacers not being able to "go the route" is owing to the fact of their not being balanced, but the "straps" prevent them from breaking and force them to hold to the required gait, at an awful expense of lost or misdirected energy.

The shoeing, considered by many to be the most important constituent of balancing, is, in my humble opinion, one of the minor ones, for if you have been successful in the foregoing, your horse can go with almost any kind of old shoes. If, on the contrary, you have made a failure down to the shoeing, and he has not shown you something good, you will surely be disappointed when he is shod, for no kind of shoes will do the work.

Shoeing the horse serves three purposes. First, it protects the feet from pain caused by contact with the earth, stones, etc.; second, it enables the foot to be kept in the shape desired—without it the foot would be worn away and lose the required form; third, the weight of the shoe is largely instrumental in governing the amount of action. This last use has a number of variations of minor importance. Aside from the uses mentioned and the variations of the last, the effects of the shoe produce more harm than good, for many a promising horse has been ruined thereby.

At the annual midwinter sales in Lexington, Ky., three of the best race horses and largest winners of 1901 were sold under the hammer, and brought prices which show that first-class racing material is in great demand and will bring better prices than for years. Neva Simmons 2:11½ by Simmons 2:28 brought $13,200 and was purchased by Mr. Smathers, of New York, who already had one of the best stables of trotters ever gotten together, ready to do battle for the big purses of 1902. Although the price seems an exorbitant one for a mare with a record of 2:11½, it must be remembered that she raced consistently last season, being one of the big winners of the year, though she raced against the hardest lot of horses to win money from that ever appeared on the trotting turf. Onward Silver 2:08, Eleata 2:08½, Cornelia Bell 2:10, Country Jay 2:10½, Susie S. 2:10½ and May Allen 2:09½ were some of the horses which the big daughter of Simmons had to race against. The fact that she is still eligible to the 2:12 class, for which more money will be hung up the coming season than for any other, undoubtedly added a number of thousands to the mare's value. She is eligible to the $15,000 Massachusetts Stake at Readville, the $10,000 Bonner Memorial Stake at Brighton Beach and other big stakes.

Mart Demarest will pilot the great pacer Prince Alert 2:00½ again this year, and says he is authorized to match him against any pacer in the world, best two in three or best three in five, for from $5000 to $10,000 a side, the race to take place over the Hartford track. When asked what he thought of Prince Alert's prospects for 1902, Mr. Demarest said: "I am positive he can equal his record any time when the conditions are fair, think he can beat two minutes, and would not be at all surprised to see him lower the 1:59½ of Star Pointer although this is asking a tremendous performance from any horse. I do not believe in making positive assertions in matters of this kind, but I certainly do consider the Prince a wonderful pacer."

JOTTINGS.

THE STATE FAIR'S DATES this year are not the first two weeks of September, as has been the case for several years past, but the second and third weeks. Just why this change has been made I am not informed, but simply know that a letter from the Secretary states that the dates September 2d to 13th as announced in the B. & S. weeks ago, and figured on by all the district associations when selecting their dates, are not correct, and the State Fair will open September 8th this year and close on Saturday, the 20th. A week later will not make any material difference to any of the associations, and I expect there will now be a general re-arrangement of dates all along the line. Woodland always comes in on the week prior to the State Fair, and has already claimed the last week in August, but the first week in September will do Woodland just as well. By next week it is probable all the different districts will have notified this journal that their dates have been changed to suit, and all will be well and happy.

There are few men who can carry in their mind's eye the shape, size, color and general conformation, as well as the gait and style of any horse so that they can pick out a mate to him when they happen to see one. There are men who do this, but they are not numerous. Mr. J. W. Thoms, a gentleman who is engaged in business in this city and like many more sleeps across the bay, has this faculty. Mr. Thoms is not a dealer in horses, but always keeps a good one for his own pleasure and drives a good deal on the road after business hours. He owned for the past few years a good looking bay gelding by Egyptian Prince, and some few weeks ago sold this horse to ex-Senator C. N. Felton, of San Mateo. The Senator loves a good horse himself and is quite a road driver, and one day remarked to Mr. Thoms that he was much pleased with his purchase and would like to get a mate to him. Mr. Thoms put on his thinking cap and recalled a bay gelding he had seen some time previous when on a trip to Salinas. "I think that fellow will mate your horse," said he; "he may be from a half-inch to an inch higher but not more and they look and go very much the same." Mr. Felton went down and inspected the horse, purchased him from his owner, William Vanderhurst, and brought him home. He has been driving the pair ever since and they are such an excellent match that he told Mr. Thoms the other day he would not sell the pair for three the money they cost him.

The opportunity to spend an hour at the San Jose track last Tuesday enabled me to see for the first time the three stallions Barondale, Alcyo and Pistol, that were brought here from the East this winter. Tom James, owner of Barondale 2:11½, led out his horse first. The first thing to strike me was that Barondale is larger than the idea I had formed of him from his picture. He has one of the cleanest and most intelligent of heads, and is a dark, mahogany bay of a beautiful shade with dapples here and there. His bone is good and his muscles well developed. His rump is of the Nutwood type, his loins are particularly good, and his neck is pretty near a model. Mr. James tells me he has fourteen mares booked to him already, some of them of extra good breeding. Considering the breeding of Barondale and the price of his service fee—$40—I think he is just about the best bargain in the State.

Mr. Krehe showed me Alcyo 2:10. He is a short legged, powerfully muscled horse with wonderful legs for a fellow that has been raced as he has. He is rather plain looking, but like Cresceus gets handsomer as one looks him over. Standing behind him the muscles on his legs look like those on a cart horse, and in front he is wide and solid built all over. His stable companion, Pistol, is cast in a different mold entirely. His head and neck reminded me of Direct 2:05½, but as he is black as a coal the likeness may have been exaggerated by the color. He is a smooth turned fellow, is the son of Lancelot, a square trotter Mr. Krehe tells me and will be given a record. I suggested to Mr. Krehe that he induce Mr. Pierce to breed Elsie (dam of Palita 2:16, etc.) to him, so as to get two crosses of Green Mountain Maid close up, as Pistol's sire and Elsie's dam were own brother and sister.

One of the saddest bits of news in the horse line I have heard for some time was sent me by Sam Gamble from Pleasanton this week. It is to the effect that there are Eastern parties now negotiating for Stam B. 2:11½ with the idea of castrating him, cutting off his tail and making a show horse of Stamboul's greatest son. Mr. Gamble says he has put a stiff price on the horse knowing the facts, but that he is afraid the price will not stop the Easterners. Stam B., as all California horsemen know, is owned by Tuttle Bros. of Rocklin, who are not wealthy men and desire to sell Stam B. if they get their price. While I know that Stam B. would give even Glorious Red Cloud a run for the blue ribbon at New York, and is undoubtedly one of the handsomest horses ever foaled, and while I hope his owners will get a good price for him, I think it will be nothing short of sacrilege to geld the horse and mutilate that beautiful tail. It would not require a month's training to make Stam B. one of the most extravagant of high actors and the speed he could show and the style he could put on would bring all the horse world to his feet in the New York show ring. He should be kept entire however, as he will sire speed and good looks along with it, and do it with great uniformity if only ordinary care is taken in selecting the mares for him.

C. A. Durfee once campaigned the horse Hillsdale 2:15 and thought him one of the gamest trotters he ever pulled a line over. Hillsdale's dam was Nettie Nutwood by Nutwood 600, his grandam a mare by Vick's Ethan Allen Jr. 2903, and his great grandam a mare by Williamson's Belmont. Nettie Nutwood was bred to Director in 1893, and produced a filly called Twenty-third that was in turn bred to McKinney 2:11½ and the produce is this handsome colt now coming two years old. Mr. Durfee became so enamored with him last fall that he gave Jim Rea $800 and led him home. I saw this fellow at San Jose last Tuesday and he looks like a worthy successor to his illustrious sire. He is a high headed gentleman, with a brainy and handsome head, and with legs, feet and back of the kind that good stayers must be endowed with. McKinney, Director, Nutwood and thoroughbred Belmont is a mixture of blood that is pretty rich in speed of the extreme and staying kind.

Palo Alto Stock Farm has had some great sales, but it would not surprise me if the consignment to the Blue Ribbon Sale at Cleveland in May, topped every sale of youngsters heretofore sold from the historic breeding farm. When Eleata was sold for $900 in 1899, Superintendent Covey stated that he considered her one of the very best in the sale. Tom Marsh, Senator Jones' trainer, thought so, too, and considered himself very lucky to get her for the price. We all know how she turned out. Starting by winning a race at home she was shipped to Detroit, won the M. & M. and went down the line to victory and closed the season the largest money winner of all the trotters and with a mark of 2:08½. At the same sale Mr. Marsh purchased Juntorio by Altivo 2:18½ out of Jennie Benton, paying $2100 for her. She is a grand looking mare, and when Mr. Marsh a few months ago entered the employ of T. W. Lawson, he was not backward about advising the copper king to take Juntorio along, too. There is a story from over East to the effect that Marsh thinks Juntorio good enough to win the M. & M. this year if nothing happens her. There are good reports from all the Palo Alto bred youngsters sent over East and it is said there will be many buyers at Cleveland this year to get some of this stock as it will be the last opportunity to get any of the youngsters. That's why I say that it need not surprise anyone if the prices this year top any heretofore paid for Palo Alto youngsters at auction.

In spite of all the pessimists that seem to live on predictions of failure there is going to be a pretty good circuit of fairs and harness meetings in California this year and the winners of races will have a chance to earn quite a goodly sum. Something like old times in California is sure to come this year. Napa has announced four early closing stakes of from $800 to $600, and will have eight more ranging from $500 to $600. This will be a larger amount in the aggregate than any of the associations on the Oregon or Colorado circuits will offer and is but a hint of what will soon follow from other organizations here in California. There will be at least a half dozen meetings where the purses will range from $500 to $1000 and the horse that can get first money in the slow classes at these six meetings will place $5000 to the credit of his owner.

I wonder how many California trainers are contemplating going over the mountains this year to race over the half mile circuits for purses of from $300 to $500. There are some that do this nearly every year although there is always more money to trot for here at home. If a trainer has Grand Circuit material in his string that is the place to go, but otherwise he had better stay closer at home and try his horses out here. Walking is always good in California in the summer, and there is no toll to pay on the county roads, but the footing is very bad coming across the mountains from the eastern tracks, especially if no purses have been won. Ask some that have been there.

The Haywards Horse Show, to be held to-day, gives every promise of being one of the best displays of equines ever held in the State. At this writing there is every indication of perfect weather, and visitors to the pretty little town will have an opportunity to see a grand array of high-class horses. If one-half the trotting and pacing stallions entered are paraded it will be a sight worth going miles to see. The following is the list of stallions entered in the trotting and pacing class:

Bonnie Direct, record 2:05½—Sire Direct 2:05½, dam Bon Bon. Owner, Chas. Griffith, Pleasanton.
Stam B. 2:11½—Sire Stamboul 2:07½, dam Belle Medium 2:20. Entered by Samuel D. Gamble, Pleasanton.
Comet Wilkes 2:21—Sire Guy Wilkes 2:15½, dam Mamie Comet. Howlett & Lewis, Concord.
Gaff Topsail 2:16½—Sire Diablo 2:09½, dam Belle by Alcona, Ed Kavanagh, Vallejo.
Monterey 2:09½—Sire Sidney 2:19½, dam Hattie by Com. Belmont. P. J. Williams, Milpitas.
Barondale 2:11½—Sire Baron Wilkes 2:18, dam Nathalie by Nutwood. Owner, Tom James, San Jose.
Alcyo 2:10—Sire Alcyone by George Wilkes, dam Louisa. B. S. Krehe, San Jose.
Pistol—Sire Lancelot 2:23, dam Peperonia by Alcantara. B. S. Krehe, San Jose.
Nearest 2:22½—Sire Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, dam Ingar by Director 2:17. Owner, T. W. Barstow, San Jose.
Big Boy—Sired by Nearest 2:22½. Owned by T. W. Barstow.
Gossiper 2:14½—Sire Simmons, dam Lady Bryan by Smuggler 2:15½.
Prince Gossiper—Sire Gossiper 2:14½. Pacific Investment Company.
Wm. Harold 2:13½—Sire Sidney 2:19½, dam Cricket 2:10. H. W. Meek, San Lorenzo.
Welcome 2:10½—Sire Arthur Wilkes, dam Lettie. W. E. Meek, Haywards.
Educator—Sire Director 2:17, dam Dolly by Vermont Messenger. M. Henry, Haywards.
Ed Kiel—Sire Educator, dam Julia by Rustic 2:30. M. Henry, Haywards.
Paramount—Sire Altamont, dam Nancy by Engineer. A. O. Gott, Alameda.
Skylark—Sire Comet Wilkes 2:21, dam Flora Stevens.
Nicholas Verbovstchek—Sire Verbovstchek, dam Samka. A. J. Brewer, Irvington.
Two year old stallion—Sire Nutwood Wilkes, dam Rose McKinney. E. Topham, Milpitas.
Prince Ansel—Sire Dexter Prince, dam Woodflower. C. C. Crippen, Mayfield.
Seymour Wilkes 2:08½—Sire Guy Wilkes 2:15½, dam Early Bird. J. H. White, Lakeville.
Sidmoor 2:17½—Sire Sidney 2:19½, dam Mamie Harney. John Ott, Pacheco.
Warren—Sire Walker by Prompter, dam May. N. D. Dutcher, Livermore.
Warren Jr.—Sire Warren, dam Mary. N. D. Dutcher, Livermore.
Alexander Malone—Sire Alexander Button 2:26½, dam Carrie Malone. C. C. Crippen, Mayfield.
Aleka—Sire Charles Derby 2:20, dam Lilly. Gove Roberts, San Lorenzo.
Two year old—Sire Diablo 2:09½, dam Lucy Cobel. George C. Meese, Danville.
Clovis Jr.—Sire Clovis, dam Mamie by Electioneer. George O. Meese, Danville.
Prince Henry—Sire Altamont 2:26, dam Lady Dimond. D. S. Smalley, Haywards.
Dewey—Sire Altamont 2:26, dam Mabel by Naubuc. I. S. Cunningham, Haywards.
Metz—Sire Malta, dam Brownie. M. Tealson, Haywards.
Bay colt—Sire Educator. L. Joseph, Haywards.
Black colt—Sire Educator, dam by Ohio Boy. J. Stanton, Haywards.

A larger entry of standard bred stallions has never been made at any of our State or county fairs and there are many top notchers in the list.

Too Much Water at Sacramento.

SACRAMENTO, March 5, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: Training is at a standstill here at Agricultural Park, as the track is flooded with water from the recent heavy rains. The gun club members are talking of stocking it with ducks for their weekly target practice.

The famous Palo Alto stallion Azmoor 2:20 is here in fine shape. Vet Tryon has charge of him besides several promising green ones that he is training for different parties.

L. M. Clark's stallion Ouiboul by Stamboul is standing here and has a full book.

W. S. Mitchell has a very fine three year old that had worked a quarter in 34 seconds before the rain.

Hi Hogoboom has the largest string here. He can be seen walking from his stable over to the track but he comes back with a discontented look on his face, after contemplating the sea of mud.

Chris Jorgenson has a few bronchos he is breaking. Green B. Morris is in town, the guest of John Mackay, and is looking for a road horse.

WILLITA.

Dr. E. P. Hagyard, the well known veterinary surgeon, of Lexington, Ky., died last week. He had reached the age of 83 years, and his death was due to the infirmities of old age. Dr. Hagyard was a native of Scotland, but had practiced his profession in Kentucky for more than 30 years. The deceased was the father of Dr. John Hagyard of Lexington, and Dr. Ed Hagyard, late of the Bitter Root Farm, Hamilton, Mont.

Notes and News.

Dan Patch 2:04½ has been sold for $20,000.

Attend the Horse Show at Haywards to-day.

Sam Gamble has named his Axtell colt, Excel.

Miss Logan 2:06½ is in training again at San Jose.

It is not likely that Connor 2:03½, will be campaigned this season.

There will be no bookmaking on harness races at Los Angeles.

Woodland's fair will be held during the first week in September.

There is a chance of the Breeder's Meeting being held at Fresno.

Pleasanton is talking of holding a regular race meeting this year.

Black Bart 2:17½ is being jogged at Alameda and will be shipped East in May.

You Bet 2:11½ by McKinney is to be entered throughout the Grand Circuit this year.

Napa will advertise four early closing purses this month. They will range from $600 to $800.

Thos. W. Lawson says he will give $50,000 for another stallion that is the equal of Dare Devil.

Juntorio, the Palo Alto bred mare by Altivo, will be Thos. W. Lawson's representative in the M. & M. at Detroit.

The New York State Fair Association has opened two $2000 purses—one for the 2:15 pacers, the other for 2:16 trotters.

Henry Hellman took eight head of horses to Portland, Oregon, including the stallions Boodle 2:12½, Oro Guy and Alton B.

They say that Directum is getting his exercise on the ice at his new home near Minneapolis and can show bursts of his old time speed.

McKinney has been bred to eight mares already. Breeders should not forget that this great stallion is limited to fifty mares this year.

Chas. C. Lloyd of New York, Vice President of the Road Drivers Association and owner of Chain Shot 2:06½ and several other good ones, is in California on a visit.

W. G. Durfee has twenty-seven aged horses and youngsters in his string at Los Angeles, which will give him a big field to pick from if he decides to go East.

Chehalis 2:04½ won $1750 over and above all expenses last year on the half mile tracks. He will make a season in the stud this spring and then be campaigned again.

The $15,000 Massachusetts will be the great race of the year, and should attract a splendid field of 2:12 trotters. Here's hoping a California bred horse will win it.

William G. Layng, owner of Sir Albert S. 2:08½, informs us that he will enter his horse all through the Grand Circuit in the 2:09 and any faster classes that may be offered.

Mr. J. Malcolm Forbes states that he will be unable to serve on the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association, owing to business matters, that he cannot neglect, taking all his time.

James Thompson is showing more early speed with the colts and fillies down at Palo Alto than the farm track has seen for some time. Superintendent Covey will have a great lot to take East in May.

Millard Sanders has a four year old mare by Hambletonian Wilkes out of Anna Belle by Dawn in his Pleasanton string that is one of the best prospects for a fast trotter that has been seen at the horse centre for some time.

Robert I. the fast green pacer by Hambletonian Wilkes is back at San Jose and is now in the hands of Farmer Bunch, who believes he will get some of the money in the slow classes this year with this handsome young horse.

William Leech of Marysville, is now the owner of High Tariff, one of the best bred horses in California, as he is by Silver Bow out of the dam of Monterey 2:09½ and Montana 2:16. High Tariff will be in the stud at Marysville.

Sandy Smith has a trotter by Dexter Prince in his string at Aptos that will make the horse men open their eyes when Sandy drives him through the stretch at Cleveland prior to the big sale in May. He will show them a 2:08 gait sure.

San Jose will try to have a first class meeting during the first week in July. Good purses will be hung up and the money paid immediately after each race.

Acorn, a stallion by Oaknut 2:24½, dam Nellie Whippleton by Whippleton, second dam by the thoroughbred horse Bayswater, is for sale. He is a good looker, with size and breeding, and is worth much more than the money asked for him. See advertisement.

Policeman William Van Keuren of this city has bred his fast pacing mare Mattie B. 2:15½ by Alex Button to McKinney 2:11½ and expects to get something very speedy as a result. The Button mares are sure to make a good showing in the broodmare ranks.

Waldstein 2:22 will again make a season in Humboldt county, standing at Rhonerville. By Director and out of an Electioneer mare, Waldstein possesses speed of a high order and transmits it. He has sired some magnificent looking horses, notably Jack W. 2:12½.

The California State Fair will be held during the second and third weeks in September this year instead of the first and second as in recent years. Many of the district associations had arranged their dates in accordance with the old plan, and must now move them up a week.

William Fraser, of Santa Rosa, is the owner of a two year old colt by Illustrious, dam a very handsome mare by Whippleton, that he thinks is just about the prettiest and the most promising piece of horseflesh in Sonoma county. That old mare never had a colt that wasn't a good looker and this is the choice of the bunch.

Col. Walter T. Chester, one of the best authorities in America on the breeding of trotters, and compiler and publisher of "Chester's Complete Trotting and Pacing Records," has severed his connection with Turf, Field and Farm, and associated himself with Mr. Joseph Battell, author of "The Morgan Horse and Register."

Trainer John Kelley is busy working the East View youngsters of James Butler and is regularly jogging Klatawah, three year old record 2:05½. He hopes to get him to the races sound again this season to race. Mr. Butler has some fifty head at East View that he has bred, not a few of them promising well as fast trotters and pacers.

An attraction for the California Circuit would be a 2:05 pace in which Bonnie Direct 2:05½, Clipper 2:06, Miss Logan 2:06½, Joe Wheeler 2:07½, Much Better 2:07½, Sir Albert S. 2:08½, Kelly Briggs 2:10½ and Rey Direct 2:10 would be entered. It would be a horse race and pool selling would be lively. A purse of $2000 ought to catch the entries of nearly all.

Tanforan would make a splendid track for a trotting meeting, if the railroad accommodations were a little better. As a place for a driving club to hold frequent matinees it is altogether too far from the city. The pleasure of driving to a track is one of the greatest inducements to visit one, but twelve miles is a little too far to make the trip really attractive.

Fred Talbot will sell everything on his farm near San Leandro, including his horses and other well bred stock. The date will be announced soon. Tom Bonner of Santa Rosa is now at the farm making an inventory of everything and getting the stock in shape. Mr. Talbot has so much business that he has no time to devote to this place, which is almost an ideal one.

The Empire City track at New York has at last been sold to a syndicate composed of Fred Gerken, James Butler, C. K. G. Billings and others. It is very probable that Secretary Murray Howe, of Memphis, will also act as secretary for the New York organization and no more progressive or able man could be found. A great meeting will be given at the new track this summer.

Sam Gamble mated last week his handsome young stallion Excel by Axtell with the young mare Melba by Baron de Stein, and wishes it right now to be placed on record that the produce will be a 2:10 or better performer. Both horse and mare are without records but they have the breeding, the individuality and the other qualifications to make Mr. Gamble sure of his ground. And he seldom misses it.

The Directors of Monterey Agricultural Association, District No. 7, held their annual meeting this week and organized for the current year by the election of J. D. Carr, President; J. B. Iverson, Treasurer, and John B. Kelly, Secretary. They will meet again April 8th, when the matter of selecting a date for the fair of 1902 will come up, and early closing stakes will be considered.

A New York dispatch dated February 25th, says: The Empire City race track was sold to-day for $300,000. The buyers were Bryan & Kennolly, who are said to represent six men. It became known to-night that the name of the corporation which will control the track will be the Empire City Matinee Driving Club. Edgar Bronk is the temporary chairman. Among those interested are Frederick Gerken, Nathan Straus, James Butler and other drivers whose faces are familiar on the speedway.

Through some misunderstanding of telegrams or letters, John Splan is advertising all the Green Meadow Farm horses, headed by Hambletonian Wilkes, to be sold in Chicago this month. There was some correspondence between Mr. Moorhead and his old friend Splan in regard to a consignment, but the advertisement is a little premature. Hambletonian Wilkes is now in the stud at the Green Meadow Farm. He is the youngest looking horse of his age in America and is strong and vigorous. Breeders will be looking for the get of this son of Geo. Wilkes after he is gone.

A table of heats won in 2:10 in actual races during 1901, is published in the matinee anniversary number of the American Sportsman. Elsie 2:08½, the Palo Alto bred mare by Dexter Prince out of Elden by Nephew, heads the table. She won nine heats in from 2:08½ to 2:10. Dan Patch 2:04½ heads the list of 2:10 heat winners among the pacers, having no less than 24 to his credit.

De Veras 2:11½, full brother to Roy Direct 2:10, seems to be invincible in the ice races in Canada this year. He has been in several hot contests during the past month and won them all. At Ottawa De Veras started last month in the free for all class, and brought but $5 in the pools wherein Sloppy Weather and Looking Glass were selling for $20 each, but he beat them easily and won a pocket full of money for his owner, A. Wendling of Brockville.

One of the best road horses offered for sale lately is a chestnut by Wapsie that is being driven by Col. Morehead of San Jose. This gelding is sixteen hands high, is afraid of nothing, can be driven by a lady, and besides having a splendid road gait at the trot, can pace a quarter in 32 seconds any time. He is a high headed fellow, sound as a new milled dollar, and wears nothing on his legs but a set of shoes. He can show a three minute gait on the road and can be shifted to the pace instantly and then few horses can head him. He is for sale at a bargain.

With Onward Silver in his string at Memphis Geers looks to have about as strong a hand for the season of 1902 as he held last season. It was the general impression last fall that Onward Silver would train on, and many excellent judges were emphatic in the declaration that, bar Cresceus, and possibly Lord Derby, he was the greatest campaigner of the year. He was good all the time and won at least two desperately fought battles. Few drivers can measure a horse's capacity or husband its resources any better than the silent man from Tennessee, and many people will be surprised if he does not materially lower his record before fall.

C. A. Durfee is now the owner of the colt foaled by the great Palo Alto broodmare Elsie by Gen. Benton, a few hours prior to her sale at auction on January 30th. The colt is by McKinney 2:11½ and Mr. Durfee expects to keep him for a stallion, as he is bred right to be a great speed sire. His dam has produced five in the list, his second dam three, besides a yearling with a record of 2:31½, and his third dam is Green Mountain Maid dam of Electioneer and nine with standard records. It is pretty hard to find one that beats this fellow on breeding. Mr. Henry Pierce paid $725 for Elsie and the foal at the sale, and Mr. Durfee gave him just half that amount for the colt, to be delivered to him July 1st.

The market for suspended horses will get no better from this time henceforth. While the National and American Associations have made a concession to the amateurs by making a rule permitting racing for cups and ribbons under certain conditions without incurring records or bars, they also propose to enforce the rule which prohibits suspended horses or persons from participating in races on the grounds of members. Section 1 of Rule 51 has been changed to read as follows: "No horse shall have the right to compete while owned or controlled wholly or in part by a suspended, expelled, or disqualified person. An entry made by or for a person or of a horse suspended, expelled, or disqualified, shall be held liable for the entrance fee thus contracted without the right to compete unless the penalty is removed or the claim involved therewith is provided for in accordance with the Rules and Regulations. A suspended or disqualified person who shall ride or drive, or a suspended or disqualified horse which shall perform in a race on the grounds of a member while the suspension or disqualification remains in force and unprovided for, shall be fined not less than $50, nor more than $100, for each offense."

Speaking of Hambletonian 10, a writer for the Breeders Gazette has this to say: "History does not grant one other instance in which the blood of one sire has done so much for any breed of improved animals, and while the 'Hero of Chester' did indubitably transmit some things to his get that were not desirable, he gave them speed and the power to hand it on to their progeny in a measure that has no parallel in this world. What is to be the future of a breed that is dominated to such a degree as this one is by the blood of one horse? The answer is not far to seek nor hard to find. The trotter of the present day is a living reply to all such queries. The breeders have piled cross on cross of the blood of Hambletonian, but at the same time they have done it so wisely that the greatest measure of speed in harness ever known has resulted. It is true that some of the fastest trotters and pacers have not been inbred to Hambletonian, but the great mass of the performers that win the money each season are inbred to him and some of them to a marked extent. How can it be otherwise? The mixing of the blood of Nutwood and Electioneer gave us Arion, whose two year old record to high-wheeled sulky has never yet been approached. It is useless to give other instances; every one knows that Hambletonian blood has been doubled and twisted and crossed back on itself in the most marvelous manner and with much speed and racing ability as the general result. Some breeders who have not chosen breeding stock wisely have come to grief, but that is not the fault of the blood. It is the fault of the operator. In short, it is safe to say that just as there is no breed to compare with the light harness horse in the measure of speed at the trot and pace, so there is none other at all like it or even parallel to it in the manner of its development."

Sober up on Jackson's Napa Soda.

HIDALGO'S GOSSIP.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

I have been very much entertained by reading Mr. George Voorhees' brief but significant letters to the Thoroughbred Record, on the decadence of the great blood lines of eighty years ago, particularly how the male line of Orville, which was at the head of the British turf, or nearly so, between 1812 and 1823, has gradually "gone a glimmering through the gloom" until it has become altogether extinct. It is doubtful if the world ever saw a greater sire than Orville, for his name is to be found from ten to fifteen times in every modern pedigree. But his only male-line representative is now a little black horse called Villard, by Lodi, owned near Pendleton, in Eastern Oregon. At the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, there were several notable Orville horses in America, the best being imp. Sovereign by Emilius out of that mighty mare, Fleur de Lis, who won 22 races out of 31, including a Doncaster and two Goodwood Cups. It was on the charge of having this mare pulled in the Goodwood Cup of 1832, so that Priam could beat her, that William IV., King of England, was ruled off for life.

The decline of the male line of Gohanna, the only horse that ever beat the great Waxy, is almost as noteworthy. Gohanna was a small and wiry-built horse of a type somewhat similar to Macaroni and our imp. Trustee. He got Election and Cardinal Beaufort, Wanderer, Golimpus and Hedley, the latter being sire of Prince Leopold, who won the Derby of 1860, while Golimpus got Otterington, winner of the St. Leger of 1812. Wanderer got no such performers as these, but begot Peri, dam of Sir Hercules, whose male line has been at the head of the British turf for 15 seasons out of the last 50, in addition to being 13-times second and 15 times third in the same period. Hence, Gohanna was a strong factor, judge him as you will. Golimpus was also the sire of Catton, a great race horse who got one winner each of the Derby and St. Leger, in addition to being the sire of Trustee, one of the best stallions ever brought to America. He, Trustee, not only got the incomparable Fashion, but was also the sire of Revenue, premier sire of America in 1859 and 1860, as well as of Levity, generally conceded to be our best American broodmare.

Then there is another branch of Orville blood that is now extinct—that of Muley, whose dam was the incomparable Eleanor, who not only won both the Derby and the Oaks—a feat only once repeated and that fifty-six years afterward, but also beat Orville three times. Muley is described to me as something on the order of Rataplan, a horse with such tremendous action that no ordinary boy could control him. He got Little Wonder, Derby of 1840; Margrave, St. Leger, 1832; and Vespa, Oaks of 1833, so he must have been near the head of winning sires for that period. To-day his line is almost extinct. Muley also got that excellent stallion Leviathan (first called Mezercon) that was premier sire of America just prior to Medoc. People say this line winked out because Leviathan was deficient in sire blood—as they say of King Tom. But if they will look him up they will find that Leviathan's third dam was Virago by Snap, she being the dam of Saltram who won the Derby of 1783 and was imported into Virginia, where he got the dam of the great Timoleon, sire of Boston, the only horse that ever won 30 races at four-mile heats. Saltram, before leaving England, got Whiskey, sire of Eleanor aforementioned.

Another great line to whose decadence Mr. Voorhees points very forcibly in one of his recent letters, is that of Tramp, the Doncaster Cup winner of 1814 and by long odds the best horse of his day at four miles with 140 lbs. on each. His defeat of Coiton at that distance over the Knavesmire, while a year the younger horse, is one of the red letter races of the ancient British turf; and his defeat over the same course by Prime Minister in 1816 is one of the things that no turf writer has yet been able to explain. Tramp got one winner each of the St. Leger and 1000 Guineas and two of the Derby. But, as in the case of Whalebone, neither of his Derby winners proved of any value as sires. His best sires were Lottery, Doncaster Cup winner of 1825 and Liverpool, who defeated the St. Leger winner Chorister for the Gascoigne Stakes and Riddlesworth (2000 Guineas of 1831) for the Port Stakes of 1832. Lottery not only got Chorister above but also got Inheritor, fastest mile horse of his day, and at that distance it seemed as if no weight could stop him. Lottery also got Sheet Anchor, first called Brother to Hope, a fairly good performer, and he got Weatherbit, a pretty little brown horse from Miss Letty, the Oaks winner of 1837.

Weatherbit's good showing in 1858 was through hi son Beadsman winning the Derby. Beadsman got Blue Gown, who won the Derby and Ascot Cup of 1868; and Pero Gomez who won the St. Leger of 1869. But he got a far better horse than either in Rosicrucian, whose defeat of Musket for the Alexandra Plate of 1871, is one of the memories of Ascot Heath. The following table shows what Beadsman's get achieved in the years given below:

1867.....	£12,300	1871.....	3,451
1868.....	19,405	1874.....	6,627
1869.....	12,482	1875.....	6,664
1870.....	2,258

Beadsman also got The Palmer, brother to Rosicrucian, a year older. These two stallions never had equal chances for Rosicrucian had every possible opportunity at the stud while The Palmer had to take whatever mares he could get. Each got a winner of the Oaks, but of no other classical events. Several daughters of each were taken to Australia and produced excellent horses, but neither ever got a successful sire.

I think the male line of Tramp has been much stronger in Australia than Mr. Voorhees is aware of and yet it shows such signs of decay in the past eight years, that he is mainly correct. They have a line of Weatherbit blood there through Kelpie, a big chestnut, whose dam was Child of the Mist by St. Francis, the No. 1 family of Bruce Lowe's system. Kelpie got Fireworks, the only horse to win three Derbys; and he got Goldsbrough, winner of the St. Leger and Great Metropolitan Handicap. Goldsbrough came from the No. 13 family, like Orlando and Beadsman and while his daughters bred well to everything, for he got the dams of Abercorn and Trenton, he has never gotten a sire of any merit. In 1886, he headed the list of sires through his son Arsenal winning the rich Melbourne Cup. The following table shows amounts won in following years:

1886.....	£9,417	1891.....	3,838
1887.....	6,961	1892.....	1,976
1888.....	7,226	1893.....	4,583
1889.....	4,655	1894.....	3,612
1890.....	4,550	1895.....	2,944

* Died that year before making the season.

The fact that Goldsbrough led the winners of £1,476 in 1898, when having neither two nor three year olds to run for him, shows the hardy and enduring character of his horses.

Lanercost succeeded fairly at first from the fact that he was regarded as a logical outcross for mares from the two lines of Whalebone—Touchstone and Sir Hercules. The following table shows the winnings of his get for the years given:

1847.....	£8,619	1851.....	3,857
1848.....	4,591	1852.....	7,204
1849.....	4,128	1853.....	10,209
1850.....	6,451	1854.....	2,128

Lanercost got Van Tromp, who got Von Galen and Von Galen got Tim Whiffler, who won the Chester and Goodwood Cups in 1862. In 1865, Tim Whiffler was sent to Australia, where he got Darnwell, winner of the Melbourne Cup, and that incomparable three year old filly, Briscis, who won the Derby and Melbourne Cup three days apart, being the only filly to win either. Darnwell was a most beautiful brown horse. I saw him when he was well along in years, standing in the next box to Le Loup, a handsome chestnut and brother to Lurline, the dam of Mr. Haggin's Darebin. The groom said Le Loup could always beat Darnwell, but his weight in the Cup was 124 lbs. and Darnwell's 109, so they declared to win with the brown horse and that's just what they did that day at Flemington. It is a painful thing to see as good blood as Tramp's falling rapidly into obscurity, but racing nowadays is something that involves the survival of the fittest.

HIDALGO.

According to a report from London, Lord Marcus Beresford has sent word to Tod Sloan, who is in Paris, advising the noted American jockey to apply to the English Jockey Club for another license. Lord Beresford is quoted as saying that he will do all he can to secure Sloan's reinstatement, believing that Tod has been sufficiently punished for alleged wrongdoing. It is also stated that Lord Beresford has interested himself in Sloan's behalf at the personal request of King Edward VII., who once had the jockey under contract. William C. Whitney is also reported to have used his influence in Sloan's behalf. In was in 1900 that Sloan was notified by the English stewards not to again apply for a license, the fault with him being that he had been betting too heavily on his mounts. Sloan did as he was told and has been practically in retirement ever since. His last appearance on a local track was in 1900 when he rode Mr. Whitney's Ballyhoo Bay to victory in the Futurity. Sloan came here especially for this race and is said to have received $10,000 for his services. If Sloan receives a license in England he may ride for King Edward, who already has the services of Danny Maher. Sloan is at present in Paris, mixed up in the automobile business. It is possible that if reinstated he will do some riding in this country, where his popularity has not died out.

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet.

SADDLE NOTES.

Nash Turner will ride for W. C. Whitney in England and will probably have the mount on Nasturtium in the Derby.

Johnny Crane started his horse Phil Archibald in races on five consecutive days at Oakland last week and won two of the five races, one of the wins being the last start. Phil Archibald also started again last Tuesday and won.

There is much interest in the stable of W. K. Vanderbilt, which will take part in the Eastern campaign this year. It is said that he will place the most confidence in his two year olds by the noted Ornament, who, among other achievements, won the Brooklyn Handicap in 1898.

A three year old filly, a full sister to the black mare Imp, has been shipped to Peter Wimmer, at Sheephead Bay, from Lexington. She resembles her famous sister and is larger than the "black whirlwind" was at the same age. The filly belongs to the estate of the late D. P. Harness.

Edward Corrigan has made sixty-seven entries to the stakes at the Harlem Jockey Club. This makes it appear that the hatchet has been buried between the former master of Hawthorne and the Condon track, and if so every race track patron in the vicinity of Chicago will experience a feeling of relief.

These are the riders who are going abroad this year in search of not only laurels but hard cash: To England, Danny Maher, Henry Spencer, Nash Turner, "Skeets" Martin and Clem Jenkins; to France, Milton Henry, Johnny Reiff, Archie McIntyre, Patrick Freeman, Charley Thorpe, J. Scherrer, C. Buchanan and J. Owens; to Austria, Fred Taral, Charles Van Dusen, Edward Gray and Edward Ross; to Russia, "Cash" Sloan, Joe Piggott, J. Knapp, J. Mitchell, Andy Hamilton and C. Vittoe. With this wholesale exodus, it can be realized that there may be a dearth of good jockeys in this country.

The California Derby was run off at Oakland on Saturday last in a driving rain and howling wind on a track that was slushy and deep. But four horses started in the $3000 event, and Green B. Morris' colt Sombrero, with O'Connor in the saddle, won under restraint by three lengths in 2:16½. Corrigan was second, Waterscratch third and Jangler third. The winner is by imp. Star Ruby out of La Toquera by imp. Sir Modred, second dam Touche Pas by Spendthrift, third dam imp. My Nannie O. by The Palmer, son of Beadsman, fourth dam Jennie Jones by Weatherbit, fifth dam Mrs. Dodds by Birdcatcher. Sombrero was bred at Rancho del Paso.

Tarbolton, the son of Ayrshire, secured in England by J. N. Camden, proprietor of the Hartford Stud, Kentucky, a few weeks ago to take the place of the dead sire, imp. Esbir, is reported to be dying as the result of injuries received during shipment. The horse was out three weeks in rough sea and upon his arrival had six ugly cuts on his head. Added to this he has inflammation of the bladder and since his arrival his condition has been critical. He is one of the most valuable importations of recent years. He won the thirty-ninth Newmarket Biennial Stakes, the forty-ninth Triennial Produce Stakes and the Kempton Park May Handicap of 1000 sovereigns. His dam was Radiance out of Tipthorpe, second dam Meteor by Thunderbolt. He is 8 years old and is bred very much like Solitaire, Mr. A. B. Spreckels' recent importation.

The Futurity of 1904 promises to be one of the most valuable of that series of rich turf fixtures. The Coney Island Jockey Club, sponsor for the great American "classic" event, has received 1148 nominations for the race. The entry list promises to eclipse all previous records. One hundred and twenty-eight breeders of thoroughbreds in this country entered their best mares. The foals of the matrons nominated will be eligible to race. All the best stallions in the country are represented. J. B. Haggin, who owns more thoroughbreds than any other man in the world, is the heaviest nominator, naming 196. Milton Young is a good second with 115 entries. William C. Whitney, who has been on the turf only a short time, makes an excellent showing with seventy nominations, which places him third on the entry list. August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club, is represented by fifty-five of his choicely bred mares.

Mr. Geo. H. Ketcham, of Toledo, Ohio, sends us a very neatly printed announcement of the champion stallion Cresceus 2:02½ and his stable mate Silver Bow 2:16, that released from Geo. H. Fox, of Clements, Cal., and took East last December. The fee for the services of Cresceus is placed at $300 and for Silver Bow $100. The California stallion has been greatly admired by the horsemen who have looked him over since he arrived in Ohio, and will make a good season in the stud.

Portland Kennel Club.

The third annual show of the Portland Kennel Club which will be held in the Exposition building, Portland, Or., on April 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th, is meeting with much enthusiastic support from the northern fanciers. The two previous bench shows given by the club were successful, the enthusiasm of the club members and local dog fanciers has now been pretty well worked up to an extent that gives sanguine promise of another successful show and possibly one to excel anything in its line heretofore held in the Pacific Northwest.

The question of a competent and satisfactory judge has been settled in the selection of Mr. Fred Mensell of London, England, who will first cross the Atlantic to officiate in the ring at the Boston show. Mr. Mensell will then journey direct to Portland. This choice has been made by the officers of the Portland club for the reason that quite a deal of criticism has arisen in the past regarding the awards made at northern bench shows, and this year they propose to select a judge without any particular Coast affinities. Consequently we expect to note the upsetting of much dog lore and law heretofore propounded and laid down by the "coast oracle of dogdom," who went north last year with a string of dogs.

The belief is current that 400 dogs or over will be benched at Portland show. Full particulars, premium lists, entry blanks, etc., can be obtained by addressing the secretary, William Peasley, Portland, Oregon.

Death of Viscount.

Champion Viscount, a sterling good dog, one of the best known Cockers on the Coast, has taken the good dog's final journey. Old age and attending complications necessitated the administration of chloroform as a mercy. Viscount was by Champion Pickpania out of Tootsie. He was bred by Mr. F. Wilson of Toronto and before his appearance here in the Pastime Cocker Kennels string had made a splendid showing of wins in New York, Chicago and Detroit. He won out here repeatedly, having a total record of 26 firsts and specials to his credit. He was purchased by Mr. E. C. Plume in 1898, we believe, and has had a good record in the stud.

L. A. Klein had the pleasant experience this week of receiving from the A. K. C. five elegant silver championship medals for the following Dachshunds: Venlo's Imp, Venlivette, Venlo For Ever, Venlona and Venlo's Best Man. Four more of these desirable trophies are due for: Venlola, Venlo's Importation, Venlo's German Girl and Ilk.

W. S. Kittle has claimed the name of "Stump Wyman" for his black, white and tan English Setter dog by Merry Monarch out of a bitch by Tray Spot ex Hazel C. If the dog has anywhere near the good qualities of the sportsman he is named after he should be a crackerjack.

Bench Show Notes.

A partial list of patronesses of the April show of the San Francisco Kennel Club discloses the names of well known ladies prominent in society circles and leaders of various charitable organizations; among the names already given out are Mrs. Eleanor Martin, Mrs. Francis Carolan, Mrs. Henry T. Scott, Mrs. E. D. Beylard, Mrs. Joseph Grant, Mrs. Geo. W. Gibbs, Mrs. Wm. B. Hooper, Mrs. J. Lincoln, Mrs. A. W. Moore, Mrs. Geo. Pope, Mrs. Austin C. Tubbs, Mrs. Mountford Wilson and Mrs. Samuel Drysdale. Surely a most pleasing combination of prestige and influence.

A number additional specials were received this week; most of these are to be placed at the discretion of the club; among the donors we note an elegant silver cup from Clabrough, Golcher & Co. Dr. Wesley Mills, McGill University, Montreal. Mr. Walter Magee, The Victoria Kennel Club. John E. de Ruyter, The Collie Club of America. The bench show committee has also received an offer of the Van Schaick Cup, valued at $300, and a club medal for the best American bred Collie dog and best American bred Collie bitch.

Mr. George Gooderham, of Toronto, has offered a special for the best Fox Terrier, smooth or wire, dog or bitch.

Mr. John Love Cunningham offers a cup for the best smooth Fox Terrier puppy bred on the Pacific Coast.

Mr. E. Courtney Ford places again in competition the cup which he absolutely won last year. A cup, originally given by Mr. O. O. Heydenfeldt, for the best smooth haired Fox Terrier bitch owned on the Pacific Coast, to be judged by two or more of her get. Mr. Ford won the beautiful cup with Eclipse Blanche, now owned by Charles K. Harley—the further conditions of the competition are that the cup is to be won three times by the same owner before it becomes absolute individual property.

The directors of Union Coursing Park, at a meeting held on Tuesday made final arrangements in regard to the Greyhound exhibit at the April show.

The classification for Greyhounds has been arranged, by suggestion of the California Coursing Committee. Open dogs, 1st $40, 2d $20, 3d $10. Open bitches, ditto. Field trial classes—the conditions of competition being that the trials referred to are only those which have been duly organized by the California Coursing Committee, the open and reserve stakes of which must have had not less than 32 entries. First class, for dogs that have reached semi-finals of Champion and Open Stakes or finals of Reserve Stakes, $30, $15 and $10. First class, for bitches, ditto. Second class, for dogs that have not reached finals or semi-finals as above, $20, $10 and $5, the same wins are provided for bitches in a similar second class. Junior class—for dogs eighteen and under, $25, $15 and $10. For bitches, ditto. Novice class—For dogs, non-bench winners or non-winners of two courses in any stake, $10 and $5. For bitches, ditto. Kennel prize for the best four, $40.

One of the finest trophies that the club has ever offered was received this week from Mr. George K. Ketcham, of Toledo, Ohio, the owner of the celebrated harness horse Creseus. This magnificent trophy has been a center of attraction in the window of the kennel club office, No. 138 Montgomery street, since it has arrived.

The premium list will go to press this week and ere long a large edition will be thoroughly distributed and in the hands of dog owners on this Coast, the middle west, and the east. The pages of the premium list will be larger than usual and of uniform size with the catalogue.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

John Bradshaw has announced his intention of taking a string of dogs through the northern circuit of shows—Seattle, Portland and Victoria. Bradshaw's string at the last Los Angeles show was a material factor in the success of the southern show. He put down his dogs in high-class shape and brought back a number of trophies and blue ribbons to pleased owners in this city. He has already been commissioned with an imposing string of good ones from this State—principally owned in this city, however.

The list of judges at the Westminster Kennel Club Show was as follows: Alredale Terriers, R. F. Mayhew; American Foxhounds, Wm. Tallman; Bulldogs, Boston Terriers, W. C. Codman; Bull Terriers, Bedlington Terriers, Black and Tan Terriers, T. S. Bellin; Beagles, Geo. P. Post, Jr.; Bloodhounds, R. F. Mayhew; Chesapeake Bay Dogs, Wm. Tallman; Chow Chows, R. F. Mayhew; Collies, John Black; Deerhounds, R. F. Mayhew; Dachshunds, Jos. Graeffe; Dalmatians, T. S. Bellin; French Bulldogs, Francis G. Lloyd; Greyhounds, T. S. Bellin; Fox Terriers, Jas. A. Caldwell, Jr.; Great Danes, J. Blackburn Miller; Griffons, R. F. Mayhew; Irish Terriers, Singleton Van Schaick; Maltese Terriers, T. S. Bellin; Miscellaneous, Mastiffs, R. F. Mayhew; Newfoundlanders, T. S. Bellin; Old English Sheepdogs, Pugs, R. F. Mayhew; Pointers, F. J. Lenoir; Poodles, H. K. Bloodgood; Pomeranians, T. S. Bellin; Russian Wolfhounds, R. F. Mayhew; Scottish Terriers, W. P. Fraser; St. Bernards, John Keenan; Setters (all breeds), Wm. Tallman; Sporting Spaniels, H. K. Bloodgood; Skye Terriers, Toy Terriers, T. S. Bellin; Toy Spaniels, R. F. Mayhew; Whippets, T. S. Bellin; Welsh Terriers, R. F. Mayhew; Yorkshire Terriers, T. S. Bellin.

San Francisco Fly-Casting Club Banquet.

Tuesday evening last was a memorable night in the pleasing history of the local club of rod wielders. The event of the occasion was the election of Grover Cleveland, ex-President of the United States, as an honorary member of the organization. Prior to election of their illustrious new member, the club members, by unanimous vote, adopted the necessary changes in the club constitution—changes which provided for the election of ten honorary members, those eligible must be avowed and experienced anglers who have achieved wide and honorable distinction in business, professional or public life in the United States of America. Residents of San Francisco, Alameda, Marin or San Mateo counties are not eligible to such honorary membership.

"The foremost angler of America," as President Walter D. Mansfield happily termed Mr. Cleveland, is the first on the list of honorary members of the club. His health was drank in a standing toast, whilst the company sang the Star Spangled Banner, accompanied by the orchestra.

To Mr. Fayette H. Reed was due the pleasant function of electing so distinguished a citizen and angler to the club. In response to a letter of Mr. Reed's, the ex-President replied by autograph letter as follows:

WESTLAND, PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 8, 1902.
 Fayette H. Reed, Esq.—Dear Sir: I have received your letter and desire to thank you for your courteous offer to present my name for honorary membership in the California Fly-Casting Club. Assuming that no duty nor service is involved, it would give me great pleasure to be so enrolled. Yours truly, GROVER CLEVELAND.

During the evening President Mansfield read "A Defense of the Angler," an article written by Grover Cleveland and which was published in the Saturday Evening Post. This now famous, practical and most humorous contribution of Mr. Cleveland was enjoyed thoroughly by the fraternity of anglers present. "Three cheers and a tiger" were given for the eminent author at the close of the reading.

Other entertainment during the evening was given by various speaker, vocal and instrumental music being enjoyed between "talks." The banquet hall at the California Hotel was tastefully draped with the national colors.

Among those present were: Walter D. Mansfield, E. T. Allen, H. Battu, W. F. Bogart, A. M. Blade, H. G. W. Dinkelspiel, Dr. W. E. Brooks, John Butler, Louis Butler, A. S. Carman, C. D. Carman, W. A. Cooper, Colonel George C. Edwards, J. Homer Fritch, F. M. Haight, C. B. Hollywood, Judge John Hunt, W. H. Metson, Judge J. M. Seawell, R. Isenbruck, Walter J. Isenbruck, J. B. Kerniff, W. J. Kierulff, F. C. Kierulff, H. C. Wyman, O. S. Franks, H. Brotherton, T. W. Brotherton, O. M. Pratt, Charles H. Kewell, James Lynch, Charles Klein, T. C. Lagercrantz, H. F. Muller, E. A. Mocker, W. W. Richards, John Siebe, Dr. C. von Hoffman, Alex. T. Vogelsang, George Walker, C. G. Young, J. X. de Witt, R. A. Smyth, C. W. Hibbard, A. Muller, L. P. W. Quimby, H. C. Golcher, Frank Marcus, John Lawrence, R. C. Kenniff.

The contests scheduled for last Saturday and postponed by reason of bad weather will be held to-morrow afternoon at Stow Lake.

Last Sunday morning a number of the members met at Stow lake for the regular fly-casting meet. Weather conditions were much against effective work, at times the gentlemen present had to desist from the casting and take shelter from the showers. The scores made were as follows:

SUNDAY CONTEST NO. 2—Stow Lake, March 2, 1902. Wind, southeast. Weather, showery and fair.
 Judges—Messrs. Mansfield and Daverkosen. Referee, Mr. Watt. Clerk, Mr. Wilson.

The following story of a dog's sagacity comes in a press dispatch from Rochester, N. Y. Nero, a St. Bernard dog belonging to John Oliver, a farmer of Gates, attracted the attention of his master recently one morning by his peculiar actions. The dog would rush to the door, whine and paw the panels until some one came out, and then rush off to his kennel.

After repeating this performance some time he was followed to the doghouse, where an investigation revealed a half frozen infant, scantily dressed and almost buried in the straw. The baby was hastily carried into the house and medical aid summoned, while Nero showed his joy at being understood by uttering short barks and running around his master.

Upon further investigation tracks in the deep snow were discovered, showing that the dog had half carried, half dragged the baby across fields from the woods nearly a mile distant, where the infant either was lost or had been abandoned. An old blanket and some infant clothing that had slipped off when Nero attempted to carry the baby home showed where the child had lain in the snow. It is feared the baby will die from the effects of its terrible exposure despite the brave effort of the dog to save its life.

Empire Gun Club.

The initial blue rock shoot at the Alameda Point trap grounds will be held to-morrow.

The first event will commence at 10:30 A. M. The diamond medal club championship race at 25 targets. This trophy will go to the high score gun in a series of five shoots for the season. Two back scores only can be shot up in this match, members residing 50 miles distant from San Francisco are allowed to shoot up four back scores. The second high score in this event will win an emblematic gold lapel button. Following this match will be the re-entry classification match with $15 added money, 25 targets, 15 singles and 5 doubles; class shooting, four classes. Distance handicaps will prevail in this event. Two prizes, gold and silver cuff buttons are provided for the two best scores in this event for the season.

Following the regular club events will be two open-to-all contests—the James P. Sweeney record medal and the special handicap prize gun match. Both these events are arranged under distance handicaps. The gun race must be shot five times, the winning score being the highest for the series. In both of these events each month there will be a portion of the entrance money divided in a side pool. The record medal will become the property of the shooter making the highest single score in that event at any time during the season. The regular club season will comprise five monthly shoots, commencing March 9th and ending July 13th.

Washington Gun Club.

At an election held by the members of the Washington Gun Club the following officers were elected: E. Peek, Secretary; E. B. Williams, Captain, and H. G. Trumpler, Treasurer.

Quite a number of the club were present, and all seemed to take a lively interest in the coming season's sport. The club has a membership of about fifty, with a large list of applications for membership. They will alternate with the Capital City Club at Agricultural Park, Sacramento, commencing Sunday, March 9th. All sportsmen are cordially invited to shoot on the grounds.

The following are members: F. Adams, T. Rust, E. B. Williams, E. Peek, J. Bohn, F. M. Newbert, J. Sharp, G. Kuechler, L. Smith, W. E. Gemeshausen, P. G. Magistrini, H. G. Trumpler, C. G. Demeritt, L. S. Upson, R. Woods, J. Faris, J. Soule, Mr. Moon, Mr. Newton, G. Chapman, C. Chapman, Mr. Korn, Mr. Stiles, Mr. Hagerty, Mr. Torrence, Mr. Frazer, Mr. Derman, A. H. Stephens, Chas. Flohr, F. Ruhstaller Jr., H. George, E. W. Davies, H. Kinberg, Mr. Ackerman, J. Latham.

Cottonwood Gun Club.

The fifth annual tournament of Northern California will be held in Cottonwood, Modoc county, March 23, 1902. It is to be given under the auspices of the Cottonwood Gun Club, which is a guarantee of a successful tournament. A banquet will be held in the evening at the Cottonwood hotel. The program is the following:

Event No. 1—20 targets; entrance $1.50; first prize, $25; second prize, $15; third prize, $10; fourth prize, merchandise.

Event No. 2—20 targets, entrance $1; first, $15; second, $10; third, $5; fourth, merchandise.

Event No. 3—20 targets, entrance $1; first, $15; second, $10; third, $5; fourth, merchandise.

Event No. 4—20 targets, entrance $1.50; first, $25; second, $15; third, $10; fourth, merchandise.

Event No. 5—Team or pool shooting.

In Defense of the Meadow Lark.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., for some time past has had specialists all over the country investigating the doings of the meadow lark, particularly in regard to his alleged shortcomings as stated by complaining farmers, who claimed that much damage has been done by this sweet singing field bird in destroying young grain. That this complaint is unfounded has been proven by a recent report carefully compiled by noted entomologists, who endow the meadow lark with a reputation for much good. A thorough research into the matter by the Department and after hundreds of tests and examinations of the stomachs of the birds, has proven that the lark is the best known destroyer of weevil, caterpillars, beetles and a host of small insects, all injurious to the industry of the grain grower.

At the Traps.

The California Wing Club live bird shoot last Sunday at Ingleside was well attended by club members and visiting sportsmen. The interest and enthusiasm in the sport was unabated throughout the day and is a good augury of the popularity of trap shooting among local devotees of the shotgun. Weather conditions, luckily, were quite favorable, but little rain falling during the day. The birds supplied were, as a rule, strong and swift flying ones. Less than a half dozen "no birds" were called during the shoot. In the preliminary shoot before the club match, five men, good shots, too, each in succession missed their pigeon. Many of the birds which dropped dead out were well centered, but they seemed to have vitality enough to spoil some good scores.

The straights in the club race were Feudner, Jackson and McMurchy, the latter shooting as a guest of the club. The two former divided the silver cup money and forty per cent of the club added money. Five other shooters tied on eleven birds, the tie being decided by a miss and out between them in the eight bird shoot which followed the club race. Williamson, Donohoe and Justins being tie again with five birds each, after Sweeney missed his fifth bird, then divided second, third and fourth money in the club purse. The winners in the eight-bird race were Feudner, Jackson, Walsh, Williamson and Golcher.

Eight six-bird pools followed; the winners on straight scores were Donohoe, Shaw, McMurchy, Forster, Shields, Jackson, Dwyer, Nauman, Eugene Forster. The ties in the ninth race were shot off in the next pool, McMurchy, Shaw and Donohoe killed straight and divided the money for both events.

The best score in the events for the day was made by George Jackson, who lost but one bird out of 56. Ed Donohoe lost three out of 70. Feudner lost four out of 34. Nauman lost seven out of 62. Sweeney lost three out of 18 and withdrew. Shaw lost nine out of 68. In the club race F. Vernon lost four birds out of eight, shooting from the 26 yard mark.

The "dead line" has been put back to the 33 yard slat and is marked by a wire screen fence.

The scores made during the day follow:

Among the local contingent who will attend the Grand American Handicap at Kansas City will probably be Otto Feudner, C. A. Haight, Phil B. Bekeart, Ed Donohoe and C. C. Nauman. It is possible that several other shooters will conclude to go before the middle of this month.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

The Golden Gate Gun Club shoot at blue rocks to-morrow will be the Ingleside attraction. The club race at 25 targets, $20 added, distance handicap, a re-entry miss and out, $10 added, a race at 10 sets of doubles, distance handicap, and a "couple shoot" for merchandise prizes will be the club program.

An extra event will be the first of three shoots for the final ownership of each of three Olympic Gun Club trophies, the State Association six-man team trophy, the Overland Monthly six-man team trophy and the Roos three-man team trophy. All members of the Olympic Gun Club in good standing at the time of merging with the Golden Gate Gun Club are eligible for the competition.

The committee appointed to arrange for the disposition of the cups have decided upon three matches at 50 blue rocks each, distance handicap, the first match will take place to-morrow at 1 P. M., the second on April 13th and the last on May 11th. The winner of the first cup will be barred from the following two shoots, the same prohibition applies to the winner of the second cup. Entrance to these shoots will be $1.50 including targets, three moneys, cup winner is barred from sharing pool division. The side pool will be open to all.

Sacramento sportsmen have taken to trap shooting with a vim thus early in the season; last Sunday the Capital City Blue Rock Club held its opening club shoot at Kimball & Upson's grounds at Agricultural Park. Owing to the uncertain condition of the weather, many members did not attend. The older cranks, in fact, were obliged to break Upson's slumbers before they could open the grounds. The shoot lasted until dark. George Wittenbrock was again in harness with his usual good eye and broke 24 out of 25 birds, dusting the twenty-fifth one very hard.

Several interesting team events between Ruhstaller's and Upson's teams were shot, in each of which Ruhstaller's men were the victors.

The "Soupbones"—Washington Gun Club—will shoot at the grounds to-morrow and spectators will be welcome.

The club shoot at twenty-five birds called for the best efforts of the members, Wittenbrock ranking first with 24. Herold and Newbert tied for second place with 23 each. The scores resulted as follows:

Wittenbrock, G.	1111 1111 1111 1111 1110—24

In the fifteen-bird match Weldon and Herold each broke 14, and Gusto, Just and Vetter came next with 13 each.

In the match team shoot at twenty-five birds, Ruhstaller's team won from Upson's by a score of 105 to 95. The vanquished team demanded another race and got it, the total scores being:

Ruhstaller's team—Ruhstaller 17, Newbert 23, Brown 17, Herold 21, Reichert 17, Ashley 18—113.

Upson's team—Upson 13, Weldon 15, Gusto 17, Stephens 13, Winters 15, Vetter 21—94.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

We will here politely suggest to Mr. Shark, the scissors artist of an evening daily, that many readers of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN would consider themselves under a great obligation if there was a discontinuance of the practice of weekly mutilation, by tearing out the pages devoted to Rod, Gun and Kennel, of the copy of this journal subscribed to by Mr. John Butler at No. 7 Sutter street and there placed on file for the accommodation of a number of local sportsmen and others, patrons of the establishment, and positively not furnished for the convenience of any one, so far lost to a sense of ordinary propriety, as to deliberately practice the annoyance above referred to.

Any attache of the press of this or any other city, is always welcome to a copy of this paper, if the slight trouble of calling at or sending to our office for it would be observed. We do not at all object to seeing and reading in any other paper paragraphs, with local heads put on them, which we had issued a week previously as original matter. We are rather pleased to note that our efforts are appreciated by the daily press. We do, however, dislike to see a man who pays for his paper imposed upon, and so do others.

According to the records kept at the Gridley Gun Club hunting grounds near the town of Gridley, Butte county, the number of ducks killed during the recent open season was as follows: October, 1470; November, 2463; December 4672; January, 2947; making a total for the whole season of 11,552. There were probably many others killed which were not reported, and the total is likely to run above 14,000. There are no better hunting grounds in the State, and besides ducks, thousands of geese were killed. Of the ducks killed in December the greater proportion were mallards.

Max, the handsome Pointer owned by Fred W. King, died last week. Max will be remembered by the many shooters attending the live bird section of the Ingleside grounds for several years past, as a hard working and excellent retriever of pigeons both in and out of bounds. Max was also an excellent field dog.

A Colorado Wolf Hunt.

Eastern Colorado ranchmen value an ordinary coyote at about $37.50. This extravagant price has resulted in many great hunts for several years past, in which it is estimated thousands of the little animals fell victims to the "44" of the cowboy or the dogs of the visiting sportsmen of the East.

The famous plains country in Eastern Colorado, which was once the breeding ground and home of thousands of buffalo, is now populated by thousands of coyotes and so destructive have they become to the stock interests of the section in question that the state of Colorado and the cattle barons, working together, are offering $37.50 for every coyote scalp presented.

This liberal offer resulted in attracting hundreds of hunters from Nebraska, Kansas, Wyoming and Western Colorado, and the section infested found many hunters who made what they call "big money."

For the past five years the ranchmen have admitted their inability to cope with the increasing hundreds of wolves, but they have borne their burden patiently in the hope that the animals might be successfully killed by poison. The prairie wolves, however, have been so well fed on veal and lamb from the herds on a thousand hills that a piece of beef lying on the prairie has no attraction for their cultivated tastes, and they pass it by.

Gardner brothers, representative ranchmen of Yuma county, some time ago lost thirty-six head of cattle, and for many days they could not account for the strange fatality. Large and small stock were suddenly attacked by a mad frenzy, and would continue in such a condition until death. The cattle would paw the earth and attempt to bite and hook everything in sight, whether animate or inanimate. Froth and foam from the mouths of the maddened beasts fairly saturated the range. Ranchmen were terror stricken and dared not attempt to quiet or corral them either on foot or on horseback. After the three days' reign of terror, three dozen cattle were found dead scattered over the range. Former State Veterinarian Gresswell was called down to investigate the causes of the losses, and forwarded a complete diagnosis to Washington, with the result that Dr. Salmon of the department pronounced it rabies.

Then the Gardner boys remembered that they had killed a coyote which had acted very strangely about two weeks previous to the death of the stock. It had secluded itself in a vacant ranch cabin and was nearly dead from exhaustion when one of the cowboys on the round-up dispatched it with a club.

The great stock section was alive to the danger by this time and besides the regular $2.50 offered for every wolf scalp by the State of Colorado, two ranchmen offered $10 each for every wolf captured and the Eastern Colorado Live Stock Association, as a body, offered $15 for every animal killed.

In Denver scores of sportsmen with dogs and guns have arranged to make an onslaught on the range of sand hills in which the coyotes breed, and letters from Nebraska and Kansas indicated that hundreds would be on the ground from neighboring states. Many Wyoming people will also attend.

The range of sand hills mentioned break a monotonously level prairie, or plain, near the state line between Colorado and Nebraska, and it is here that the little animals breed by thousands every year. These plains were once the favorite home of the buffalo and the range of sand hills furnished shelter for them in winter.

Twelve years ago when one of these big wolf hunts became inter-state and almost national in its character, on account of the hundreds of people interested who attended from all parts of the country, it was believed that the coyote was a thing of the past because so many of the animals had been slaughtered. Eighteen hundred were killed at that time but the rate of mortality appears to have no appreciable effect upon the prolific coyote.

While the cowboys do not fear them, instances have been known in the past where the children of ranchmen have been attacked and narrowly escaped death. One particular case depicts a little girl venturing a few yards from the house just at dusk and an attack from coyotes. She is still alive but horribly scarred from the mutilations received in the attack upon her.

The country so thickly populated by these animals is of more than passing historic note, and many of the sportsmen who attended the hunt twelve years ago took away with them a collection of Indian relics and curios extremely valuable as souvenirs in the markets of the East.

Eastern Colorado, during the pioneer days of the West, was the scene of many battles between the Indians and the whites and between the different tribes of Indians as well. Within a few miles—not over fifty—of the range of sand hills where the coyotes breed, the famous battle of the Arickaree was fought. A few miles to the north of this point is the place pointed out as the spot where W. W. Cody (Buffalo Bill) and Chief Yellow Hand had their famous hand-to-hand conflict in which the old scout triumphed signally. At Leslie, in the same county, Yuma, there is an old Indian battlefield and burying ground that has been frightfully desecrated by relic hunters, but many interesting marks of Indian warfare and frontier life are still to be seen. The old line for earthworks thrown up by the troops and the search for arrow points furnish an abundant resource of entertainment for visitors.

At the present time this burying ground is a sieve—literally filled with holes dug by coyotes or made in excavating for the remains of the Indians, who were usually buried with tomahawks, gun or some jewel in the belief that such articles might be needed when the spirit of the departed had reached the happy hunting ground.

The citizens of the various stock towns in the coyote-infested section are preparing to have a day fixed for one big "round-up" of the entire three counties representing the territory that has suffered so severely as a result of the depredations of the animal. If this is done, and it will be, the big hunt will present some interesting features. The three counties represent a territory something like eighty miles square. Yuma is the largest of the three and Yuma and Washington counties have suffered most from the ravages of the carnivorous beasts.

The reader can picture in his mind a vast territory of sage brush and sand hills eighty miles across either way. Then he can imagine the horsemen from all over the country arranged around the outer limits of this area. At the start the hunters may be some distance apart, but as they move in at a certain hour toward one common center they soon get closer together until they finally meet. Every two miles of horsemen around the square will have a captain, who will direct all movements. If the start is made at 6 o'clock in the morning the scene, if possible to encompass it within the vision of one man, would represent more than a regiment of cavalry and more than one thousand dogs, dashing nearly all day across the plains, forcing every living thing before them. A mixed mass—cowboys, tenderfeet, cattle barons, millionaires, Eastern sportsmen and withal a lively, yelling horde of men intent on gathering coyote scalps.

If the start for the forty-mile ride to the center is made at 6 o'clock in the morning the forces from all four sides ought to meet at the common center before sunset and perhaps little past the middle of the afternoon.

According to a report of a nephew of the famous Kit Carson, who practically conducted the hunt during the eighties, the scenes during the last hours of the hunt are never to be forgotten. Coyotes frightened out of the tall grass at the approach of the oncoming hunters ran like sheep in a circle in the hope that they may find a friendly outlet to freedom. As a result by the time the horsemen and hunters got within two or three miles of each other at the close of the hunt they represent a corral surrounding hundreds of coyotes, circling in a mad mass like so many frightened sheep.

The dogs are unleashed and the slaughter begins. If there are 1000 hounds they will all be slaughtering on the outside of the herd of coyotes, which will number nearly double what the canines will. Imagine 2000 wild, frightened, frenzied, maddened wolves, snapping, yelping and hurrying in nearly every direction after the circle is broken. The one that endeavors to pass the corral of cavalry is dispatched with a repeating rifle or a "44." Those remaining inside the circle of hounds, human beings and horses are panic-stricken—biting each other, falling and suffering death in the mad scramble. Here are two wolves pulling and dismembering a dog and there you see the hounds, blood-stained and eager for the fight, tearing the little coyotes limb from limb. Excited hunters endeavor to use their rifles, and dogs as well as wolves suffer. When the fight is over few have escaped, but the battlefield is red with the blood of the dogs and the wolves. It represents a picture of slaughter supreme.

The battle royal on the occasion of the last hunt lasted for nearly two hours and scores of the best hounds in that country bit the dust.

Fishing for Bone-Fish in Biscayne Bay.

We were sitting about the blazing fire-place, sportsmen from all parts of the country, John B. McFerran and J. W. Davis, of Louisville, Ky., among the others.

"We have come to Maine," began Mr. Davis, "principally to convince ourselves that we have found, in the bone-fish of Florida, the gamest fish that swims. We have taken the land-locked salmon of the Rangeleys and the big square-tailed trout of the Northern Maine lakes and streams. We've caught the tarpon of the South, the black bass of the North, and we have fished for the gamest fish the country affords, only to be convinced more fully that nothing can hold a candle with the terror I have named.

"To say that the gamest fish in the world and native of the United States is little known, and that scarcely a score of sportsmen have fished for it, is to appear ridiculous in the eyes of veterans who have caught, so they imagine, everything that swims from Florida to Newfoundland, and from Massachusetts to California; but we are convinced that such is the case.

"It is strange, and it isn't, that so little is known of the bone-fish. Probably this fact is due to their scarcity, and, perhaps, to the desire of the few sportsmen who have had the entree to the fun, to keep quiet about it; but, for our part, we want sportsmen to know about this king of the waters. The fish is found in Biscayne bay, off the coast of Florida, at Miami, the terminus of Flagler's east coast line and the farthest point south reached by any railroad. It is not known to be anywhere on the American coast except in Biscayne bay and a territory covering perhaps some one hundred miles—that is, the waters of Biscayne bay and those extending south for some sixty miles further.

"Our discovery was purely accidental. My friend, McFerran, was south on a cruising trip, and purely by accident put into Miami for supplies. Ever on the lookout for fishing, he inquired of a native what was to be found thereabouts, and was told of the bone-fish. He tried the sport, became an enthusiast, and since then nothing else has satisfied him in the way of fishing. We have become interested as his friends and we feel the same, but to convince ourselves that nothing else approaches the bone-fish we have tried the different waters of the land.

"The fishes weigh from three to ten pounds, averaging five and six. They are dark on the back, with silvery sides, and scales like a tarpon. They are long and slender but well knit and powerful, with a sharp forked tail and prominent dorsal fin. They are put up for speed. They look as if they might belong to the mullet or herring family. They have a large bone in the jaw with which they crush their food, a shell-fish, hence the name.

"The fishing is best from flood to full tide, at which time the fishes come in and go out, feeding on the flats or shoal waters at a depth of eight to ten inches, where their food abounds. It is a splendid sight to see them coming in in schools, that big fin of theirs cutting the water and every now and then a bit of sunshine reflecting from their silvery sides. As they feed upon the bottom their heads go down and their tails show above the water.

"Your guide works the boat toward them carefully, for they are as timid as deer, and once frightened are very difficult to approach. When within from sixty to eighty feet you cast out your bait, one of the shell-fish upon which they feed (and it must be fresh, for they will not touch a piece of stale bait), to within some twenty feet of them, not nearer, for fear of startling them. They have a nose like a full-blooded pointer, and when they smell that bait and commence to hunt for it, it is enough to give the most hardened sportsman nervous prostration. The bait must lie until they find it. This is indicated by a slight nibble, for they are not vigorous biters, and they must be hooked, for they rarely hook themselves.

"What's he do when hooked? What's a race horse do when he gets the word? But a horse is not in the same class. From three hundred to five hundred feet of the line are taken out at the first rush. This is often repeated twice, and not infrequently threetimes, making from 1000 to 1200 feet of line in all taken out. When these runs are over, if you have the fish on the line, which probably you will not unless you are experienced, it is fight, fight, fight, every inch of the way to the boat, the runs growing shorter as the fish fails. When the fish sees the boat the final and mighty struggle comes. Not having strength to make dashes he circles about the boat at a distance from ten to thirty feet, often going clear around the craft half a dozen times or more. When he comes up alongside he is dead—he has died dead game—and he may be lifted in with safety by the guide.

"Now, mark my word, a man who once catches a bone-fish is never satisfied with anything else afterward. Tarpon fishing is child's play in comparison. George H. Hulings of Philadelphia is one of the converted men, and his remark, 'I'd rather catch a seven-pound bone-fish than be governor of Pennsylvania,' expresses the feelings of all sportsmen who have tried the sport.

"Our best string?" Well, Friend McFerran and myself caught in two and one-half days' fishing, last March, forty fishes averaging seven and one-half pounds apiece. None were under six and none over nine pounds in weight. The several runs of each of these fishes aggregated not less than 1000 feet.

"Gentlemen, my description is very, very tame. One must feel the mighty rush of this king of the finny tribe to understand what the sport is. One's experience with him cannot be told in words. If you desire fishing beyond your wildest dreams, my advice is, encounter this chap on his native heath. The bone-fish is not the lady-fish of the Florida coast. This fish is generally known as the bone-fish among the natives, but they are of no kin, except that both are fishes.

"For the table I believe they have no equal, either planked or broiled. The fishing is best in November and December, but is good all through the winter, and as late as April. The Royal Palm Hotel offers fine but by no means cheap accommodations. A yawl costs three dollars and a half, a catboat five dollars and a sloop ten dollars per day. This price includes a guide. William, Charlie and George Bickle are guides at Miami and, I believe, there are no better guides in Florida.

"Regular black bass tackle will do, provided there are six hundred feet of No. 9 (fine) best flax or linen line, a good multiplying reel and handmade, hammered bronzed hooks on treble, twisted, best-quality gut. Up to three years ago not a dozen men had caught this fish and the number that knows of him now is far too small for such royal and unequalled sport. Believe me, it is richly worth crossing two continents for the thrill of encountering him."—American Field.

California Jack Rabbits.

The jack rabbits of Southern California are the biggest rabbits in existence. They are as fleet as the wind, and one will sit still on its form or by the roadside until you have almost grabbed it by its mule-like ears, but before you can close your fingers on it there will be no rabbit there. If you look, say forty yards ahead, you will see what you think is another rabbit, humped up in a fluffy bunch, waiting for you in the same way. But it won't be another rabbit. It will be the same one, it having covered all that distance and settled down again before you have hardly missed it from where it sat first.

These big rabbits are as swift and sudden as the fleas that swarm on them as soon as summer comes. The rabbits are fat then, but these fleas are so thick on them, and are so ravenous that they actually reduce the long-eared four-footed jumper to a skeleton by the time the fall rain sets in. If it wasn't for those regular fall rains the fleas would be of great service in destroying the rabbit pest, for the rabbits could not withstand the assaults of their insatiable parasites many days longer. But the rains are certain, and they are fatal to the fleas. The water kills the fleas, and the rabbits pitch in again on the vineyards and orchards and grain with sharpened appetites. Notwithstanding the thousands of jack rabbits slaughtered in the spring, numbers escape to keep the supply big enough to make it necessary for the slaughter of other thousands the next spring. It is simply impossible to exterminate them, they are such sure and persistent breeders.

Beet pulp has a tendency to fatten, consequently it is often given to beef cattle without the addition of other feed. When wanted for milch cows it is best to use it with a little hay or grain, as without these there is a tendency to produce thin, watery milk and to lay on flesh. When pulp is fed in considerable quantities, the animals do not care so much for water.

John Rupport of Humboldt county writes to the Times of Eureka asking for information as to the best breed of chickens to keep for profit. He says he tried an experiment with ninety hens last year and here is the egg record: January, 981; February, 1016; March, 1156; April, 1109; May, 1712; June, 1004; July, 971; August, 887; September, 716; October, 497; November, 319; December, 643. Total, 11,111 or 122 for each hen. Can anyone beat that.
